TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 9 (CP) — Prices drifted irregularly today in early afternoon stock market dealings after a slow advance.

Industrials showed little reaction to the new federal budget as only a few selected issues showed changes. Ford A jumped $2.50 following a 10 per cent special tax reduction on automobiles while General Steel Wares added $1.

Banks and constructions posted a scattered list of fractional advances to form industrials' strongest sections. Agriculturers, foods, refining oils and retail stores also drew firm support but liquors and manufacturing companies slipped.

Western oil leaders eased but lower-priced issues pushed upward. Ajax Petroleum, Fargo, Model Oil, Okalta, Scurry, Selburn and Western Homestead traded higher.

Base Metals were mixed as Cassiar, East Sullivan, Ontario Pyrites, International Nickel and United Keno Hill strengthened while Estella, New Calumet and Sherritt-Gordon weakened.

Senior golds were firm., Kerr Addison, Malartic, Sigma and Wright-Hargreaves climbed moderately. Secondaray issues were mixed.

Lieut.-Governor Of Kiwanis Visits Local Club

Members of the Kiwanis Club welcomed the Lieutenant-Governor of the district, George Coulter of Oshawa, on his official visit to the club on Tuesday. Mr. Coulter has been a member of the Kiwanis Club for over 25 years, has served as president of the Oshawa Club and chairman of various committees of that club and district committees.

Mr. Coulter stated it was a great privilege to visit the largest club in the district and also one that has done a great deal of work in the community. He especially mentioned Ted Clarke, the efficient secretary of the club stating his reports were the best that were received at the district office. Bill Slade was also mentioned for his work as district chairman of Aid and Assistance to churches and Frank Creegan for his excellent work in the formation of the Trenton Club.

Speaking on the moral and spiritual objectives of Kiwanis Clubs, the Lieutenant-Governor said that the truths given in the Sermon on the Mount are coming down to us in answer today. He stated that the basic truth was the daily living according to the Golden Rule and that Kiwanis Clubs throughout the district were practising that truth by the community work each was doing. "Kiwanis need not be ashamed of the work they have done in the past years and are well equipped in ability by their membership to go further in this good work" said the speaker.

The meeting was entertained by Bill Navin, a former member, now living in Simcoe. Bill gave a couple of his imitations playing his own accompaniment and the offerings were heartily received by the members. George Forhan, Fred Bawson and Jack Wood as chairman of the committee, were thanked for providing entertainmen and transportation for the residents of the Hastings County Home. George Hozang was also thanked for heading the committee of the "Go to Church" campaign.

The sing song was led by Jack Kuntze and the accompaniment was provided by Phil Huddlestone. Harold Carruthers presided.

Body Recovered From Bay

The body of George Walker, 45, of this city, was recovered in the Bay of Quinte at Point Anne, this morning. Walker was drowned in the Moira River on February 15.

Richard Massie, 25, of Point Anne, was at the bay shore readying a fishing boat when he discovered the body floating against a pier at the shore line. He notified police and both city and provincial officers went to the scene.

Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott was called and identification was made through a wallet in the pocket of the dead man. Although the body had been in the water nearly two months the name on identification cards in the wallet could still be read. There will be no inquest.

Walker was a native of England and came to Canada as a young man. For a number of years he had worked at the Quinte Hotel.

On the night of February 15, he was seen either to jump or fall into the river near the upper bridge and he was swept away in the current. He is not believed to have any relatives in Canada.

SCRAP OLD LINER

Montreal, April 9 (CP)—The Empress of Australia, once the pride of the Canadian Pacific Steamship fleet, has been sold for scrap, it was announced yesterday. The 21,833-ton liner, built in 1914 by Germany and surrendered to the Allies in 1919 spent her declining years as a troopship.

Expect Butter Floor Price Will Remain at 63c

Toronto, April 9 (CP)—The floor price of butter probably will remain at 63 cents a pound for this year, delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the Ontario Cream Producers Association were told today.

Secretary Robert Jardine said his association has met with federal Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Production Minister Howe. He said that both sympathize with arguments presented for retention of the prevailing floor price.

The meeting was advised that a committee has been set up to study the possibility of establishing a central marketing agency for Canada.

W. C. Cameron of the federal Department of Agriculture, told the meeting that while a milk surplus has been reported in Ontario, the last six years have shown a downward trend in production. Last year, he said, it was down to the production point of 10 years ago.

SERIOUS TROUBLE LOOMS

Apartheid, the Afrikaans name by which the Nationalist government of South Africa designates its race separation policies, appears likely to cause an explosion which may have repercussions in places a long distance from Africa.

For a long time, the Nationalist government, headed by Dr. Daniel Malan, has been enacting legislation intended to reduce the economic power and freedom of the various colored people in South Africa. The so-called "colored" have been restricted as to where they may work, where they may go, where they may live, and so on.

Malan's most recent and provocative step was to legislate away most of the voting power of the colored. The legislation was passed, by a bare majority of the South African parliament. The South African Supreme Court declared that this legislation was unconstitutional. Malan's reaction to that declaration was going to be applied, constitutional or otherwise.

When it became known that the colored were planning a campaign of passive resistance, not to mention other resistance which may not be entirely passive, Malan announced ominously "the government will deal adequately with those responsible for inciting subversive activities."

All this might be dismissed as a tempest in a teapot if the colored were a helpless minority. But they are neither helpless nor a minority. Of a total South African population of 11,500,000, more than 9,000,000 are colored. Some are Indians, some are Malayan and pacific Orientals, but most of them are stalwart negroes whose not-very-remote ancestors were both courageous and savage.

Furthermore, Malan lacks even the unqualified support of the white population. He is opposed not only by the parliamentary minority, but by the South African ex-servicemen's organization which corresponds to the Canadian Legion, by the Anglican, United and pacific clergymen, by various nationalist groups outside South Africa, and (we must not forget them), by South Africa's Communists.

More than once, Malan's efforts to enforce apartheid have provoked riots with numerous fatalities. In recent weeks, the colored, encouraged by the open and direct support of numerous white men, have become more defiant and truculent than ever.

Just now, South Africa's whites are celebrating the three hundredth anniversary of the arrival of the first white settlers there. The colored are said to be preparing a campaign of protest against three hundreds years of exploitation by the whites.

Further rioting in South Africa, if followed by the stern repressive measures which Malan's utterances would lead one to expect, could develop into civil war. Civil war in South Africa would invariably lead to external intervention. Such intervention could easily become a widespread war, involving other countries.

AN EXPLANATION IN ORDER

Some curious things are happening in Europe these days, if we may believe Leon Balcer, member of the House of Commons for Three Rivers.

Mr. Balcer says that Canada has to pay to maintain its troops in Germany, while those of the United States, Britain and France are maintained at the expense of Germany.

Mr. Balcer also wants to know why the Canadian brigade must buy its stores from the British army of occupation, "which apparently gets them free from the German republic."

If the Canadian occupation force in Germany is required to make expenditures from which the British, the Americans and the French are exempted, an explanation should be forthcoming from whoever is handing over the money.

A PAGE FROM HISTORY

The Edmonton Journal, in an article dealing with the names of Canadian political parties and the changes which they have undergone since colonial days, reveals a curious and probably little-known fact about the Liberal party.

In its earliest days, the Liberal party started by calling itself the Reform party and its followers Reformers. But even the Reformers themselves did not accept this title.

The Reformers in Upper Canada became known as "Clear Grits," while in Lower Canada, the party was spoken of, even among its own followers as "le parti rouge," (the red party). The name Liberal did not come into use until after Confederation and then only gradually.

THE HONOR GUEST

They gave him a party. They gave him a gift.
And the praises they spoke gave his spirit a lift.
'Twas a happy occasion men now and then plan
And nothing in life does more good for a man.

They gathered to honor him.
Stood up to cheer.
They told of their pride in him while he could hear.

They gave him that thrill of success which depends
Not on money or skill but the faith of his friends.

They gave him that gift which no money can buy:
The warmth of the heart which true friends must supply.
They gave him their trust as about him they sat,
And no triumph in life can be greater than that.

Stars Save Guide When Native Fails In Arctic Patrol

Ottawa. (CP)—Inside the Arctic circle, where the night is six months long and the thermometer can record low formation looks much the same as another, even a routine 1,000-mile patrol can turn out to be an adventure.

It happened to R.C.M.P. Constable C. E. Boone the first time he did.

Boone was charged with a patrol from Chesterfield Inlet, about 250 miles inside the Arctic Circle on the western shore of Hudson Bay, to Baker Lake, some 200 miles inland as the crow flies. His route took him with him a native guide in Special Constable Ed Ford, who had travelled the route several times and was sure he knew the way. The patrol was to visit native camps en route and pick up experimental equipment at Baker Lake to bring back to Chesterfield Inlet.

The trip normally took five or six days, each way.

Radioed For Aid

When Sgt. L. Weston, commanding the Chesterfield Inlet detachment, sent the patrol men for 12 days, he radioed Baker Lake to send out a detachment to search. Three days later, he wired R.C.M.P. headquarters here for a search aircraft. The party turned up in Chesterfield Inlet two days after that, none the worse for wear after 17 days out.

Boone and Ford left the Inlet Jan. 4 and 5 respectively in two heavy overseas and blowing snow, the guide took the route with sent them north instead of west.

For several days it was a case of the guide coming upon bays and hills that looked "very familiar," but always turned out on examination to be something else.

Boone was later commended by his commanding officer for conducting himself "remarkably well." In his report to headquarters here, Sgt. Weston said the constable had "shown by his actions and observance to be well-suited to northern travel."

Boone had been studying Science—particularly astronomy—and he had come to the conclusion he was quite a bit north of the normal course to Baker Lake. On the ninth day, he decided to head east, in hopes of reaching the coast of Hudson Bay.

They found an Eskimo settlement on the 13th day and discovered they were some 80 miles north of Chesterfield Inlet. Taking no chances, Boone took one of the Eskimos along as his guide, and made Chesterfield Inlet four days later.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Nick Musallem, a young Vancouver barrister, who appears with great frequency on radio forum broadcasts, popped up again the other night on one such round-table debate and with a strong idea.

In a discussion of the causes of juvenile delinquency Musallem proposed a Ministry of Youth.

It was a fleeting idea and, in the customary welter of criticism against Society and the Family, it passed without comment by the other speakers. Yet this, it seemed to me, was a truly constructive suggestion of the evening.

Speakers on this topic almost always take one of two lines.

If they're Socialists, as two happened to be, they say that kids are going bad because of the inequalities of the free enterprise system.

If they're not Socialists, they say the fault lies at the modern day family whose social interests reject the children.

There's much to be said for both sides, of course. We know, for example, that the children of the slums are more prone to delinquency than the children of better class areas.

We know, too, that family life on every level isn't what is used to be. So, as the speakers rightly pointed out, delinquency is often a problem in the families of the higher bracket income groups.

But it's no solution merely to identify a problem. We get that from Socialism as we are from a return to the old-fashioned family.

What is needed is the kind of thing Musallem proposed. We ought to tackle this problem as we tackle the problem of building roads or sewers.

A Ministry of Youth, staffed by experts, would have to take this out of the hands of amateurs and find out, first, what it's all about.

It's my hunch that this is not a general problem. Yet every is highly specialized one.

The other day several merchants complained about high school youngsters making trouble during their lunch hour. They put the blame on "a small, hard core." That seems to be right.

Everyone talks about "delinquents" as if youth, generally, were responsible. Yet every cursory glance about you proves that that isn't the case.

Myself, I find the teen-agers I meet astonishingly well adjusted, refreshingly outspoken people. They shouldn't be taking the rap for a few.

Yet there are ways of reaching the few.

It can't be done by encouraging them to collect stamps or mount butterflies. We have to meet them on their own level, discover their interests and help them re-route their vitality and awareness.

The boys' clubs with limited funds, are doing a wonderful, if unsung, job along those lines.

I know of the work of one offshoot of these clubs, an outfit called the New Jazz Society, that's been a great success in giving super people a hobby and is a kind of working model of what can be done.

I read recently of two youth clubs set up in Los Angeles in an attempt (apparently with some success) to cut down on the number of car thefts and joyrides by members.

One invites the teen-agers to build and race "hot rods" under supervision. The other has set up flying classes with scholarships for youngsters who could not normally afford the tuition.

In both cases these outfits have attracted the so-called "bad" element who aren't "bad" at all, but merely in need of well directed energy.

The article mentioned the case of one particular boy who was thought to be incorrigible — although a prototype of the modern sadist.

He turned out to be a brilliant mechanic and quickly became an instructor of other youngsters. The following year he was a model husband, family, no direction, and a law-abiding antagonism to society—all milestones on the road to crime.

Certainly, the highly-organized society of these days that kind of help needs the help and guidance of the state—and before he becomes a direct charge on the state through his anti-social activities.

Every generation has felt that the following generation was going to the dogs. I don't try to resist that temptation. But certainly the young people of today are exposed to influences that, even 20 years ago when I was a teenager, were considered a bit daring.

The movies and radio, in particular, have had a tremendous effect on the pattern of juvenile living and thinking. In some extent, overlapped the influence of the family life. Television certainly will be an even greater influence.

These media reflect a way of life. It's distorted, if it puts too much emphasis on wrong values, that will be reflected in the behavior of the young people.

I don't think censorship is the answer, but there should be some sort of counteraction to these influences. They should be studied and their effect on young minds should be analyzed and combatted where it's wrong.

Certainly, as the speaker pointed out, the trend of modern advertising to glamorize material things ("My daddy has a Nash!") demands some antidote.

The onus, of course, is still on the family and, to a lesser extent, on the schools and the church, but it rests, too, on the state.

A Ministry of Youth might be a powerful factor in making good citizens out of some raw material that is, I feel, as good as it ever was.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The reason I do not play billiards or pool is very simple that I can't bear the sound or feel of scraping the chalk on the bottom of the cue.

By such trivial little quirks and prejudices it is likely most of our lives are guided and directed. It so happens hat pool sharks are the kind of men in whose company any I am most at home, jovial, cheering souls—men who aren't particular about going home, who love to idle away the time together in the pool room or pool table. An evening to them is wasted time in the pool room, in company of men like themselves, amid the cigar-perfumed, joking, smoke-filled atmosphere I loathe. The click of the billiard balls have for them the same magic as the plop or splash of a rising trout has for me. For forty years, my friends of this description have tried every device to lure me into the game. With the squeak and scrape of that infernal square basket of balls on the floor they cut-tip has, since youth, caused the pit of my stomach to quiver. And even sitting on the side-lines, watching my friends, the sight of them chalking their cues give me what my grandmother used to call "the qualms."

Certainly, part of growing into a man after the pattern of those I most cotton to, I became a homegoing man, a quick luncher, and spent his after-luncheon half hour walking through hardware departments, or no more than aimlessly walking the streets looking into shops full of fellow-creatures. My evenings, I believe Payne wrote his death-less song while he was in Paris dressing of a morning, I am not at home, lonely and discouraged. He realized that home was the citadel of a nation's happiness and happiness, and wanted everyone filled with accounts of the depravity to which men have stooped to get away from it.

Yet money itself need not be evil. The man who makes his money serve him wisely may do great and good deeds with it. The man who serves his money, however, is likely to be led from selfishness to outright infamy. Money is a great servant, but a bad master.

That is the danger against which Jesus warned in the gospel when he spoke of the possession of money, but the soul — enslaving parts of ourselves. "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."

SOAP AND WATER CLEANLINESS IS GOOD SANITATION

Recently a reader asked how books recently used by a patient with cancer should be disinfected so they will be safe to keep in the home. The answer is—

If not visibly soiled, books, magazines, newspapers, paper currency, (stamps, coins, luggage are objects, hats, shoes, clothing) are harmless to handle and use, no matter what disease previous handlers or users may have had. If visibly soiled, destroy by burning, or launder or dry clean or disinfect by baking, steaming or ironing.

Now comes a pathetic letter from a reader, who, thanks to two operations for cancer, is able to do most of her own housework. She finds that her oldest and dearest friend now bothered by her manner fear of the association. That they had so long enjoyed before. Her friend formerly invited her to her home on many occasions, but no longer does so. Her friend calls much less frequently, and when she does, declines to take a cup of tea, which she had always enjoyed before—these changed ways show that...the fair weather friend is and she'll catch cancer.

Perhaps I shouldn't say fair weather friend. It isn't so simple as that. Nobody likes disaster or cause of cancer, and hence it is only human to develop phobias about it.

We know that a person is no more less likely to develop tuberculosis than in a tuberculosis sanatorium or hospital—simply because everybody in the sanatorium knows how to prevent infection. No one has caught leprosy at the national leprosarium at Carville, Louisiana. Leprosy is caused by a specific germ but it is less likely to spread than tuberculosis is, whether either have been recognized and the patient isolated or not.

The best protection any one has against any known infection is soap and water cleanliness.

Plain toilet or laundry soap and water is the most efficient and reliable disinfectant for home, household or personal use in any circumstances, in my opinion. No smelly chemical gives better protection than soap and water.

The frightened friend will be as safe in visiting her old friend and in entertaining her, having tea or dining with the family as though there were no such affliction as cancer.

Ordinary soap and water cleanliness is ample precaution against any infectious or contagious disease in any circumstance. Indeed surgical, medical and obstetric asepsis rests almost entirely of scrupulous soap and water cleanliness.

If this woman who has had the operations for cancer was cleanly enough to associate with before the operations she is safe to associate with now. Ordinary soap and water cleanliness is still cheap enough for every one.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

It is Not-What You Eat

Please tell me what groceries to avoid because of chronic polyneuritis that is widespread throughout the United States. . . (Mrs. W. J.)

Answer—I used that language to tell about the frequency of North Americans terrified of (triple or poly-neuritis). It is not dog what they eat, but rather to lack of what you don't get in such groceries as refined white sugar, refined white flour, refined and refined polished breakfast foods, namely vitamin B, Best food source of this is plain wheat from which nothing is removed.

Coffee and Health

Is coffee injurious to one's health?—(Mrs. W. A. T.)

Answer—It depends on one's age and some other factors. In booklet C V D, about heart and artery trouble, there is a short chapter on the value of coffee. In this booklet, Diet in Kidney and Why there are longer chapters about the effects of tea, chocolate, coca cola and other food how to make good coffee and win friends. Five other items send me 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Capsule is not Capsule

Perhaps Dr. Brady would be kind enough to explain the difference between a capsule and a capsule—(A. W.)

Answer—A Capsule is a soluble case for inclosing a dose of medicine. A capsule is a kind of coating or capsule within another coated capsule to inclose two medicines which retain potency better if not actually mixed till they enter the stomach—vitamin D and calcium, for instance.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HOME — THE CITADEL OF FREEDOM

This April 9th is the hundredth anniversary of the death of Mrs. Howard Payne, who wrote the immortal song "Home, Sweet Home". The music was not his, but based upon an old Italian air. It first appeared in the opera "Clari, the Maid of Milan." One of my book shelves I have kept held in my hand the first edition of this famous opera and read the song, hidden in its heart.

Few of us know much of Payne's life though he collaborated with Washington Irving in many of his writings, and wrote, adapted, and translated more than sixty plays. He was once U.S. consul at Tunis, between 1842 and 1845, and was from 1851 to his death there the following year. He was somewhat of a wanderer, however, and it is perhaps significant that his first play was called "Julia, or, The Wanderer." "Home, Sweet Home" was first published in 1823.

I believe Payne wrote his deathless song while he was in Paris dressing of a morning, I am not at home, lonely and discouraged. He realized that home was the citadel of a nation's happiness and happiness, and wanted everyone to realize the fact. Certainly it is the home that is the strongest fortress for the defeat of all foreign ideologies, especially communism. And it is the home that the ideals of a nation. From its door go the best of this earth.

"Be it ever so humble," said Payne, "there's no place like home." It is from homes of a free land that men and boys go out to fight to preserve them. It is that their most cherished memories lie, and where their most valuable treasures are. There is learned—in at atmosphere of love, selflessness, and religious faith. Poison the home and you strike at the heart of freedom!

Payne was not the heroic in history. They came from God-fearing homes that fought against this kind, and is bent upon destroying them. Dare them to do it! Of a wanderer, yes, and in a sense perhaps significant that his first play was called "Julia, or, The Wanderer." "Home, Sweet Home" was first published in 1823.

There is an exciting passage in a modern romantic novel which contains a most symbolic incident. A minor villain of the story, having stolen a large sum of money, hurriedly starts to swim to safety, but the treacherous thief is dragged under and drowned by the weight of the stolen gold he was carrying.

Not only in fiction but in real life also, gold sinks men, spiritually and eternally every day. In their greed for it, some people disregard all sense of honor, all respect of law, all heed to their consciences. The newspapers are

May be Possible to Reduce Heavy Defence Expenditures Within Two Years--Abbott Finance Minister Says '51 One of 'Solid Achievement'

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 9, (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott Tuesday night predicted in his budget speech that within a couple of years it may be possible to reduce heavy defence expenditures.

Describing 1951 as a year of "solid achievement," Mr. Abbott said:

"We have passed through one critical period, but equally serious dangers still lie ahead. Although we and our friends of the free world now are somewhat better prepared to meet them, there is no room for complacency. We will have the more costly part of our defence program immediately ahead of us.

"However, if we are equally resolute, energetic and fortunate during this year and the next, there is good prospect of achieving in the not too distant future, perhaps not a world of genuine peace and good will, but at least a position of reasonable confidence and security that can be maintained at a somewhat lower cost than we now are compelled to carry."

The Canadian government instituted a $5,000,000,000-three-year defence program last year. It spent $1,401,000,000 on defence in the fiscal year ended March 31 last and estimates it will spend $2,106,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

In the fiscal portion of his speech—a portion preceding another covering tax changes—Mr. Abbott dealt mainly with points covered in an economic White Paper, tabled Monday in the Commons.

Tabled During Speech

Ordinarily the White Paper, which disclosed a surplus of $355,737,000 for 1951-52, is tabled during the budget speech. Mr. Abbott had forecast a surplus of $30,000,000 for the fiscal year ended March 31. The surplus in 1950-51 was $211,294,000.

Referring to the steps taken by the government to control inflation, Mr. Abbott said consumer credit restrictions have played an "important part" in reducing pressures and in improving savings.

"These regulations were admittedly severe, but the inflationary pressures were such that strong measures were needed," he said. "As these pressures cease we were able to relax the regulations to some extent."

Then indicating that no immediate relaxation is in prospect, he added:

"I keep these matters under frequent review, and as soon as it seems sensible to do so we shall relax them again."

Delayed Four Years

Deferred depreciation regulations contained in the last budget restrained a good deal of non-essential capital investment. The regulations delayed for four years the write-off of depreciation of non-essential capital investments.

"No changes in the principle of these regulations are presently contemplated," he said, "but we can assure the House that we do not like regulations of this sort and that we shall be most happy to modify or withraw them when the proper time comes."

He appealed to Canadians to keep up in 1952 the good record of personal savings they made in 1951. The savings climbed to approximately $1,400,000,000 in 1951 from $700,000,000 in 1950.

Shows Little Change

Official holdings of gold and United States dollars had shown little change in the last three months.

On March 31 they totalled $1,787,000,000, or $8,000,000 more than at Dec. 31, and $134,000,000 more than a year. Between January and August last year the reserves dropped by approximately $180,000,000. In the remaining four months of the year they went approximately $200,000,000 and since then they have shown little variation from week to week.

Present prospects for 1952 are for continued high levels of employment and business activity, but with more unevenness in their distribution."

Some lines and some regions "may experience demands that will fully or more than fully tax" their available resources. Other lines and other regions may find their resources less fully employed.

Prices May Be Higher

Prices in 1952 probably will be unchanged to two per cent higher than last year. The value of goes national production may reach $22,500,000,000 compared with $21,200,000,000.

Turning to government accounts, Mr. Abbott said Progressive Conservative members have charged him with bad budgetting. He had forecast a surplus of only $30,000,000 for the year and ended it with one of approximately $356,000,000.

"Let me say quite plainly that so long as we have such years of rising prosperity as we have experienced while I have been minister of finance I am not going to apologize for having a surplus and making some reductions in the dead-weight of our huge national debt."

"No minister of finance, provincial treasurer or any head of a national treasury with anything like comparable tasks has made as consistently good a record of forecasting of revenue and expenditures as has the Canadian minister of finance in the past five years."

Budget Highlights

Ottawa, April 9—(CP)—Highlights of the fiscal portion of Finance Minister Abbott's budget speech:

Within a couple of .years it may be possible to reduce heavy defence expenditures.

Consumer - credit restrictions are under frequent review, and as "soon as it seems sensible to do so we shall relax them again."

Regulations delaying for four years the write-off of depreciation on non-essential capital investments will be modified or withdrawn "when the proper time comes."

Thrift and saving are still virtues, and "I urge Canadians to keep up in 1952 the good record they made in 1951."

Canada's official holdings of gold and United States dollars totalled $1,787,000,000 at March 31, an increase of $8,000,000 over Dec. 31 last and of $134,000,000 over March 31, 1951.

Value of gross national production in 1952 is expected to reach $22,500,000,000 compared with $21,200,000,000 in 1951.

In 1952, prices are expected to be between unchanged and two per cent higher.

Turning to government accounts, Mr. Abbott said Progressive Conservative members have charged him with bad budgetting. He had forecast a surplus of only $30,000,000 for the year and ended it with one of approximately $356,000,000.

"Let me say quite plainly that so long as we have such years of rising prosperity as we have experienced while I have been minister of finance I am not going to apologize for having a surplus and making some reductions in the dead-weight of our huge national debt."

Stand-Pat Budget Concensus Of Top Advisers

Ottawa, April 9 (CP)—To Finance Minister Abbott, it was an I-would-if-I-could-but-I-can't budget.

As one of the minister's top advisers put it: "It's a stand-pat budget."

Taxes aren't going up. With the important exception of commodity taxes, they aren't going down either.

For the family that wants a car or a washing machine or an electric stove or refrigerator or something along that line, there is some sunshine. For the man who smokes cigarets there is the prospect of a three-cent cut on a package of 20. Otherwise, there is little excitement or financial relief.

Income taxes are coming down an average of six per cent. But the new two-per-cent social-security tax will wreck the benefit of that.

The big news for the average Canadian family lay in commodity taxes. Last year the special excise tax on cars, tires, tubes, cameras, firearms, fishing rods, furs, jewellery, clocks, lighters, matches, radios, trunks and a wide variety of other commodities went up to 25 per cent.

Mr. Abbott, aware that those high levies were teaming up with credit restrictions to cut business, cut it back to 15 per cent.

Elimination of a special 15-per-cent excise tax on household washing machines, stoves and refrigerators holds out the hope of even higher cuts in those prices.

As for income tax, the constant drain on the average man's wallet, Mr. Abbott was implacable. He said things are such in the world today that he can't even hold out much hope for next year either.

MIDGET-SIZED TARIFF WALL TO PROTECT INDUSTRY

200 Changes Made By Finance Minister

Ottawa, April 9 (CP) — Canada last night erected a midget-sized tariff wall to give her growing plastics and chemical industry room to expand.

At the same time she pared other walls, to cut the cost of products she needs, such as aircraft, widely-used plate and sheet glass, farm machinery and scientific equipment.

This give-and-take import-duty policy sparked about 200 tariff changes announced by Finance Minister Abbott.

They included:

1. First major change in the antiquated plastics - and - chemicals tariff structure, imposing a range of government charges up to 20 per cent on items which formerly came in free. Raw materials which the industry needs from other countries still will enter free.

2. Tariff cuts on a wide assortment of other items, including aircraft, farm machinery parts, scientific and electrical equipment and materials which enter into production in Canada's primary and manufacturing industries.

4. The limit on duty-free casual donations sent by persons in foreign lands to friends in Canada will be widened to $10 from $5.

Aircraft and engines—of a kind and size not made in Canada—will be allowed in duty-free until July 1, 1955.

"This is designed to be of particular assistance to the considerable number of smaller air transport companies which are anxious to re-equip with more modern aircraft," Mr. Abbott said.

First Major Overhaul

Biggest feature of the announcements was that the plastics and chemical tariff has been given its first major overhaul.

The chemicals and plastics field is proving to be one of the most sparkling of Canada's industrial stars. To keep the $100,000,000 industry growing, the Tariff Board recommended — and Mr. Abbott agreed — provision of some protective measures.

Generally, the tariff wall shaped up this way:

On raw materials, little or no charge; on primary resins or primary cellulosic materials, rates of duty ranging from zero to 7½ per cent.

Resins and cellulosic materials in organic solvents — important ingredients in paints and protective coatings — 12½ per cent if the item is made in Canada and 10 per cent if not.

In another stage of production, sheets and other primary forms, the tariff will range up to 20 per cent, for printed or decorated sheeting.

The United States will benefit by Canada's decision to cut charges on glass. The board felt that the changes recommended will not "affect seriously" the "relatively-new domestic sheet glass industry" in Canada.

To reduce the cost of imports and possibly cut prices to Canadian users, the charge on window and heavy sheet glass is reduced to 7½ per cent from 10 per cent and 20 per cent of value. Imports from Commonwealth countries are admitted free as in the past.

On other items, milk evaporators, milk driers and parts for this equipment will be admitted free from commonwealth countries and under a 7½-per-cent duty from U.S. and other most - favored - nation countries. Present duties ranged from free to 22½ per cent.

Certain self-propelled, diesel-driven trucks, used in the mining and construction industries, and imported from M.F.N. countries will bear a charge of 7½ per cent, down from 17½.

Dredges and parts used in mining will enter free from commonwealth and M.F.N. countries. Formerly, the tariff ranged from 15 to 25 per cent.

Ball bearings required for agricultural machinery will be allowed in free from all countries. Charges formerly ranged up to 35 per cent of value.

The farmer got another break —a reduction in charges on internal-combustion tractors and parts. These also will come in free from all countries. Formerly the charge ranged-from 15 per cent to 35 per cent.

Mingled Regret and Pleasure Seen in Reaction to Budget

(By The Canadian Press)

Satisfaction at tax cuts in luxury and other goods but disappointment that government deductions from pay cheques won't be reduced until today seemed to sum up the popular reaction to Finance Minister Abbott's budget.

On the brighter side were the immediate benefits of cheaper cigarets, automobiles, radios and other items. But there was no cheering over the fact that the net effect of present income taxes will continue, even though some of it goes for old age pensions after July 1.

An indication that the three-cent reduction on a package of 20 cigarets will be passed on to the public came last night from President E. C. Wood of the Imperial Tobacco Company. He said at Montreal his company will reduce the price to retailers by $1.50 a thousand, corresponding to three cents a package.

Cigaret prices vary across Canada. He said that in Quebec Provinces a pack of 20 formerly selling for 46 cents now will retail at 43.

Sharp reductions in the prices of automobiles were forecast in the wake of the elimination of the special 25-per-cent excise tax to 15 per cent. While Ford, Chrysler and General Motors took time to study the tax change, Studebaker of Canada quickly announced new price drops of from $150 to $250 on some models.

Cuts Charges On Glass Expect 'Burst of Sales'

D. C. Gaskin, Studebaker general manager, who announced the changes at Hamilton, predicted a "sudden burst of sales."

"When the price of new cars goes down, the price of used cars also decreases," he said. "People have been holding off waiting for this."

Decreases of $100 to $150 in low and medium-priced English cars and perhaps more on expensive models were predicted by one Toronto dealer. Another said some English-car dealers, overstocked before the last tax increase came into effect, hadn't been charging it and therefore couldn't make any reduction.

One reaction to the decreased taxes on luxury goods and household appliances was given by Toronto's two largest department stores, Eaton's and Simpson's. Each took full-page newspaper advertisements to announce that tax decreases will be passed on to customers. Eaton's said the reduction will apply to present stock on which the tax has been paid.

Many other retailers, including jewellers, furriers, sporting goods, electrical appliance and camera dealers fell in line.

Jewellers and furriers hailed the 10-per-cent decrease in the tax of luxury goods. Toronto sporting goods stores said they will pass the tax reduction on to their customers immediately, though it means slimmer profits on firearms, ammunition, fishing rods, reels, golf clubs and balls.

Will Not Reach Public

The tax reduction on cameras will emerge at the retail level, said an official of the Canadian Kodak Company at Weston, Ont.

Most soft drink manufacturers confirmed predictions that the slice of taxes on soft drinks won't reach into the public's pocketbook. The reason was increasing costs of production.

"At least the price won't go up now for awhile," said Royal H. MacDonell, vice-president and general manager of Canada Dry Company, Ltd.

However, in Montreal one company, Allen's Beverages Limited, dealing in 30-ounce bottles, announced a reduction of one cent a bottle.

Beer drinkers may find a lighter brew for sale shortly because brewers now could use unlimited amounts of corn, said J. R. Short, president of the Short Canadian Mills, Ltd., Leaside, Ont. He said the reduction of duty on beer made from rice or corn grits meant a possible lighter beer that will stay fresh longer.

Some Steel Plants Idle Despite Seizure Order

Pittsburgh, April 9 (AP) — The United States' giant steel plant stood idle today despite President Truman's seizure of the industry and the calling off of- a midnight strike.

Steelworkers reporting for duty on day shifts were turned away by company guards except in isolated instances in smaller plants.

"This is a lock-out," some of them muttered.

Republic Steel in Cleveland, one of the companies waging a court fight against the President's order, posted a notice at its gates saying it was "not feasible" to operate until the situation clarified.

Steel workers arriving with their lunch pails at the gates of the U.S. Steel and Jones and Laughlin plants here were denied admittance.

Philip Murray, chief of the Steelworkers' Union and the C.I.O., has gave no indication that the delay in the President's order by the steelworkers.

She stated that unity of color was imperative in any costume, with no more than three colors. She suggested that when buying a suit, or dress one should make sure that the waistline of the suit or dress falls at the natural waistline of the figure. Mrs. Doolittle also gave many helpful hints as to fabrics and styles of clothes and stated that one should "dress up" one's best asset, whether it be figure, hair or eyes.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This girl has spunk—she'll make out all right

Everyone likes the person who has spunk. People of that sort, who look facts straight in the face and meet what comes with decision, usually make out very well in life, no matter what problems they have.

That's why I feel sure the girl whose letter I am about to quote will get along all right, even though she has just been jilted, and even though she has a mother who assumes to tell her what to do or who assumes to tell her what is a choice between staying with her, and getting married, her daughter would pass up the latter for the former.

The girl's story of the engagement which came to grief is this:

"I had been going out with a man of forty-four for many thirties and twenties, the youngest of four sons —who is the youngest of four sons and lives with his mother, the other three being married. Although I wouldn't say that I was ever really in love with him, I accepted his proposal of marriage because I have known him and his family for years, and know that he is a good fellow and felt that he would make a good husband. In other words, I felt that respect and admiration would be a good foundation for marriage even without great love, which might come later.

"This man has a lovely home fully paid for, and he suggested that when we married his mother would stay there and we would buy another place for ourselves while he continued to support her. This was all right with me.

"Then, without any warning, all of a sudden he stopped coming to see me or getting in touch with me in any way. When he said goodnight on our last date he told me, as he always did, that he would be calling me, but I have never heard from him since.

Made Things Uncomfortable

"What I think must have happened was that his mother talked him out of the idea of marrying and leaving her. She never like the idea of losing him and was always talking about how she didn't see how he could possibly keep up two homes. I feel she probably made things so uncomfortable for him that he decided to give up the whole idea of marrying.

"What I do think is, that he should have been man enough to tell me he had changed his mind even if he did not tell me why; not just leave me up in the air wondering what happened. However, maybe I am the lucky one after all, if he is such a weakling."

So much for the romance that went awry.

On the subject of her mother, she has this to say:

"About a year ago my mother told someone in my presence that I was going to stay single and take care of her. When we were alone, I told her that I was entitled to marriage and a family just as much as she herself had been, and that when the right man came along and asked me, I was going to marry him, but that I would always see that she was taken care of. I hadn't told her that I was going to marry this other man, and now I'm glad I hadn't said anything."

What this young woman wants to know is if I think she did the right thing in what she told her mother, and also if she was right in feeling that her former suitor should have let her know what went wrong instead of just walking out on her.

Food for Thought

Special-Purpose Menu

"More Chicken stuff later"—I see that I said that last week. I left you with the chicken all cut up—and where do we go from there? I'll bet I'll rate high with plenty of husbands if you try this menu, including Fried Chicken with Crunchy Crust.

Fried Chicken with Crunchy Crust
Duchess Potatoes
Combined Frozen Limas and Kernel Corn (canned)
Enem's Salad with Homemade French Dressing (that does not separate)
Deep Rhubarb Pie Coffee

DIRECTIONS:

The chicken is clean and cut up into pieces for serving. (If boiling fowl is used time of steaming must be lengthened to nearly three hours—or until it is tender.) Place on trivet in large kettle with tight-fitting cover. One cup water is sufficient but does not provide enough liquid for gravy. If you want gravy add up to 3 cups hot water. Add 1 cut up outer stalk celery, 1 bay leaf, 2 slices onion. Cover and steam until chicken is tender. As this comes to boiling point reduce heat so that water only simmers. Add 1 1-2 teaspoons salt during last ten minutes of cooking, and turn chicken pieces over about three times during cooking period. Test with sharp knife tip or fork to see if it is tender. Drain very well. Thighs may require longer cooking. Roll pieces of chicken in salted and peppered flour. Dip each piece in a mixture of 2 tablespoons cream with 1 egg beaten together. Then roll in finely crushed corn flakes, being sure to cover entire surface, pressing flakes onto chicken. Let stand 30 minutes, turning once. Deep fry at 350 deg. Fahr. until golden brown. This type of crust browns quickly—so keep your eye on it, and skim out the pieces only unglazed paper as soon as they are brown. Keep hot until all is fried.

DUCHESS POTATOES

Make your best fluffy mashed potatoes, using twice as much milk as usual, making them almost sloppy. Add butter, and 1 well-beaten egg. Turn into buttered casserole, brush top with melted butter, sprinkle with paprika and bake until heated through and top is crusty and golden.

HOMEMADE FRENCH DRESSING

(That does not separate)

In a bowl combine 1-3 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, dash of red pepper, 1 finely cut clove garlic or 1-2 teaspoon garlic salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, and 1 egg. Best with rotary or electric beater until well mixed—about two minutes. Now very slowly drip in 1 cup salad oil. If you do not add the oil slowly, especially at first, it will not emulsify. It must be beaten hard all of the time. Keep in covered jar in refrigerator. This keeps well and is excellent with

EMEM'S SALAD

One-half medium-sized head iceberg lettuce, 1-2 to 2 cups well-packed shredded new cabbage (shred this in hair-like shreds with very sharp knife), 1 firm tomato cut into wafer thin slices, about 1-4 cup either finely chopped green pepper, or fine shavings of cucumber, 1-2 teaspoon finely chopped green onion (or tips from sprouted cooking onion), and about 1-4 to 1-3 cup cold homemade French dressing. (See above.) Toss lightly with fork—serve at once. Salads should be prepared at the last minute, just before announcing "dinner is served" to retain their full vitamin contents.

If you want to know how to make deep rhubarb pie write to me.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Have your Easter table-setting sing "Welcome, Easter!"

Easter . . . and your table setshould sing! "Welcome, Happy Morning," sings the famous Easter hymn, and welcome, happy morning, to your breakfast table. Have your Easter breakfast table blossom in a yellow cloth or doilies . . . yellow, the color of sunlight and daffodils and downy Easter chicks. Perhaps, too, your centrepiece might be of yellow. . .daffodils, tulips, freesia, or just one wonderful low bowl of graceful mimosa. The half-grapefruit or orange at each place will beguilingly carry out the sunlight color-scheme.

Or a traditional centrepiece' of eggs. The children will be enchanted to see a centrepiece of colored eggs on the Easter-morning breakfast table, the eggs nestling in a large white pottery or silver or glass dish, lined with shining leaves. Perhaps an Easter rabbit on each side. Or . . . port, dramatic touch . . . down the centre of the table, line up a parade of small, white-painted flower pots containing hyacinths, all of one color, or rainbow-hued . . . or Spring-red and/or white geraniums. If you use all-white flowers, paint the flower pots the various and alluring colors of Easter eggs.

If not the grapefruit or orange for the first course, serve—for the special tradition and a special treat—a circle of unhulled strawberries on each plate, with a little mound of powdered sugar in the middle. "An egg for Easter" sings the old song, and you'll probably feature eggs for the main course, with bacon curls, and garnished with sprigs of green, green parsley. A delicious hot bread then will be . . . probably hot cross buns, or coffee cake filled with nuts and raisins and other yummy bits, or high-hat popovers, or muffins, or tiny hot biscuits, or toast. Coffee, steaming hot and lots o-fit, and milk for the children.

For your luncheon or dinner table, a charming centrepiece, simple and inexpensive, is one made entirely of daisies, the appealing messengers of spring. Or an old-fashioned bouquet. . . small spring flowers snugly circled around one larger flower. Or float a few of your Easter flowers, from your garden or the florist's box, in a shallow bowl. For the dinner table do, if at all possible, flank the centrepiece with tall white candles glowing in silver candlesticks or shorter candles in taller candlesticks. And put at each guest's place a gay little Easter basket filled with vari-colored candy eggs.

And have fun capturing fresh spring colors in your food items for luncheon or dinner or supper. Tiny sprigs of mint on the colorful fruit cup. Food-accessories, such as rosebud radishes, slivers of carrots, hearts of celery (scallions, too, if you dare), flowerets of cauliflower. Bright mint jelly with the roast lamb. For the vegetables, perhaps creamed spinach, garnished with thinly-sliced eggs; peas and carrots combined; or only the bright green peas. In your salad, a variety of lush shades of green. A gala shade of ice cream or sherbet, or for the accompanying sauce. Gay frosting on the special cake or cookies. And with the after-luncheon or after-dinner coffee, serve pastel-shaded crystals of rock candy.

Happy, Happy Easter to you . . . and too all those dear to you!

Women's Activities

TABERNACLE W.A.

The regular meeting of the W.A. met in the church parlors with the president, Mrs. Burgess, presiding. After an Easter hymn, prayer and business part of the meeting, the program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Davidson and her group. Mrs. Isard read the Easter story as found in 23rd chapter of Luke and followed with an Easter reading and prayer.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. May introduced the speaker for the day, Mrs. Farnsworth. In her remarks Mrs. May said it was hardly necessary to introduce Mrs. Farnsworth as she has always been a great help to the various groups of Tabernacle Church.

Women's Work

Mrs. Farnsworth's talk was along the Easter theme. She reminded the ladies that women were the last at the Cross and first at the tomb. This has been true all down through the ages. Women have a work that they alone can do, and when you find women behind any cause, that cause is sure to win. That would be especially true if every Christian woman was behind the work of the W.C.T.U. and any other moral issue.

Mrs. Landridge moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Farnsworth for her inspiring address.

Mrs. Gault favored the program with two delightful readings, "The Denominational Garden", and "The Treasurer's Report", which were much appreciated.

After the Mizpah, refreshments and a social time were enjoyed by all.

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Foxboro—The thank - offering meeting of the Foxboro W.M.S. was held on Thursday evening in the Sunday School rooms with a large attendance. Ladies from Halloway, Marsh Hill, Anglicans and Presbyterians were guests.

The C.G.I.T. girls had charge of a most impressive candle-lighting service with Mrs. Giffin, Mrs. Shetler, Mr. Arthur and Mrs. Gordon Gay as leaders. An affiliation service followed. The thank-offering was received by Shirley Kilpatrick and Marion Reid.

The girls were welcomed by Mrs. Shetler. A chorus was rendered by C.G.I.T. and Explorer girls with Carol Stewart as accompanist.

Mrs. Shetler took charge of the business. The treasurer reported having sent $115 to the presbyterial treasurer, and at this point, Mrs. Geo. Priest was presented with a life membership certificate as an Easter gift from a son, Mr. Glenn Priest.

Mrs. Priest and Mrs. Giffin had charge of the program and most interesting films were shown depicting "The Saviour at the Last Supper, His arrest, trial crucifixion, resurrection and appearances and ascension. The leaders explained each picture, which were interspersed by the singing of a number of old hymns, Mrs. Barry sang effectively "The Holy City." Mrs. Tummon, Mrs. Rombough, Miss Joan McCurdy and the Misses Eva and Pat Giffin assisted with the hymn singing.

A social time was then enjoyed while refreshments was served by some C.G.I.T. girls and a most profitable meeting was closed.

STONE CHURCH M.B.

4th Sidney—The April meeting of the Stone Church Mission Band was held on Friday afternoon at the Mapleview school. The president Ivan Phillips presided over the worship service using as the theme "Protecting Our Friends." Kenny LaBrash and Jeannette Twiddy also assisted.

During the business period which followed, it was decided to hold the next meeting on May 2nd in the school.

Annice Seeley read a poem, "Easte~line is Tulip Time"; Carole Tucker gave a piano solo; Frances Tucker read a reading entitled "The Children of Korea."

Mrs. F. Tucker gave another chapter from the study book, "The Twins Make Friends". Mrs. R. B. Phillips offered prayer for Miss Madaline Bach, a missionary. "World Friends" were distributed and the meeting closed.

Group of Drama Guild Presents Play for Assoc.

At the regular meeting of the Collegiate Home and School Association on Monday evening, the business was quickly disposed of in order that time would be given for a new type of program called "buzz sessions". With the president, Mrs. H. R. Varcoe, in the chair, the reading of the minutes was given by Miss H. McLaren, and the treasurer's report by Mrs. N. F. Tonkin. Nomination forms were distributed and the members made their selections for the officers for next term. From these forms the new officers will be chosen.

"High Pressure Area", a play written by Nora Stirling for the department of Mental Hygiene, New York City, was presented by a group from the Drama Guild under the direction of Mrs. J. C. R. Punchard. Mrs. W. J. Doyle outlined some of the activities of the Guild, and Mrs. Punchard introduced the stage manager, Jack Darlington, who explained the parts and the nature of the play.

Teen-Age Girls

The play is concerned with two teen-age girls. One of them has the advantage of understanding parents who treat her and who live up to their teaching by good example. The other girl has parents who are too strict, who do not agree between themselves concerning discipline, and whose example is the antithesis of what they expect from their daughter. What happens when these two conflicting ideologies meet is the theme of the play. When a blind date has been arranged for the two girls each responds in typical fashion. The second girl is secretive and defiant, the first girl is in open rebellion against parental authority, but the wise acceptance by her parents shows her in time that they are on her side and she takes another step towards maturity.

The parts were well-taken by Doris Bradford as mother, R. K. Peterson as father, Barbara Whelan and Doris Chiffe as the two girls.

The audience divided into groups to discuss the implications of the play and the behavior problems involved. When they reassembled, Mrs. Bradford conducted the summary of the groups and discussed the solutions offered.

Refreshments were served in the cafeteria by the social committee.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Putting on curves

Women who are overweight are constantly being told that their adipose burdens are a health menace. Thin girls are not in tiptop form, either. Various ills, including nervous exhaustion, and often due to emaciation — which usually is caused by bad eating habits that result in malnutrition. The girl who thinks she can live on practically nothing a day will not only have a figure of awkard lines, but she will be inviting beauty ills. The concentrates, the half and the fingernails are dependent upon groceries that contain all the various food elements, vitamins and mineral salts necessary for well-being.

Girls today are trying to face a pace of life that makes for greater demands on them than it did on their mothers and grandmothers. They must not only possess vitality, but also should have a reserve force of energy and that is only made possible by sticking up on a rationed diet containing the proper amounts of proteins, carbohydrates and fat. To tell the skinny lassie to eat more is not good advice. What really puts on weight is not how much, but what is eaten and how it is eaten. Food-boiling interferes with assimilation. Meals should be eaten slowly and under pleasant conditions. On that score we ask for the attention of the career girl who takes coffee and a nibble of toast for breakfast, with one eye on the clock, ready to spring to the job.

Sweets, fats and starches build adipose tissues but must not be taken in excess or to the exclusion of what are called "regulators"—fruits and vegetables. Miss Slim requires a certain amount of protein. An egg for breakfast and meat for dinner will furnish the necessary amount. Butter has high food value, should be spread generously on bread and added to vegetables.

Milk, which is not only a beverage but a food, contains many elements that are essential to health. For one who would woo curves, a quart a day is not too much. If emaciation is extreme, some figure-molding specialists recommend milk and cream, half and half, taken at the end of each meal in place of dessert. Orange juice is recommended to increase the advantage of milk-taking, so the lean ones should have it for breakfast. A bowl of crackers and milk at bedtime will help the project of putting fat on the ribs.

Many thin girls are highly energized—so they think. They fear through life because they are high-strung and nervous. They are in need of rest periods, and long hours of sleep. They are so active that a fat cell hasn't a chance to find lodgings on their frail frames.

The ideal figure combines slenderness with pleasing curves. The neat waist doesn't mean much if a girl has no hips and the bust is undeveloped. Every effort should be made to acquire normal weight.

Fashion Flashes

ATTRACTIVE indeed for an informal first wedding, or for a second wedding, is a costume in champagne beige pure silk taffeta, with short, fitted jacket trimmed with matching lace embroidered in tiny rhinestone and pearls.

SO PRETTY are the shoes for Spring! Black patent is used for a bareback sandal, the vamp made up half of patent, and half of Roman striped, ribbed silk. Two straps—one leather, the other fabric—criss-cross the instep.

IT'S LINE rather than trim that marks the smartest of the new hats. Glossy black straw makes a small, brow-tilted disc, with a full, wide crown that veers to one side. Brim turns up and ends in a back point. A wired velvet stick-up and a mesh veil are the only trimmings.

A BOON to many women is the idea, adapted from expensive evening dresses, of building bras into daytime dresses, too—and not the very expensive type, either. From Florida comes a handsome Summer dress of all-over embroidered organdy over cotton taffeta, with flexible boning to mold the bodice. Velvet edges the softly curved, strapless neckline, and the cover-up is a tiny jacket that has huge, puffed sleeves.

EVERYWHERE the little waist-length coat is being promoted. A cute little coat is done in fleece, in beautiful pastel shades. It has push-up batwing sleeves, a surplice shawl collar and buttons at the hem—which is at the waistline — with rhinestone-studded lucite buttons.

Lynn Lake Growth Spurs Big Search For Valuable Ore

Lynn Lake, Man., (CP)—A chunk of rock, a bright glitter in the sun, and a new Canadian town was born.

Here in Manitoba's northland more than 500 miles north of Winnipeg, a new community mushrooms among the forest and trees.

A possible uranium strike has been reported in the Wekusko lake area, about 50 miles north of The Pas. More than 250 claims have been filed and the district also is believed rich in copper-nickel, the ore that brought Lynn Lake into existence.

There is a big search for nickel at two other Manitoba points—Lac Du Bonnet in the south and another west of Lynn Lake. Traces of cobalt and iron have been found in the Bird river area in east central Manitoba.

Manitoba also has copper and gold. But the most noted discovery of all is Lynn Lake. It now is considered to be the richest discovery of copper-nickel in the world, apart from Sudbury.

Its history began in the summer of 1941 when Austin McVeigh, prospecting for gold, was paddling around the lake and noticed a mineralized chunk of rock on the shore. A sample showed six-per-cent nickel.

The discovery was kept under wraps until 1945 when further prospecting by McVeigh showed there was something worth working on. As soon as news leaked out in 1947, one of the wildest staking sprees in Manitoba's history blanketed the country for miles around.

Ore was shipped by tractor train to Sherridon to develop a satisfactory refining process. Concentrates were flown to Ottawa where an experimental recovery plant was set up.

Hare Expeditures

Since the Second World War, $4,000,000 has been spent on development work.

The Canadian National Railways expects to spend $7,800,000 this year on a 155-mile line between the lake and Sherridon. Before the line is completed in the fall of 1953, $14,725,000 will have been spent.

To supply power to the new mine and town, a dam and power-house are being built at Laurie river, 44 miles south of Lynn at an estimated cost of $3,570,000.

Concentrates from Lynn Lake will be shipped to Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., for treatment. A refinery being built there will cost $47,500,000.

Lynn Lake development also entails the largest single freighting job in Canadian history, moving a complete town and mining plant. Almost every day during the winter tractor trains arrived at Lynn hauling homes and equipment from Sherridon, now exhausted of its ore and slowly becoming a ghost town.

Ore has been blocked out worth $175,000,000 at present prices. Ore production worth $7,500,000 a year is planned when the Lynn mills start operating some time late in 1953.

Popular Demand For Coronation Jewelry

Birmingham, England. (CP)—Orders for coronation souvenirs are reaching this centre of Britain's manufacturing jewel trade from all parts of the Commonwealth.

Australia, which recently cut its imported jewelry by 80 per cent, and many other Commonwealth countries want samples of such trinkets as chain bracelets, match-box holders, ash trays and other jewelry—all with royal emblems. Coronet earrings and brooches will be produced by the thousands in the next few months.

"If the coronation had been this September," said T. Bloxide, director of a firm producing millions of brooches yearly for sale in the sixpenny stores, "we'd have had a struggle to get the stuff out in time."

Lines in cheap souvenirs include a popular design issued for the coronation of George VI—a crown in gilt and colored stones with white enamelled edging depicting the ermine tails.

Union Jacks in red, white and blue stones with miniature inset photographs of the Queen and a jewelled E and the Roman number II, mounted on a gilt pin and separated by a gilt crown, will be two other designs.

Manufacturers say that souvenir fever is not so marked in the "expensive trade". One old-established firm of silversmiths, however, will commemorate the occasion by production of a set of six silver-gilt coffee and tea-spoons, models of the anointing spoon used in the coronation ceremony and priced at about £7 15s.

Spurned for Years 'Rock With Hair Asbestos Bonanza

Edmonton —(CP)— High on a mountain in the northwestern corner of British Columbia there is a 900-acre area jutting out from the side like a green blister in the desert. From the distance it looks like the appearance of a patch of moss in a bed of limestone and slate.

For the last 50 years prospectors have sighted it, examined it, and then passed on to search for something "valuable" as they termed, then discarded particles of a formation which has been described by an Indian as "Rock with hair on it."

The outcropping theypassed up now is the basis of a multi-million-dollar mining proposition.

The "Rock with hair on it" is asbestos and marks the location of what geologists have claimed may be the world's largest known asbestos deposit.

Many of the prospectors who passed it up knew it was asbestos but in those years there was no demand for it.

Then Edmonton recently were three of four men who, on a part-time prospecting venture, reached the location. They also passed it up but later returned to stake claims and reap a probable fortune.

The men are Robert Kirk, a trapper from Lower Post; his brother Ronald, a diesel and heavy - machinery operator at Fort Nelson, B.C.; and Victor Sitter, who has worked with the maintenance of the Alaska Highway.

The fourth partner is Hiram Nelson, formerly a welder on Alaska Highway maintenance now resisting in Tutts Cove, N.S.

Madame Retara

So far their find has reaped them $103,000 as a cash payment for their interests and 300,000 shs of Classic Asbestos Corporation Ltd., the company under which the location will be operated. That block of security, on the basis of current value of stock in the company, is about $1,303,000.

In the summer of 1949 the discovery travelled to the Mc-Dame Lake area in northwest B.C. Where they found the asbestos deposit. Thinking it of little economic value, they passed on to stake claims and lead claims.

Next February they read an article in a mining magazine which forecast that in the near future asbestos would soon be near the top of the "strategic list."

Sitter went back to the "Rock with hair on it" that June and staked a claim for the four of them.

They then blazed a trail to the site about 100 miles southwest from the Alaska Highway at a point near Watson Lake. They took in Dr. R. T. O'Grady of the B.C. Mines Department and his report on the deposit was extremely optimistic.

Now a road had been built to the site, equipment moved in and construction of a townsite is well under way. The partners hope the mine will be in production by December of this year.

Labor Continues Smashing Gains

London, April 9—(AP)— The Labor party continued its smashing gains in British county elections today by winning control of the Lancashire council for the first time in history.

Lancashire is the heart of the British textile industry, recently hit by a growing depression. The Conservative government, which ousted Labor in the National Election last October, so far has refused the industry's requests for sales tax cuts to stimulate buying.

Labor chalked up a net gain of 39 council seats, winning 65 to 50 for sales tax cuts to stimulate buying.

New Brunswick Pays Dollar Peck for Spuds, Few Supplies

By JOHN MOSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — The lowly spud has become a near-luxury food in this potato-producing province, where consumers are paying $1 to $1.10 a peck. Dealers have been offering the highest prices in 30-years—up to $8.50 for a 175-pound barrel.

The buoyant market, a result of strong demand and declining supply, has created a black market problem in the neighboring State of Maine—another big potato-growing area.

Milton G. Wheeler, enforcement chief for the Maine office of price stabilization, claimed recently that the situation was threatening to disrupt the United States potato market. He said the situation could have resulted from an increasing demand by Canadian buyers willing to pay above U.S. ceiling prices.

Growers in Aroostook County, Me., are under ceiling prices at the producer level and also under an export regulation allowing certain added costs. Mr. Wheeler said there were indications that both of these had been exceeded. He had reports of carload lots sold at $300 to $400 above ceilings.

He also said that buyers and shippers in the United States were complaining they can't buy Maine potatoes unless they meet Canadian price offers.

N.B. Dealers Cashing In

Extent of New Brunswick participation in the black market is uncertain. Some major New Brunswick dealers, while claiming they had no hand in "under the table" deals, said it was well known that other dealers in the province were cashing in on the situation.

A New Brunswick official said the problem was Maine's, "not ours."

Because of the record prices, no accurate estimate has been obtained, of the New Brunswick supplies still unshipped. Some points reported instances of producers having carload lots although they previously said they were sold out.

Persons close to the industry agreed, however, the potato holdings are at their lowest ebb in years for this period of the spring season.

Harold E. Day, Hartland, manager of the New Brunswick potato marketing board, said that while he had no complete figures he knew potato stocks were getting low and many major dealers expected shipments of present holdings to be completed by mid-April—much earlier than average.

Future prices will depend largely on the size of the southern crop. Florida potatoes are expected to enter the province before many more weeks.

If the southern crop is exceptionally good, no great change may occur in the retail price when these potatoes go on the New Brunswick market. But if the southern crop has been poor, or if good markets prevail in the southern states, potatoes in New Brunswick and elsewhere may become even more expensive.

Native University Built in Jungle

Ibadan, Nigeria. (Reuters)—The largest university for Africans is taking shape in the still wild country just outside this sprawling native town.

It will bring full university education to Africans.

Africans and many Europeans have long complained that the colonial powers in Africa have neglected education, and thereby hindered the development of African self-government.

Ibadan is the answer, and at the same time a challenge to Africans themselves. For without African support, the grandiose schemes of the Nigerian administration cannot succeed.

Ibadan university was started in 1948 by the transfer of 104 students from Yaba college in Lagos to the interior. Last year there were almost 300 students. The university's supporters hope that one day there will be 7,000 students.

The permanent buildings now are going up rapidly and a university town of pleasant houses is rising alongside for the tutorial staff. An impressive panel of professors and lecturers have been gathered together under Dr. Kenneth Mellanby, a brilliant young English scientist who specializes in parasitology.

There are faculties of arts, science, medicine, and agriculture and veterinary science.

By European standards, tuition and residence charges at Ibadan university are cheap. College fees, which cover both residence and tuition, range from $260 to $500 a year.

But these fees are still beyond the reach of a large number of Africans. Last year only 89 students paid their own expenses.

There are 23,000,000 people in Nigeria and the university representation, therefore, is on a minute scale at present.

Israel Charts Big New Canal To Rival Suez

Montreal. (CP) — A 270-mile canal competing with the Suez gateway between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea may be built by the new state of Israel.

Col. Aharon Hofer-Iahel, a member of the Israeli government Law Council, said in an interview here the canal is definitely in the planning stages."

"The canal would connect the Red sea port of Eilath, a few miles west of Akaba, with the Mediterranean sea at'Askelon and would have to be entirely dug out of the ground.

"But it isn't as tough a problem as it sounds," he says. "The Mediterranean is about 800 feet above the Red sea and the land slopes evenly. It also could be used to irrigate the dry lands in the south of Israel."

Col. Hofer-Iahel is making a two-month tour of Canada at the invitation of the Zionist Organization of Canada. He says that he had always wanted to see Canada for himself.

"My first action in the Second World War was with a Canadian outfit," he says. "We were attached to the Loyal Edmonton Regiment on the Italian front and I made quite a few friends in the Canadian army."

The Israeli official says Israel is quickly recovering from the brink of bankruptcy, "but we still have a long haul ahead of us.

Much Progress Made

By next year the country should be producing at least 50 per cent of its food requirements. At the present time the country imports more than 85 per cent of its needs, he says.

He said Israel has more than doubled its population in the last three years and most of the immigrants came into the country with little or no possessions. "We are slowly opening up the country and I think we can handle a total of 6,000,000 people. Population today is slightly more than 1,500,000 including 160,000 Arabs."

Col. Hofer-Iahel said food rationing is still very strict in Israel and luxuries definitely are out.

The official, who organized the military courts in Israel and drafted military laws for the government, expressed the belief that Israel will continue to develop and grow. "But we need the help of Jewry all over the world," he said. "We are desperately short of dollars."

Interviews Chiang Kai-Shek

Bill Boss, Canadian Press Staff writer with the Canadian forces in Korea, obtained an exclusive interview with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Chinese Nationalist government. Boss, left, is the first Canadian to visit Chiang since the Nationalists withdrew from the mainland to Formosa. The Generalissimo, centre, speaking through the interpreter, Shen Chang-Huan, government spokesman, made striking comment on the possible effects of any Korean truce and forecasts that the Nationalists can win all the mainland from the reds within three years of a military landing. — (CP Photo.)

First Coffee House Honored In Ceremony

London —(CP)— In a drizzle of rain, crowds watched a ceremony commemorating the opening 300 years ago of London's first coffee-house.

Sir Leslie Boyce, Lord Mayor of London, stood hatless in an alley to unveil a plaque on the Jamaica Wine House in Cornhill Street.

"Here stood the first London coffee-house at the sign of Pasqua Rosee's head, 1652," said the plaque.

The first popular use of coffee in London is traced to Daniel Edwards, a merchant who returned from abroad with a taste for coffee, a supply of beans and a Greek servant, Pasqua Rosee, to brew it for him. In 1652 the Greek set up business in a booth where the wine house now stands.

Here was issued the first advertisement extolling the "vertue" of coffee. Rival shops soon opened and the coffee-house became a London institution, attracting the intellectuals of the age.

The historian MacAulay wrote that the coffee-house was the Londoner's home and said those who wanted to find a "gentleman" usually asked not for his address but for the name of his coffee-house.

The coffee - houses became known as "penny universities" because of the penny admission and because of the calibre of the men who frequented them. Lloyds of London, the famous insurance firm, started in a coffee-house.

The Times in a special article noted that Samuel Pepys the diarist recorded that he helped excite enthusiasm for the Dutch Wars by starting rumors "At the coffee-houses, where it will spread like leprosy."

The Manchester Guardian had this wry comment on the ceremony at Cornhill Street.

"That this taste so early acquired . . . has survived in spite of the things British caterers can do to the coffee bean and the liquor it produces was a line which the Lord Mayor did not take up."

AVERTS CONSUMERS'

Seizure followed collapse of wage negotiations in New York. The industry balked on the end at accepting government-suggested pay increases of 17½ cents an hour and other benefits for Murray's workers. Steel workers at present earn $2 an hour.

Truman disclosed his seizure decision last night in a broadcast over radio and television.

He said wage stabilization board recommendations for settling the pay dispute were "fair and equitable" and the industry could well afford them. He lashed out bitterly at steelmakers, calling their demands for a $12-a-ton price increase "about the most outrageous thing I ever heard of."

Says Industry Profitable

"The plain fact is—though most people don't realize it—the steel industry has never been so profitable as it is today—at least not since the 'profiteering' days of World War I.

"The plain fact of the matter is that the steel companies are recklessly forcing a shutdown of the steel mills. They are trying to get special, preferred treatment, not available to any other industry. And they are apparently willing to stop steel production to get it."

Murray called off a midnight strike just one hour before it was set to start. He said the steelworkers would continue on the job for "only a government."

Most mills and furnaces had been closed down in advance, anticipating a walkout.

Sawyer ordered them all reopened and steel production stepped up again to full blast.

Business Taxes Untouched

He left business taxes generally untouched, but hinted that their current high rate might be hauled down in the next two years. He was concerned about high business taxes, but felt they could "perhaps be reduced by a year or two."

He provided that firms basically engaged in generating and distributing electricity, gas and steam will have their maximum tax rate dropped to 43 per cent from the general corporate level of 50 per cent.

The sole cut in the general corporation tax is one of 1.2 per cent on profits over $10,000 to round it off to an even 50 per cent.

Tax deductions for petroleum, natural gas and mining companies for exploration expenses are being continued for another year; while the three-year exemption granted to new mines is being extended to 1956.

While he halved the taxes on soft drinks, Mr. Abbott applied a 15-per-cent excise tax to dry-powder drinks which compete with the over-the-counter beverages.

Tariff Amendments

He announced a series of tariff amendments which involve some reductions, some modifications and some additions.

He left liquor taxes and succession duties untouched and indicated the time is not yet ripe for a modification of restrictions on consumer credit, despite the declining cost of living.

In cutting the cigaret tax three cents, the amount it was raised in the last budget, he acknowledged that the tax appeared to have reached the point of "diminishing returns," but said he thought reports of large-scale smuggling of cheaper American cigarets had been exaggerated.

He had forecast last year that the tax would produce $23,000,000 more revenue, but it actually yielded $1,000,000 less.

Sales Tax Unchanged

Mr. Abbott estimated that he will lose $40,000,000 in the current fiscal year and $65,000,000 in a full year from his so-called reduction in income-tax liability.

However, he obtains $53,000,000 in a full year from the social-security levy on incomes, plus additional revenue from a two-per-cent old-age tax on corporations and a similar share of the general sales tax.

The general sales tax, lifted to 10 per cent last year, remained largely unchanged, except for minor exemptions.

The man with medical bills that he can deduct from his income for tax purposes got a break. Mr. Abbott lifted the limits on such bills to $1,500 and $750 for single persons, to $2,000 from $1,000 for married people and $500 from $250 for each dependent.

But he left the floor on medical bills untouched. Medical expenses still must exceed four per cent of the taxpayer's income to be deductible.

However, the requirement that medical expenses must be both incurred and paid within a 12-month period is rescinded. Medical expenses will be recognized in future no matter when they are paid within a 12-month period.

CANADA TO BUILD

One of the toughest attacks came as the debate neared an end when Maj. E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) argued that Canadian defence is in a "desperate" situation when one compares the billions of dollars spent with what Canada has to show for it.

After Finance Minister Abbott's budget, the House swung to discussion of the Japanese peace treaty. Both External Affairs Minister Pearson and Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel), expressed approval of its "generous" terms.

Will Resist Leaders

Mr. Pearson expressed the opinion that the Japanese people will resist any leaders who try to lead them down the path of aggression again and said there is encouraging evidence that Japan intends to live up to her promises to deal fairly in such international fields as trade and fisheries.

He noted one "very important" provision which will enable American forces to remain in and near Japan. Mr. Graydon, on the same theme, drew attention to Japan's "uneasy" position under the shadow of communism and said Canada must do all she can to enable Japan to remain outside the reds' economic orbit.

Maj. Fulton's blast included a charge that Mr. Claxton is using security to cover up "glaring defence deficiencies." Nothing else but inefficiency could explain why Canada has so little in the way of defence forces and equipment.

200 Tanks Ordered

The Navy had one obsolescent aircraft carrier available for its primary Atlantic role. The Air Force had a mixture of old planes and the Sabre which was using out-dated arms. The Canuck was nowhere near production. The Army had no modern tanks.

Mr. Claxton said Canada has ordered more than 200 Centurion tanks from Britain after cancelling earlier orders for U.S. armor. She was getting Centurions as fast as possible and had 40 now. It would be unwise for Canada to make her own tanks.

The aircraft carrier Magnificent would be modernized when her turn came in British shipyards. The Sabre's guns had been under study but the plane still was capable of licking its main rival, the Russian MIG15.

INSTANTLY KILLED

Frankfurt, April 9 —(Reuters)—A former German paratrooper jumped out of a second-storey window of an inn in Mainbernheim, North Bavaria, apparently in a dream and was killed instantly. Police said the man, Walter Schreppan, 37, a salesman, told friends the night before of his war-time service and said he often relived jumps in his dreams.

Newspapers of Canada Urged To Feature Success Story Of Canadian Democracy

Guelph, April 9. (CP) — Health Minister Martin told Canadian newspapers today "one of the biggest stories in human history has broken" in Canada but it hasn't been fully written.

"Canada has a story to tell the world, a big story, a front-page headlined story," Mr. Martin said in an address prepared for delivery at the formal opening of a new building for the Guelph Daily Mercury.

"Canadian newspapers should carry the story of the success of our system and our belief in peaceful progress. Here on this continent and in this country, one of the biggest stories in human history has broken but it has not been fully written.

Fiverty Abolished

"Canada and the United States, as the noted historian Arnold Toynbee recently pointed out, have succeeded for the first time in the history of mankind in abolishing poverty.

"Perhaps — the democratic function of the Press," Mr. Martin said "it is up to those who believe in the freedom of expression to get the story of Democracy through to those living in fear and ignorance in the half-light of communism."

The minister lauded the press for its public service.

"A newspaper picks up ideas from all over the world and lays them on everyone's doorstep. Newspapers have helped quicken the march of progress by spreading knowledge of new techniques and encouraging people to accept them. They have helped immeasurably to speed up the co-operation of individuals that leads to the achievements of science. They have been the custodians of public, private and political morality because wrong-doing cannot stand the probing light of publicity."

Part of Daily Life

In Canada the newspaper was an essential part of daily life. To help account for the vast spaces, Canada had nearly 100 daily papers with a total circulation of 3,500,000. In addition five large weeklies sold 2,000,000 copies weekly and 1,000 local weeklies, 32 farm papers, 200 or more business and trade papers and 58 magazines carried the printed word to the people.

The fact newspaper circulations have grown rapidly in the last 10 years "indicates clearly that we have in this country a very vigorous press but it is also reassuring evidence that the newspaper will never be replaced by other channels of communication."

KILLED BY FLAT CAR

Gall, April 9—(...) — ge Devine of R. R. 1, Hespeler, was killed today when run over and crushed by a railway flat car at the firm of Babcock-Wilcox and Goldie Ochden. His heel became caught between two rails. Before he could free himself the flat car struck him.

Labor Members Stage Filibuster But Lose Out

London, April 9 (AP)—Labor members kept a weary House of Commons in session until 2:45 a.m. today in a filibuster designed to keep Britain's health service free of patients.

The Socialists jammed the parliamentary hopper with 130 amendments. A power failure put the lights out, too, but the narrow Conservative majority slowly edged its bill toward passage.

The Conservative measure would make patients pay part of the fees for some medical aids. It would cut £21,000,000 of the health service costs and put a ceiling of £400,000,000 on what the government spends for the service.

The bill, approved in principle of second reading, now is going through laborious line-by-line discussion in a committee of the whole house.

It is a 190 lines long. After two days' discussion, the House was only at line nine when the House went home this morning.

The government has made progress so far only on its plan to charge £2 10s for wigs, defeating a Socialist attempt to block the fee by a vote of 292 to 271.

Aneurin Bevan led the attack on Conservative Health Minister Harry Crookshank in the debate.

"The minister is the last person who ought to decry wigs," said Bevan, glaring at Crookshank's bald head.

"No one," Bevan added, with a toss of his own silvery mane, "can say I have a vested interest in that matter."

2 Small Girls Perish in Fire

Perkins, Que., April 9. (CP)— Two little girls, wards of the Hull Children's Aid Society, were burned to death early today when fire destroyed their foster-home at this village 20 miles north of Hull.

Trapped in a flaming frame farmhouse were Lise Gougeon, age 6, and her three-year-old sister, Therese. Their guardians, Mr. and Mrs. Fernand Campeau, were doing chores in a barn a short distance away when the fire broke out.

Mr. Campeau said he and his wife were about 200 feet away from the house when his wife looked up and saw flames and smoke pouring from their home. They rushed to the house but it was impossible to get in.

Finance Minister Confuses Even Own Experts

Ottawa, April 9 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott last night confused even his own experts.

He announced that he is incorporating the 20-per-cent defence surtax in a new income-tax schedule and cutting tax rates by an average of six per cent, effective July 1 next.

He mentioned in passing that the two-per-cent social-security tax becomes effective the same day.

The weekly tax deductions don't go down July 1 for the average taxpayer. They go up, and, except for high-bracket persons, citizens will pay more taxes in 1953 than they did in 1951.

While the rosy, phantom six-per-cent reduction on the amount of income tax you pay, the two-per-cent social-security levy is on the entire taxable income, a tax of a different color, even though it has a $60-a-year ceiling.

The 20-percent defence surtax has been incorporated into the basic tax schedule.

The surtax became effective July 1 last year and, when the taxpayer made out his 1951 return, that tax was levelled across the year so that he paid only 10 per cent more in taxes.

This year opened with the 20-per-cent surtax in full force and it continues that way up to July 1.

Then it is incorporated into the tax structure and the tax structure is reduced by six per cent. But that still leaves 14 per cent of the surtax in the tax structure.

Old Shells Take Heavy Toll Of Italian Children

Rome, April 9 — (AP) — "The war has not ended for Italian children," said the newspaper Momento-Sera yesterday, reporting that 1,400 of them were killed last year by explosions of mines and shells left by Second World War armies.

MAYOR ARRESTED

Sherbrooke, Que., April 8 (CP) —J. Emile Levesque, recently elected mayor of Sherbrooke, was arrested yesterday on a charge of illegal election practice. He was released on bail of $1 and ordered to appear before session court Thursday. The illegal practice contained in the charge was serving liquor on election day, forbidden by law.

Loss-Leader Selling Said Complex Problem

Ottawa, April 9. (CP)— The McQuarrie Committe, in a report tabled today in the Commons, said loss-leader selling is a complex problem which should be thoroughly studied. However, it recommended no immediate legislation to combat the idea.

The practice by some merchants of selling below cost to attract trade and eliminate competition was criticized in the Commons last year when the government's anti-price-fixing bill was considered.

The committee, which had recommended elimination of price fixing in its initial report, reiterated its belief that the practice of using standard-brand goods as loss leaders was not in the public interest.

Needs Careful Definition

"The matter is one which is complex, particularly when dealt with in legislation which is based chiefly on criminal law," the committee said.

"The practice requires careful definition. Mere prohibition of selling below invoice cost would affect a very limited proportion of cases. Leeway must be given in some cases at least for the disposal of surplus stock."

Extreme use of the device could be prosecuted under the criminal code, the committee added.

Meanwhile, it proposed that the practice be referred to the government's anti-combines officials for "thorough study" by a suggested dual-functioning anti-combines agency and board.

All Provinces Except Two Will Sign

Ottawa, April 9 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said last night it now appears "probable" that all provinces except Ontario and Quebec will sign new taxation agreements with the federal government.

The two provinces also declined to sign 1947 agreements which expired March 31.

Under the agreements, the provinces give the federal government almost exclusive use of the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields.

In return, they receive annual payments based on population and the value of gross national production.

Mr. Abbott has estimated that Ontario would receive $137,391,000 in the first year of the new agreements compared with $105,855,000 in the last year of the former agreements. Quebec would receive $114,428,000 compared with $89,761,000.

Lumber, Housing And Horse-Racing Subject of Debate

Toronto, April 9 (CP)—Lumber, horse-racing and housing occupied the attention of the Ontario legislature yesterday. Thirty-one bills were put through the committee stage in a sitting that lasted until early today—the first after-midnight sitting of this session.

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab.—Kenora) charged that the government was managing Ontario forests in "an arbitrary manner". He criticized what he termed "a steady trend to ministerial control and a trend away from the legislature."

He said the government promised to cut down on the export of wood but in 1951 pulpwood export from Ontario reached a near-record of 930,730 tons. Lands Minister Scott took issue with the figures and said that the government's policy of ending all wood exports after 1958 has resulted in a steady drop in export figures.

Premier Frost tabled a file of letters which followed disappointment between the Ontario Racing Commission and George Cairns, the commission's chief veterinary surgeon in 1951.

Dr. Cairns, who has not been rehired this year, said in a letter that last year 69 horses were allowed to run by track stewards contrary to his recommendations. "Everything was done to make a farce of the pre-race examination."

Claims A Difference

Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow, chairman of the Racing Commission, said there is a difference between a horse being 100-per-cent sound and "racing-sound".

He wrote that the racing stewards had permission to overrule the veterinary's advice on whether a horse should race. "Whereas the veterinary surgeon knew nothing of racing, he can be summoned for duties, the stewards were all knowledgeable horsemen of mature age . . . their integrity is unquestioned."

Race-track inspections this season will be carried out by two graduated students of the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph.

Planning Minister Griesinger said that discussions are being carried on with Ottawa to extend provincial aid to rental housing plans to municipalities with less than 5,000 population. The Federal government is a 75-per-cent partner in most Ontario housing plans.

Survey Shows Alcoholic's First Intoxication Begins at 18th Year

Toronto, April 9 (CP)—A survey of 100 patients treated by the Ontario Alcoholism Research Foundation shows that the average alcoholics start to drink at 17 years, it was reported today in the foundation's first annual report tabled in the Ontario legislature. The average age of first intoxication was 18 years.

The report said, however, that a larger number of patients must be studied before any valid conclusion can be drawn. The foundation treated 442 patients last year in a period largely devoted to organizing the foundation's work.

Of the 100 patients surveyed, 75 per cent were between 35 and 54 years of age. The study also showed alcoholism appears "proportionately among all social and occupational groups."

The report emphasized the need of a change in public attitude toward alcoholism. "It is difficult to secure recognition that the alcoholic is a sick person."

Decentralization of treatment, at present mainly confined to the Brockside clinic and hospital near Toronto, was needed. General hospitals should provide emergency service and clinics should be set up in selected centres.

A total of 42.3 per cent of patients with only one admission to Brockside had remained sober since their discharge.

Drugs had been used "sparingly" in treatment. Adrenalin hormone treatment had been used only for acute cases. Fifteen per cent of patients were given antabuse, the drug which brings about revulsion toward alcohol, and it was used only where the patient was unstable or unable to join an Alcoholics Anonymous group, where "serious emotional disturbances" were involved, or to tide the patient over until he could join Alcoholics Anonymous.

Functional Furniture for Crippled Children Provided by Sale of Seals

Functional furniture designed for the use of crippled children is being made in increasing quantity by Bruce Doherty, an employee of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. Here he shows a piece of his handiwork to Dorothy Marcellers, another member of the O.S.C.C. staff.

Collingwood, April 9 — Out of the ingenuity of a man handy with tools and the co-operative support of more than 180 Ontario service clubs has grown a small industry that brings big benefits to crippled children throughout the province.

For several years are Ontario Society for Crippled Children, backed by its network of willing clubs whose sale of Easter Seals provide financial means for aiding children, has operated a specially - staffed and equipped camp in the nearby hill country.

Middle-aged Bruce Doherty was the camp's maintenance and general handyman. Every year Mr. Doherty watched the youngsters, saw their special problems of trying to use standard type furniture. So he began building chairs, tables and other articles that especially met the needs of the little crippled bodies, particularly the spastic paralytics.

Visiting physicians and surgeons saw his work. Clinics in Montreal, Hamilton and elsewhere learn about it. Soon Bruce's first little shop became too small to meet the demand, so he expanded it. Today he has two or three helpers busy most of the time, year round, working at the designs he evolves, though he has no special technical training. He just regards his gift as a "flair for making things." Over the telephone a doctor will describe his needs, or he will send a roughly sketched plan. And Bruce will produce the goods.

Until the present Bruce Doherty has built pieces to meet individual needs, usually. Now, however, so great has become interest in Ontario and elsewhere that standard designs for various ages or sizes of children are being produced. And every piece that he has built has been supplied either free, if the little patient can't pay, or at cost if a clinic or club offers to meet the expenses.

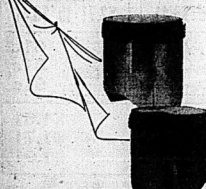
Here's proof..



With costs of doing business mounting steadily, countless trucking firms, like Ontario's own Lawrence Transport, have found that the only way to keep down costs of trucks must be kept on the road in all kinds of weather, a great number have specified Peerless Heavy Duty Detergent Motor Oil throughout. They've proved that it keeps engines cleaner, and maximum clean protects the thousands of dollars invested in vast engine works.

B-A HEAVY DUTY Detergent MOTOR OIL

washes your motor while you drive!

Here's more proof that Peerless Heavy Duty Detergent Motor Oil washes your motor while you drive. For example, examine the sticky varnish and sludge-free pistons and rings of a car that's been using Peerless Heavy Duty Motor Oil . . . and then compare them with the dirty, clogged piston skirts and sludge-fouled rings of a car using a non-detergent oil. The detergent in Peerless Heavy Duty Oil keep all sludge, varnish, carbon and impurities in harmless suspension throughout the oil. These materials that are held in suspension are removed from the engine when the oil is changed. You can never safe and scale-coating, pitting or corrosion. It keeps a tight piston-seal at all times, giving you the greatest amount of power from your engine. And by keeping your high-compression motor clean Peerless Heavy Duty Oil cuts down maintenance costs, gives longer engine life. For more proof—try it yourself in your own car. Get it at any station with the sign of the big B-A.

Wildcat Oil Strike in Williston Basin Boon to Wall Street

By SAM DAWSON

New York, April 9 (AP)—The oil industry drilled 45,000 wells in the United States last year. But the one that made the greatest splash—in and out of Wall Street—was a wildcat on a farm near Tioga, N.D., a year ago today.

It flows a nice 350 barrels of crude oil daily an insignificant drop in the 6,900,000 barrels the U.S. pumps in a day.

But in its first year that wildcat has turned the eyes of stock traders toward shares of a railroad, a match company, an electric utility and investment firms as well as a large number of oil companies, some who already have and some who haven't yet struck oil in the area but have paid out $50,000,000 to lease land there.

Stock traders here and in Toronto are interested because the successful wildcat showed—after 30 years of wild and costly search —that there is oil in the vast Williston Basin, lying to the east of the Rockies and stretching from South Dakota into Canada.

Every corporation that owns land in that basin, or owns stock in companies that do control land, suddenly looks good to Wall Street.

Farmers in that onetime dust-bowl have been happily and profitably leasing oil rights to their lands. Some farmers who offered during the dust storms of the 1930s to sell their land for as little as 50 cents an acre, now sell oil leases for as much as $1,- 500 an acre.

New Oil Centres

As far away as the St. Paul-Minneapolis and the Duluth-Superior areas men are talking of the chance of these places becoming important oil refining centres. If Williston Basin develops into the oil field some expect, and attains Alberta's 1950 production level, the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis says "about $10,000,000 would be paid annually in royalties" alone, not to mention additional money spent by the oil companies and workers.

Yet oilmen caution that, promising as it seems, Williston Basin still must be classified as a hope, not yet fulfillment. The oil information committee of the American Petroleum Institute notes: "There is a long, long way to go before the new field is established as a major producing centre."

But the well near Tioga showed the way. And in the year since, 12 wells scattered from Montana through North Dakota and into Manitoba have found oil in the basin—a sedimentary trough, 400 miles long by 300 wide, and as much as 14,000 feet deep in places. Geologists call it an old sea or lake bottom and some think its formations are extensions of those that proved so oil productive in Alberta province to the northwest.

Miss L. McArthur Gives Vivid Account Of Children's Work

Madoc — The Easter thank-offering meeting was held in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Allen in charge and Mrs. Allen Franks at the piano.

After the opening call to worship and the singing of a hymn, the story of the Crucifixion, as given in Matthew, and that of the Resurrection as given in Mark, was read by Miss Vanklenk.

A poem, "The Shadow of the Cross," was read by Mrs. Cecil Woods.

Guest Speaker

At this meeting the society was pleased to have as guest speaker, Miss Lily McArthur, who is a well-known and loved worker in the children's field and who has travelled extensively over Canada.

She was introduced by Mrs. Heslip and gave a vivid account of the advance work for new members and groups, that of gathering the people together on the frontiers; the work done by the Vocalion Bible School in the west; Alaskan Highway and Quebec, also the work done in the hospitals and Indian schools. She closed her remarks with a plea to carry the "Good News" to the strangers in the land.

A solo "Calvary Covers It All," was sung by Mrs. Franks. The offering was taken by Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Mont and dedicated by Mrs. Dave Blakely.

Mrs. Alley and Mrs. Johnston expressed a vote of thanks to Miss McArthur for her inspiring address. Immediately following the W.M.S. Miss McArthur addressed the Mission Band, giving as her talk "Why We Go to Church." She showed by means of church and little dolls in costume the nationalities that do go to church. Mission Band members gave two motion choruses and Carolyn Reid expressed "Thanks" to the speaker on behalf of the band.

BELIEVE BODY DUMPED

New York, April 8 — (AP) — A 17-year-old Brooklyn youth, taken to a hospital by passersby who thought he had fainted in the street, was pronounced dead last night of a bullet wound in the heart. The body of the youth, Salvatore Cetta, was found lying beside a parked car. Police, who earlier had received reports of shots six blocks away, speculated that young Cetta had been shot there and carted by the car and dumped where he was found.

U.S. Airmen Stranded Four Days on Polar Icecap

Three of the nine men rescued by a ski-plane after drifting four days on an Arctic ice floe near the North Pole are pictured prior to their adventure. The trio (left to right) are: James T. Bracken, Williamson, S.C., aviation electrician; Garland Clay Easterlee, Roanoke, Va., aviation machinist, and Comm. E. M. Ward of Philadelphia, Pa. The airmen were saved by another plane of the Navy's Ski Jump II expedition when their own plane crashed. A few years ago such a crash landing would have been a certain death sentence, but the nine men, with gasoline stoves for warmth, said they were never worried about being rescued. — Central Press Canadian.

Quiz Contest

A quizz contest on questions of particular benefit to Kinamen was thoroughly enjoyed by Kinamen at their regular meeting at the Trent House here this week. Toastmaster was acting president Forrest Dennis, who also assumed the unpopular roll of umpire and duly assessed the losing side 10 cents per head.

The slow recovery of president Gordon Walroth, still in Kingston hospital, was viewed with extreme regret, and at the same time, congratulations of the club went out to President Gord on his recent promotion to his first managerial post at Yarker. This will, however, cause a vacancy in the president's chair, which Past President Forrest Dennis has kindly consented to fill until summer recess, when a successor for a new term will be elected.

A letter of thanks was read from from the Public School Board relative to assisting a pupil requiring special transportation to and from school.

About 4 dozen members of the Campbellford club signified their intention to travel with the "Voyageurs Gong" to Trenton, Monday, when it will be presented to the home club. The event, originally slated for April 1st, was postponed nearly a week. The next meeting of the club will be held on April 21st.

A partner we sometimes cuss is Close-to-the-Button Davey. He sticks to the obvious and overlooks all the gravy.

Where doubles and redoubles are concerned, most players fail to make the most of their chances. Particularly do they overlook many of the latent advantages offered by a redouble.

On the other hand, some are too promiscuous with the redouble. These think mostly in terms of long gambles, neglecting to consider partners loss of confidence, as a result.

I am fully aware of what pabooks and other insurgent partners are up against. To them my advice is to ignore all but the normal means of redoubles. At least until they have more can be made despite what opponents may claim. But to use it for that purpose alone is a waste of breath.

Do you know why? Because partner of redouble is required to bid after a redouble. Even with weak hand. Consequently, the use of the redouble must offer some additional purpose.

What purpose? It says: "Partner, not only can we make our bid but we can also make a game. Meantime, we have the opponents in a trap. Which will pay us the most?" Sounds cruel. But we love it.

knowledge.

But players who think well of their bridge ability can get out of a redouble much more than its original purpose intends. They can use it as a game-force signal as well as threat against opponents.

Suppose south opens with a diamond and west doubles for takeout when north holds the hand shown here:

♠K J 9 4
♥A 9 7 3

North would be elated over the choice of calls he has in his spot. But he should not choose to bid a suit of his own, or assist partner's suit, or bid no-trump. He should redouble.

The normal meaning of a redouble is that the doubled bid

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 9 (AP)—Ray Jones, dean of Hollywood's portrait photographers, discloses some tricks of his trade today and took a rap at "skinny" movie queens.

Jones has served longer than any other glamour photographer now practising in the studios. He started photographing Mack Sennett bathing beauties in 1923 and has shot almost every film queen since then. It's his job to make the gals look sensational; and he said that diets are often against him.

"These actresses think they have to be thin as a rail in order to stay popular," he said. "I think that's a lot of nonsense. Audiences have shown that they like to see their favorites looking healthy and filled out, not skinny.

"The skinny ones make my job difficult. It's bad enough with the young ones, but it's even worse with those approaching 40 or after. They get bags under their eyes, their cheeks get hollow and they get that sagging, crepe neck that is a giveaway for age. It takes a lot of retouching and diffusion to cover those things up."

A traditional method of being kind to the stars' faces has been to shoot the picture through a layer of gauze.

"When I see one of those gals coming with 23 layers of makeup to cover the wrinkles, I know something's got to crack," said Jones. "The standing gag around here is "Let's shoot through the Navajo blanket!"

Jones' favorite among the hundreds of female forms he has recorded is Danielle Darrieux.

"She had the most perfect face and body I have ever photographed. Another favorite of mine was Lupe Velez. I could shoot her from any angle and the picture would be good. The only trouble was getting her to stay still long enough.

"Of the current crop, Ann Blyth has the most perfect face to photograph. She also has one of the best figures, but she won't let me do cheesecake of her. As far as leg art, the best of the new gals is Kathleen Hughes." (Starlet and daughter of writer F. Hugh Herbert.)

Nearly all of the actresses have certain traits concerning their portraits, Jones remarked. Claudette Colbert can be photographed on her left side only. Shelley Winters does not take a good picture with her mouth closed. (It's hard to imagine her without it open.)

Veterans like Marlene Dietrich and Loretta Young, who know all their best poses, do not take directions from photographers. They have a large mirror handy and pose themselves.

Canadiens Oust Boston 3-1 With Spectacular Finish To 7th Game

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CAHVER, Sports Editor

SAD STORY!

The Junior Hawks kicked in with their share of one of the best junior "B" hockey tilts seen here in many a moon last night but they could not or did not match organization tactics with the starry Weston Dukes. The game was a thrilling one from gong to gong with both teams staging terrific defensive hockey. The checking fore and aft was the best these hockey-weary eyes have witnessed in many a moon while the third-period offensive tactics of the Dukes was a feature of the tussle.

The Hawks deserved a better fate. They battled like heroes both ending and coming but it was not for the books. Some of their penalties were rather crude but they battled the bigger foe from whistle to whistle and had they been a spot more potent in front of the foemens' net, the score might have been different.

As it was, it was one of the best junior tilts iced here this season with both teams flashing spectacular hockey at times. And we still think Don Barclay is one of the topflight stars of the Hawks. That kid kicked and shot last night that bordered on the spectacular and the crowd of over 2,000 gave him well-deserved acclaim.

The Hawks came up with a fine performance but the better polish and finish of the Dukes, who were especially potent in front of the Bellville net, was the difference between the squads. The teams go at it again in Weston on Friday and are back here next Tuesday for the fourth game of the best-of-seven series.

JUVENILE TOURNAMENT

Tonight in Memorial Arena the first games of the Belleville Hockey Association-sponsored juvenile tournament get under way. Opening the tourney will be games between Tweed and Trenton; Campbellford and Picton and Napanee and Madoc. Tomorrow night the three winners clash with the victors of the Campbellford-Picton tilt with Descrento meeting the winners of the Napanee-Madoc joust.

FOR MIDGET BASEBALL PLAYERS

Want to play baseball this year, fellas? Okay if you are over fifteen years of age and do not reach your 17th birthday until after May 1st of this year, you can "join up" with a midget team that is in the process of organization. That is, providing you are not already affiliated with another squad. If you can qualify under these articles get in touch with E. Vandervoort, 181½ Station Street, telephone 2352J as soon as possible.

SUNSET!

It would seem that the day of the expensive baseball import in the smaller centres is on the wane. Not because of any foresight on the part of the powers-that-be but rather that famous teacher experience. And now it appears, the baseball prodigal sons are anxious to return to the home pastures, out-of-pocket with some folding up completely.

Take the case of the Brockville Memos, vintage 1951. The rivertown team won the championship of the Central Ontario Baseball League, but it cost them but plenty. The Memos, a report says, went $4,500 "in the red" $3,500 of which was absorbed by "salaries". This year the Memos "aint" as far as the COBL is concerned. Julius Smith, Memos prexy, announced generally the club will not operate this year. More recently, the Brockville sports editor wrote a piece in an effort to stir up baseball interest, saying he believed there would be enough local talent around to start things going.

Practically every club in the COBL finished on the wrong side of the ledger. It was the same picture in other small leagues that brought in expensive imports. Peterborough, it appears, is quite willing to pass up the "big league" angle and get back to earth.

High-salaried imports in the smaller centres is not, and has been proven to be anything but a paying proposition. You don't have to go outside this city to get the proof. The Belleville baseball last year went to the COBL finals — and ended up with a financial loss.

We do not know what the Belleville Baseball Association plans to do this year with regard to imports, if any. But we do agree in part with the writers of two or three letters we received during the past three or four weeks to the effect that if "Belleville looks around itr own backyard, it could scrape up a team of home-brews that could give the best the COBL had last year the games of their lives."

STALEMATE!

Don't look now but believe it or not we have in this city some chess masters in the making. Up in Queen Victoria School Mr. Paul Walton, member of the teaching staff and a chess player in his own right, is conducting an after-school class of young chess enthusiasts and doing a man-size job of it. Some eight or ten keenly-interested youngsters are learning the intricacies of the game and are proving apept pupils. There is a slight drawback however to the class activities and that is there is not sufficient chess boards or men to go around. Now, if some good folk have these resting in their attics or other places and which are of no further use, Mr. Walton and his boys would greatly appreciate them. Telephone the school and ask for Mr. Walton or Principal Everett S. Fairman.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, April 9 —(AP)— The coming baseball season promises to be much richer for the return of Rogers Hornsby as manager of St. Louis Browns. The rajah, probably the greatest right-handed hitter who ever lived, was away far too long.

A man who loves the game as Hornsby does and is able to drill its finer points into younger players with his sure hand should never have been permitted to wander around the outer fringes of baseball schools and managing in the minors.

Under Hornsby the Browns will be a colorful, fighting ball club and they will help attendance all around the American League. They will not finish last and they could finish as high as fifth if any one of several pitchers delivers.

For some reason not easily discernible, Hornsby commands a fierce loyalty both from his younger players and from veterans who have been cast off by other clubs. Several of the latter, in particular, such as shortstop Marty Marion and pitcher Tommy Byrne, can be counted upon to give it a terrific try.

Come-Back 'Rocket' Richard Scores Winner As Habitants Crash Into Stanley Cup Finals

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, April 9 —(CP)—The incomparable Maurice (Rocket) Richard, his face blood-smeared from a six-stitch smash over his eye, came up with a spectacular goal last night and sent Montreal Canadiens into the Stanley Cup hockey final.

Canadiens now meet Detroit Red Wings in the best-of-seven cup final with the first two games in Montreal tomorrow and Saturday nights.

The record book will tell only that Canadiens beat Boston Bruins 3-1 in the seventh and deciding game of the cup semi-final; that Eddie Mazur of Canadiens and Ed Sandford of the Bruins scored in the first period; that Richard broke the tie at 16.19 of the last period and Billy Reay fired into the open net, with the Boston goalie out of the game, 34 seconds from the end.

The record books lose all the drama that was packed into 60 minutes of a desperately-fought bruising, solid body-checking game.

The crowd of 14,598 jammed in the historic Forum waited tensely as the minutes dragged on for the one big goal.

Rocket Flares

And Richard supplied the break with all the color and flair that has marked his 10-year hockey career.

Earlier in the game—in the second period—Richard and Leo Labine of the Bruins met head on. Labine's stick caught Richard in the face and Richard sailed into the air and fell to the ice out cold.

When he revived he was helped to the Forum clinic, blood flowing from the deep cut over his left eye and from a sharp scrape across his cheek bone.

The cut was sewed up and Richard returned to the Montreal bench shortly before the second period ended. He was still groggy and bewildered. He asked what the score was—with the scoreboard still reading 1-1.

The break was a long time coming, but Richard, ever an opportunist, snatched at it.

Both teams were shorthanded, Billy Reay of Canadiens and Hal Laycoe of Bruins were sitting out major penalties, each receiving from a sudden high-sticking duel.

Deep in the Montreal zone, Woody Dumart, Bruin veteran winger was checking Canadien Defenceman Butch Bouchard sent a short pass to Richard.

Richard headed straight for the Boston defence of Bill Quackenbush and Bob Armstrong. He took Quackenbush side, swung to the right and cut back sharply. Before Quackenbush could reach him, Richard whirled and rifled a low shot. The puck whistled into the corner of the net, barely clipping goalie Jim Henry's leg pad.

The goal sent Bruins into a new frenzy of attacks, but the Canadiens threw up a solid defence with help from goalie Gerry McNeil.

In the last minute, coach Lynn Patrick pulled Henry from the net and had six Bruins driving ahead in a last gamble for a goal. From a mass of players the puck came to Billy Reay, who took his time with a shot from the blue line.

After the game Patrick had no alibis. He said it was a well-played game, gave full credit to Richard for the Rocket's sensational goal and then shook the hands of his players for their work in the series.

Coach Dick Irvin said "only Richard could score a goal like that."

Will Not Bar Yankee Jockeys

Toronto, April 9 — (CP)—The Ontario Racing Commission ruled today that United States jockeys will not be barred from Ontario tracks unless there is a heavy influx of riders from south of the border.

The commission recently received protests from Canadian jockeys through their guild, against riders coming here and riding for other than Canadian owners who contract them to ride for their stables. However, the O. R. C. felt all riders have a right to appear on Ontario tracks as long as they are in good standing in the United States.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

The light shone again today on New York Giants' pennant hopes.

Slugger Bob Elliott, Boston Braves' holdout third baseman who once played outfield for Toronto Maple Leafs, was acquired yesterday in a deal involving cash and Giants pitcher Sheldon Jones.

The Braves had wanted Elliott, who helped them to their 1948 pennant, to take a salary cut from his estimated $30,000. He refused.

So yesterday the Giants announced at New York they had picked up Elliott to replace the injured Monte Irvin for Jones and an estimated $50,000. Big Bob probably will play left field, a position he once played for Pittsburgh Pirates.

Elliott batted .285 for Boston last year while Jones was a big disappointment to the Giants, winning six and losing 11 games.

Wilmer the great Fields, a star with Brantford Red Sox of the Intercounty Baseball League last year, has officially come to terms with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Football Conference Jack Kent Cooke announced in Toronto yesterday. Fields had failed to report after his acceptance of terms several times.

The Edmonton boxing commission has imposed an indefinite suspension on Billy Haines of Toronto, manager of lightweight boxer, Solly Cantor. Haines is barred from managing fighters or engaging in promotion there at Edmonton until he makes satisfactory settlement with Promoter Jimmy Bright.

Bright, outstanding Drake University halfback, who has signed for a reported $14,000 to play next fall with Calgary Stampeders in the Western Interprovincial Football Conference, dislocated his shoulder yesterday during spring practice at Des Moines, Iowa. Bright holds the all-time U.S. college offence record — 5,903 yards in three years.

Hornets Explode To Beat Reds By 4-2 Count

Pittsburgh, April 9 (CP) — Pittsburgh Hornets exploded for three goals in the final period last night to beat Providence Reds 4-2 in the opening game of their best-of-seven series for the American Hockey League's Calder Cup.

The game was a tight defensive battle all the way until the third period. Only seven penalties were called.

Rudy Migay scored the first goals for Pittsburgh after seven minutes and 48 seconds of the first period and the teams battled until 3:13 of the third stanza before Ray Hannigan made it 2-0 Pittsburgh.

Paul Gladu scored the Providence goal at 8:19 of the third period.

That goal only served to fire the Hornets. Andy Barbe and Bill Reinicki tallying two insurance goals quickly.

The second game of the series will be played here tonight.

Tillsonburg Back in Cage Picture, Defeat Winnipeg by 70-56 Score

Tillsonburg, Ont., April 9 — (CP)—A small-town basketball team set its sights on the dominion title today.

Tillsonburg Livingstons, their hometown arena packed with more than half the 5,000 population of this western Ontario town, looked like champions last night as they downed the Winnipeg Varsity grads 70-56.

Never Looked Back

The Ontario squad didn't look back after leading 30-16 lead in the opening quarter. They led 34-31 at the half and opened the margin to 51-43 by three-quarter time. A continued drive through the closing minutes gave them their handy victory.

Plagued by the loss of fouls, the Livingstons had but one spare on the bench at the final whistle. They lost Red Curran, Tommy Gibbons, Bob Phibbs and Paul Thomas in the hectic closing half, but had ace-in-the-hole Bill Coulthard to fill the gap. He potted seven points for them in the closing quarter.

Referees Harry Lowes of Toronto and Klett McPherson of Hamilton called everything over the whole 60 minutes. Tillsonburg drew 27 fouls and Winnipeg 28. Most of the winners' personals came in the last period.

Bob Phibbs led the Tillsonburg attack with 20 points while Harry Wade slipped in 15 and Bob Simpson came through with 11. Roy Williams paced the Western Canada entry with 14 points and Neil Wood came through with 10.

Jerry Livingston, sponsor and coach of the Tillsonburg club was confident his boys would come through in the series and shouted, "We'll take the next two."

Grad coach Jack Carmichael felt the finals would go the limit. "Some of our boys were a little too confident after Monday night's win. The loss might do us a lot of good.

Junior Hawks Drop Second Game To Weston Dukes By 5-2 Score

'Leafs' Give Finished Display Against Hard-Checking Hawks In Rugged Junior B Battle

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The Weston Dukes, spearheading brilliant defensive tactics with powerful offensive drives, took a two-game lead in the OHA junior "B" semi-finals here last night defeating the Hawks by a 5-3 score. The third game of the best-of-seven series is slated for Weston on Friday night with the fourth tussle back here next Tuesday.

It was fast rugged hockey with over 2,000 fans, the most of them pulling for a Hawks victory witnessing the fray.

Fifteen penalties were handed out by Referees Maurice Walsh, Toronto and Jim Cromble, Bowmanville, eleven of them going to the blue-shirted visitors. All were minor with the exception of a misconduct sentence handed out to Chapman of the Dukes who was the bad boy of the visitors. He collected five penalties all told, four of them minors.

While it was a rough and rugged battle, expected fisticuffs did not materialize, the only semblance being a mild rhubarb with a minute to go in the final chukker when a Dukes player attempted to settle matters with mild-mannered Ted DeGray. The Hawk star was not found wanting but the incident did not affect either team as far as manpower was concerned.

Fine Defensive Work

The terrific defensive work of the Dukes, coupled with potent offensive forays spelled the difference between the teams. The Hawks came up with one of their best checking efforts of the season especially when they were shorthanded. On the other hand the Dukes back-checked like fiends and stopped many a Hawk foray cold in the tracks.

The Hawks had the better of the play in the first and second period. They opened the scoring on Doran's goal after eight minutes of play in the initial period but Sneddon got that one back ten minutes later to even the count.

The second period produced the best hockey of the night with Don Barclay, Hawks goalie coming up with another sensational performance.

The Hawks were getting through but the fierce back-checking and tight behind-the-blue line defence of the Dukes spoiled their efforts. Twice they were in clear-cut situations, Duke goalie outguessed the incoming attackers.

Narrow Margin

McCarthy on a neat passing play with Glover and Reid gave the Dukes a 3-1 edge early in the third period but the fans rose to their feet two minutes later when Jacklin fired home Lalande's pass after the pair had weaved their way through the Dukes near impregnable defence to put the Hawks within striking distance.

The Dukes swept into a neat three-way passing offensive to match that of the Hawks as play swept up and down the ice. Garner spearheaded a neat combination effort with McCarthy to push the Dukes out front by the twelve minute mark. The Hawks rallied back but that stiff Duke defence spoiled their efforts. They whammed three potential goalgetters at Albani in the Dukes net at this point on a sustained offensive but the youngster kicked them out.

Bill Harris, one of the best junior players to show his wares on Belleville ice locked the door for good when he combined with Jackson after thirteen minutes to give the Dukes a solid margin.

Duke Doran and Ted DeGray skated a million miles in a fine effort for the Hawks. Barclay was the outstanding star again while Lalande also stood out with a fine performance.

Bill Harris, Reid and Jackson turned in neat performances for the Dukes.

The teams—

Belleville—Goal, Barclay; defence, Wilson, Munro; centre, Lalande; wings, Strahan, Jacklin; subs, Green, Gilmour, Therrien, Houle, Doran, Carey, Mason, DeGray.

Weston Dukes — Goal, Albani; defence, Stoyan, Livingston; centre, Harris; wings, Fisher, Chapman; subs, McCarthy, Glover, K. Harris, Jamieson, Garner, Jackson, Elick, Reid, Lawson, Sneddon.

Referees: Jim Cromble, Bowmanville, Maurice Walsh, Toronto.

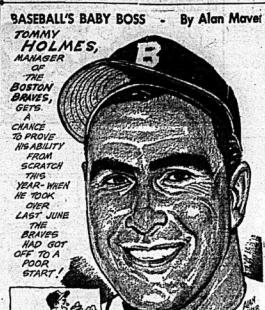
Fort Frances, Edmonton Pats Tie in Overtime

Edmonton, April 9 — (CP) — Fort Frances Canadians and Edmonton Pats rest today, waiting for the second game of their best-of-seven Allan Cup semi-final and another try at producing a series leader.

Billy Maher's late third period goal last night gave Edmonton Pats a 3-3 overtime tie with Canadians in the series opener, leaving the teams knotted.

Thursday they go back into action at Edmonton.

Maher's marker at 19:00 of the third period before a crowd of 3,350 wild and the game into a scoreless extra session. It climaxed an uphill battle by the Pats who had to come from behind a 3-1 deficit to gain the stalemate.



Ed Kliner, Ric Picard and Frank Eizmaph sent Fort Frances ahead with goals in the second period, Johnny Black got one back for Pats in the second and Harry Allen and Maher scored in the third. The first went scoreless.

A wild scramble produced Maher's game-tying goal when he fired a shot that just crossed the goal line past a sprawled Bill Cleaveley in the Fort Frances net.

In extra play Black missed on the only good scoring opportunity. He went too close in to lift the puck over Cleaveley who was down in a scramble.

WORLD RECORD

Nassau, Bahamas, April 9 (AP) — A world record for a blue marlin taken on a 50-pound line was claimed today by Chester J. Mason, Jr., of Buffalo, N. Y. Maxson's marlin, hooked off Andros Island, weighed 478½ pounds and measures 11 feet, five inches in length. It was boated in 22 minutes. The Bahamas development board said the biggest marlin previously taken on a 50-pound-test line weighed 400 pounds even.

Last Detachment Of 22nd Regiment Off for Korea

Quebec, April 9 (CP)—The third and last detachment of the Royal 22nd Regiment's First Battalion left tonight by train en route to Korea.

Some 225 parachroopers left nearby Valcartier Camp for the west coast where they will embark for the Far East.

Few relatives were on hand to see them off.

Two detachments left previously, bringing to 800 the number of men going to Korea to replace, under the rotation scheme, men who have been overseas since early in the Korean conflict.

The group was commanded by Maj. Andre (Kit) Lamoureux of Montreal, a Second World War veteran of the Italian campaign.

Forts Defeat Regina Pats 3-1

Fort William, April 9. (CP)—Way back last winter, Spud Russell, chief scout for Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League, picked Regina Pats to take the Western Canada Memorial CP final.

The underrated Fort William Hurricanes, the other half of the final, are out to prove that he's wrong.

Last night the Hurcs trounced Pats 3-1 in the first game of their best-of-seven series before 5,600 roaring fans.

It's been 27 years since Fort William has had an entry in the Western Canada final and they intend to make the most of it.

Don Poile was big man for Hurricanes, scoring two goals and assisting on another by Alex Irving.

Eddie Litzenberger notched the lone Regina marker on a blueline pass from Gordie Cowan.

All three Fort William goals were scored when Pats were shorthanded.

N.Z. Prohibits Importation Of Automobiles

Auckland, N.Z., April 9 (CP) — The New Zealand government announced today it will not permit automobiles to be imported from Canada and the United States this year.

In addition, after April 30, imports of fully-assembled cars from Britain will be banned.

The decision to refuse licences for North American imports is part of commonwealth sterling area measures to check the loss of dollar reserves. New Zealand imported about 2,000 cars from Canada and the U.S. last year.

The announcement that only parts will be accepted for import from Britain after the end of this month was prompted by what was described as phenomenal orders placed by importers here for British automobiles. The government said that if these orders were fulfilled, New Zealand's currency balances in London would be seriously depleted.

As a result of the curbs, New Zealand will import only about 18,000 cars this year compared with 26,700 in 1951. Some 43,000 cars were on order before today's reductions.

Senator Taft Scores Victory In Illinois

Chicago, April 9—(AP)—Senator Robert Taft of Ohio scored an overwhelming victory in yesterday's Illinois Republican primary election.

In the presidential popularity contest, Taft mowed under his two major opponents—Harold E. Stassen and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower—duplicating his primary victories last week in Nebraska and Wisconsin.

Taft apparently won control over 48 of the 50 delegates to the Republican National Convention in July—which represents his greatest delegate victory in any primary to this year. There was a possibility that two delegates who favored the candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower might win. The primary results are not binding upon the delegates.

With more than two-thirds of the precincts counted today, Taft led Stassen 6 to 1, and Eisenhower 7 to 1.

Eisenhower, who was not officially a candidate in the presidential preference primary, placed third in the voting on the basis of a write-in campaign.

Running without opposition as the Democratic presidential candidate, Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee piled up a huge vote.

There was a small total of write-ins for Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois in the Democratic column.

However, the anti-Democratic organization is expected to give the delegate vote to Stevenson in the event he enters the presidential race. He was unopposed for renomination for governor.

FIVE INJURED

Milan, Italy, April 9 (Reuters)—Five Italians were seriously injured last night when Europe's famous Orient express was derailed by falling points near Rho, six miles northwest of here. The railroad line between Italy and Switzerland was still blocked this morning by wreckage from the crash, which several other people received minor injuries.

NOW A BRICKLAYER

Toronto, April 9 — (CP)—Johann Sebastian Bach, a former minister of war in the Estonian cabinet has taken up here as a bricklayer. He said: "There are too many deposed generals, former diplomats and ministers like myself idling around in this part of the world and I'm afraid of them would become a good bricklayer, they might still be of some use to humanity."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—On the "be careful" side for even routine and regular duties, the mindful you don't "rub the fur" the wrong way with superiors, or those truly concerned with your happiness.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Could be irritating period if you are careless or don't hold temper. Finances, business efforts call for sagacity, cautious. Make friends, try to co-operate richly for best results.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Take things in philosophical way. Deal with facts and principles, not fancies. Know your capacity to carry out what you would. P. M. favors personal affairs.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer)—You have natural gift of tenacity, but today must be especially careful how you use this, and your versatility. A smart, sound-ly conservative front best till sure of ground.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—A day that demands your good humor, stern generous nature and natural leadership. Don't merely persist, rather resort to fact and you can overcome many adverse situations.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—"Fair-to-middlin'" for many endeavor; those well planned and handled will advance quicker. Make plans ahead, check items thoughtfully; don't take anything for granted.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Off with the old (if it's outmoded), on with the new (of worth). Methods, times move fast. Get better acquainted with your surroundings. You have balance, sense of justice; use them.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Strengthen sturdy effort and faith, especially in matters close to home and regular work. Rely on good principles, experience of others, stable reasoning.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—May have to tighten reins. Guard against fraud, deception in unexpected places. Laborious work, difficult and artistic tasks should be watched thoughtfully.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—All along the line today you may find little irritations, obstructions. Be forewarned, have inner calm, steady nerves and you can avoid much, and do more than you think.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—May be less stimulating encouraging than yesterday. Being responsive in intelligent manner, paying close attention to duties will help greatly. Heed help from friends, relatives.

February 21 to March 21 (Pisces)—Some contentious tendencies, says your Neptune. Don't be tempted to become involved in questionable deals, arguments. Maintain dignified attitude.

YOU BORN TODAY: Were born under Sign of Aries. You have forethought, originality, fine assets to enable you to reach great heights; if you are a true Arien, continue education and have the fear of God, and will to do right. Watch ambition, it may tend to run ahead of you, get you into unnecessary complex situations. Birthdate of: Wm. Booth, Salvation Army leader.

Meets Godmother

Margaret Truman, right, daughter of the President of the United States, meets her godmother, Mrs. C. S. Calhoun of Qualicum, B.C., for the first time in 22 years. The meeting occurred in Vancouver before a singing concert by Miss Truman who is on tour. — (CP Photo.)

$15,000 For Me?

Marcel Diggs of Toronto could hardly be expected to realize the news yet he managed an expressive reaction when told he had won $15,000 in a sweepstake petie. His mother, a cleaning woman, bought a Quebec Army-Navy sweepstake ticket in his name. The ticket drew Wot No Sun which finished third in the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, Eng., Saturday. Mrs. Diggs said the money will provide a good education for Marcel. —(CP Photo.)

Strives to Keep Steamer Cruises On Lake Ontario

Toronto. (CP)— Alan Howard, 35-year-old marine artist, is leading a campaign to keep in business the last of the popular Toronto cruise ships on Lake Ontario.

He proposes to form a private company to buy and operate the S.S. Cayuga. The steamship's owners, Canada Steamship Lines, had announced that due to steady decline in number of passengers it was withdrawing the Cayuga from the 38-mile run between Toronto and the mouth of the Niagara river.

Howard, who has been interested in ships and navigation since he was five years old, is convinced his proposed cruise venture would prosper against competition of other attractions of the motor age.

Besides catering to modern youth's hankering to dance under the stars on a cool cruise ship, he believes his project would rekindle the nostalgic dreams of oldsters who remember when a Lake Ontario moonlight cruise was a high spot of summertime.

For years the cruise ship spelled dancing, parties and happiness. There was romance amid the gaiety of its crowded decks as the white ship skimmed over the waves to and from Niagara.

The Cayuga herself had been on the service since 1906. First of the Niagara Cruise ships was the side-wheeler Chicora, which started in 1878. She was followed by the Cibola, the Chippewa, the Corona and finally the Cayuga.

Popular Excursions

With the growth in popularity of the cruises, other vessels pushed out on regular runs from Toronto with their passengers. To Port Dalhousie, near St. Catharines, went the Lakeside, the Garden City, the Dalhousie City and the Northumberland.

The Olcott plied between Toronto and Olcott Beach, Toronto and Hamilton were linked by the service provided by the Turbinia, the Modjeska and the Macassa.

But as the years passed and the automobile made its inroads upon the recreational habits of the dwellers along the Lake, the cruise ships disappeared one by one.

Now, unless Alan Howard's plans work out, the Cayuga will tail no more on the cruise runs. Howard says, however, that the municipal councils of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Queenston, Niagara Falls and St. Catharines are on record as favoring continued operation of the Cayuga... All he needs is financial backing and then the support of persons who feel the joy of sailing on a lake cruise is unmatched anywhere.

PLANNING TO BUILD OR REMODEL?

YOU CAN AFFORD
THE Thor "500" DE LUXE
AUTOMAGIC SINK

FACTS AND FIGURES REGARDING BUILDERS' SAVINGS
THE AVERAGE COST OF PLUMBING TO BUILDERS IN NEW HOMES TODAY IS BETWEEN $700.00 AND $800.00.

When a Thor Automagic Sink is installed in new homes the builder will save up to $200.00 in plumbing and other costs as listed below. These figures were compiled after extensive canvassing of many plumbers and builders. They are meant to guide you as you list your own particular costs in comparing the many advantages to the builder and home purchaser.

KITCHEN		CARPENTRY WORK, ETC.
Kitchen Sink	$ 25.70	Cabinet around Sink, (approx.)	$ 70.00
Kitchen Taps	15.97	Stainless Steel Strip for cabinet top 7 sink trim and labor (approx.)	10.00
	$ 41.67	Linoleum for cabinet top around sink and labor (approx.)	12.00
BASEMENT			$ 92.00
Laundry Tubs (concrete)	$ 20.10	TOTAL SAVINGS (Approx.)
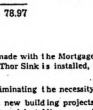
Laundry Tubs (swing)	8.00	Kitchen Sink, etc.	$ 41.67
4" Sewer drain and labor	15.00	Laundry Tubs, etc.	78.97
Trap (S type)	4.87	Carpentry, Labor, etc.	92.00
Vent Pipe 1½"	8.00		$212.64
Pipe Fittings	8.00
Overall Labor	15.00
	$ 78.97



NOTE:—
(1) Arrangements can invariably be made with the Mortgage Company to obtain an extra amount, often as high as $200.00 when the Thor Sink is installed, because it is a permanent fixture in the house.
(2) The builder has added space, eliminating the necessity of having a utility room.
(3) Where Septic Tanks are used in new building projects, we have found that many builders have saved the cost of purchasing and installing a special pump to be used for laundry tub drain water. The Thor Automagic Sink of course, eliminates this extra material and labor as it combines washing-machine and kitchen sink in one streamlined cabinet.
(4) The Builder offers the prospective buyer of his house the most up-to-date method of home laundry which adds 'glamor' to the kitchen.

New Warship Has Everything From Radar to Instant Tea

Called the most powerful fighting vessel of her size afloat, H.M.S. Daring was launched recently and showed an impressive array of radar equipment and anti-aircraft guns. In the destroyer class, she has the range and firepower of a light cruiser and the sub-killing equipment of a frigate. She is a sailor's dream — with bunks instead of hammocks, electric washing machines and potatoe peelers, an automatic telephone exchange and running hot water for making tea without kettles. — Central Press Canadian.

Bullet Will Be Taken from Foot In Few Days

Campbellford— Wilfred Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Allan Jones of Campbellford, is waiting for a few days to have a .22 calibre rifle bullet removed from his right foot as a result of a shooting accident early Sunday morning on the outskirts of this town.

Three local boys, Chic Poulton, 16, Gordon Seymour, 17 and Jones were hunting when Gordon stumbled. In reaching for his gun, it discharged sending a bullet into the right foot of the Jones' lad.

The two boys assisted their injured companion about two miles to his home, where a doctor was summoned and he was taken to Campbellford Hospital, where X-rays and the fluroscope revealed the bullet in the foot.

Dr. J. R. Anderson, who attended the injured lad, said he would not attempt to remove the bullet for a few days until swelling in the foot goes down.

Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine is investigating.

Freak Lightning Bolt Damages Kitchen of Home

Campbellford—A freak bolt of lighning disrupted the household of Eric Ellis, one mile north of Havelock on Saturday evening, when considerable damage to the kitchen of the home was caused.

Mrs. Ellis, her daughter Mavis, age 13, and son Kenneth, age 5, were alone at the time. Mr. Ellis had not yet returned from his work.

The bolt ripped two doors from the building, knocking Mrs. Ellis down with one of them, and injuring Mavis slightly. Five-year-old Kenneth escaped unhurt. Electrical outlets were torn from the walls, lighting fixtures on the ceiling were shattered and pictures were torn from the walls.

Thirteen-year-old Mavis was lying on a couch, when the bolt struck. Her wrist watch stopped at 5:40 p.m., and all efforts to start it since have failed.

The kitchen stove was lifted from the floor, and one of the glass coasters on which the legs of the stove were resting, came to rest on top of the stove.

Telephone wires leading to the home were burned for a distance of three pole lengths from the house, but there was no fire.

Neighbors who came to view the damage said it was unbelievable, and Thomas Eltgrave, Peterborough insurance adjuster said he had never before seen such widespread damage caused by lightning.

Nfld. Girls Attracting Yanks, Boom in Marriages

St. John's Nfld., April 9 (CP) —United States servicemen have been in Newfoundland for 10 years and they like it.

The Yanks join in sports and social activities and they co-operate with provincial authorities. But more than that—they are marrying Newfoundland girls.

Marriages between islanders and American servicemen stationed at the three Newfoundland bases have increased to a point where straightening out cutlerem ship of wives and offspring has become one of the major jobs of U.S. consular offices.

If anybody is unhappy about the arrangement, it is the unmarried females in this province. Bachelor servicemen have cut into the woman surplus in the years the U.S. Forces have been stationed there, and last year more than 800 Newfoundland girls went back to the States with their American husbands.

That's the figure revealed by the U.S. Consul General's office here. It covers marriages at the St. John's and Argentia bases, but does not include many others at West Coast Harmon Air Force Base.

Adopt Children

American couples are also taking to parentless Newfoundland children. Last year 25 adoptions were arranged by authorities in co-operation with the Newfoundland Department of Welfare.

"As far as I have seen, the adoptions have been very successful," says Ellis A. Bennett, the Consul-General. More applicants are coming forward now than at any time since the bases were established in 1941.

Marriage to a serviceman does not automatically give U.S. citizenship to a Newfoundland girl, but speedy naturalization is arranged when the couple returns to the States. The same applies for adopted children.

But babies born of an American father and a Newfoundland mother can start wearing the stars and stripes as soon as they are old enough to lift a flag—provided daddy is over 21 and has fulfilled certain residence requirements in the United States. If not, the youngster has to be naturalized along with his mother."

Philip Does As Miners Do

The Duke of Edinburgh stepped into a "hoppit," a large bucket holding three or four men, and descended nearly 2,000 feet into the depths of a coal mine at Mosley Common colliery during an eight-hour visit to Britain's Lancashire coalfield. He wore a boiler suit and a miner's white helmet, and carried a safety lamp. At the pit bottom he walked more than a mile underground to see a mechanical plow of German design at work. After nearly two hours he returned to the surface and took a bath at the Ashtead before joining miners in their lunch in the pit canteen. — Central Press Canadian.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Well, Dave Sladen had it doped to suit himself anyhow, and I couldn't poke substantial holes in his theory. But if Dolly Dumont was dreaming up melodrama to feed her ego, she was further confusing an already confused issue.

Sladen looked at me, his eyes suddenly hooked almost "well," he said "I hoped it's helped you."

Maybe I was dreaming or reading between the lines. But I thought that Dave Sladen had subtley informed me of a clear idea he had. The idea that James Russell Orth was something other than a vacuous playboy whom Sally Cravath had latched onto in Bermuda.

I got away from Sladen at four-thirty. A quarter of an hour later Manila rapped on my door and said that Cravath wanted to see me.

I trailed the Filipino to Cravath's room. The master of Windover was struggling into the coat of a sack suit. Scattered helter-skelter about the room were the casual clothes he'd worn earlier in the day. Cravaths' face was set grim.

"Look Orth," he said, "I've had a phone call from my office. There is trouble there. I'm going to the city right now. Want you to come along."

My eyes dropped to my own sportsjacket and none-too-beautiful pressed gray slacks. He followed my gaze.

"They'll do," he said: "'You'd better get a topcoat, though. Meet me at the garage in five minutes."

Well, mine not to reason why. I ran back to my room, got the prescribed coat, added my brown fedora and hurried to the garage. Cravath was backing out a convertible.

When we were on our way, his big hands, gripping the wheel, he shook his head, incredulously, bewilderedly:

"The call," he said, "was from Bill Neale. Bill's my other partner. Well, he was half off his head and I don't blame him, it seems that $50,000 in bonds is missing from the office vault."

I jerked up. No wonder he was agitated. "What kind of bonds?" I asked curiously.

"Hal" Again Cravath trod on the accelerator and we spurted. "The only kind a thief could use without a lot of trouble. Unregistered bonds, payable to bearer. The firm's holding the bag on this, Orth. Myself, in particular."

"Does Mr. Dumont know?" I asked, remembering that Dumont was also a partner.

"Yes. Told him just before I sent for you. He wanted to come with me, of course. But I wouldn't let him. Dolly might have a relapse or something, if he went away now. He kicked like a steer, but I talked him down. Besides, Jack had nothing to do with this. I was the one acting for the client who owns these bonds. And to make it just a little tougher the client is not only a valued clien, but a very dear friend of ours." He drew a sharp sucking breath. "It's Eve Wheeler."

I whistled. Cravath had, indeed, cause for agitation. "Does she know?" I said.

"Not yet. I decided to go up and see for myself. "I'm not worrying about the money and neither will she. But to have a thing like this go on in my firm, find out that someone I trusted could turn to be a downright crook" — he took a hand off the wheel, slapped it down again — "that's what I can't get over, Orth, I had a — a thief working for me."

That, substantially, was all I got out of him until we parked in lower Wall Street. We found a parking place too, right in front of Cravath's building, because it was after seven o'clock when we arrived.

We were through a door which gave onto the working section of the room. I had just time to note that the rooms were large and quietly furnished when a tall chap with prematurely graying hair and a forehead full of wrinkles came hurrying toward us along the corridor.

"Marney!" he almost shouted. "I'm certainly glad to see you. I — " He stopped abruptly as he saw me, wrinkles appearing and pale indeterminate-colored eyes puzzled.

Cravath introduced me to Bill Neale. "You can talk freely in front of Orth, Bill. He's been helping me at Windover."

Neale talked in Cravath's private office; a huge room reminiscent of a bygone era. His statements boiled down to this:

Upon getting the news of Ames Warburton's death he had checked over Ames' current and prospective work. Everything was in order. Better than that, Ames' entire schedule was down in clear and white, on a kind of worksheet he kept. Plainly listed on this sheet was a notation to sell, on behalf of Eve Wheeler, bonds of the Central Union and Southwestern Railway Company — if the market quotation on these bonds reached 105.

There was in the office a record that Mrs. Eve Wheeler had turned the bonds over to Cravath and Company, and that these bonds had been placed in the firm's vault for safekeeping.

Well, this afternoon Central Union had risen to 103½. Neale had gone to the vault to make sure he could lay his hands on the bonds, should the market keep going up.

He couldn't. They weren't there.

Steel Officials Say Truman Paid Off Political Debt

Seizure Will be Fought In Highest Courts of U.S.

Washington, April 10 — (CP)— The United States steel industry, preparing now to fight government seizure in the courts, began heating up cooker furnaces today for full-scale production.

Last night, less than 24 hours after President Truman ordered basic seizure in the face of a threatened strike by 650,000 workers, heads of the $8,000,000,000 industry assured Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer he could count on return to normal production as soon as possible.

But while steel production was gradually resumed, there was no letup in attacks by the steel industry on Truman's seizure order.

In an angry statement, Truman and C. I. O. President Philip Murray, a top Executive official said seizure "discharges a political debt to the C. I. O."

Ralph E. Randall, president of the Inland Steel Company, told a National radio and television audience that "if any man now threatens another man's job with a gun, only a name is Phil Murray."

Officials of the United Steelworkers of America, CIO, of which Murray is also president, said the attack was "unjustified and unwarranted as not to deserve a reply."

Randall carried the same angry tone into a telegram he sent to Sawyer protesting — appointed boss of the industry, saying his organization would "seek protection from the courts of rights guaranteed to it by the constitution and laws of the United States."

His telegram promised a bitter legal battle between the steel corporations and the government which might be fought right up to the supreme court.

1,600 Homeless In Dakota's Worst Flood in 71 Years

Pierre, S.D., April 10 —(AP)— Streets of this capital city of 4,000 inhabitants resembled dirty canals today as flood waters of the Missouri River surged slowly but steadily upward.

The big Muddy spilled onto about 100 blocks of Pierre and, all of Fort Pierre, a town of about 700 persons across the river. Red Cross officials estimated about 1,600 persons already were homeless.

It was Pierre's worst flood in 71 years.

A crest of 25 feet was expected some time today. Mercredi Street stood at 23.6 feet at nine o'clock last night and the swirling water was climbing at a rate of .5 feet an hour. Flood stage here is 15 feet.

Army engineers called flood warnings for down-stream cities along the ramaging stream. The crest was expected to reach Yankton Monday or Tuesday, and swirl into Omaha, Neb., April 17-18.

Mayor Ralph Henderson of Sioux City proclaimed an emergency calling for evacuation of 200 homes, the stockyards and a packing plant on Friday.

The weather bureau at Omaha forecast a wet two feet above the 35.6 foot levees erected to protect that city and neighboring Council Bluffs, Ia.

Up Three Feet

Water was up to three feet deep in the Pierre business district. Basements and floors and foundations of two business places caved in.

Army "ducks" and small coast guard boats hauled stocks from flooded stores and rescued residents of flood swept homes. A coast guard helicopter freed isolated ranchers.

Kenneth Hosmer, owned in Fort Pierre last night, because sandbags around the levee broke gave way and the generators were knocked out.

Pierre officials sent out a call for more volunteers to help in sandbagging the municipal power plant. Crews labored throughout the night to protect it.

Drinking water was another problem. Three of the four Pierre pumping stations were under water. It was hoped that the reservoir supply of 1,500,000 gallons would hold until the flood subsides and pumps can start operating again.

The Daily Capital Journal suspended publication for the duration of the flood. Motors were removed from printing machinery as water poured into the basement. The Associated Press, housed in the newspaper plant, moved into temporary quarters in the telephone building in "uptown Pierre."

Youth Believed Struck on Road By Hit-Run Car

William F. Larahy, 19 of Enterprise, is in Belleville General Hospital suffering from fractured injuries after being picked up alongside the highway within the western limits of Deseronto early this morning.

It was believed the man may have been struck by a hit-and-run motorist but until noon today doctors had not been able to determine his injuries. He was still unconscious.

Police Chief Bert Lounsberry of Deseronto said a passing motorist had observed the man lying at the side of the road. He was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Queen Performs Colorful Ceremony Of Giving Maundy Alms in Abbey

London, April 10 —(AP)— The Queen today performed the colorful Easter ceremony of distributing Royal Maundy alms in Westminster Abbey.

Symbolically, she washed and dried the feet of 13 old men and 13 old women, chosen from among the poorest of her subjects.

Symbolically, she measured out their alms in linen of the old men got a white bag in which there was 82 five shillings. This money was in lieu of the actual cloth the paupers used to get.

The women got red purses and bags were distributed, each contained £2 10 shillings in place of the flah and breakfast. Another bag of white one, contained the specially minted Maundy money, one penny piece as the Queen is years of age.

The Queen entered the abbey with her lady-in-waiting, the Countess of Euston, and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh. Both carried bouquets of spring flowers. The Queen wore a small black hat, black frock under a three-quarter-length black coat, and black shoes with open toes. Around her neck were three strands of pearls.

JAPANESE PEACE TREATY APPROVED BY PARLIAMENT

House Recesses Week For Easter Holiday

Ottawa, April 10 (CP)—Its eye on Easter holidays, the Commons in deadline style yesterday closed off Canada's state of war with Japan by approving ratification of the Japanese peace treaty.

Perhaps one fifth of the House was on hand as it gave unanimous approval to the treaty-after quali-fied support from opposition spokesman—to wind up for all practical purposes the war between Canada and Japan.

Shortly after the House then recessed until Monday, April 21, for the annual Easter vacation. Members had been sticking away homeward earlier and at times in the treaty debate there were few more on hand than the quorum needed for doing parliamentary business.

During the three-hour afternoon sitting, the Commons received with an announcement from the agriculture department that the government will support beef prices at about 21 cents a pound on the hoof until July 1 because of embargo on beef cattle trade from the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak.

The report of the MacQuarrie Commission on the Combines Act also was tabled by Trade Minister Garson, proposing revisions in the government's means of nipping the evil.

Defended by Fearson

The abbreviated Japanese-treaty debate, which began Tuesday, finished up parliament's share of the war with Japan. Canada as a whole will have concluded the hostilities formally when the embassy at Washington opens Feb. 28 and the lying documents at Washington in the next few days.

The treaty, supported generally but criticized on specific points by opposition members, was defended yesterday by External Affairs Minister Pearson, who at the same time renewed the government's opposition to a Pacific security pact at this time.

Farmer, Son Killed

Petrolia, April 10. (CP)—A farmer and his youngest son helping a neighbor blast stumps were killed yesterday when three sticks of dynamite exploded prematurely.

William Leys Gould, 52, and his son, Joseph, 15, were hurled many feet in different directions by the blast. The farm is in Enniskillen township, about 15 miles by 15 miles southeast of Sarnia.

The neighbor, Arthur Lennan, also was killed and the boy were packing the dynamite into a stump that was drilling a hole another 30 feet away. I get when lighted fuses are set off it generally figure on a three to five minute delay, so they thought it was safe to go into the hole before the blast.

"It couldn't have been more than a minute later, the dynamite let go."

Legislature Told Agreement Nearly Complete for Hydro To Buy Gatineau Power Site

Toronto, April 10 (CP)—The last major project the company operated in Ontario will soon be taken over by the Hydro Electric Power Commission.

The Legislature was told yesterday by Hon. G. H. Challies, Hydro vice-chairman, that an agreement is nearly complete to take over the Gatineau Power Company sites on the Ontario side of the lower Ottawa River, mainly at Chelsea and Ottawa.

Immediate utilization of the power from the company's Carillon plant involves merely hooking up transmission lines, he told the house question period.

All members representing ridings in Russell, Prescott and Glengarry counties, which will benefit primarily from the deal, hooked commended the government's action. Mrs. Rose Inglis declined to announce the purchase price.

The announcement came at the legislature drove toward prorogation, scheduled for 3 p.m. today. The House will sit all night if need to finish up last minute business. Royal assent to legislative bills will be given in the afternoon by Lieut.-Governor Breithaupt. The session opened on Feb. 14.

The legislature at its night sitting heard a number of speakers in the budget debate. One, Ar A National, Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation member, declared the province should pay three times its present payments toward municipal recreation. It produces, with a $75,000 ceiling instead of $20,000, Mrs. Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., age family of four persons now pays between $1,700 and $1,800 a year in taxes, of which $600 goes taxes to all levels of government. Mrs. Whitton spoke on the "cost of living" of standards of living.

Wants Centres Provided

He urged provision of the centres as a guard against juvenile delinquency.

Former goaltender of the Hamilton Tigers hockey team forsaw open-air artificial rinks in every community, so that the game never could be used for dancing and roller-skating.

Country boys should be given the same opportunity as their city cousins to learn hockey and capitalize on it.

He insisted that Guelph Biltmores had paid his way through Ontario Agriculture College. By playing amateur or "shamateur" young people could go through college and even get a "fancy expense account."

Asks Change of System

Highlights of the afternoon debate were a plea by Ray Myers (PC-Waterloo South) for a realignment of the system of financing county roads, and an attack by Aurele Chartrand (L-Ottawa East) on what he termed a "lack of economy and extravagance" of provincial government spending.

Mr. Myers said that in the county of Waterloo, residents of cities paid 42 per cent of the costs each toward upkeep of county roads while those in townships and rural municipalities connected with county government paid $3.34 each.

The town of Bespeler had raised two unsuccessful attempts to gain separation from the county, so that it would be on an equal status with cities, whose tax contribution to county roads were only one half that mill.

Bespeler had found that its 3,500 residents paid more for county roads than the 20,000 persons in the city of Galt.

Wants Ontario Matched

G. C. Wardrope (PC—Port Arthur) said the federal government should match dollar for dollar Ontario's move to pay for municipal taxes on government-owned property in the province.

He hailed the coming of the St. Lawrence seaway as a boon to the Lakehead. It would "enormously" help the pulp and paper industry, attract many other industries and in time would create a industrial district which would eventually bring 500 mills to the Lakehead.

S. F. Lavoine (PC—Waterloo North) paralleled Mr. Wardrope's request for municipal taxation of federal property. He said that all public utilities should pay municipal taxes.

Russia in Note to France Rejects U.N. Commission Idea

Paris, April 10 (AP) —Russia, in its reply to the big-three western powers, has rejected the idea of a United Nations commission to investigate the possibilities for a two-pronged attack on German elections and has proposed instead creation of a big-four commission.

The Soviet answer, made public by the French foreign office this afternoon, reaffirms the Soviet point of view that the U.N. charter original March 10 note calling for four-power talks on a German peace treaty.

The March 10 note proposed an immediate four-power meeting to write a peace treaty for all of Germany. The Russians promised to agree to a German Army, Navy and police force but ruled out all contribution to a German military might to the European army or the Atlantic defense pact nations, the note said.

On March 25, the western big three replied with a demand that Moscow allow free elections in all Germany before any four - power treaty could be discussed. The west insisted that the U.N. commission should be allowed to investigate the possibilities for such elections. It also rejected the Russian idea of barring a United Germany from entering into "associations with other countries."

Yesterday's reply delivered in Moscow last night, also stood firm in its insistence that the Oder-Neisse line is Germany's permanent eastern boundary.

The western powers asserted that this line, drawn up at the Potsdam conference, is only temporary, pending final settlement by a peace conference.

Charges Withdrawn

Montreal, April 10 (CP) —Charges of forcible entry against Rev. Ernest Ayrhart, well known in Montreal and northern Ontario, have been withdrawn at request for preliminary hearing April 18.

Today Jean a Philippe Toupin, merchant of L'Acadie in the Iberville, Que., district, the complainant, made a surprise visit to crimin-al assizes prosecutor and declared evidence to offer.

As a result, Judge Larde indicated withdrawal was in alternative but to order the charge withdrawn.

Cuts in Retail Price of Cheese Are Forecast

London, Ont., April 10 (CP)—Retail cuts in the price of cheddar cheese appeared likely next forecast today by leaders in the dairy industry.

The reaction followed yesterday's agreement at Belleville to a 31-cent-a-pound price for cheddar cheese.

Processed and cheddar cheese manufacturers, producers and dealers watched the Stratford cheese exchange where the first lots of the product went under the block at the new lower price.

"We can't tell exactly what will happen," said George Gould, secretary treasurer of London Cheese Products Ltd., but he forecast that consumers will be paying the Canadian consumption) would likely drop three cents a pound next week.

The cheddar cheese situation according to officials of the industry results from:

Embargoes on export milk cows to the United States as a result of the foot-and-mouth disease, and the large surplus of milk in Canada.

Canada, one of the best outlets for the product, has announced it has no dollars.

Lack of a floor price on the product. It was not known just how far down the price would go.

Inchon, Korea, April 10 (CP) — Elements of five units reached Korea today to begin relieving men of the Canadian army who have served in Korea for almost a year.

Army headquarters announced the program will be completed by the end of June.

Today's contingent, commanded by Major Hervey Chasse of Ottawa and Quebec City, embraced two companies from both the Royal 22nd Regiment and the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Royal Canadian 27th Field Ambulance and the 23rd Field Squadron, Royal Canadian Engineers.

The United States troopship Marine Phoenix after a 20-day trip from Seattle, Wash., hove to in the stream in the morning and under a warm afternoon sky the troops were ferried ashore.

Trucks, jeeps and later truck convoy took them to "Britannia Camp," a transformation of a vision staging camp near the front line, where the staff under Major Charles Brandon, of Brandon, Man., was ready to receive them.

Here the reinforcements will undergo a rigorous series of exercises to bring them to battle pitch during their three weeks at sea and test their preparedness for front line duty.

Perfect Voyage

Sgt. Robert Tunstall of Calgary and Pte. Lucien Lemieux of Valcartier, Que., said in an interview that, apart from one day of rain, the weather during the voyage had been perfect.

Lieut.-Col. Peter Bingham, commanding officer of the RCR, visited the troopship to welcome his men.

Lt.-Col. Louis Trudeau planned to meet his Van Doos at Britannia camp.

Although the Marine Phoenix also carried 1,000 United States soldiers divided most of the entertainment between the two. Chasse said, "Sgt. Bill Brown of Winnipeg organized two orchestras and provided a show every night.

Records Attest Massage Increases Chances of Living After Heart Stops

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York — (AP) — The chances of being brought back to life after the heart has stopped beating are taking a rapid upswing.

They now are six out of seven when the heart action is restored while on the surgeon's operating table can be saved if the doctor does not stop trying for at least 45 minutes after breathing has stopped. But they are far smaller if completely easy due to the growing knowledge and skill of surgeons.

Along with the better odds, there's another big change in the reports sometimes at the rate of one a month of people coming back from the dead. Before, it was a new knowledge about death itself. Anyone who stayed dead long we can stay "dead" under the old standard, and still recover.

Doctors always have known that people are not dead when the hearts stop, but that moment was for thousands of years the official death because nothing could be done to start a heart.

It was until 1901 or 1902 that the first human heart was started to again.

The records since tell the story best. In 50 years, up to this February, there are 1,000 records of 350 cases. Of these 112 lived and 238 died. This is only one in three brought to life, but it covers an entire half century, particularly the beginning when skill was not so widespread and when chest transfusions and heart stimulating drugs were not as well known.

Within the last 15 years it was believed that if the doctor did not start within five minutes after "death" there was danger of irreparable harm to brains, because nerve tissue is the first to die.

But the records show a few do live after as long as 45 minutes, in which the patient was brought back from death, with little or no harm. Dr. Frank Cole, Lincoln, Neb., surgeon who compiled this record, told the American Medical Association's annals of surgery today.

"Only three cases were found in which there were slight residual effects. It may be said that almost invariably a patient who survives cardiac arrest (heart beat stopping) recovers completely."

Massage — squeezing with the hand — has become the best treatment. Electric shock and other methods, which some today may replace the surgeon's hand.

Beef Price Support, Marketing Control Planned by Govt.

25 Cents Pound for Good Quality Steers Price Set

Ottawa, April 10 (CP)—The federal government yesterday slipped a floor under beef prices to help the shaky livestock industry but added a condition.

Price support of 25 cents a pound for good quality steers at Toronto was contingent on the provinces giving the federal government a hand in marketing. The program was aimed at stabilizing the industry, knocked off balance when foot-and-mouth disease in southern Saskatchewan brought provincial embargoes on livestock movement.

Although the plan was meant to bring a quick end to the marketing restrictions, British Columbia's ban on southern Alberta meat and livestock will stay on until next week.

At Victoria, Harry Bowman, B.C. agriculture minister, said the ban won't be changed until after a meeting here next Tuesday of federal-provincial market handling.

The federal move was announced in the commons by Robert McCubbin, parliamentary assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner. He said a special committee to manage marketing will be set up with the provinces as advisers.

The idea will be to channel surplus meats to markets where there may be a shortage.

The government will agree to buy up whatever beef the packers can't sell at the fixed price. Little or no surplus is expected if farmers hold back their stock from market. But in case one develops, the government is looking for foreign outlets.

Continues Until July 1.

The support price will continue until July 1 when it will go on a month-to-month basis. Some form of support will continue until Oct. 31, 1953, when it is expected to give their business to Iranian insurance companies.

Police Probing Attempt to Fire Army Building

Kingston, April 10 (CP) —A suspected attempt to set fire to an army administration building at nearby Barriefield camp has been attached a full-scale police investigation.

MUSKRAT SEASON GOOD IN SOUTHERN PART OF COUNTY

Good catches of muskrat are reported by trappers operating in the southern areas of the Bay of Quinte district, but in the northern sections the catch is said to be low due to ice and cold weather. Good weather has also delayed the smelt run usually well under way at this time of the year.

COOL WEATHER DELAYS PICKEREL RUN IN MOIRA R.

Cool weather and low water temperatures have apparently delayed pickerel spawning activity and only a few fish were seen "running" on local streams this week.

Lands and Forest officials state that it is hoped between 60 and 70 million pickerel eggs, ready for ova from spawn - taking operations which will be planted in the Bay of Quinte and inland lakes.

Planting of remaining whitefish fry, Restoration three and one half million, will be completed this week in Lake Ontario.

PICTON YACHTSMAN MAKING WAY HOME ALONG COAST

With lashed-to-the-mast experience gained in the Bay of Quinte, Pubiow, Picton yachting enthusiast, is on his way north from Florida at the helm of his 22 foot sailboat.

Pubiow is making his way in easy stages via the inland water route after encountering extremely heavy weather during the trip up the southeast coast. Waves and winds which forced that Pubiow was forced to tie himself to the mast, he said.

He is leaving his yacht at Annapolis until navigation is clear in this area when he will finish his journey to Picton.

ATTEMPTS MADE TO ENTER TWO STORE PREMISES

What were believede to hav been two attempted break-ins were reported to Police and city police this morning. Back windows were broken out at Dafoe's Dye Works station and at Clapp's Service Station, adjoining business places on Front Street.

Police said that entry could have been made in Dafoe's but nothing was reported missing by the proprietor. At the other place of business the window broken was too small to permit a person to get into the premises, it was stated.

Inspector Appeals to Motorists To Drive Carefully Over Weekend

An appeal to the motoring public to drive safely over the forthcoming Easter weekend and make the Bay of Quinte district accident free for the holiday was issued this morning by Inspector A. McDougall of the Ontario Provincial Police.

"During Christmas and New Years we had the co-operation of the motorists in driving safely and we again appeal for that co-operation," said the inspector. "Without the co-operation of the public the police can do nothing."

"Drive safely— and keep your eyes on the road" is a good motto to remember at all times when driving, according to the inspector. He observed that drivers had been taking their eyes off the road and looking into cars as they moved them on the highway.

The result in cases in many instances their car wanders and a collision is the inevitable result. "This practice is the cause of many accidents," he pointed out.

The inspector went on to ask that motorists keep on the watch for children, especially during the next week, when schools close for the school and playing on the streets.

In any event, highway traffic police will be out in full force during the holiday and will enforce traffic regulations to the limit in an effort to keep down accidents. "There will be no warnings," he stressed.

Residents Asked To File Income Returns Quickly

Don't look now, but the government wants to give you some money. And there's a simple way of finding out.

Fill you do is make out your income tax return, and file it with the district office. If you are one of the two of three Canadian taxpayers, who are entitled to rebate, the sooner you make out your return and file it, the quicker you will get your money back.

Be sure you make all the necessary deductions. Read the return carefully, for recent amendments to the Income Tax Act have resulted in some new ones.

Medical expenses is an important item. But remember only medical expenses for 1951 must exceed four per cent of your income. And if you are entitled to deductions for medical bills, be sure and attach the bills to your return.

Other deductions include payments to pension schemes, and for the first time dues paid to trade unions are also deductible. Attach your certificate in this case. Then there's the regular exemptions for children. $150 for a child qualifying for family allowance, and $400 for one not qualified. It husband and wife each earn over $1,000 a year, they can be taxed as single persons, No person can be claimed as a dependent if his or her income exceeds $500 per year

By filling your return immediately or as soon as possible you will not only be doing yourself a favor but also facilitating the work of busy staff of the Income Tax Office, the bugbear of these people is the last-minute-eleventh-hour procrastinator who dashes to the office with minutes to go to the deadline.

The job has to be done sooner or later if you don't want to pay extra in default penalties, so why put off doing it and do it now.

The income tax people will love you for it.

Quinte Amateur Radio Club Holds Auction

Last evening the Quinte Amateur Radio Club held its regular monthly meeting at the Air Force Association club rooms, Front Street, with a fine representation of members present from Trenton, Marmora, Campbellford, Lake six members from the Kingston Radio Club and locals.

Two films, kindly sought by Alex Vellman, R. C. A. F. Trenton, were shown, dealing with "Civil Defence" in Syracuse, which apparently is a well organized city, with its simulated bombing, radio control, police, fire amateurs, taxis and utility company taking over when power failed.

The second film, "How to Survive in the Arctic When Power Is Down," depicted what to do while awaiting rescue.

Following the films, an auction sale of radio parts with spirited bidding was ably conducted by the able auctioneers, Harold Carruthers and Charles Young.

Refreshments and a "rag-chew" ended the meeting.

Three Civil Defence workers were present, Chris Leggat, W. Wells and Leighton Thompson, all of this city.

The high power transmitting tube was won by Leighton Thompson and the speaker by Frank Verity.

Building Outlook Bright This Year Says Official

Despite a slight recession in residential and commercial building, the construction outlook for this year is bright, according to J. M. Soules, president of the Ontario General Contractors' Association.

Mr. Soules spoke to members of the Belleville Builders' Exchange at their monthly meeting Tuesday evening.

"It is my conviction," he said, "that the outlook for this year is bright. The amount of work out for tender, plus that in the architects' offices which will be out for tender soon, promises that 1952 will equal or exceed the record billion dollar volume achieved by the Ontario construction industry in 1951."

He said, however, there was a responsibility for all phases of the trade—general contractor, sub contractor, supplier, manufacturer and labour—to hold the line in fighting mounting costs.

"Ontario contractors have paid and are paying, the highest wages in the country," he said.

Mr. Soules said there were increasing signs, including the recently announced plans of General Motors Corporation, that industry is turning its attention to a very promising belt along the north shore of Lake Ontario stretching eastward from Toronto.

With the St. Lawrence seaway in sight, industry will have many good reasons to exploit the strategic positions of municipalities along the lake front between Kingston and Toronto.

Charles A. Wilson, president of the local exchange presided over the meeting.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police did not have to look far for one drunk last night. The man, very obviously under the influence of liquor was loitering around the verandah of the police station and the officer in charge gave him the comforts of a cell for the night.

An East Bridge street woman complained that someone had helped themselves to her car and had taken it from the postoffice parking lot and after driving it some distance and apparently turning it over on its top, returned it to the lot.

The woman reported the car had been driven 75 miles and was damaged about the top when returned.

City firemen were called to 274 George Street where electric wiring was reported giving trouble No damage was reported.

POLICE COURT

Highway traffic officers are cracking down on motorists who persist in burning up the highway, it was noted today on county magistrate's court with at least half a dozen drivers being charged with speeding.

All but one of the drivers charged paid a fine of court paying fines and costs of $8, while one motorist failed to answer when his name was called.

Robert Mondeville and Joseph McKeown, two city youths were acquitted of charges of vagrancy. The boys were picked up by police at the east end of the city several days ago and were charged when they could not give a good account of themselves.

Alvin Cox, Point Anne, was convicted on a charge of wilful damage and was given a year's suspended sentence.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 10 — (CP) — Stock market prices eased from moderate mid-session gains today in early afternoon dealings.

Volume for the first three hours was 2,636,000 shares.

Manufacturing companies, refining oils and retail stores posted a scattered list of advances to farm industrials' strongest sections. Banks and textiles also edged upward but papers, liquors, foods, utilities and constructions slipped.

Refining oils showed a majority of gains. Ajax Petroleum, Anaon, Calvan Consolidated, Canadian Atlantic, Central-Leduc, Home Oil, Pacific Petroleum, Okalta and General Petroleum pushed upward. Britalta dipped sharply.

Base metals were mixed as Eureka, MacDonald, Opemiska and Cassiar strengthened while International Nickel, Noranda and Ascot weakened.

Pair Injured As Motorcycle Crashes House

Trenton (Special) — Two teen-aged motorcyclists, who suffered head injuries when their bike ploughed into a verandah at 173 Front Street yesterday were reported today to have had a good night in hospital. At first it was believed that they had been hurt seriously.

Wayne McCarron, 17, of 125 Victoria Avenue, and Robert Munroe, 16, of 100 Division Street, were following a truck along Front Street on their motor bike. The truck driven by James Parkhurst, 91 Cannilton Road Belleville, with Abraham Sonnberg as a passenger, turned to the left to enter the scrap metal yard and the motorcycle, in attempting to pass around the truck, hit it and veered off into the verandah. The house was damaged to the extent of $40, while the motorcycle will need $50 worth of repairs.

PIERCE IMPROVING

Bailiff Oscar W. Pierce, stricken suddenly on Tuesday, showed an improvement yesterday and spent a fair night according to a hospital authority today.

CHILD ESCAPES NARROWLY

More than a ton of weight passed over two and a half year old Dennis Herrington's body at Hilton yesterday without hurting the little boy noticeably.

Today, young Herrington is in the Trenton Memorial Hospital standing up yelling and crying, which indicates he's not too sick, superintendent Cora Droppo reported.

The lad was riding on a wagon filled with gravel and drawn by a tractor driven by his father, Ezil Herrington, a Hilton farmer, when he fell under the wagon and the back wheel passed over him.

An X-ray examination at the hospital here showed that there were no bones broken or any internal injuries indicated. The little boy has several abrasions on his body where the wheel cut him.

Belle Theatre To be Remodelled, Cost $100,000

Alterations designed to completely modernize the theatre and costing an estimated $100,000 will get underway soon at the Belle Theatre, it was announced today by George Forlan, theatre manager. General contractor for the alterational job is the J. E. Copeland Company Ltd., Ottawa.

Preliminary work will be underway early next week on enlarging the ladies' and men's rest rooms and on the installation of air conditioning equipment. Later the theatre will be closed for about a month, while the theatre is completely redecorated. Floor coverings will be replaced throughout and the very latest in seats will be installed.

To make way for a larger ladies' powder room the upstairs manager's office will be utilized. The candy shop adjoining the theatre entrance will be discontinued and in this space will go the manager's office which will be moved downstairs.

Plans also call for installation of a completely new marquee that will dress up the entrance to conform with recently-built theatres. The ticket office will be moved out to the street, although an inside ticket office will be retained for use during inclement weather.

Completing the renovation will be the installation of new projection and sound equipment.

Curling Season Opens at Arena Next Thursday

Final arrangements have been made to open the first curling season in this city in many years. With the assistance of the Kingston Curling Club, stones and all equipment to carry out the season have been obtained and curling will commence in the Memorial Arena on the night of Thursday, April 17, and continue until the end of the month.

It is the intention of the committee to mark and paint the rings Wednesday afternoon and the help of a number of the members is urgently requested. The Kingston Club is sending up its icemaker and a member of the club to supervise the marking. A lot of work has been accomplished and the president, W. G. Gault and Don MacKinnon, the secretary are to be congratulated on the effort being put forth to bring this popular pastime back to Belleville. Probably the operation of the club will not be as smooth as it could be wished for but the manager is there and everything possible will be done to make the short season a success.

The committee appreciates the wonderful help that has been given by district curling clubs and local citizens. Mr. Morley Smith, who journeys to Kingston every day has kindly consented to transport the forty set of stones and all the equipment needed free of charge, while a Toronto club has offered a number of worn brooms, which can be used this year.

The club has at the present time within eleven members, which will pay for the cost of the Arena but there are a great number, who have signified their intention to curl. It would assist the committee greatly if those people would forward their entry fee to Mr. D. I. MacKinnon at the Court House immediately. All old curlers and there are many in the city and district, are invited to come out and have a 'go' at this popular sport and there will be enough outside competition to make the season a success.

It is to be hoped that as many as possible will come to the Arena next Wednesday afternoon, so that all preparatory work can be done and curling will be uninterrupted from Thursday night till the end of the month. It is a great sport and wonderful recreation.

PLAINFIELD MAN WINS WARDROBE

J. W. Skelly of Plainfield was the winner of the Easter wardrobe drawn for at the McCarthy Theatre last night, Ben Vanover, president of the Kinsmen's Club, announced today. The money that has been derived from this draw, will be used to assist in the club's welfare work in the city.

Archdeacon Arthur Smith Mentioned As Possible Successor to Bishop

The Synod of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario will elect a bishop next month for the first time in twenty years.

The election is made necessary through the retirement of the Most Rev. John Lyons almost exactly 20 years after his consecration on March 29th, 1932.

The special synod meeting to elect a new bishop has been called for May 1st. The date was set by the Right Rev. R. J. Renison, bishop of Moosonee, senior bishop of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, who will preside.

Considerable Speculation

There is considerable speculation on whom the synod will select as its sixth bishop of Ontario. One of those mentioned has already been eliminated, He is the Rt. Rev. George Calvert, former Dean of Victoria. His election as bishop of Calgary on Feb. 20 makes it unlikely he will be chosen bishop of Ontario.

Among those in the diocese who are being mentioned as possible choices are the Very Rev. Brierley Browne, dean of Ontario, Kingston and the Ven. Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas Church here.

Possible choices from outside the diocese are the Rt. Rev. William Wright, bishop of Algoma since 1944; the Rev. N. R. Burke, rector of Christ Church, Toronto and the Rev. T. J. Finley, rector of St. John's Church, Ottawa.

The new bishop will be consecrated in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, as the sixth bishop of Ontario, successor to the Most Rev. John Lyons (1932-1952), the Rt. Rev. Charles Allen Seagar (1926-1932), the Rt. Rev Edward John Bidwell, coadjutor bishop from 1913 to 1917 and bishop of Ontario (1917-1926), the Rt. Rev. William Lennox Mills, coadjutor from 1900 to 1901 and the Most Rev. John Travers Lewis (1863-1901).

THE HOUSE THAT GUNPOWDER BUILT

In spite of sharply increasing taxation in recent decades, there are still some vast accumulations of capital in the world. One such accumulation is in the hands of the du Pont family of Delaware. The du Ponts are probably the richest family in the United States, if not in the world.

Although most of them live in and around Delaware, the du Ponts make, in addition to the explosives with which their name is most frequently associated, products of peace in eighty plants in twenty-six states. Altogether, they make 10,000 products.

In addition to the industries which they own outright, the du Ponts own shares in many other concerns, in some instances substantial blocks of shares. Frequently, they are accused of seeking control of other companies for the benefit of their own.

Many times, the du Ponts have been the target of anti-trust prosecutions. As far back as 1890, they were accused by the U.S. government, in one such anti-trust prosecution, of controlling 74 per cent of all black powder manufacturing, 72 per cent of all dynamite, 64 per cent of all smokeless sporting powder, and 100 per cent of all the smokeless military powder produced by civilians in the United States. All this, in addition to their numerous non-explosive enterprises.

The founder of the family was Pierre Samuel du Pont de Nemours, a French nobleman who came to America in 1800 and who was a friend of Thomas Jefferson, the fourth and one of the most famous of the presidents of the United States. The foundation of the du Pont fortune was made by Pierre du Pont's son, Irenee, who, at Jefferson's suggestion, built a factory for the manufacture of gunpowder in Delaware. The elder du Pont was fatally injured in an explosion in his son's factory.

In at least one instance, the du Ponts and their superskill in making explosives played an important role in the history of the United States. It was the plentiful and high quality supply of powder which the du Ponts enabled the Northern armies to beat down the less well-supplied Confederate rebels during the American Civil War.

As stated previously, the du Ponts have often been prosecuted under anti-trust laws, but have particularly unpopular with the late President F. D. Roosevelt, who called them "Princes of Privilege," and did what he could to make them uncomfortable. As recently as 1949, they were the defendants in an anti-trust prosecution.

The New York Herald Tribune article from which we are deriving our information does not even attempt to estimate the total wealth of the du Ponts, but it is probably up there in the hundreds of millions; it is a certainty that none of them is likely to have to call upon the welfare state for assistance in his old age.

INFORMATION AWAITED

Some years ago, there was a rumpus in Ottawa about immigration and emigration. The cause of the rumpus was that, while the immigration department authorities were able to quote reams of figures about the number of immigrants entering Canada, they were unable, when asked to do so, to state how many Canadians were emigrating to the United States. Finally, those who wanted information about emigration from Canada were given the figures — from Washington.

Well, as some wise man said, history repeats itself in broad outline, although not in detail. Several weeks ago, we were told that the foot and mouth disease among the cattle of southern Saskatchewan had "apparently" been eradicated and that an announcement that it had been eradicated would be made in "about ten days." A period of more than "about ten days" has elapsed, but the Canadian authorities have remained silent about what is going on in connection with foot and mouth disease.

However, a Canadian Press dispatch from Washington on Saturday last said that Dr. Francis J. Mulhern, an expert on foot and mouth disease, "has been sent to Canada to help that country with its program for the eradication of foot and mouth disease among cattle."

U.S. Agricultural Secretary Charles Brannan identified Dr. Mulhern as the man who had been sent to Mexico some years ago in charge of efforts to stamp out an outbreak of foot and mouth disease there. Furthermore, the Associated Press quoted Mr. Brannan as stating that Dr. Mulhern had been sent to Canada at the request of the Canadian government. The Associated Press further enlightens us that the U.S. Department of Agriculture "has strengthened inspection and quarantine regulations at the Canadian border."

Meanwhile, connected with the livestock industry in Canada will await as patiently as they can authentic information as to whether foot and mouth disease has or has not been eradicated in Canada.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

April 10th., 1932

Mr. Cyril H. McBride, grocer at the corner of Charles Street and Victoria Avenue, was astonished to observe a white robin with a vivid red splash on its breast, sitting calmly upon a branch of a tree near his store yesterday afternoon. The bird remained there for nearly all the afternoon and was seen by many other residents in the neighborhood. A white robin is a rare bird and old timers who know their birds state that they do not know of such a specimen ever being seen here before.

Mr. Frederick S. Allen was the guest of honor at a happy surprise birthday party arranged for him by his daughter, Mrs. Carl Black at her home on William Street on Saturday night of April 8th, when Mr. Allen observed the 84th anniversary of his birth and in the evening he was entertained at a theatre party. Many friends have extended to Mr. Allen congratulations and best wishes.

Messrs. Adams and Edie, grocers at the corner of Albert and Queen Streets, have sold their building and business to Mr. F. W. Marmer and he has taken possession.

Eggs sold on the market today at twelve cents to fourteen cents per dozen; butter brought 25 cents per pound; chickens 75 cents each and up; broilers 51 cents; ducks 90 cents; geese 25 cents per pound.

Miss M. Parkham of Lindsay has accepted a position with the Canadian Department Store in this city.

Mr. John B. Harker has returned home from Hamilton where he visited his son, Mr. Russell Harker.

Mrs. C. A. Peck and Mr. Reginald Peck, Bridge Street, have returned after spending the past week with friends in Toronto and Hamilton.

30 YEARS AGO

The girls of the Sunbeam Class and the C.G.I.T. gave a concert at the Children's Shelter yesterday evening which was much enjoyed. Miss Peck directed the program; Mr. Alec Gordon was accompanist and Miss Elsie Jackson presided.

Many soccer players were out for practice yesterday and the boys are getting in good condition.

The officers of the Soccer League are as follows: Hon. President, Mayor Charles Hanna; President, William Harvey; Vice President, Norman Maley; Secretary, Frank Walsh; Treasurer, W. E. Scott.

Mr. Donald Wessels of Toronto will spend Easter here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Wessels, Lewis Street.

40 YEARS AGO

At the first meeting of the Belleville Curling Club four new factories had chosen to board as operatives were commenced only a few days ago. Five factories boarded, 168 boxes of white cheese and they were sold to J. A. Kerr and M. Bird at 13 1-8 cents. At the first meeting of the Board last year the price was 11 3-8.

Mr. Harry Ketcheson has been appointed by the Provincial Government as expert judge of horses at various fairs this coming fall. Mr. and Mrs. not new to Mr. Ketcheson as he previously filled the same position and his judging gave general satisfaction.

Mr. W. Wallace will leave shortly for Victoria, B. C.

At a meeting of the civic committee the following were present: Mayor R. J. Graham, Aldermen McFee, Panter, Sinclair, Crowe, Ellsworth, Price, Pope, Sulman and Wills. OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

MOSTLY AGAINST

And here's a member of a fraternity at the University of British Columbia who says I'm all wrong in my mild protest against discrimination in such black list societies and he wants to "educate" me.

Shucks, he says, it isn't our fault. They're the fault of the fraternal brethren in the southern United States.

"Your attack is based on ignorance and is grossly exaggerated," P. J. G. writes. "Although I am a member of a fraternity with a 'discrimination' clause in its constitution I am opposed, like every other member of our chapter.

"For the past two decades this clause has come up at our national conventions. Those in favor of abolishing it have always been defeated because of the strength of the chapters in the southern United States where racial discrimination is an enormous problem.

"Every year they have defeated the motion to abolish the clause by a gradually diminishing majority. We hope [illegible] in the western chapters will have the majority needed to pass the motion, maybe this year. Until then the best thing for us to do is to fight it."

Of course an excellent way to avoid racial discrimination in a fraternity (or in the Ku Klux Klan), dear P.J.G. would either be to get the hell out of it.

A veritable avalanche of mail this past week from the Vancouver Province.

I scan this literature very closely in the hope that some day there'll be a tiny suggestion that maybe Russia is just a little bit misunderstood.

But, no. In the eyes of the boys who run this giant sheet in the United States alone who block the way. Yet there are still some misguided souls here who support this gang on the theory that anything for peace is worth while.

The pamphlets reach me close to hysteria in the matter of the west re-arming Germany, now that Russia has promised the Germans an army of their own (ex-Nazis and all) I am eagerly awaiting the "peace boys' reaction.

A reader sends me along a clipping of an editorial in the Rossland Miner, one of the better weekly papers of the province. The editorial is headed, "Irresponsible Columnist." Guess who?

The Miner's editor is angry at me (a) because I suggested that commercial radio, owned by the advertiser, is a dangerous threat to freedom of speech and (b) because I attacked Sun's editorials on the radio situation.

"Mr. Scott was able to speak his piece only because we have a free press," the editorial says, "and our press is free because, like commercial radio stations, it is financially self-supporting and free of advertising."

Which, of course, is poppycock. The advertiser, advertises because it sells goods that way. Editorial men have always tried to resist the pressure. You need no advertising gelt to have a free press, brother. You need only an opinion and a mimeograph machine.

Radio is a horse of another color. The advertiser in commercial radio does not only buy time for his sales talks—he buys the time that is the control of the medium.

If the advertisers' dollar was the reason I'm able to "speak my piece," then I'd have been shut up long, long ago.

Had a letter awhile back from a place called Soinlula, B.C. and admitted that it was a new one on me. Now I've a letter from Rev. T. R. Horner, a Baptist hamlet (pronounced So-in-tula), and it sounds like quite a town.

Well, Wayne writes, Soinlula is in Matsqui, one of the northern end of Vancouver Island, and, now for last, celebrated its Golden Jubilee. The town's name comes from the Finnish word "Soinlula" — "In" on the end means "place of."

It was established in 1901 as a Finnish Agricultural colony under an agreement with Edward VII, but things were too tough and the colony broke up in 1903. Those who stayed were the first Finnish settlers in Canada and things today are prospering.

Population is about 90 per cent of them of Finnish origin, and they claim the oldest and most credible Co-operative organization in Canada with a turnover last year of $135,000. There are only four miles of dirt road in Soinlula, and 32 automobiles.

Soinlula, Wayne says, has no police department, no crime. Disputes are settled by a public meeting of citizens, and one bricklayer, Willie Ahola, who has been in business since 1902, and still rides his bicycle to work at the age of 70.

Soinlula has a fine little town, Wayne, and "Terve tulos" to you, too, whatever it means.

My thanks to Reeve M. E. Sowden of North Vancouver, to Dale of Pitt Meadows, and to a great many others for your recent letters. I'd like to acknowledge them all, but I'm on this time as my Irish uncle used to say.

TRICK SPECIALISTS VERSUS REAL DOCTORS

That American medicine has made vast strides in the past century is sufficiently evidenced by the mention of anesthesia, antisepsis and asepsis, insulin.

Insulin. Well, boys, hang onto your hats. Here we go again.

The Code of Medical Ethics, originally written and promulgated by the American Medical Association and still nominally sponsored by the organization, with minor alterations and as the Principles of Medical Ethics rather than the Code (for some obscure reason), included this provision:

Sec. 5, Article 1, Chap. III—It is unprofessional to receive remuneration from patients or copyrights on surgical instruments, appliances, medicines, foods, methods . . .

But the American Medical Association itself sanctioned and defended the patenting of insulin by subterfuges characteristic of the commercial spirit which rules organized medicine today.

It is true that most of the remuneration from the patenting of insulin — which of course made insulin more costly for the hundreds of thousands of diabetics who had to have it — were given to education and research, and that fact, the AMA implied, took the curse off the patenting of insulin.

The other day a news item told of the donation of a million for education and research by nostrum vendor and manufacturer as his will that two dollars out of every three dollars profit made by his nostrums business should go to education and research forever, or something like that. Does this philanthropic gesture justify the exaction of such huge profits from the sucker public or does it make respectable the acceptance of such money for medical research or education if the nostrum in question has been branded as dangerous or harmful by the American Medical Association?

The steadily lowering status of general practice and the family physician since the AMA went commercial is largely the fault of the general practitioners — the few who are left — themselves. They just carry on and preserve a dignified silence while the trick specialists, who now monopolize practice, practically grab off whatever they want, by and with the approval of the AMA.

You dumb family doctors ought to take a gander at the volume of newspaper propaganda distributed throughout the country by the AMA. Some of it inadvertently comes to me, and I can tell you it makes other stuff seem shoddy.

You family doctors err in your tacit acceptance of the "clinic" racket by which the trick specialists lure your gullible patients.

You play the trick specialists' game, against your own best interest, when you go along with the practice of delivering obstetric patients in an institution instead of attending them at home.

You can't blame the public for what is largely the fault of family doctor as an institution. The poor old duffer is asking for it.

Longevity a Vascular Question

Please send pamphlet Longevity in a Vascular Question spoken of in your column recently. — (R.C.V.)

Answer — I quoted that from Osler, in an article about nutrition when I was discriminating between young folks and old folks.

Aren't We All

We always enjoy your downto-earth advice, and particularly the way you tell the "geeks" what for. We admit we sometimes find ourselves among them . . . — (A.D.F.)

Answer — So do I, about a great many things outside of my own little province. Thank you for your pleasant letter.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FLESH AND BLOOD

The Bible tells us that flesh and blood shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

And yet every part of Scripture makes plain to us the importance of flesh and blood and its relationship with the unseen world of the spirit. The Bible does not teach that flesh and spirit are contradictory one to the other; rather they are complementary. And flesh is the implement of the spirit. They only become evil when one is to the other if the sinful will of man makes them go.

Jesus took on human flesh—that is, assumed our humanity. And we are told that He will retain that humanity along with His divine nature throughout eternity.

On the cross He was betrayed. Jesus took bread, signifying His flesh and wine, signifying His blood, and sacrificed them to be an everlasting sacrament, sign, and pledge between Him and His followers for all time. By doing this, He showed the intimate connection which flesh and blood have with the spirit — His flesh and blood are not flesh and blood.

Let us remember that our bodies are the temples of God's Holy Spirit. Our Lord's physical existence was meaningful far beyond our ability to comprehend; and our physical existence is the same.

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the lads who lost a leg in the war made a right move in the meanest time of the year for him. Winter presents numerous physical perils and psychological burden on him that he has to bear.

"Walking!" he says. "Holy smoke! how I would love to just get out from the cabin and ramble out the front door and up the street without any thought in mind. Up to the corner, and along the main street, looking in the shop windows.

"Hardware store windows. Big coils of new garden hose. Lawn sprinklers. Handy bags of fertilizer. Trowels, forks, spades. The spades have a turned-over edge for you to put your foot on when digging.

"Stationery store windows. Bats balls, deckers, gloves. Aw, I'm the last man to want to go running around the vacant lots or the park. Not me.

"Gent's furnishings. Ties, wow! Sport shirts. Slacks. The kind of spring clothes a fellow wants to get around at his leisure, now that the days are opening up.

"Cigar stores, magazine stands, service station windows full of all kinds of car gadgets. Bottles and tins of cures for leaky radiators. Oh, I could go on for hours about it. Nobody knows how fascinating a shopping street can be to a man, even, eight o'clock in the evening, except those who can't go and look at it, any time they like.

"Walking! Holy smoke! If people only realized what a gift they have got! But rather than walk around the corner to post a letter, they get in the car.

"Walking! Holy smoke!"

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

REVERENCE FOR LIFE

There is nothing in this life that is more sacred than life itself. Therefore there should be within every human being an abiding reverence for life — never holding it cheap or of little account. Shakespeare's Hamlet, meditating upon this thought exclaimed: — "What a piece of work is a man!"

The Biblical Moses must have had this same thought in mind when he included in one of his Ten Commandments, "Thou shalt not kill." The reading of our newspapers and the accounts of all our trials in courts, however, still remind us of the cheapness of God's greatest creation — Man. And we call it "sport" just to kill a beautiful animal or bird—for the fun of it.

"Live and let live" is something that should be instilled in the importance and sacredness of all life, whether man, beast or bird. The greatest enemy of a reverence for life is war. The grin of the Devil is upon the face of all mankind who advocate or encourage war. What a waste of man is war, as exclaimed Galsworthy in one of his beautiful poems.

As a boy I once listened to a great lecturer. I have forgotten everything he said but one line that has come to me again and again. It was this: "It is amazing business starting a soul voyaging toward eternity!" How very beautiful life can be when we pick up on it with respect and reverence.

All through the teachings of Christ you will note this great reverence for life — even to the flowers of the field. What a sight it is to see a child pluck the simplest flower. Associated with its beauty and fragrance, and carry it around in its dainty hands.

What else could our scientists have in mind but a great reverence for life, as they progress step by step, to the discovery of ways of saving and conquering destructive diseases? What a debt we all owe to them. What a thrill must accrue to them for their discoveries and unselfish gifts to humanity.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Our Debt to Doubters

By ROY L. SMITH

It has been the habit of religious people through many generations to speak contemptuously of those who doubt, as though it were a sin to ask questions.

In contrast to this attitude there is the saying of the Old Testament prophet, "Come, now, let us reason together."

Good religion has nothing to hide; the honest questioner is a welcome guest at faith's fireside. As a matter of fact, we are all profoundly indebted to the doubters.

Doubting Thomases

The man who finds it difficult to believe some of the great things of religion is often referred to as a "doubting Thomas," as though the disciple who insisted upon proving the facts was, somehow just a little inferior to those who believed without proving.

This week's Sunday School lesson is a record of the respectful way Jesus treated an honest doubter, such as Thomas was.

The Scripture may represent Thomas as a gloomy sort of individual who always found it difficult to believe good news, but certainly does not describe him as though he were a sinner.

Some of the greatest things we know were first proved to be true by doubting Thomases — by people who refused to believe the old interpretations and set out to find answers which would stand the test of time.

Some Inspiring Doubters

Everyone — almost everyone, at least — had always believed that the sun went around the earth until Copernicus doubted the theory, and gave us a new explanation of creation.

The uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 13: "Thomas and the Risen Lord," John II: 14-16; 14:1-6; 20:24-29.

Everyone — almost everyone, at least — had always believed the earth was flat and that one would sail out to the edge and fall off, if he went too far. Then Columbus doubted the theory and brought back an entirely new hemisphere.

Everyone — almost everyone, at least — believed that illness was a result of the whim of God. Then Louis Pasteur doubted and proceeded to prove the theory of the microbic origin of disease and the conquest of hundreds of ailments followed immediately.

Everyone — almost everyone, at least — believed in the divine right of kings, but the American founders and the writers of Magna Charta doubted that pernicious theory and brought forth upon this planet a new doctrine which made the people the king.

The history of every science is a record of the thrilling doubts of inspired men who opened up new doors of hope and life.

Our Debt to Thomas

Thomas, the disciple, seems to have been a dour sort of person who found it difficult to believe the best. But history shows that he was a courageous man, and his final death at the hands of a swordsman, proves that in spite of his doubts he was able to maintain a conviction.

Without Thomas' doubts, and the dispelling thereof, the whole Christian movement would have lost a great certainty. The disciple who insisted upon proof — and good religion never fears such a doubter — dug up evidence which has supported timid souls through all the centuries since.

As a great Christian of a generation ago once said, "Faith that will go to pieces on a fact is not faith, but superstition."

The Christian has but one question to ask, "Is it true?" If anything can be proved to be true, then it belongs to the Christian who worships a God of truth.

Believes Chance Of Germ Warfare Is Exaggerated

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 10. (CP)—Germ warfare, the great bugaboo of modern man, is vastly over-rated, says Dr. G. D. W. Cameron, federal deputy minister of Health.

There isn't a person in the world, say the prominent Canadian medical authority, who can pull the trigger on an epidemic that would cause mass destruction of humanity.

"There may be ways to cause a local epidemic, but we've already worked out strong defences. These are the hospitals, doctors and public health inspectors in every major centre in Canada."

The 62-year-old doctor, giving his personal views on the prospects of bacteriological warfare, said in an interview that there are many diseases and germs loose in the world, but their power to take root and spread in this country has been diminished by modern science.

The big killers included malaria, tuberculosis, yellow fever, typhus and cholera. Some of them were prevalent in tropical climates and thus Canada was spared by her tougher weather.

"And in any case, let's consider just how the enemy would fet loose with a germ attack," said Dr. Cameron.

"Perhaps he would try a bomb, but the barrel of the bomb might destroy the germs. They're delicate creatures. He might try to spray Canadians from aircraft, but he would have to be very accurate. The enemy almost would need to come up from behind the victim and spray him with an atomizer before he was sure the disease had made contact."

There might be cases where enemy saboteurs might attempt to spread disease through heavily-populated communities, but again the chance of success was remote.

"Someone might want to spread typhoid in a city. But he first would have to wreck the city's filtration plant and chlorine pump. What chances would he have of doing this without being detected?"

"A saboteur might plan to infect school children while they were in school. But what means would be used? Suppose he tries to blow germs up a school ventilation system. How many school children would become ill? Perhaps some, but certainly not all."

Medical authorities in Canada feared outbreaks of smallpox. But Dr. Cameron noted that even with a germ loose in the world, there were relatively few cases reported in Canada.

"No, I don't believe there is anyone in the world who knows how to start a real epidemic."

But, of course, added Dr. Cameron, it pays to keep alert. There were many "unknowns" about germs. It always was possible that someone might find something new, but so far germ warfare was a problem for the theorists and not the practical physician.

Spring Break-Up Halts Transfer Of Mine Town Over Northern Trails

Lynn Lake, Man., April 10 — (CP)—Day and night, throughout the long winter months, Manitoba's northland was punctured by the roar of great tractors hauling a complete mining town north in the largest single freighting move in Canadian history.

Homes popped up overnight in this town—more than 500 miles north of Winnipeg—and site of one of the world's richest funds of scarce copper-nickel ore.

More than 60 houses were picked up one by one from the town of Sherridon and its now defunct copper mine, 164 miles north of Lynn Lake. They came on sleighs hauled by "cats" over twisting trails and treacherous muskeg.

Now with the spring break-up, the trek has stopped until next winter when freezing weather will permit the work to continue. The airplane is the only contact with the lake in other seasons.

Freight of all kinds and sizes was transported this winter; steel for the power plant at Laurie River and new bridges; poles for a 44-mile electric line; material and equipment dismantled from Sherridon; flea for a 155-mile railroad.

But the houses were the most important. Without them there could be no Lynn Lake.

And with each arrival, another blind was drawn on the 24-year history of Sherridon, once a proud mining centre and now approaching the status of a ghost town.

Nearly 100 freight swings moved from Sherridon this year. Earlier, creeks and rivers were corduroyed with logs and flooded when this ice was found. Lighter tractors and snowmobiles broke trail.

The swings, comprising three "cats" each hauling four sleighs, came slowly. Crews worked round-the-clock in two shifts during the three-day trip, stopping only to refuel barring an accident. Most buildings came through unscathed.

Lynn Lake is situated just under the 57th parallel. Herds of migrating caribou have been known to pass through camp. There are no neighboring towns.

Six years ago Lynn had only three log shacks. Now there are 300 persons here and conservative figures indicate the population should grow to between 1,500 and 2,000 when production at the mine starts late in 1953. By that time close to 300 homes will have been hauled from Sherridon.

One of Lynn Lake's oldest residents is J. L. (Scotty) Tait, former surface foreman at Sherridon. It took 43 days for a tractor train he was in charge of to reach the lake. The temperature was 70 below zero and "you could throw rabbits through the cracks between the logs in the bunkhouse."

EASTER

"Because I live, ye shall live also."

Life, life renewed we see in all about us.
The grass grows green, the maple buds show red,
Hepatica are blooming in the wild wood,
The world of nature is no longer dead.

And down across the years we catch the message,
The words of that far distant Easter Day—
"He is not here, the Lord indeed is risen
Come, see the place where Christ our Saviour lay."

O weary heart, we, too, may catch the message,
The word that Death no longer holds a sting,
For lo! He burst the bonds of Death forever
And lives for aye, our risen Lord and King.

"Because I live," He said, "ye shall live also."
O blessed words to soothe life's pain and sorrow,
We need not fear to pass Death's Risen with Him, we'll enter into life.

—Helen B. Anderson.

Christian Citizenship Told by Flannelgraph

On Monday evening last, Miss Lenore West led a lively singing opening the meeting of Bridge Street Y.P.U. The business then was conducted by the president, Jim Bailey.

Following the business session several games were enjoyed by the group.

The program was in charge of Miss Doris Ames, convener of the department of Citizenship and Community Service.

Miss Ames introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Brigadier Gage of the Salvation Army, who gave a most inspiring message on Christian Citizenship," with a beautiful flannelgraph illustration. Miss Mabel Russell expressed the appreciation of the group to Brigadier Gage.

The evening closed with "Taps."

SECRETARY TO RESIGN

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mason, Geddes St., Home to Friends On Fiftieth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Bert M. Mason, 13 Geddes Street, were "At Home" Wednesday afternoon, to a large number of friends and relatives as they observed their golden wedding anniversary. Throughout the afternoon and evening friends called at the home to offer congratulations.

Both natives of Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Mason have lived in the city for the past 30 years where until five years ago Mr. Mason operated a coal and wood yard. In 1947 he sold his business and since in his own words has been "puttering around."

Mr. Mason was born in Rawdon township, while his wife, the former Aggie Kingrens was born at Queensboro, but as a young girl moved with her parents to Detlor near Bancroft. It was there just 50 years ago that the couple were married. Both are seventy-three.

A firm believer in the fact that variety is the spice of life, Mr. Mason has worked at many different occupations. As a lad he worked on his father's farm in Rawdon township; then in a cheese factory and prior to his marriage worked with a construction gang on the railway extending the tract from Ormsby to Bancroft. It was during this period he met his future wife.

Farmed at Detlor

Following marriage the couple farmed in the Detlor area for some years before moving to Belleville.

Times have changed in the fuel business since he came to the city 30 years ago, according to Mr. Mason. Then a cord of hardwood, sawed into stove lengths and delivered was worth $5 and dry body-hardwood could be had for $11 to $12. "In the depression period we couldn't sell slabwood at all," he recalls.

Since going out of the wood business four years ago Mr. Mason says he has just "puttered around", working when he feels like it at the carpenter [illegible]

'Ladies' Night' Proves Most Successful

On Tuesday evening, a most enjoyable time was spent in the Sunday School room of Tabernacle United Church when the Men's Club entertained their wives at the annual "Ladies' Night". Mr. Albert Mulvey presided as toastmaster; Mr. Harold McNish as song leader and Mr. Alec Gordon at the piano.

Following the splendid dinner served by the W.A. of the church, xylophone and vocal solos were rendered by Miss Helan Grant, who was accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. W. Grant. Mr. Ronald Elmy also pleased with his fine selections.

The highlight of the evening was an interesting talk by Alec Gordon who took his hearers on a delightful trip to Gaspe Peninsula and through North Hastings, with colored moving pictures illustrating the outstanding beauty spots.

Mr. McNish proposed the toast to the ladies to which Mrs. F. Davidson graciously responded.

As a whole, the evening was most successful and entertaining-ly fine.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Grace and love be multiplied unto you." This is the beautiful and impartial greeting expressed by the Apostle Peter in the beginning of several of his Epistles. And what a fitting prayer for this year's Easter.

Congregation Rises at First Note of Wedding March

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a church wedding, when does the congregation stand? At the moment it is at the moment the bride enters the church, that is, the last of the processional. "It says it is at the moment the processional begins—Adelaide and Joe.

"It" is right. The congregation rises at the first note of the Wedding March; that is, at the moment the processional begins

Her Two Sisters as Matrons of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My two sisters, my only sisters, are both married. I want very much to have them both as honor attendants. Would this be permissible?—E. M.

Yes, completely correct to have your two sisters as matrons of honor. Plan to have them dressed alike, and they walk together or separately, as you wish. Best procedure, I think, because most practical, is for them to walk your older sister (whom you would probably choose as your witness) well just ahead of you and your father. Then assign one sister the responsibility of holding your bouquet and returning it to you at the proper time, and the other sister the responsibility of adjusting your train and your veil, just before the processional starts, and just after the conclusion of the ceremony, before the recessional starts.

When to Open the Anniversary Presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a wedding anniversary celebration, should the presents brought by the guests be opened as they are handed to the hostess, or what is the best plan?—Theresa S.

If there are only a few guests, the presents may be opened as they are handed to the hostess. But if there are quite a few guests, usually opening each present as it is handed to the hostess holds up the proceedings, means that the following guests have to wait to be greeted. Therefore generally the packages are put aside until all the guests have arrived, and then the hostess (usually gallantly assisted by the host) opens the presents, comments enthusiastically about each one, and expresses appreciation.

Sending Marriage Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it true (as I have been told) that wedding announcements are not sent to those who are invited to the wedding but who cannot come?—Adele.

Yes, that is true. Announcements of the marriage are sent only to those who were not invited to the wedding . . whether or not they were able to come.

Passing the Cream Picture

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I pass a cream pitcher to the person next to me or near me at table, should I hand it directly to her or him, or should I put it down on the tablecloth and let the person pick it up? I've seen both done, but I think the latter way is more convenient for the other person.—B.C.

I agree with you . . it is less awkward if you put down the pitcher (other items, too, such as a salt or a pepper shaker, a crust, and so forth) and let the other person pick it up. (Remember, as you put the pitcher down, you turn the handle toward the person to whom you are passing it.)

Glazed Baked Ham For Easter-Two Methods

These glazes are so glamorous that I would like to spare a few lines just raving about them, but the directions are lengthy so I have to restrain myself.

(If ham is not your dish for Easter dinner, I've given you fried chicken—yesterday—and roast lamb last week at this time —so I've done my duty by all of you gals who are looking for hints.)

SAVORY BAKED HAM NO. 1

One 10 or 12-lb. ham, bone in, rind on, not tenderized; about 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 1 stick cinnamon, 3 cloves garlic, 1 1-4 cups vinegar, 1 small glass apple or crabapple jelly or apricot puree, 1 cup brown sugar, 4 tablespoons dry mustard, 3-4 cup water, 1-4 teaspoon each cloves and cinnamon, 2 tablespoons vinegar (additional), 1 cup sugar

Wash ham and put in large kettle and completely cover with boiling water. Add whole cloves, stick cinnamon, garlic, 1 cup of vinegar and the granulated sugar. Cover and simmer gently for 3 1-4 hours. Do not overcook or ham will not slice neatly. Turn off heat and let ham cool in cooking liquid. Remove from water, trim off skin carefully, and pat mixture of the brown sugar and 3 teaspoons dry mustard into it firmly. Whole cloves may be inserted evenly all over surface now. Place ham in open roasting pan, add 1-4 cup vinegar, and the water and bake ham in oven at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Do not baste until ham is brown and crust is firm. Fifteen minutes before serving time make sauce: Mix together in small saucepan the remaining 1 teaspoon dry mustard, the spices and 2 tablespoons vinegar. Add the jelly or puree and heat until jelly is melted. Serve ham on hot platter garnished with endive or parsley or watercress, and pour hot syrup over. Carve ham straight to bone and pour spoonful of sauce over each serving.

(Not parboiled.)

If ham has been in refrigerator it should stand at room temperature for several hours to take off chill. Place fat side up on trivet in uncovered roaster and bake slowly at 325 deg. Fahr., allowing 18 to 20 minutes per pound for a large ham weighing 12 lbs. or over, and 25 minutes per pound for a ham weighing less, or for half hams or picnic shoulders. Test with meat-skewer at end of cooking time close to bone to see if it is tender. Do not overcook or it will not slice neatly. Remove ham from pan and pour off fat. Put 4 cups hot water in pan. Make a slit lengthwise of rind, and then carefully remove it. Make the following glaze and spread it over the ham: 1 cup solidly packed brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-4 cup corn syrup or honey, 2 tablespoons pineapple juice or apple juice or cider or gingerale. Mix these together to a smooth thick paste. Pour over top of ham and with a fork distribute as evenly as possible—but do not have it too far down the sides as it will just melt off. Return ham to oven in pan with water in it, but have ham on trivet, and bake 20 minutes at 425 deg. Fahr. to melt and brown glaze.

Accompaniments and Garnishes:

Baked or broiled fruits are ideal garnishes and accompaniments for ham. These include pineapple and apple rings, orange halves, banana pieces or halves, apricot or peach halves. If these are raw they require cooking under the broiler or baking, and must be turned and tested. If they are cooked, they require only browning. If you think the raw ones with a mixture of sugar and butter they will brown more readily. The fruits with cavities at centre should have a half a maraschino cherry in them.

Temperature changes and the gradual drying out of the wood tend to crack the brittle surface of highly polished furniture and wood work. FIVE ROSES ALL PURPOSE FLOUR

"The children love my baking, and I'm thrilled to think that the neighbours and girl friends are always asking me: 'Elsie, how did you learn to bake your wonderful cakes?'

"The truth of the matter is that I only started 'really' baking a few years ago, but it seems as though with Five Roses everything turns out so perfectly.

"Last week I had baked a special super cake to enter in a contest, but Eric, my little boy, had other ideas about what should be done with a perfectly good cake. Can you imagine, before I realized it, he had helped himself to an enormous slice! I was heartbroken for a moment—but there he was grinning from ear to ear, and covered with chocolate icing, proudly singing: 'Mummy, you sure can cook! Nina and I think you are the best cook in the world!'

"Well, I must admit it's certainly nice to be so popular. So here's to your wonderful Five Roses All Purpose Flour. It's just grand to know that one flour is so perfect for everything from tender, flaky pastry to the most heavenly light cakes that just seem to float away. Anyway, the family certainly make them disappear as fast as I bake them. Personally, I wouldn't change flours for the world, believe me! Good Baking is Easy with Five Roses!"

Sincerely yours, Elsie Hyde

APANESE PEACE

A long-time proponent of the Pro-gressive Conservatives, the pact is described by Mr. Pearson as "a long range possibility but not a step for the present."

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said he is concerned that the treaty does not get the backing of India, Asia and Burma.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, John Blackmore (SC-Leth-bridge) approved of the pact generally but contended that some of the provisions hold the seeds of a new war. None of the opposition parties voted against the treaty but it was put through.

STEEL OFFICIALS

ose First Round

The industry lost the first round yesterday when a federal judge here refused to issue an immediate order nullifying the seizure.

The three companies which lost yesterday's preliminary court ruling also have filed a petition for injunction—a legal move which asks the court to find the president's order unconstitutional. A hearing may be scheduled within four or five days.

Although the country's four biggest steel producers started shifting their men back to work, full-scale re-employment of some 150,000 furloughed workers was expected to take at least a few days to two weeks.

In the same days before the President seized the mills the big crews of skilled workers were laid off in stages, as the industry began to slow down against the threat of a strike.

The companies emphasized that it takes nearly as much time to get a steel plant back in operation as it does to close one.

BEEF PRICE

Besides B.C.'s embargo, Manitoba and Quebec still keep some form of control over livestock and meats entering their borders. Manitoba bars cattle but not swine and sheep from western provinces. Quebec issues permits for meat and livestock certified free of foot-and-mouth disease.

The effect of the various restrictions has been to lower cattle prices in Alberta stockyards and cause unemployment in the packing industry on the west coast and prairies.

LEGISLATURE

taxes. Utilities should be placed on the same basis as other industries.

W. G. Noden (PC—Raisy River) said he hoped a highway would be extended around the northern end of the Quetico-Superior Park to Fort Frances.

Peter Manley (L—Stormont) joined the budget debate in the night sitting to urge construction of a highway north through Stormont from Cornwall, a principal port of entry from the United States. Dundas and Glengarry counties, on either side of Stormont, had such highways.

Requests Straightening

He also asked for straightening of No. 2 highway which was winding and "outdated" in the light of the traffic it had to bear between Toronto and Montreal.

During passage of reform department estimates, reform institutions Minister Foote said the government is considering to make a grant foward construction of a jail farm between Toronto and Hamilton to take prisoners from both cities.

The matter came up when Harry Nixon (L-Brant) suggested a select committee of the House study the whole provincial system of county county jails. He said the province should assume responsibility for paying guards in county jails since it appointed and supervised them. The last review of the jail system was 50 years ago. Mal. Foote agreed that the committee might be valuable.

S-M Club

The regular monthly meeting of the S-M Club of Frankford United Church was held in the Rose-Lowery Hall on Monday evening, with 27 members present. The presidents, Claude and Marjorie Moran, took charge of the meeting which opened with a call to worship and an Easter hymn.

A lengthy business discussion took place, in which plans were discussed for the May meeting. It was decided that the Trenton Friday Nighters of King Street Church would be given an invitation to attend the May meeting, with all groups of the S-M Club taking part in preparing the program.

The visit of Rev. and Mrs. Harold Berry of the Standard Church, on April 18th, was mentioned, and it is hoped that a good turnout of members would be on hand to welcome these returned missionaries from Egypt, as they present program of moving pictures from that land.

Work Night

A work night was held on April 9th, at which four tables for the Junior Sunday School were constructed. Other work for the Sunday School will be carried on.

A sick and welfare committee, consisting of the secretary and the four group leaders was set up to make arrangements for suitable expressions in time of illness among club members.

Ernie Wallace explained the arrangements that has been made by the club in joining the Foxboro Film Council.

It is hoped in the fall, that the S-M Young Adult Club can do something about getting the Young Peoples Union functioning again. Frankford at one time had the strongest union in the district in Coboconk Presbytery, but it has now completely collapsed. It is also hoped that something can be done toward introducing the Young Adult Club idea into Batawa, in an effort to draw these two communities closer together in the church.

Books Requested

Members of the S-M Club were asked to donate any books that would be suitable to the Sunday School Library, if they are not in personal use. The club plans later on to build a music cupboard for the choir.

The meeting was then turned over to Helen Whitney and Gerie Lohnes for the worship service. The worship, based on the Easter theme, was conducted, by candlelight around a worship centre with the cross and Holy Bible. The worship began with the Easter hymn, "Beneath the Cross of Jesus." Helen read two passages from St. Luke, on the Last Supper and the "First Easter Sunday." Gene read two poems, "The Last Supper" and "Pontius Pilate Speaks." Prayer and the hymn "Christ the Lord is Risen Today" completed the worship service.

Peace River District

Ruth Beach spoke briefly on the film obtained for the night on the Peace River District of Canada. Ernie Wallace and Bob Bates presented the film, which was very colorful and interesting.

A variety program was presented, with Raymond Rowe acting as master of ceremonies. The program featured the United Church male quartet, the 3-M male trio; a reading by Helen Whitney, and the "Rattler News" presented by Ruth Beach and Hazel Rowe. Ernie Wallace and Gene Lohnes led in a sing-song which brought a hearty response from all.

Refreshments were served by the group, under Jack and Ruth Beach's direction.

Coboconk Presbytery

The Coboconk Presbytery Young Peoples Union is presenting the "Commodores," stars of the CBC, and the "Video-ettes", "Bell Ringers" from Toronto, in the Cold Springs United Church on April 23. A bus will be leaving Stockdale on that evening and anyone interested is invited to go. Many of this district will remember the fine programs presented by these same artists last year in the Campbellford United Church, and in King Street Church, Trenton. Proceeds go to the missionary work of the United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Moore of Middleton Park in Trenton, called on friends in Frankford on Monday evening.

Ruth Arthoff of Plainfield United Church will be the special guest speaker at the May meeting of the Frankford S-M Club in the Rose-Lowery Hall.

Radio Broadcast

The Frankford Public School will present their second radio broadcast over CJBQ at 2.15 on Thursday, April 10. Frankfordites will remember the excellent Christmas program which the school presented last winter, and will be looking forward to this encore performance. Under the capable direction of Miss Phyllis Sine, the school will present the following program: "The Young Musician," featuring the Grade 3 Music; instrumental by Bach, by Peter Horcics; "My Secret," by Grade 4 choir; "The Robin's "Easter Eggs," by Grade 5 and 6 choirs; instrumental by Sus-Ann Wallace; "Beautiful Savior," by Jean Spurrel and Nadine Howard, as alto-soprano duet; "The King of Love," 2-part chorus by Grade 8 choir.

It is sincerely hoped that a large number of Frankford folk will be by their radios on Saturday afternoon to hear these young people in their second radio program.

The first softball meeting of the Trent Valley League was called for last Saturday night, but due to unfavorable weather, the representation was small. Another meeting will be held shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Macaulay and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rose on Sunday, April 6.

Mr. Raymond Lohnes of Belleville spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes.

JUVENILE TOURNAMENT

Trenton, Campbellford and Madoc were the first-round winners in the Belleville Hockey Association juvenile hockey tournament which got under way at Memorial Arena last night. Campbellford routed Picton by a 12-4 score, Madoc defeated Napanee 10-7 and Trenton edged Tweed by a 2-1 count. Tonight Trenton hooks up with Campbellford and Madoc takes on the Deseronto squad which drew a first-round bye. The winners will play for the title on Monday night. President J. N. Vanover of the BHA has donated a handsome silver trophy which will be competed for annually. He will present it to the winners at the conclusion of Monday night's final. Creels will also be given the winners. There will be a 25 cents admission charge.

IT MIGHT WORK!

Chap we know has come up with what seems to be not a bad idea to wind up the hockey season.

He probably got the brainwave from Bill Veeck's stunt in letting the spectators act as coaches and managers when his Cleveland Indians were playing a baseball game last summer.

The idea is to stage a hockey game and allow the Imperial Order of Unbiased Rinkside and Armchair Referees and Coaches (Belleville Local 86754632) to select its most qualified members to take charge of the teams and the players. No member of a family of a member of the IOURARC, his employers, or employees will be allowed to criticize during the game.

It is felt that the vast majority of this great organization through extensive experience gained during the past season, is fully qualified to take over the operation of the squads and the game.

Active members of the organization taking part in the operation of the game would be relieved as often as the players, as it is felt, brain-fag is as important as physical fatigue. Any mental conditions resulting from overwork to be part of local members will not be paid for by the union. Officials feel if such were the case, their outfit would have been broke long ago.

Arguments between members of the organization such as referees and coaches will not be permitted. If the referee makes a "boner" in the opinion of the rival coach, he will be replaced immediately. If a coach does not make the proper replacements in the opinion of the two referees, the coach will be substituted. The only limit to this point is, there may not be sufficient members available to play an ordinary three-period game.

Non-participating members will not be permitted to coach from the sidelines. To offset this, the organization has procured cotton-wool gags which members must wear prior to the start of the game.

However, they will be allowed to come up for air at intermittent periods. During these respites they will be allowed to call officials such names as "Pinhead", "Bird-brain", "Numskull", "Flatlistener", and ask questions and offer advice such as "Where-hell-did-you-ever-referee?", "Aw Gwan back to the sticks, yuh farmer", "How much they payings, huh?", "Yuh couldn't referee a cockroach fight, yuh dumb cluck",

* Officials upon receipt of these greetings will acknowledging them by bowing gracefully and waving cheerily to the membership. In event of the student body and alumni omitting any skin-excavation phrases, or monikers, usually designed to humiliate a referee, the official will be permitted to submit these, for later in the game, to the at-the-moment coach in one of the players boxes,

Prizes will be given for the "member most likely to be tossed out of the rink"; the member designing the most original referee-bait; and the "member most likely to succeed as water-boy to an old maids' croquet team."

All of which is in light vein since it is the heritage of a Canadian hockey fan and one of his democratic rights to "blow off steam", within reason, at any and every game he attends.

SPRING IS HERE

Minor baseball got away to a good start here this week with the re-organization of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association. Frank Grandison was named president with Lorne Buskard secretary. Bill Hurst was appointed treasurer with Charlie Ford named chairman of the peewee division, Wally Best, Canadian division, George Dighy, midget division and Bert "Cuffer" Noakes, juvenile division. Representatives of sponsors were also present and all indications point to a bigger and better baseball season for the youngsters this year.

Detroit Red Wings, Canadiens Hook Up In 1st Game Tonight; Wings Rated at 9-5 Favorites

By W. E. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, April 10—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings, the powerful hockey machine that wrapped up the National Hockey League title without extraordinary excitement, rated 9-5 favorites today over Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup final.

The betting fraternity didn't have to indulge in higher mathematics to settle on these odds, while the teams prepared for the opening game tonight of the best-of-seven series, a flashback of past performances was all needed.

The Wings ran out the N. H. L. schedule with 100 points, a margin of 12 over the second-place Canadiens. In the 14 meetings between the clubs, the Wings took the decision nine times and lost only twice. Three games were tied.

The Wings capped this display of strength by unceremoniously mopping up Toronto Maple Leafs, 1951 Stanley Cup champions, in four straight games of their cup semi-final.

In the other semi-final, Canadiens needed seven games to overcome Boston Bruins.

Irvin Confident

Odds or no odds, you can't convince coach Dick Irvin that his Canadiens haven't what it takes against the Red Wings. If they do it will be the first time that the cup—and the title of world champions—has come to Montreal since 1946.

Despite injuries at the outset of the series with Boston, Canadiens showed remarkable recuperative powers. They pulled out an overtime win when the grade verge of elimination and then took the deciding seventh game, thanks largely to Maurice Richards' deciding goal.

The Montreal adherents point out, too, that Canadiens whipped the Wings in a semi-final last year before bowing to the Leafs. The Wings are the same. But since then Canadiens have come up with a flock of rookies who broke-in on goal rushes throughout the season.

Strong in every position, and with big Gordie Howe a continual scoring threat, the Wings nevertheless must watch such upstarts as Dickie Moore, Paul Meger and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion.

A couple of farmhands from the American Hockey League—Eddie Mazur and Paul Masnik—got into the final two games with the Bruins and both figured in the scoring. The pair undoubtedly will be called out again tonight by coach Irvin.

The Wings will be without Leo Reise, the big blonde defenceman and a top-ranking star in the N. H. L., who suffered a severe foot injury in practice.

Up front, the Red Wings are first and foremost a combination Canadiens will send against the big production line—Howe, Sid Abel and Ted Lindsay—remains to be seen.

Stouffville Ousts Peterborough 4-3 In Overtime Tilt

Stouffville, April 10 — (CP)— Nick Bangay's overtime goal, his third of a thrill-packed game, gave Stouffville Clippers a 4-3 win over Peterborough Petes last night. The victory moved Clippers into the OHA senior "B" semi-finals against Toronto's Lyndhurst Motors. Stouffville won the best-of-seven quarter-finals 4-2.

Forts, Regina Play Tonight

Fort William, April 10 — (CP)— Caution is the word for Regina Pats and Fort William Hurricanes today as they line up for the second game of the Western Canada Memorial Cup hockey final.

Hurricanes, underdogs in the best-of-seven series, held a one-game edge on Pats as the result of a 3-1 victory Tuesday.

But there's no overconfidence in the Herk camp. Coach Louis Passador said: "We're playing this series one game at a time."

Coach Murray Armstrong of Pats said the Hurricanes are a "darn good hockey club" but he couldn't see them taking the series in straight games.

Passador reported his boys are in good condition although some bear stick-marks from Tuesday's rough encounter in which 14 penalties were called.

Only forward Ted Varnton is a doubtful starter in the Regina line-up. He suffered a leg injury when he piled into a goal post.

Third game in the series will be played here Saturday if Regina wins or ties tonight. If Hurricanes win, the series will shift to Regina for the third game Monday.

Stratford Bests Pembroke Kings In Overtime

Pembroke, Ont., April 10 — (CP) — Pembroke Lumber Kings will be one game down in their best-of-seven Allan Cup semi-final when they meet the speedy Stratford Kroehlers here tonight in the second game of the series.

The Ontario Hockey Association senior A champions scored a pair of overtime goals last night to rout the Ottawa District Hockey Association title-holders 5-3 in the opening game before 4,100 fans.

Billy Flick was the big gun for the Indians, scoring two goals including the winning overtime marker. Singles went to Jackie White, George Aitken and Bruce Burdett. Pembroke snipers were Ken Campbell, Bruce Glesebrecht and Jack Carthy.

Goalie Standout

Goalie Bruce Dale, between the Stratford posts, turned in a standout performance and robbed several Lumber King forwards from point-blank range. In all, he turned aside 36 scoring attempts to 27 for Pembroke's Fred Murphy.

Aitken suffered the only injury of the game. He ran into a high stick in the dying minutes of the first period and returned in the second period with five stitches over his right eye.

Stratford was leading 3-2 late in the third period when Pembroke staged their comeback to send the game into overtime. Murphy was replaced by an extra man with 44 seconds remaining in the regulation playing time. The Lumber Kings hemmed Stratford in their own end and with three seconds left, Carthy drove the puck into the net on a passing play with Roy Glesebrecht and Bill Campbell.

Pembroke failed to follow through in the extra 10 - minute session and the outweighed, but speedier Indians went to the front again at 6:21 when Flick scored from a rebound after setting Murphy down a few feet out.

Stratford spoiled any chance of another Pembroke rally when Bruce Burdett counted the insurance goal at 8:12 on a play with Aitken and Jackie White.

Campbellford, Trenton, Madoc Teams Win Juvenile Tournament Openers

The inaugura' annual juvenile tournament of the Belleville Hockey Association opened auspiciously at Memorial Arena last night with seven teams from the district in competition.

Represented were Trenton, Picton, Campbellford, Tweed, Deseronto, Madoc and Napanee.

Campbellford, Trenton and Madoc were the winners of the first round defeating Tweed, Picton and Napanee in well-played games.

Tonight Madoc meets Deseronto which drew a bye in the first round and Trenton clashes with Campbellford. The winners meet for the tournament title and the J. N. Vanover trophy at the arena on Monday night. Only one game will be played and an admission of 25 cents will be charged. Crests will be presented to the winning team.

Game time tonight between Deseronto and Madoc will start at 7.30.

Wilson Stars

Campbellford swept to a 13-4 victory over the Picton squad with Wilson, Laing and Ruttan heading the goal parade. Laing came up with four goals and an assist; Wilson got two and two and Ruttan scored the hat trick with three helpers. Garvey got a pair and Girard got the other. Garrison with two, Peckburn and Bevan were the Picton scorers. Carl Reid handled the Picton squad with Coach Lloyd Taylor looking after Campbellford.

Parenenick paced the Madoc squad to a 10-7 victory over the Napanee team, scoring three goals and drawing two assists. Nickel also grabbed a trio of markers with an assist with Hickey, Carswell, Luft and Mantle accounting for the remainder.

McAllister scored two for the losers with Young, Howie, Perry, Dale and Donohue getting singles.

Trenton edged the Tweed team in the closest game of the night scoring the winning goal in a 2-1 victory in overtime play. Berry was the hero banging home the winner in a neat solo effort.

He also scored the other Trenton goal early in the first period. McMillan scored the Tweed lone counter in the first to tie the score and the teams battled through the next two periods without hitting the hemp.

Junior Canadiens Trim Biltmores 7-5 in Bruising Bone-Shaking Game

Montreal, April 10 (CP)—Montreal Jr. Canadiens and Guelph Biltmores took a breather today following the bruising, bone-crushing game last night that found Canadiens come out on top 7-5 to even up the series at one game apiece.

The action now shifts to Ontario where the best-of-seven series resumes on Good Friday and concludes at Toronto Sunday afternoon.

Pacing the victors with a pair of tallies apiece were Les Liley and Paul Bibeault. Singletons came from Don Marshall, Connie Broden and Dave McCreary.

Laufman fled Two

For the visitors, Ken Laufman got two and Dean Prentice, Howie Howell and Ron Murphy one each.

The game was studded with 21 penalties, including two majors and a misconduct. Twelve came in the overtime opening period.

The stalwart Guelph team was never ahead. They came from behind to wipe out a deficit to the finale to tie the score at 44.

Bibeault, Guelph forward, was lost to his team in the second period when he was banned into the boards. From hospital, it was reported he had suffered a broken bone in the right arm.

Tempers ran high in the wide-open game and boarding, stick-swinging and high-sticking were the order of the day. Ducky Holmesworth of Canadiens and Andy Bathgate of Guelph were major offenders, each getting a major and a minor. Hollingworth also had himself into the 10-minute misconduct penalty.

Tillsonburg Defeats Winnipeg 79-60 In Third Game Basketball Series

Tillsonburg, Ont., April 10 —Almost everybody is smiling in this little western Ontario town today.

The 1,000 odd inhabitants are plenty pleased about their basketball team's 79-60 victory over Winnipeg Varsity Grads last night, the game that put the title, Canada's best, in the best-of-five Canadian senior men's cafe finals.

So, right away, they anticipate that their favorites will wind up the series with another win here in tomorrow night's fourth clash, the one which would bring them the Dominion title.

Wool Team Opener

The westerners took the Monday opener 62-61, but Tillsonburg bounced back Tuesday to deadlock the series with a 79-60 verdict. Last night, there was no question about it from the opening whistle. The Ontario squad led almost all the way and were by far the better on the 60 minutes of play.

Winnipeg held on grimly through-out the first half of last night's effort, but faded badly.

The Liveries led 21-16 by the end of the first quarter and held a 38-30 advantage at the half. Opening up, the Ontario crew made it read 52-45 at the three-quarter mark before going on to their 79-60 final.

Roy Wilkens, lanky Winnipeg centreman, was top scorer of the night with 26 points. Carl Bidd was second in the visitors' point parade with 12.

Bob Fibbs was again high man for the home club, pushing in 19 points. Tommy Gibbons was next with 16 and Bob Simpson potted 11.

St. Catharines Files Protest Against Guelph

Toronto, April 10 — (CP) — St. Catharines Teepees tonight filed an official protest against Guelph Biltmores in the use of defenceman Ron Stewart in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals.

Coach and general manager Rudy Pilous, whose Teepees have been beaten by Biltmores in the final, said he has new evidence that the playing of Stewart was illegal. He said the entire case should be reviewed by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Announcement of the St. Catharines protest followed by a day the news that Montreal Canadiens, now engaged with the Biltmores in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals, also are protesting the use of Stewart.

Guelph would not say that the former Toronto Marlboros player was the telegraph vote of C.A. H.A. members.

In honor of Richard's spectacular game — winning goal Tuesday night against Boston Bruins. The victory enabled Canadiens to meet Detroit Red Wings for the Stanley Cup.

Pitcher Bob Feller's victory over New York Giants yesterday was a costly one. The Cleveland Indians ace told Houston, Texas, police that someone entered his hotel room while he was silencing Giants bats and stole $350.

Motherwell battled its way into the final of the Scottish soccer cup final yesterday, beating Hearts 3-1 in the second replay of their semi-final tie. Playing at Glasgow, the teams were deadlocked for five hours of play in three games. Motherwell now meets Dundee.

Jake Lamotta outslugged young Norman Hayes in a wild-swinging 10-round bout last night at Detroit. It was Jake's 100th fight over a 12-year professional career.

Middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson punched hard and fast yesterday as he prepared to break camp at Pompton Lakes, N.J., for his title fight next Wednesday at Chicago with Rocky Graziano. He expects to weigh in at 156.

Vancouver Ellers, led by Norm McDermot's 25 points, won the Canadian senior women's basketball championship last night from Hamilton Zion Ramblers. Ellers took the series 4-1. Vancouver threw it three straight and the game 46-31.

Sugar Ray Robinson In Fine Shape For Middleweight Bout With Rocky

By MURRAY ROSE

Pompton Lakes, N. J., April 10—(AP)—Does Rocky Graziano still hit as hard as ever, or has some of the power gone out of his famed right hand wallop?

"Man, I don't aim to find out," said Sugar Ray Robinson. "I'm going to try to get the first punch in."

"He always could punch with his right," said the sleek Harlemite, "And I'm going to watch out. Of course, we've both slowed down but you've got to watch the punchers."

Then the middleweight champion, who defends his crown against the New York slugger in Chicago next Wednesday, went out and showed some of the fastest hands we've seen in a long time. He punched faster than we've seen him hit since that last flurry that stopped Randy Turpin in the 10th round at the Polo Grounds last September.

Fought In Spurts

Against sparmates he fought only in spurts. When the television men turned on their cameras, Robinson lashed out. As soon as the cameras stopped whirring, Robby eased off. There wasn't the slightest resemblance to the fury swinger who missed so badly against Bobo Olson in San Francisco last month.

"Man, I sure missed out there," said Robinson. "I missed him by at least three feet at times. I couldn't have missed any worse unless he jumped out of the ring. That long layoff after the Turpin fight was too much."

If he looked bad against Graziano," interjected manager George Gainford, "as he did against Olson, I'm going to make him quit."

If he wins over Graziano, Robinson said he intended to go through with his Heart Fund title defense against Paddy Young in Madison Square Garden next month. After that he said he would fight in Tel Aviv on April 26 as an Israel charity bout and go to France for a title fight with the winner of the coming Charles Humez-Laurent Dauthuille contest.

How about that proposed title fight with light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim?

"That's George's fight," said Ray quickly. "He's always trying to get me killed. Let him fight Maxim."

Any plans for another fight with Turpin?

"He's a light heavyweight now," said Ray with a smile. "And I'm sure happy. Of course, if he came up to me in the street and hit me in the mouth, I'd have to defend myself. But I don't want those kind of fights any more."

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT.

New York, April 10 (AP) —United States tennis leaders have made their first important move toward winning the Davis Cup back from the Australians next winter.

Preparing the athletes mentally for the struggle to come, the tennis selection, through Harold A. Lebair, the chairman of its rules committee, has formally notified each and every one of the scamps that he had better observe the so-called eight week rule this summer—or else. Call it a sort of preliminary pep talk.

The rule in question, which was abolished by England last year and never was heard of in Australia, stipulates that a player may draw down no prize money from tournaments outside the various national championships and those sectional events —scarcely sufficient to get a boy well warmed up.

"Amateurs Only, Yes"

After warning the miscreants that they needn't try to get around the edict by hiding out in rooming houses and playing their matches a tournament and pretending not to know where their next meal is coming from, the letter from Lebair concludes in a fatherly fashion "these rules will be strictly enforced."

That should do it. Any tennis player who isn't ready and anxious to throw himself into the struggle against the Davies after he has received such a ringing call to tidy isn't worthy of representing the U.S.L.T.A., anyway.

It probably should be added that this is only the present writer's personal opinion and is not shared by everyone who loves the game. In fact, some of the younger members of the association made public avances of themselves at the last annual meeting by arguing that the 8 week rule should be wiped out and our players permitted to compete on even terms with the rest of the tennis world.

They made it sound pretty convincing, too, until the older and wiser members stood up and took their licks. But for the rule, they pointed out some of our youth might develop into regular bums, just following the sun from clime to clime and playing tennis.

Pari-Mutuel Branches Can Be Run by Tracks

Toronto, April 10 — (CP) — Race tracks may legally operate pari-mutuel branch offices but they do not want to start the practice because they fear the federal government might prohibit the practice once it started, Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow, chairman of the Ontario Racing Commission, told the legislature's committee on government commissions yesterday.

He said Ontario's racing picture this year will be brighter after the cleanup last year of "fixed" races as a result of which 10 jockeys and a trainer were suspended for life.

Magistrate Bigelow agreed with W. L. Houck (I — Niagara Falls) that a jockey who accepts a bribe is a "screwball," since a good jockey can earn $1,000 a week and the average bribe revealed last year was $300.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1952.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—It isn't so much how much you have to do today, but how you do it. Attitude and demeanor will speak stronger than any other assets for you.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Keep voice even. So often we show emotions that hinder the good effect of what we may be saying. Take proper cognizance of this day revered throughout the world.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—It's a time to review our thinking processes. Give everyone and everything an honest chance. You will elicit more assistance, cooperation, through respect for God and prayer.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer)—Anything you do, do with your best ability and for good faith. Don't fret or show misgivings. Pray. May be little things that annoy today; accept hazards, setbacks as part of life.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—All we do isn't recognized; sometimes we are forgotten when we think we should be most remembered. But each of us is guilty of things that cause others pain; let us reflect before we quibble.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Personal problems would be dwarfed by more considerations were we to look at them in right light. See ourselves as a part of a whole.

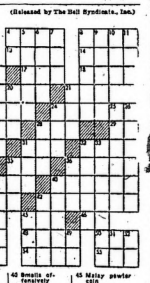
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Not merely passive tranquility, but activity of order, say many authorities. Keep doing! There is our life worth while, then are we using reasoning.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—If it's to be done now, do it now. At least try. Putting off and rushing later can be an exhausting fault. But don't take on more than you should.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—No matter our menial or outstanding work, our life in a small town or city, we all are gifted to do good if we would. Here's your day to renew good intentions.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—You can't be easy to do all the chores, nor will you like everything. But Good Friday is another of our opportunities to strengthen our character and will power.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Before starting the day, review briefly to see whether you can improve plans, advance your time better from a different type of procedure. In even leisure time, be alert.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Don't let Wish for anything better to the extent you are dissatisfied. Enjoy and do your best with what you have, albeit aim higher always; keep striving. Reflection urged.

YOU BORN TODAY: Mentally stimulated, forthright, an interesting companion, lifemate or business associate. Could be of community leader. You are full of vitality, imagination and cheerfulness. Guard against jealousy, wanting your own way too often, and overexertion or ambition that runs down vitality, health. Birthdate: Edw. Everett and Chas. Evans Hughes, noted Amer. statesmen.

Wildlife Week

Toronto — The presence of wild birds and animals is essential to maintain Nature in balance. Many birds and animals feed on injurious weed seeds, insects and vermin, thereby protecting farm, market garden and orchard products as well as trees.

Wild birds and animals also contribute much to health and recreation. Across Canada, professional and amateur field naturalists and bird watchers drive for walk thousands of miles every year, individually and in clubs or parties, to observe and study wildlife. Others, especially city folk, travel hundreds of miles just to see...Elk, deer, or the beaver house in its natural habitat. Amateur photographers — professionals too—expose countless rolls of film each season on wildlife. Almost every hunter spends at least $100 each year on guns, ammunition, equipment, sports clothing, and travel and accommodation in the hunting field.

Tourist Attraction

Tourists flock into Canada to share our sportsmen and wildlife, bringing new money into the province. The time spent out-of-doors in pursuit of wildlife is worth much to all people in peace of mind, health, forest and better international understanding.

Thousands of registered trapper earn part, or all, of their livelihood selling furs obtained from wildlife.

So, wildlife must be perpetuated and wisely used, without waste or abuse. It must be managed also, and in some cases controlled by taking an annual harvest. Too many deer in an area, for instance, can be detrimental to their own existence, to farm crops and to new forest growth.

Besides being a tribute to the late Jack Miner, there are many other reasons for holding National Wildlife Week. Chief among these is wildlife appreciation. But to appreciate wildlife, the birds and animals must be understood. A sympathetic understanding of wildlife, and of wildlife management problems, can only come through knowledge, which is best attained through education — in the schools, in the home or elsewhere possible.

Officers Give Encouragement

In this province, not only during National Wildlife Week but throughout the year, district officers of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests encourage wildlife appreciation by addressing educational meetings for all sorts groups. They emphasize the importance of wildlife conservation and show films on the subject as well as on forest fire prevention.

They stress, too, the advantages of landing sympathetic support to government wildlife management programs and that government restrictions on wildlife use are not designed to obstruct hunting pleasure but to ensure a sustained yield of surplus game birds and animals sufficient to satisfy nature lover and hunter alike.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Marney Cravath and Bill Neale opened the vault and made an other search. They issued forth at last.

"Well," Carvath said, "I take full responsibility for this. I put the bonds in the vault myself. He led the way back to the office where he sat down. "Bill, tell Orth what you told me over the phone."

Neale looked at me half-apologetically, "The fact is, I let Ames Warburton into the vault the morning before he was killed. And I've let no one else in there since, except myself. That makes it look bad for me, as well as Warburton."

"Don't be silly, Bill," Cravath said at once. "What do you think about it, Orth?"

I asked: "Who has access to the vault?"

Cravath nodded. "This is a small firm, although we do plenty of business. Only Jack Dumont, Neale or myself could go into the vault alone. Warburton, being a junior, would have had to have one of us with him."

"But you three partners could go in to the vault any time, alone?"

"Yes," Cravath admitted. "Perhaps it isn't the most ironclad system in the world, but it's worked very well for years. I trust my partners and they trust me. Dumont's been a friend of mine for 30 years and a partner for 25. Bill here, isn't that old. But Dumont and I knew he was our kind of man or we'd never have taken him into the firm."

Well, all very fine. But, as he himself suggested, other and more foolproof systems were in operation.

I said, "How long ago did you put the bonds in the vault?"

"Just 12 days ago. According to the receipt we sent Mrs. Wheeler" Neale said.

"So theoretically," I said to Cravath, "either you or Mr. Neale or Mr. Dumont could have taken the bonds, any time within the last 12 days."

He gave me a look of dislike, almost. "Theoretically, yes. Actually no. As far as—er, Dumont and I are concerned anyhow. Bill, don't take this as a reflection. But Dumont and I left for Windsor the afternoon of the day when I put the bonds in the vault. We've been down there ever since. And we were there when Warburton asked Neale to take him into the vault. Check the numbers, wasn't that what he wanted, Bill?"

The spectrum seemed to explode on Neale's face. For a second it was all colors, but red finally predominated. And Neale managed, in a low shaky voice, "Yes, he said he wanted to check the numbers. He—I thought that, maybe, I wouldn't have to tell you this, Marney." Neale's cheeks were a deep maroon now, but he looked his senior partner full in the eye, "I didn't actually see the bonds that morning."

"What?"

Neale hesitated momentarily, then his words came in a spate, "I can't be sure that Ames looked at those particular bonds. It's this is a nightmare! But I had just let him into the vault and I intended to stand right over him. The vault door was open, of course, with me inside. Well, my secretary came along. Wanted me to sign some letters. They were important, he said, so I had to be mailed right away. So I signed them against one of the walls of the vault." His eyes went down—"but that's how it was."

I really felt badly for the guy. He was in a spot.

"Look, Bill," Cravath said reassuringly, "stop beating yourself up. None of us would have believed this of Ames, in a million years."

52 Persons Killed And 17 Rescued After Plane Crash

Craft Trying to Make Airport After One Engine Failed

BY TOM CHASE

San Juan, Puerto Rico, April 12 (AP)—Police refused today to let singer Jane Froman see her pilot husband. Capt. John C. Burn, one of 17 persons who survived the sea crash of a Pan-American Airways plane crash in which 52 persons are believed to have perished.

The singer, "who flew here from Lisbon, Portugal, was informed that Burn is being held incommunicado on order of the district attorney.

Glenn Lawrence, general manager of Pan-American's San Juan office, confirmed the situation and said he does not know the reason.

Meanwhile, the search continued for 39 of the plane's Easter-holiday passengers still missing in the dark shark-infested Caribbean although the coast guard said there was "practically no hope" they still were alive.

Thirteen bodies were picked up and brought to shore. Seven more miles outside San Juan harbor, putting the toll of persons dead at 52.

A nine-year-old boy saved the 17 who escaped after the plane plunged into 10-foot waves and broke in two. Burn and a child fellow crew members were among those saved.

A similar crash, when Burn saved Jane Froman after landing in the Tagus River near Lisbon, Portugal, nine years ago, fostered the singer's romance with the pilot.

Burn's flight would have brought him here for the second anniversary celebration today with Miss Froman. Instead, Burn was held on the coast guard ship Froman flew to an anniversary by his bedside.

Somewhat of Here

Miss Froman whose singing career and flying romance is the subject of a current movie, "With a Song in My Heart," flew here from New York this morning and drove immediately to the hospital where her husband was under treed from shock and exposure.

Lawrence said that Burn was something of a hero in yesterday's crash. He helped keep the other life rafts fastened to the forward section of the big four-engine plane from drifting off so everyone to put on life preservers. A few minutes later, Burn was seen in the water, holding a baby in one arm and an elderly woman in the other, both swimming grimly toward one of the rafts. A moment later the huge seaplane pulled all three aboard, but the woman and the child died within a few minutes.

Most of the dead and missing were Puerto Ricans. There were 26 of 94 passengers and all five of the crew members aboard the plane.

One whole family of Puerto Rican sugar was wiped out. The father, Pedro Brignidi, 45, of Milton, N. Y., had flown to San Juan to bring home his wife and child and then after a two-year separation.

Only one survivor of the crash came an orphan. He is Mark Van Dalen, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Van Dalen, of Milton, N. Y., both are missing. All the crew members died.

Burn had sent a message saying he was trying to make an air-port after one of the plane's four engines conked out.

FLOOD DAMAGE HIGH AS MISSOURI GOES ON RAMPAGE

Thousands Homeless, Rich Farm Lands Awash

Omaha, Neb., April 12 (AP) — Tons of muddy water rolled relentlessly at flood levels and higher along nearly 1,000 miles of the Missouri River today.

The unprecedented flood crest, which dealt a smashing blow to the South Dakota capital city of Pierre at mid-week, was two days away from Sioux City, Ia., its next major target, and about five days away from Omaha, Nebraska. Winner Bluffs, Ia., metropolitan area some 100 miles below Sioux City.

But already hundreds were homeless—even in those downstream areas. Thousands of acres of rich farm land were swash. Damage estimates soared into millions.

For Omaha and Council Bluffs, with 366,000 metropolitan area residents, there was but a glimmer of the worst flood disaster of local record could be averted and the city fathers were making the most of it. Evacuations and dike-strengthening operations in feverish tempo in the two cities in anticipation of the 30-foot crest expected next Thursday.

Other rivers played supporting role to the Missouri in the east five mid-western states today.

The Platte River, 10 per foot rise in 24 hours caused the Red River of the north to burst its banks over a 150 mile course from Wahpeton to Grand Forks. Engineers predicted a 40 foot crest, about 17 feet over flood stage in the Flatts area by next Wednesday. This would equal the second worst flood height in the Red River Valley. Some families already have evacuated.

In northern Montana, the flooding Milk river was falling along its entire course except at the towns of Malta and Wagner but the rise there was so slight dikes could be strengthened by hand. An earlier had made 3,300 homeless and caused damage estimated at $2,000,000.

A drop of nearly two feet in the Missouri river level forced the 5,700 residents of Pierre, and the 1,000 in Fort Pierre, for rehabilitation work.

But downstream—at Yankton, S.D., Sioux City, Ia., and Omaha's river neighbor, South Sioux City, Nebs., and along the Iowa-Nebraska border—more families fled flood situation worsened.

Thousands of persons anxiously watched the ever-climbing water creep further and further into industrial and residential areas.

The Red Cross estimated more than 1,000 families had already been affected by flood in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Another 1496 families were listed as flood sufferers in the Sioux City and Omaha areas.

Army engineers said that from Pierre down to the southern Nebraska, 181,000 acres of land are under water and approximately 150,000 heads of livestock have been evacuated.

WILL SEEK NOMINATION

Oshawa, April 12 — (CP) — Mayor Michael Starr of Oshawa will seek the Liberal party nomination as Progressive Conservative candidate in the 1953 federal by-election in Ontario riding that was narrowly defeated in last November's general election.

A riding convention to name the candidate has been scheduled for April Friday in Whitby. The by-election was called to fill the seat vacated by Walter Thomson, leader of the Ontario Liberal party.

Ontario Likely to Start New Efforts to Provide Housing For Growing Population

Toronto, April 12 (CP) —Ontario this year will likely see the start of new efforts by the provincial and municipal governments to provide more housing for a growing population.

As the Ontario legislature progressed Thursday, Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt gave royal assent to 136 bills passed during the seven week session. Five of them designed to stimulate the private industry to build more homes.

One new act will aid the building of low-rental housing in deteriorated areas of large cities for rental housing and help establish young farmers on land. Another bill will permit provincial grants towards construction of sewer lines for suburbs.

The new statute with perhaps the widest popular appeal is the one to pay means-test pensions of up to $40 monthly to totally and permanently disabled persons from 18 to 65 years of age.

The legislature also lined up Ontario behind the St. Lawrence River development by ratifying the agreement with Ottawa for participation in hydro-electric development of the river.

A new approach toward aiding municipal finances came in the debate on the bill to give the province capital taxes on property of the government and provincial crown corporations.

Four Select Committees

The work of the legislature will continue after the session in four select committees which will up by some 60 other towns.

study lakeshore erosion and water levels of the Great Lakes, keep rent control regulations under review, plan a complete revision of the province's Companies Act and examine election laws in the light of last November's election.

That election brought a top-heavy government majority — 79 seats — while Conservative members as against eight Liberal supporters, two C.C.F. members and one Labor-Progressive member.

The session saw the province's first $200,000,000 budget, in which members included pay increases for themselves totalling $900 in the session and sessional indemnities for peace.

Two new statutes will strongly affect Northern Ontario. One provides for a 3 new system of payments to mining municipalities The second is a complete revision of the Mining Act, which is dealing with forest operations on Crown lands, aimed at sustained forest yield and greater control over holders of licences on Crown lands.

Twenty-eight of the session's bills were private bills dealing with municipal problems. The major controversy on this bill in passage was the decision to maintain, for the present, the system of licensing bookmakers at race tracks. The legislature's private bills committee turned down the request of the town of Hespeler to become annexed to the adjoining county. Hespeler's complaint that it had to pay more than cities for water from the county system.

COMPULSION IN JOINING UNION BIG STEEL ISSUE

Owners Planning Fight Against Truman Seizure

BY NORMAN WALKER

Washington, April 12 (AP) —The issue of compulsory union membership was reported today to be the main stumbling block in the United States steel dispute.

Steel companies themselves apparently could not agree on the union shop question. This would require all steelworkers to belong to Phil Murray's United Steelworkers of America (CIO).

Some firms were reported willing to give Murray a modified form of the union shop, others still were holding out against it.

The union's executive board bluntly warned last night that its patience was "not inexhaustible" —a plain hint from the union that if industry was loath to make a contract, the government should do so if a strike is to be avoided. The union's statement that the union's executive board said in a resolution "is entirely consistent with the (wage stabilization) board's recommendations."

The W.S.B.'s proposals, resisted by steel companies, call for a 17 cent pay raise, a union shop and other benefits estimated by the board at 4½ cents an hour, or an extra 1-2 cents an hour per worker. The workers now have earnings averaging $2.08 an hour.

President Truman's administration has refused to say what it will do next Tuesday, was reported to be willing to give Murray the W.S.B.'s "money" proposals. It is unwilling to grant the union shop and has the power to enforce it in Congress.

Unless both sides have wanted union shop "security." Employers have consistently resisted it, contending that unions would get too strong, and that workers opposed to union membership would be required against their will to become union members.

What was reported to be under consideration in the steel negotiations was a "modified union shop," similar to that in force in the railroad industry. This allows present workers a choice on joining or refraining from joining a union, but requires new employees to be members.

Government-sponsored negotiations, recessed for Easter weekend until Monday afternoon, have been getting nowhere. Some hope that C. P. Feinsinger of the W.S.B., president of the board, will call it to reconvene bargaining before Monday in an effort to break the deadlock.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Steel Corp. joined four other major steel firms in a suit contesting the legality of Truman's seizure.

Eisenhower Will Resign Commission Only If Nominated

Says He Has Made No Plans To Make Political Campaign

BY CARTER DAVIDSON

Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe, April 12 — (AP) — General Eisenhower discussed today how he plans to be home in Ailbene, Kas., by June 4 — 33 days before the Republican national convention.

The White House announced yesterday that at his own request his job as boss of the North Atlantic Treaty Forces will end May 31.

Until he leaves, Eisenhower told a press conference, "I am not going to discuss any kind of political questions, as I can devote myself to this job."

He said he hasn't made definite plans to campaign for the presidential nomination. However, his public announcement gave his well-organized backers the right they need to enter the political fields.

Eisenhower said he had "not the slightest information" on who will succeed him as N.A.T.O. commander may be.

He also disclosed he will resign his Army commission—known as s- five-star general if he is nominated and will be "free to do speak, like any other citizen, on any subject."

He said, he will resign only if he is nominated.

No general of his five-star rank can be forced to retire — but he can resign if he wants to.

Drama In Paris

As long as he keeps the title of top job, he draws full pay of $18,761 a year. Of that amount, $7,324 is non-taxable allowances, and the remaining $11,457 is taxable base pay.

When he leaves S.H.A.P.E. Eisenhower reverts to the inactive list. He will be relieved by the president of Columbia University, in that status he will be subject to call to active duty only if Congress could place limitations on campaign discussion of past matters of high policy which still remain classified as secret though the reason for national military secrecy do not exist.

He talk to reporters included replies to keep N.A.T.O. going strong because "the quest for peace is always the first job."

"Security, peace and liberty—these are the watchwords by which we live at S.H.A.P.E.," the general said.

He said publication of his request to go back on inactive status was delayed because of his desire to break the news himself to the other N.A.T.O. commanders that he is quitting.

Eisenhower told these 70 hardworking officers assembled today, shortly before the Washington announcement was made.

An aide said his morale speech brought tears to the eyes of every officer.

The general will leave April 16 for Brussels to begin a series of farewell visits to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization capitals of Europe.

"If I should be nominated I shall promptly submit to the president my resignation from the armed services," he said.

"Then I am free to speak like any other citizen, on any subject.

Eisenhower told reporters that in the next several weeks—while he remains here—he will devote himself entirely to the affairs of his command.

Not a 'Dry Eye In The House' When Ike Tells Associates of Resignation

Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe, April 13 — (CP) — There wasn't a dry eye in the house when Gen. Eisenhower told a meeting of 70 of the world's highest ranking officers yesterday he was through his job as supreme commander.

Other sources revealed that Montgomery told Ike Eisenhower into staying out of politics.

Montgomery was quoted as having told Eisenhower his experience as a soldier did not equip him for the rough and tumble of politics.

The field marshall said he himself had entered into politics briefly after the war and got nothing but trouble.

In the world. They were silent. Their emotion was so deep there was not a dry eye in the house.

Biddle said Field Marshal Montgomery, British deputy commander, mounted the stand and paid tribute to his "good friend" amid loud applause.

Radioactive Gold Thread Used In New Type of Cancer Treatment

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE owns at Oak Ridge, Tenn. It is Associated Press Science Editor produced in the form of a col-

New York, April 12 — (AP) — Threads of radioactive gold are being used in cancer treatment not hitherto possible.

They literally sew up the kind of cancer that cannot be entirely removed by a surgeon's knife because it has grown around an important artery or other blood vessel.

This report was made to the American Association for Cancer Research today by Doctor William G. Myers and Dr. Benjamin Kisieleski of the Ohio State University. The radioactive gold is made in one of the atomic loid, which is virtually liquid gold.

Slender plastic tubes with plastic "needles" are filled with the gold colloid. These tubes are the size of the sutures that surgeons use for sewing wounds. The radioactive threads are sewn through the cancer, or part of a cancer, that cannot be removed. The gold threads emit radioactive rays that kill the cancer tissue around them. But the rays do not harm the healthy tissue nearby, because the radioactivity grows weak after a few days, before it can do serious damage outside the cancer.

Leader of Salvation Army In Canada Heard In City

On the occasion of his first visit to Belleville as national leader of the Salvation Army in Canada, Commissioner Wm. R. Dalziel spoke at a meeting of meditation held in Bridge Street United or St. Andrews Presbyterian Church. The well attended scarcely accommodate the large congregation, who by 8:00 o'clock commissioner and join in the service of worship.

The Peterborough-Silver Band, a fine aggregation of musicians, added greatly to the service of praise and Mr. W. Shepherd, organist of the church accompanied the songsters from Kingston and Belleville in two numbers "God So Loved the World" and "Love's Immortal Token."

Brigadier Gage offered the prayer at the opening of the service. Commissioner Dalziel introduced the subject of meditation under the caption "Behold Thy Mother" "Mary Mother of Jesus," and the "Roman Centurion's "Good Friday is the most important day in the Christian calendar," he said, "for it has to do with the mystery of His death, but we can never begin to understand our love for God had reconciled death to us."

Pictures Scene

Major Sharpe of Peterborough read the scene at the cross with the two thieves on either side of Jesus. The one thief on the cross of repentance and the other of revolution had taken place as he hung there, and asked Jesus to remember him. True contrition is sorrow for sin, not sorrow for consequences. The Centurion by his request. Seed of true contrition will always bear productive, abundant, eternal life. Here is the answer to this chaotic life, Jesus will quickly give forgiveness.

In the scene with Mary at the Cross, Major Sharpe described the almost overwhelmed with grief. But the beautiful earthly relationship led Mary in love to the Cross in her Son's supreme hour. Darkness and despair were overcome with love. God's love never fails for God is love, and His Love meets every need through the Cross. Provision is made that all may come into the family of God.

Lieutenant Gardiner of Trenton spoke of the Roman Centurion who made a public confession, and acknowledged his own guilt, condemning openly those who insisted on Christ's death. The challenge comes from the example of the centurion not only to see Christ and believe Him but to tell others.

Commissioner Dalziel pointed out that from these three pictures we get penitence, love and light from the Cross. Many voices and many hands united in the responsibility that day: "If we have sinned in Him" he asked, "in what company would we be found?" It would be trying to compromise like Pilate, or denying the Lord like Peter, or among the crowd, callous and indifferent, or like Judas walked with Him with a divided heart, or among the faithful ones, not understanding but believing? It is always serious for Christians to be among Christ's enemies, as Judas was, but Judas knew where we stand. The Cross speaks of forgiveness and repentance and will bring salvation.

The male choir gave a feeling rendition of the solo "Wonderful You There When They Crucified My Lord?"

Many public officials and other citizens met the commissioner at a supper before the church service when he was introduced by Brigadier Gage Mr. Percy Hunt, M.P., gave an address of welcome and Alderman Chas. Hyde represented the mayor. Commissioner Dalziel spoke briefly on his work in the army and his impression of world conditions.

Many French Political Parties

(Article 64)

Last week I mentioned the relative instability of the French government, a fact obviously due to the large number of parties and their inability to compromise often enough to remain in power for any length of time. You may wonder if such has always been the case - - - if these parties have always been in existence or if not, what ones have?

Since we have become used to the two-party, and more recently the three-party system, we take it for granted that most people will find enough to suit them in one of the three parties without becoming dissatisfied and forming another party. Such, unfortunately is not the case in France, where the history of the various republics, of which the fourth is now in existence, has seen the rise and fall of any number of parties, each one usually taking shape on some definite issue and failing decline or reorganization when the issue has become dead. I think it would be best to look at the various parties at present presenting their wares to the French electorate. In this way we can see how long they have been in existence, and how they have been making out lately.

Force to be Reconciled

Since communism is such a popular subject these days, perhaps we had better get them out of the way first. Although they lost almost 500,000 votes in the last election, they still managed to poll over five million votes and are a force to be recognized. Just how much of this was a protest vote against high taxes and the high cost of living is hard to say, but estimates go up as high as four fifths. It is, however, a fact that the party is continually losing members and the circulation of its newspapers is regularly declining.

The communists are in themselves the party of peace, for, as may be expected, they are fiercely hostile to the Atlantic Pact, the war in Indo-China, and against the increased military expenses in general. In addition, they object just as strongly to the economic domination of France by America, and claim that France should trade with the east as well as the west.

The party was officially organized in 1926 under the leadership of Thorez, who is still more or less in control today. It is still one of the best organized of all parties in France, and for administration purposes is divided up into divisions which are further divided into cells. At present there are two tendencies at work within the party, one which wants to have nothing to do with any of the other parties and the second which is inclined to be more conciliatory. It is the task of Thorez to arbitrate between these two so as to keep the party in as great a degree of harmony as possible.

Socialists Among Oldest

The Socialists form one of the oldest parties, and have seen better days. They were in power just preceding the First World War and were under the leadership of Juarez, one of the most able of French parliamentarians of this century. It lost some of its strength because of its apparent failure to avoid the war, but experienced a resurgence after the war under Leon Blum. However, in 1924, the section to the left broke away to form the communist party. In 1935 the Socialists, still under Blum, won the day once more and began to put their program of social reform into effect, but the war cut short their plans. Even at that they had started to lose favor once more shortly after the elections because of their half-hearted help to the Spanish republic, their participation at Munich and their surrender to the Germans. Even during the occupation, the Socialists were at odds with one another and emerged rather disorganized, in contrast to the communists, who kept a tightly-knit organization all during the occupation, and as a result were ready for political action soon after the declaration of peace. The death of Leon Blum did not help matters any, for he was to the Socialists what Thorez is to the communists. After the war the party was split as to whether they should support the centre parties, as well as a division within their own ranks of right and left Socialists. Although the party did quite well at the polls in 1946, in 1951 they lost over half of their seats, for many of those who formerly voted for them cast their vote this time for De Gaulle.

The Movement Populaire Republicain, about the most important of the centre parties, originated actually in the nineteenth century for they represent an ideal of Christian democracy as expressed by the church philosopher Lammanet, who stated that Catholics should occupy themselves with social questions. It was not until 1924 that a party, the Parti Democrate Populaire, was formed with this end in mind, and it played only a minor role in French politics. However, when the MRP was formed, it learned much from this party and carried on its program. One of their greatest desires was to be progressive, especially in social affairs. It is worth noting also that it is to this party that many of the French Protestants belong. In 1946 the MRP gained 26 per cent of the popular vote and elected 175 deputies. However in 1951 only 83 were elected.

Was New Party

What was the cause of this sudden success and then decline? Perhaps the best answer is that the MRP was a new party — a progressive one and offered a ray of hope to many Frenchmen. Also, since in 1946 there were hardly any candidates to the right, the MRP received most of the votes which would ordinarily have gone right. As to the decline—when the rightist party (De Gaulle) was formed, many of those who had voted MRP returned once more to the right. This was further accelerated by the fact that the party program was most favorable to the workmen, and the progressive policy which satisfied the workers was incompatible to the rightists. At present the MRP forms part of the government and counts Georges Bidault as one of its leading members.

This is only one of the centre parties, but to discuss each one of them would take a whole page. Perhaps in passing mention might be made of the Independent Republicans, with Paul Reynaud as one of the leading parties of French statesmen, as their leader. Of all the middle parties, they are perhaps the one most in favor of free enterprise.

De Gaulle Strongest

At present the strongest of French parties is the Rally of the French People, under Gen. De Gaulle. This man, who certainly needs no introduction, led the provisional French government after the war until elections could be held. After these were finished, he declined, in 1947, to form his own party, which was to be a rally of the French people and he hoped to gather together all patriotic Frenchmen. As a rally it fell rather short, but what he did succeed in doing was to unite all the rightist votes in France so that in the last elections he polled over five millions votes and emerged with 118 seats, to make the RPF the largest single party. As I mentioned before, what keeps the centre parties more or less together is the fact that they all fear De Gaulle, and feel that, should he be given the chance to take over, it could easily lead to a dictatorship, for De Gaulle is a rather arrogant fellow at times, who insists on having his own way, as the Allied leaders found out during the last war.

Whether, in the course of the attempt to bring stability to the French parliament, new parties will be formed, is impossible to say. Able statesmen are not lacking, but it is hoped that in some way or another they shall find a solution.

The Emmaus Road

With heavy hearts and weary steps,
They trudged along the winding way.
All hopes had died on Calvary's hill
Why look to vain for that new day?

Had not their Master, gentle, kind,
Upon a Cross His life had given
While selfish, jealous, hateful men
Defied the laws of Earth and Heaven.

In vain they'd dreamed of Israel's day,
A kingdom free from Roman thrall,
But Jesus is dead! they did say,
He, whom they trusted one and all.

A Stranger joined them as they walked,
And as they talked, their hearts did burn.
"Abide with us," they said to Him
As from their door He made to turn.

There in the sacred shrine of home
He broke their bread with tear-torn hand.
Their eyes were opened, 'twas their Lord
Who from the grave had loosed Death's band.

With joyful hearts they hasten back
To tell their comrades His release,
And while the story was being told
He stood among them, speaking "Peace".

Once more along a winding road,
With satisfied hopes and aching hearts,
Go pilgrims on their weary way
Wounded and pierced by man's cruel darts.

For once again a cross is reared,
And once again, our brave men die.
Because of selfishness and sin,
Because the Truth is made a lie.

The dreams of happier days are gone,
The lowering clouds of war loom black.
Is there no hope for future days;
No power to turn the gangster back?

Must man forever go to and fro?
When will the sacrifice that's past?
Is God among the numbers slain?
The God whose fruit the Cross has won?

No; Easter answers, 'tis not so.
He lives, and reigns, in power and might.
Across the darkened clouds of life
He moves; and lo, a gleam of light.

'Tis through a Cross we find a Crown,
By losing life; new life is found.
And victory only comes to those
Who know the depths of grief and pain.

Out of the grave evil Fear and Hate
Must once a victor they for man.
'Tis Easter morning! Jesus lives
And walks with us; the way again.

OVERTAXATION A MARXIAN PRINCIPLE

"Overtaxation is not an incident, but rather a principle. It is the best system for making the wage laborer frugal and industrious."

The foregoing quotation, according to C. D. Norton, of St. Lambert, Quebec, "was not made by Finance Minister Douglas Abbott, although it sounds very much as if it was."

According to Mr. Norton, the quotation comes from Volume I, Chapter XXXI, of Das Kapital, by Karl Marx, the father of Communism. Das Kapital, as every literate person knows, is the bible of the Communists.

Mr. Norton adds: "We wonder whether Mr. Abbott got his ideas from Karl Marx, or whether it is that great minds think alike."

We are forced to agree with Mr. Marx and Mr. Abbott that overtaxation makes the wage laborer frugal; it forces him to be frugal. But we doubt if overtaxation makes him more industrious than he would otherwise be.

Rather than work harder when he is overtaxed, the wage laborer is more likely to take things easy, on the ground that extra effort merely means a bigger contribution to government spending agencies.

IS HEES MISINFORMED?

In last Monday's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer, a headline said: "$355,737,000 Surplus Reported by Abbott." The news story which followed explained that the federal government had collected in revenues during the last fiscal year the sum of $4,003,111,000.

On the same day, the leading editorial in The Telegram stated that George Hees, M.P., had disclosed in the House of Commons that the department of national defence was giving much less than it received in the Canadian forces in Korea a discharge allowance of $28, plus his battledress.

Until we hear from Defence Minister Brooke Claxton, we are going to assume that Mr. Hees has been misinformed, because $28 seems a trivial sum to be given as a discharge allowance, or any other kind of allowance, to a man who has risked his life for his country in Korea, or elsewhere.

HARKNESS IN CRITICAL MOOD

Lieut.-Col. Douglas Harkness, member of parliament, Calgary East, told the House of Commons last Friday that, according to cost lists prepared by the R.C.A.F., cabinet ministers have been flying from Ottawa to Montreal in R.C.A.F. planes at a cost to the R.C.A.F., of $150 per trip.

Such trips said Lieut.-Col. Harkness, were available for $7.50 by regular four-times-daily commercial flights.

Lieut.-Col. Harkness made these statements in questioning the wisdom and necessity of some of the expenditures totalling $2,100,000,000 which the government plans making during the next fiscal year in the name of national defence.

THEY'RE SUPERFLUOUS

B. B. Warnica, who farms over near Barrie and who is president of the Ontario Beef Cattle Producers' Association, said in Toronto a few days ago that the horsemeat stores in this country will soon be going out of business because there are not enough horses available to keep them going.

The sooner, the better. Those who want to devour horsemeat should go to some other country where public opinion does not frown upon such practices.

THE CROWN RETURNS

Hon. Geo. Dunbar, the acting minister of highways, announced in the Ontario legislature the other day that the crown, the insigne of royalty, is going to reappear next year on automobile licence plates issued in this province.

Most citizens of Ontario will receive this announcement with enthusiasm. It is fitting and proper that Ontario's licence plates should be adorned by a crown, because, whatever some other people may say or do, Ontario remains a royal province, or the royal province, in more ways than one.

AN EXCLUSIVE UNION

When Harry S. Truman steps out as president of the United States next November, he is going to have an opportunity to join a labor union.

This union is an extremely exclusive one. It is the Union of Former Presidents of the United States. At present, its membership is restricted to one, Herbert Hoover.

It was Mr. Hoover himself who, in New York the other day, told newsmen that Mr. Truman was welcome to join his "union," after next November.

The first company of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteers was founded at Victoria, B.C., in 1913.

CONSTANT

The lilacs are in bloom once more,
Again in the cherry and the pear,
And they have done the years before,
Their lovliest dresses wear.

The leaf is on the maple tree,
The birds are in full song,
All things seem right as they can be,
'Tis only man does wrong.

But whatsoever man shall do
For greed or lust for power,
The cherry tree will bloom anew;
The lilac come to flower.

LIGHT

No generation of Christian believers will ever be able, probably, to reconstruct the grief and despair of the disciples of Jesus the day following the crucifixion.

All their hopes had been destroyed. They had looked for a King of Israel, and their king had ended up wearing a crown of thorns. They had hoped that God would send a Deliverer to rid their land of the oppressor; behold, here was the rejected Deliverer on the cross—despised, rejected, and numbered among the transgressors. Their very faith in the goodness of God must have been shaken, for He had allowed the best Man that had ever lived thus to be treated.

But what they could not do was to look into the morrow. Women intent on performing the last offices of love for a departed loved one, would see a glory such as never before appeared to human eyes. A few hours after the midnight of their despair, the disciples would be filled with excitement because of strange rumors concerning the resurrection. Then the full glory of it would burst upon them, and for forty days they would walk in the fullness of that light.

We have this valuable light in the glory of that Light ever since. Without the resurrection there could have been no Christian Church, no faith sustaining the weary hearts of multitudes.

"Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUR WALKING LIBRARY

I have a little book in my library titled "Books Once Were Men." "I'll turn that title around and say,

Men are themselves books if it was good of W. Beverley Dixon, the distinguished author of that great book "The Human Situation," that he read widely, not in books alone but in the minds and hearts of his fellow men. And Dixon's philosophy has said: "I wish to make the world my book of study."

Every human being is in a sense a book. Some are short books and some big books, perhaps of many volumes. But there they are, these books, walking around, on streets, behind plows upon fields, in legislative halls, in schools and colleges, oh the sea—everywhere! Books in the flesh to note, to discover, and from which to learn. Our greatest books of fiction are copied or borrowed from walking, moving men and women—themselves books!

Human beings, in themselves, are far more interesting, instructive, and revealing than anything uttered from their lips! The world is filled with unpublished books that lie dormant in lives that go about their tasks, yet which are freely open for the reading of any one of us who has the insight and patience to read them. Even the knowledge of ourselves may well be learned from the study of the book of others.

Hawthorne would read the thoughts of a person, translated from some expression given, then write a note of it, and elaborate upon it in a written book or story. I know a physician and unmist who once told me he read only people, and not printed books, for, he said: "I do not want to write anything that is not true." So he got his knowledge from those walking men and women who were books to him.

We who love books to have special ones handy, from which to read often, but far more enjoyable is the reading of living hand, in hand, of friends who continually inspire, teach, and stimulate us!

ALTERNATIVE FOR DANGEROUS OPERATION

Out of whole cloth many doctors who still use nineteenth century methods left their gullible customers that the newfangled ambulant methods, such as diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment of infected tonsils, injection treatment of internal hemorrhoids and injection treatment of hernia (rupture, breach), are "no good," "dangerous," used only by quacks" or have been "tried and found wanting."

In most instances when there is substantial reason (not just a feeling) to believe a patient's trouble is due to a focus of infection in one or both tonsils diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment is at least as effective as the major operation, in my opinion.

Of course, my opinion may have no weight as against the opinion of the trick specialist who wants to perpetuate the atrocity known as tonsillectomy, where your throat or maybe your life is concerned. But I assure you that if my tonsil or tonsils were found the best treatment would be electro-coagulation, not medical surgery, when that I found having an operation—my experience as a patient with gangrenous appendicitis and ruptured ulcer—but I prefer the safer treatment if there is an alternative.

There are two reasons why the diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment for infected tonsils is not as popular as tonsillectomy: (1) Few physicians have the moral courage to think for themselves; it is easier for them to continue using crude nineteenth century methods—and the operation known as "tonsillectomy" is atrocious; (2) As long as they can get away with the doctrine that easily the ever-ready operators have no incentive to study the greater art of skill it takes to apply electro-coagulation successfully.

A man almost completely disabled by joint trouble "tried" a variety of heaters in his community and, of course, obtained no relief. So he drew his savings from the bank and went to the "clinic" 800 miles away. They always look better far away from home. When he had been run through the works at the clinic—the forceps of tests which could have been made as well and at less expense back home—the first Frequency for Maternity.

Farmers Dream of Riches As Steel Firm Seeks Ore Under Northumberland Farms

Campbellford April 12—Three Northumberland county families two and one half miles north of here have been keeping their fingers crossed ever since a large U.S. steel company moved a heavy diamond drill on their property three months ago. A neighbor, Howard Clark, sold the iron mining rights to his property for a lot better than $25,000, a relative reports, while neighbor Neil Hooper, Tom Mahoney and Tommy Campbell decided to gamble with the company and hold royalties on production. The steel company paid out some cash for trespassing privileges before it staked out most of 400 acres of land preparing for a magnitometer survey.

A Morlectte drilling crew of Haileybury punched five holes into the mineralized zone on Neil Hooper's farm before they were forced to abandon operations due to poor water supply. They are expected to return to complete two more holes any day now.

Surface exploration indicates that the bulk of the deposit lies under Neil Hooper's land, where the overburden in places reaches a depth of 70 feet. Mr. Hooper watched the drillers for two and a half months and got words of encouragement from them, but has had no reports on the cores from the company assayers.

"About two years ago, Frank Robson, a geologist from Belleville, was driving along a side-road in Seymour township when a dip needle he had on the seat beside him started to gyrate crazily," Mr. Hooper relates. "You can't imagine how surprised I was when the mining man came to the door and told me I had mineral on my property." I'd satisfied myself to plug along at hard work the rest of my days."

"I'm doing business with Warren S. Moore of Duluth, Minnesota, who represents the Minnesota and Huron Iron Company. He's been very fair and lived up to his word. He uses my lawyer in Campbellford for his business here."

The Hoopers have no idea how much money they'd realize from their property if it was developed for iron ore. They know they would have plenty, however, because a representative of the U. S. steel company who holds the option on their property told them royalties have been paid families of the original Missanabi range landowners for three generations.

Neil Hooper is anxious to see the mine start but he doesn't allow himself to become excited about the thoughts of becoming fabulously rich, "If it works out I'll continue farming on the ground as long as there's any left and if it turns out I'll have to keep plodding," he observed.

The steel company's options run out in June, but the farmers with the interests figure that the big action will start before then.

WALLBRIDGE
Women's Institute Elects Officers

The Wallbridge Women's Institute was recently entertained at the home of Mrs. J. Sine. The meeting opened in the usual manner with a fair attendance of members present. Mrs. Lane presided at the meeting.

After the business had been finished, 'thank-you' letters and cards were read for publication for cards sent to those who had been ill, and from Mrs. Westover and Mrs. Spencer for fruit and plant received during their illness, were read. Secretaries and presidents are eligible to attend conference this year.

The district president was honored by a visit to the district president, Mrs. George Burkitt, of Frankford, who presented the extension service for the homemaker, and how to arrange a service, which is an improvement over the co-operative program planning.

Look Out, There!

Safety officials say that motor vehicles backing up cause more accidents for each mile travelled than moving forward. Good drivers always look carefully behind them before backing up and then back up slowly. The dangerous situation illustrated here shows how such precautions can pay.

Licence Plates Will be White On Blue Back

Toronto, April 12—(CP)—Ontario's motor licence plates next year will have white numbers on a dark blue background. They will also show the crown, dropped from the plates last year.

A sample plate was displayed in the legislature yesterday by acting Highways Minister Dunbar.

The plate will not, however, carry the provincial coat of arms. Mr. Dunbar said recently that the coat of arms would appear on the plates together with the crown.

For 1952, motorists are using 1951 plates validated by a yellow windshield sticker.

Little Miss Jo Anne McDonald, niece of the bride, was flower girl and looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white taffeta with blue tuffets, trimmed with lace. She wore matching mitts and carried a basket of sweetpeas and yellow rosebuds.

Ronald Dunham, of Centralia, was best man, and Irving Dunham, Lansdowne, was usher.

A reception was held at the bridegroom and the bride's mother received wearing a navy shot taffeta and a corsage of pink carnations.

The happy couple left on a wedding trip to western points, and the bride wearing a lilac suit with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

The happy couple leave soon for Camp Lagerquist, Fort Churchill, since the groom is in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Las Palmas

By Lavonia Stockelbach

Mrs. Stockelbach, will be remembered by many Ontario Intelligencer readers as the author of the series of articles "Hastings in Erin," which appeared over two years ago. She has written also other interesting features which have been printed from time to time in this newspaper. At present she is staying at the Canary Islands before leaving for Morocco. The article which follows is the first of a new series. The editor.

In order to have a much needed rest, I decided to go to Las Palmas, Canary Islands, and to complete last year's North African travels, go to Morocco with headquarters there in Casablanca, go about a little in a car and make comparisons with Tunis and Algeria; then go on to Portugal, the land of Henry the Navigator, who had for mother Philippa of England.

First, there had to be deposited in Stratford-upon-Avon my Shakespeare bird-painting miniatures - - - for exhibition - - - to be exhibited there throughout the year of the Shakespeare Festival. Stratford knows quite definitely, in addition to many talks about pictures and things, that the artist had her first training in Belleville Collegiate Institute, and immediately a very stiff training it was. The engineer was very kind, only sailing date that suited, went on that big vessel though I do not like ships at all with perfection from the captain down. The food was vastly superior to that of the French liner sailing a year ago, the service smooth and easy as England was could give and still gives. So the engineer was very kind in all arrangements of the ship that one had not previously had experienced, size and so could feel at home with friends.

Met With Accident

Storms on the Atlantic can be quite bad. The one that faces up to us outside New York harbor was "just a capful of wind" but it put a jolt in the speed of the baggage train, and in a minor accident (Ed. Note: Mrs. Stockelbach tell and broke her jaw during the voyage) kept me in London three weeks where, in between times, I had the pleasure of business to meet friends and go to see the exhibition of the work of Leonardo da Vinci and of all other usual things.

It is often said that the American dentist is tops in his field but my experience in the hands of one of London's talented dental surgeons proved the contrary. The speed and skill and the kind gentleness (if there can be such a thing in a difficult bit of work) without benefit of anaesthetic was greatly beyond anything New York - - - had ever given - - - Name supplied on request.

Everything being in workable shape, permission was given for the journey to the Canaries. The sailing of the Llandovery of the Union Castle Line had been postponed for a week, but that fact fitting in with plans had to be discarded and a seat was found in a flying boat of the Aquila Line from Southampton via Madeira to Las Palmas, my first experience and not a desired one. There was a quick rearrangement of packing and about nine in the evening the train was to pull out of Waterloo Station. It did but I didn't.

Flight Delayed

Some official "contacted" me at the station and said that the flight was not for twenty-four hours owing to a defective part of the machine; the irate passengers were decanted from the train and returned to their hotels. My surprise should be upset by change of plans seemed to me to be understood. It is so constantly happening in the course of the most notable Portuguese honey, and of course coffee.

While re-fueling went on there was a chance to gather a few wild flowers and watch the same glory of spray and as we could into the distance. The next night customs nor passport seem to be considered but we were ushered into the most attractive dining room where we were served perfect breakfast on this sublime Sunday morning. First, real orange juice, then delicious tender ham and scrambled eggs fresh and not overdone, a rare occurrence, also fresh and

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

In answer to your request for a Dutch Cake to which Mary R., is referring, I think the following may be the one she tasted:

ONTBIJKOEK (Breakfast Cake)

Eight eggs separated, 2 2-4 cups brown sugar, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 3 1-2 teaspoons cloves, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons candied lemon peel minced, 4 tablespoons candied citron, minced, 1-2 cup almonds, coarsely ground.

Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored, slowly add the sugar and beat for five minutes. Sift flour, baking soda, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg together and add slowly to egg mixture. Add lemon peel, citron and almonds and mix well. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into a well-greased pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. Fahr.) for about 40 minutes.

I enjoy your column tremendously especially as I firmly believe that cooking is fun, and am an ardent recipe collector.

I wonder if you have a recipe for fudge made with sweetened condensed milk—the type cooked the normal way until the soft ball stage?—Lise R.

ANSWER:

When I received your letter I telephoned my Dutch friend Reini and asked her how to pronounce "Ontbijkoek". She strung off something like "ohjkuk" and I said "Fine—now it's not a cake or mud". Then I read her the recipe. "Oh Mrs. Moore, why not you ask me when you need them (the word again) ontbijkoek". Then she said by this was exactly the right recipe and she would make me one for Sunday morning's breakfast—and she did! It was wonderful. Thank you so much Lise, because it's fun to cook!

CHOCOLATE FUDGE

Two cups sugar, 1 cup water, 1 (15-oz.) tin sweetened condensed milk, 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 1 cup chopped nuts are optional. In large saucepan mix together the sugar, water and bring to boiling point. Add the sweetened condensed milk and boil over low heat until mixture will form a soft ball when tested in cold water (236 deg. Fahr.). Stir mixture constantly to prevent burning. Remove from heat and add chocolate shredded or cut small. Stir until melted. Add chopped nuts if used. Beat until thick and creamy and until gloss marks hold their shapes slightly. Pour into buttered pan. When cool mark into squares.

QUESTION:

Is there any way I could get a copy of the uncooked fruit cake recipe?—Miss L, R. S.

ANSWER:

There sure is. Right here.

UNBAKED FRUIT CAKE

One lb. graham cracker fine crumbs, 1 lb. seedless sultana raisins, 1 lb. chopped dried figs, 1-3 cup drained maraschino cherries chopped, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1 lb. chopped marshmallows, 1 pint cream whipped. Mix together the fine graham cracker crumbs, chopped fruits and nuts and marshmallows, and whole cherries. Mix well. Whip the cream stiffly and fold into this mixture. Pack into paper-lined loaf pan and pack it down very well, using back of large spoon, and bake top uncovered. Chill for at least 24 hours or more. When needed, cut in slices with very sharp knife, and slip each slice in powdered sugar.

QUESTION:

I find your column most helpful and your recipes are super . . . repeat the one made with fresh lemons and evaporated for a frozen dessert will you . . . one reader suggested pasting your recipes on cards . . . it's an excellent idea. . . . I'm enclosing my quick cocoa cake recipe.—Marg L.

QUICK COCOA CAKE

(No eggs, no butter.) —Contributed by Marg. L.

One and one-thirds cups cake flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Sift above ingredients together 3 times. Place in mixing bowl, make a hole in middle and pour in: 5 tablespoons (corn) oil, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix all together just until blended. Pour into ungreased 9-inch square pan and bake 1-2 hour in 350 deg. oven. This cake should stand 3 hours before icing otherwise it is very moist.

ANSWER:

Thanks for the quick cocoa cake. I call the frozen lemon dessert

NEW YORK LEMON ICE CREAM

I hope this is the recipe you want.

Mix 4 beaten egg yolks with 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup evaporated milk and 1-2 cup water. Cook this slowly in top of double boiler, stirring, until mixture coats back of spoon. Remove from heat and chill thoroughly. Now you must have 1 cup of evaporated milk which has been chilled almost to the point of freezing for it is to be whipped—with a cold beater in a chilled bowl. Whip the chilled 1 cup evaporated milk, add 2 tablespoons lemon juice from fresh lemons, and fold in the chilled custard mixture. Add 1-2 teaspoons vanilla. Pour into freezing tray and freeze for at least four hours. It does not require stirring during the freezing process.

Queen Mary-Prince Charles Home-School Association Presents Child-Adult Program

Wednesday evening spacious auditorium of Prince Charles school was filled to capacity with parents, friends and residents of monthly meeting of the Queen Mary-Prince Charles Home and School Association.

Mrs. W. H. Follwell presided over the business period which included the presentation to Mr. Coxson, the resigning caretaker, of a walled clock in appreciation for his faithfulness to duties; the roll call, "Something I like to do" nee being awarded to Mrs. Anderson's class for juniors, to Miss Wilson's class for seniors of Queen Mary school, to Miss Arkell class for juniors, and to Mr. Bateman's seniors, of Prince Charles school, for highest attendance of parents at the meeting.

The program, in charge of Mrs. C. D. Fuzzen, was in two parts; the first part comprised of children each wearing an enlarged, and the adult part consisting of a presentation entitled, "Scatter-ed Showers," by the Belleville Theatre Guild, under the direction of Mrs. Bradford.

Children's Part Well Done

The children's program, in its many numbers, was exceedingly well done; and included rhythm band, by the primary division; the "Easter Parade," an adorable story of spring with its lovely flowers depicted by little children each wearing an enlarged cardboard replica of the flower designated, and mentioning something regarding the flower itself. They made a pretty picture, the kneeling crocuses, tulips, daffodils and violets, background by a host of other lovely flowers.

Thomas McMullen and Terry Silsbury each gave humorous readings; Thomas, the "Bumblebee" who backfired When he; Tommy, smelled the flowers, leaving him with a greatly enlarged proboscis, much to the merriment of his friends, and Terry, who shamelessly exposed the nose-powdering female in all her weakness.

Barbara Simpson, Joyce Deline and Mary Victor, three little girls of the "Easter Parade" added their quota by songs, two of whom substituted at the last moment for those who were unable to be present.

Easter Hymn

A chorus by grade VIII pupils, under the direction of Miss Clara Wilson, rendered with much feeling and sweetness, resurrection hymn, "Low in the Grave He Lay," unaccompanied.

Master Ronald McBride conducted his "squib" contributed to the evening by a splendid rendition of "Yankee Doodle Boy Straw."

The highlight of the evening was the adult presentation of the playlet, "Scattered Showers" by the Belleville Theatre Guild, under the direction of Mrs. Bradford.

The Cast

The climax revolved around the bed-bound fronts its mounting with the three children in it; the erratic actions of the nervous mother; the shouting of the domineering mother contrasted vividly with the quiet and effective guidance of the other, resulting in the curing of three little lives.

Mrs. C. D. Fuzzen introduced the president of the Theatre Guild players, Mrs. W. J. Doyle, who in turn introduced the director of the playlet, Mrs. G. Bradford.

Appreciative thanks were tendered the-cast Elsie Punchard, Hilda Burgess, Vera Thompson for their exceptionally fine delineation of character, by Mrs. G. MacDonald. Appreciation is also tendered to the director Mrs. Fuzzen, and to all for an outstanding evening.

A leadership training school will be held late in May at the Belleville Collegiate under the supervision of Mrs. McIntosh of Kingston, for the purpose of training members to take their place at Home and School executives, no one need refuse an office because he or she does not understand what is required of either him or her.

Coffee and cake were served following the close of the program.

POSSIBLE IN FIVE YEARS

Paris, April 10 — (Reuters) — Trans-Atlantic television transmission between North America and Europe will be technically possible in five years time, perhaps less, Mr. Taylor, Director of the National Broadcasting Company, New York, said here today. Taylor said one of the big difficulties in international transmission is lack of standardization between countries on receiving sets and broadcasting equipment.

Shalom From Israel

ELAT

(Article 20)

Beer Ora, Israel — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Elat built Eat and brought it back to Judah," (II Kings 14, 22). There are few places in Israel which receive more attention or "publicity than the town of Elat. This sea port of the Red Sea is located at the southernmost point of Israel and adds strength to Israel's claim of being the "gateway to the east." Writers in this part of the world often speak of Elat as being a place with a well-known past and a promising future, but no present.

Elat is known throughout the world because it is mentioned in the Bible and in most history books of the Middle East. One of the main reasons for its fame is the fact that just north of Elat lie the famous copper mines of King Solomon. The huge smelting furnaces which have been recently unearthed at this place were built by the hand of Solomon's Elat must have been the Pittsburgh of the Middle East. They were worked by the slaves of King Solomon and from Elat the copper was shipped to all parts of the known world at that time.

At the time when India and the Far East were the world's most important economic and trading centres, Elat also played an important role. Ships would bring rich cargoes via the Red Sea to Elat and there the cargoes would be taken via caravan through the Negev and hence to the Mediterranean where they were shipped to all countries bordering on the sea.

"Operation Fact"

During the Israeli war of independence, Elat was taken by the Haganah Defence Army of Israel in what military experts term "a brilliant operation and involved no loss of life whatsoever. The name of the operation was "Mattsa Oudi" meaning "operation fact." The aim of the operation was to put the Israel before the world that Elat was an integral part of Israel.

A group of us set out early one morning from de Beer Ora to visit Elat and the surrounding terrain. This trip was to take us not only to Elat but also the Sinai Desert and the very borders of Egypt. We travelled by truck over the unpaved road and all the way our group sang "Hey Daroma D'Elat" or Southward to Elat—a song very popular in this country. As we approached the outskirts of the town the sun was just coming up from behind the mountains of Trans Jordan and it painted the landscape with a rich red color presenting a panoramas of beauty.

In the distance we could see the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, before us the Red Sea and the Gulf of Akaba, on whose west shore stands the port of Akaba, which at the present time is manned by a British garrison and in whose harbor may be seen ships of Royal Navy.

Not Very Large

Elat appears no larger nor more developed than an average Israeli collective settlement called a kibbutz. It consists of ten or 12 wooden prefabricated buildings and several cement bungalows. Building activities may be seen going on all over the area and new houses are continually rising. There is one small canteen and this is the only shop of any sort in the town whose civilians and service personnel alike can purchase all of their necessities.

A short distance from the canteen stands Elat's hotel. This is an old U-shaped, single-storey, cement building which during British mandate days housed police barracks and was then the only building in the locality. On a hill and overlooking the town stands a rather large and beautiful new building which serves as the headquarters of the local branch of the prime minister's office and the Negev commission. The Negev commission is a department of the prime minister's office which deals with the planning of Israel's Negev development.

Many Paradoxes

Elat teems with paradoxes. It has no town hall, no local government, no police, no post office nor even a post box, yet it has an amphitheatre of which any town would be proud, and it has street lighting, which is a notable omission in some well-populated areas of Israel. It has no park yet there is a beautiful botanical garden.

The present rough living conditions discourage the growth of family life in the town. Today one does not come to Elat with the intention of settling, because there are no food shops and even a loaf of bread cannot be bought there (although a bakery is nearing completion.)

Anyone living in this frontier town must eat at the army mess or at the hotel. Since civilian facilities are lacking, the army is responsible for the provision of vital public services. Thus Elat has assumed the character of a rough frontier town under the necessary army supervision and protection and slowly but surely it is being built up to become Israel's doorway to the East.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 10 — (AP)—Cowpoke Rod Cameron is back from India, minus 30 pounds from his lean frame and filled with tales of movie making in that country.

Cameron dropped the pounds age because of his diet, which largely consisted of canned tuna and cheese. No curry for Rod.

"Did you know that India has the second biggest film industry in the world, second only to ours?" he asked over a plate of corned beef hash.

"But unlike our industry, which is centred in Hollywood, theirs is spread out all over the country. And their pictures are a great deal different from ours.

"For instance, time means nothing to them. They might take a year or a year and a half to make a picture. Language has a lot to do with this. There are 15 different languages and 300 dialects in India. The average shot over and over again in all the principal languages. But aside from the language difficulty, they are in no hurry anyway.

"There are far fewer stars than we have in Hollywood, and they are highly paid and much in demand. A star might be rupees ($25,000) a year, making several pictures at once and can earn as much as 125,000

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A redouble is often used as a request for an obligatory pass alternative. This sounds like a simple if meaningless oratory, but there is plenty of know-how therein.

When a player redoubles, he tells partner he can help make the bid that has been doubled. In some spots, the redouble has another meaning. It promises to help make a game, if more profitable.

This combination of meanings develops a third proposition. It tells partner: "If opponents crawl out of this redouble with another bid, you must not bid. If unable to double, leave it to me."

South opened with a bid of one spade with this hand:

♠A Q J 9 7
♥A K 6

West doubled for takeout. North redoubled. What bid of clubs. What should south do now? Knowing from the north redouble that game is in their pals, south is tempted to bid his spades again.

But he should not. Nor should he double two clubs when unsure of defeating such a bid. He should pass and let north have a crack at it, knowing north will take some direct action.

The north redouble was this multiple signal: "Partner we can make this bid; we can make game in something; if you are unable to double their next bid, wait to see what I can do about it."

Thus, it is an obligatory pass alternative. It obligates the partner of redoubler, to double the next opponent bid, or, as an alternative, pass and see if the redoubler can do so.

In case of an obligatory pass, the redoubler promises not to let the bidding die. If he does not double two clubs, he promises to bid something that gives partner another chance to bid.

The signal thus takes the pressure off partner who needs not double for penalty on hopes, and needs not bid again for fear the bidding may end.

A real decision promise relieves a doubling Thomas.

Red Wings Take Cup Opener 3-1 After A Nine-Day Layoff; Play 2nd In Montreal Tonight

By W. E. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, April 12 (CP)—The only thing sure about tonight's Stanley Cup hockey game is there will be no overtime.

Detroit Red Wings, favorites over Montreal Canadiens in this best-of-seven cup final, have the first game already stowed away. The Wings took Thursday's opener 3-1, a game highlighted by constant prazzling from an erratic time-clock.

If the teams are tied after 60 minutes of regulation play, they'll quit then and there by official whistle. There is a train to catch so the teams can be on hand for the third game in Detroit Sunday night.

Good Friday was no holiday for the Red Wings. They had an hour's brisk workout at the Forum. Canadiens took a rest.

The Wings went into the series after a nine-day layoff, awaiting the outcome of the Boston-Montreal semi-final. It took Canadiens seven tough games to get past the Boston Bruins.

Looked Sluggish

In the first period Thursday night the Wings looked sluggish, a little off the necessary tempo for world series hockey. Canadiens missed golden opportunities. On other assaults on the Detroit nets, goalie Terry Sawchuk snuffed out the goal bids. Goalie Gerry McNeil of Canadiens also put on a commendable show, and this series may yet come down to a sheer battle of goal-tenders.

Tony Leswick, Detroit's alert little wingman, scored two of this teams goals. Neither could be blamed on McNeil.

The third came near the end of the game, after McNeil had been taken from the nets and put before the full force of the time - clock somersoule had erupted. Ted Lindsay lifted the puck into the open net.

Leswick's first goal, in the second period, came while McNeil and his two defencemen were sprawled on the ice. Leswick pounced on the loose puck and flipped it in.

In the third period, Leswick let go with a long drive, just inside the Montreal blue line, and the screened shot whipped into the net. Four minutes later, Tom Johnson rapped in Canadiens' lone goal, from just outside the crease, after Sawchuk had blocked Bert Olmstead's shot.

There was some speculation early today that Red Kelly, Detroit's brilliant defenceman, might miss tonight's game. Kelly is still suffering from an injury to his hand and was used sparingly in Thursday's game.

The Wings are still without defenceman Leo Nistor, who injured his foot in practice before the series started. If Kelly doesn't play, Ivan probably will use Hugh Coflin, from Detroit's Indianapolis farm.

New Haven Player Attacks Referee; Draws Suspension

New Haven, Conn., April 12 — (AP) — President Tom Lockhart of the Eastern Hockey League said yesterday that Joe Desmond, captain of New Haven Tomahawks, is under automatic suspension as the result of an attack upon Referee Mike Slowik in a game between the Hawks and Johnstown Jets here Thursday night.

Lockhart said he will notify all other leagues in organized hockey as to that effect.

Asked if that meant a lifetime ban on the veteran defenceman, a native of Niagara Falls, Ont., Lockhart said "It could amount to that."

Lockhart said Desmon has been suspended for receiving a game misconduct penalty for plunging Slowik head-first into the boards.

Hurl Desmo on Ice

Desmond was arrested by police after the affair, had a breach-of-the-peace charge continued in New Haven court until April 16 if he is free on $500 bail.

Lockhart also said that any repetition of Thursday night's barrage of debris from the fans in the fifth game of the E. H. L. championship playoffs, in which the Jets lead New Haven 3-1, would result in immediate forfeit of the game and the series to Johnstown."

The fifth game will be played here Sunday night.

Slowik was foiled by Desmon's charge and remained in a dazed condition for several minutes before continuing the game. Later he was treated in hospital for a 6da laceration received in an earlier fall after a collision with two players.

The score — Johnstown 4, New Haven 1 — was almost overlooked in the excitement that saw endof-the-rink bleacherites tearing up their seats to shower the ice with pieces of wood and metal.

So much debris, including heavy pieces of metal, rained onto the ice around the Johnstown net that the Jets refused to go on with the game. After several minutes' delay, Johnstown was allowed to defend the opposite net and the game continued.

Madoc Will Meet Campbellford In Tourney Final

Campbellford and Madoc won the second round games in the Belleville Hockey Association's elimination tournament at Memorial Arena on Thursday night. The two teams clash on Monday night for the tournament and the J. N. Vanover Trophy.

Campbellford's smart team which won the OMHA midget championship defeated the Trenton squad by an 8-4 count while Madoc had little difficulty in turning back Deseronto's threat by a 10-5 score.

The Trenton squad took the Campbellford team into overtime before they bowed in defeat with the midget squad firing home four goals in the extra time. Trenton led 3-2 going into the third period but Campbellford fired home a pair from Laing and Garvey to tie the score after Mitts had scored another Trenton goal.

Garvey paced the winners with three goals with Wilson scoring one and getting three assists, Girard, Laing, Ruttan and Doorer getting the extra time.

Mitts scored a pair for Trenton with Scott and Miller contributing the remaining pair.

Paced by Mantle's five goals the Madoc team turned back the Deseronto squad scoring six goals in the first period. There was no scoring in the second but the midcounty villagers scored four more in the third heat.

Business Girls Trim Whitby, Nurses Lose

In a nip and tuck battle the O.S.D. team edged out the Nurses by a score of 32-31 in the second place playoff game of the Y.M. C.A. Ladies' Basketball League, and won the right to engage the first place Business Girls in a best two out of three series. The series will commence on April 22.

In an exhibition game which followed, the Business Girls defeated Whitby 39-11. In the first contest Nurses led by 9-7 at the half way mark but were unable to maintain their lead in the last quarter against the extra pressure of the O.S.D.

D. Wiltse was top scorer on the floor gaining 15 points for O.S.D. while M. Tobin scored 6 and H. McCamman scored 1. J. Crossman scored 12 points for Nurses, H. Aston scored 3 and S. Scale, L. Rand and V. Williams scored 2 points each.

D. McLean scored 7 points for the Business Ladies against Whitby. M. Coupe and M. Marzoff scored 6 points each, B. Gibson scored 5, S. Culkin and S. McLeod scored 4 points and P. Poulos 1. For Whitby G. White scored 5 points and Jean Stewart 4 points. Judd and Doug Soule handled the Belleville-Whitby tilt, with Don Dolan as referee and timekeeper, while George Garrow and Soule officiated for the playoff between O.S.D. and Nurses.

Talbot Calls Indians, Yanks In That Order

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, April 12 (AP) —It will come as no surprise to our readers to learn that Cleveland Indians are going to reward their loyal following with an American League flag. This, though, is now the full final standing in the circuit:

1-Cleveland; 2-New York; 3- Detroit; 4-Boston; 5-St. Louis; 6-Chicago; 7-Philadelphia; 8-Washington.

For the daily double we recommend Nos. 1 and 2. Any other combinations might be accompanied by a slight element of risk, but you can go to sleep on the two big teams. By mid-August the other six clubs won't know which way they went.

If the Indians miss this time, this year the Yankees lose both Joe DiMaggio and Gerry Coleman, we promise faithfully never again to pick them higher than the second division.

Junior Hawks Drop Third Straight Game To Weston Dukes By A 5-3 Score

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TOUGHIE TO LOSE

At one time we had the game "in the bag". At least that is what it looked like midway through the second period with the Hawks coming up with their best display of the current junior "B" semi-finals series and enjoying a two-goal lead over the starry Weston Dukes.

Then it happened. McCarthy loosed a puck that fairly sizzled smoke as he blasted it at Barclay in the Hawks nets. The goalie saved the shot, stood for a second then willed to the ice as the puck dropped from between his legs and rolled over the goal-line to make the count three-two. Players of both sounds gravitated around him and trainers of both teams came out. The smart Hawk netminder had suffered a painful groin injury and had to be helped from the ice. He returned within a few minutes and the crowd of 1,200 fans, a lot of them from Belleville, gave the plucky youngster a fine ovation.

However the injury had definitely upset Barclay's form and the Dukes scored the tying goal on the second play after resumption. It was a tough break for the Belleville kids. But the damage was done and although they skated the proverbial miles they could not poke the puck past Albani in the Weston net while Messrs. Harris, Jamieson and McCarthy opportunists of the first water went out to give the Dukes their third straight victory.-"

The Hawks would have been in difficulties had Barclay been disabled and unable to continue since Bobby Green the spare goalie did not make the trip having had to go to Watertown, N.Y.

Harry Brown was in uniform for the first time since the beginning of the season, but his leg had not fully recovered from its injury and Brownie did not display his usual form although he tossed a few of the Dukes around and drawing one of the latter five penalties. Hosler's penalty in the third period was a costly one since the Dukes roared through for the winning goal when he was doing time.

Weston comes here Tuesday night in what they feel will be the last game of the four-of-seven series, but the Hawks have other ideas. After last night's game they feel they can take the measure of the haughty Little Leafs in at least one game and force the series into at least another tilt. And if they come up with the kind of hockey they played last night and get their share of the "breaks" they might do just that thing. They looked extremely good to these hockey - weary eyes up to the time of Barclay's injury.

WORLD TITLE FIGHT

The eyes of the boxing world will be on Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott on June 5 when they meet for the fourth titular bout at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium. An anticipated capacity and a couple of Philly police athletic leagues. The fighters will receive 30 per cent of the take.

Charles is confident he can regain the crown he lost to Jersey Joe in their third meeting. "It can be tough" he says, "for a guy like Walcott knows every fight might be his last and he will give it everything. But I don't think he'll surprise me like he did the last time."

Walcott with a. "happy to be at home fighting before my home town fans" note said he would do his best to retain the championship. He has not fought outside of exhibitions since he won the title while Charles has met and defeated Rex Layne, Joey Maxim and Joe Kahut.

TOURNAMENT FINALS MONDAY

Campbellford's smart little hockey team which won the Ontario Minor Hockey Association's medjet ETAOIN xniff the favorites to cop the J. N. Yanover Trophy emblematic of minor hockey supremesy in the district. The Campbellford youngsters rallied strongly in overtime on Thursday night to score four goals and defeat the plucky Trenton crew by an 8-4 count. Meanwhile Madoc blanked the Deseronto team by a 19-0 count to win the right to meet Campbellford in the tournament final on Monday night.

Madoc boasts a powerful little squad, one that should give the clever Campbellford youngsters quite a tussle. There is only one game scheduled for Monday night when the titular game will be played in Memorial Arena. An admission charge of 25 cents will be levied. Hockey lovers should not pass up this game between two of the districts smartest minor squads.

Were Headed for 1st Victory When Barclay Suffers Injury; Play Best Game of Jr. Series

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Weston, Ont.— One of those things that make or break hockey games crept into the picture here last night and sent the Belleville Hawks down to their third straight defeat in their junior "B" semi-finals series with the Weston Dukes. The score was 5-3. The teams meet in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series in Belleville next Tuesday night.

It came out of a blue sky when the Hawks, playing by far the best game of the series, were enjoying a two-goal lead and appeared headed for their first victory of the series.

McCarthy, starry Weston sniper, raced down the ice flanked by Reid and Glover. The trio sifted two lightning-like passes across the ice and McCarthy let go a blazing drive that caught Don Barclay in the groin. The puck trickled through his legs into the net to put the Dukes within a 3-2 striking distance.

Barclay fell to the ice painfully injured and after a few minutes examination was taken to the dressing room. The starry goalie who has been a definite standout all season and especially in the series with Weston was plainly affected by the injury and on the first play after his return to the ice Glover flipped McCarthy's pass into the net to tie the score.

Extra Finish Told Tale

It was an all-out battle from there in with both squads racing in relentless offensives. The extra pollish and finish of the "little Leafs" around the opposing nets finally paid off and they fired home two counters in the third period to chalk up their third win.

The Hawks, led by Lalande's sparkling performance gave Albani in the Weston nets some anxious moments in the final chucker but the stocky youngster held all the Hawk efforts to park the puck behind him. Three shots hit the post in the Hawks last period drive.

REC LALANDE
. . . Flew All Night

ing a penalty. The Hawk defence got the gate for alleged holding in the second play of the game.

Tied the Score

The Hawks evened the count 11 minutes later when Strahan and Lalande swept down the ice with Jacklin. Strahan sloshed a pass over to Lalande in front of the Weston goal and the starry little centre made no mistake in a low corner shot.

The same trio repeated the manoeuvre five minutes later with Jacklin firing home Strahan's pass to put the Hawks one up.

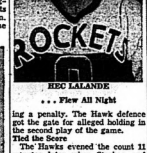
Harry Brown who made his first appearances in a Hawk uniform since early in the season got the gate for charging after five minutes of the second period and the Dukes rushed in on the offensive. Billy Strahan snared a loose puck and raced down the ice to beat Albani for the third Hawks goal and it seemed the Hawks were headed for their first victory.

Then came the injury to Barclay and the Dukes took over to tie the count and go on to register their third winner.

The Strahan-Lalande-Jacklin line was the best for the Hawks with the former scoring one goal and getting two assists, Jacklin got the third Hawk marker with Lalande being credited with a goal and a pair of helpers. Barclay came up with another sparkling performance in the net.

Jamieson, who has seen service with the junior 'A' Marlborough was the trigger man for the Dukes getting two goals and an assist. Glover also stood out with some fine rushing, netting the puck twice and also turning in a fine job of assist. Harris turned in his usual starry performance although he was well watched by the Hawk defence. He assisted Jamieson on both goals.

The Teams



Belleville: Goal, Barclay; defence, Brown, Munroe; centre, Lalander; wings, Strahan, Jacklin; subs, Green, Gilmour, Therrien, Houle, Doree, Mason, DeGray.

DON BARCLAY
. . . Injured, But Good

The game was rugged in spots with Referees "Pat" Patterson of Toronto and "Red" Farrell of Galt letting the rather obvious charging on the part of the Dukes get away from them. They penalized the Hawks once for having too many players on the ice. They handed out 10 sentences all told with the teams splitting count. Hawks suffered three of their sin bin sojourns in the third period. Houle got the gate for slashing after eight minutes of play and Glover ripped in from a Duke's power play to score the winning goal. Jamieson another of the Weston stars scored the insurance marker with a minute and a half to go when he broke away with Harris from a Hawk goalie attack.

The Dukes drew first scoring blood after 1.43 of the first period when Jamieson roared in with Harris while Bob Wilson was serv-

Tom Gard's Note Book

Some months ago I handed out a tip as to how one might antique an old picture frame. This must have aroused considerable interest for the matter has continued to pop up from time to time. It is a pleasure to repeat the formula.

TO ANTIQUE A PICTURE FRAME

Old picture frames, heavily ornamented with deep carvings are ideal for the purpose. In applying the glazing field the trick is to brush it on evenly, then wipe it immediately by working from the centre towards the edges, or removing it from the high points of the carvings. A light coat of varnish give the finishing touch.

BEDROOM SCREEN

We have a new neighbour on our street. He turns out to be quite handy with tools. His first job after moving in was to construct a fine bedroom screen using B.C. Fir Plywood, and when finished he started to construct a second one for his sister, but this time he utilized some leftover beaver board panels. It is a question which is most attractive.

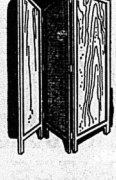
BIRD FEEDING STATION

A naturalist friend has constructed a bird feeding station from an old piano seat, the top being of glass to permit full view of the feeding. Another bird feeder is made in the same purpose. He endeavoured to impress upon his visitors that the closed seat should always face the prevailing wind as this prevented the feed from being blown away.

STRETCHER FOR SOCKS

Necessity is the mother of invention, so my friend George turned a coat-hanger into a stretcher for socks. To make it more attractive he gave it a coat of enamel by simply dipping it in the can and then hanging it up to dry.

AROUND THE HOME



TO ANTIQUE AN OLD PICTURE FRAME

BRUSH ON AN "ANTIQUE GLAZE," COMPLETELY COVERING THE SURFACE - THEN WIPE IT OFF IMMEDIATELY, EXCEPT THE PORTION THAT NATURALLY REMAINS IN DEPRESSIONS. IF DOING LARGE OBJECT, SUCH AS A TABLE, DO A PORTION AT A TIME, ENDEAVOURING TO SECURE A UNIFORM SPREAD.

RECIPE FOR GLAZE

1 TABLESPOON OF CLEAR VARNISH
3 TABLESPOONS OF PURE TURPENTINE
1½ TEASPOONFULS OIL COLOUR RAW UMBER
ADD MORE OR LESS OIL COLOUR FOR A DEEPER OR LIGHTER ANTIQUE. STIR THOROUGHLY.
IF IN DOUBT CONSULT YOUR LOCAL PAINT MERCHANT.

BEDROOM SCREEN - FROM ⅞" PLYWOOD. HEIGHT 64". PANELS 17-½" WIDE STRIPS OF ½" MOULDING FOR TRIM. STRONG HINGES.

SOCK STRETCHER - EASILY MADE FROM OLD METAL COAT HANGER.

BIRD FEEDING STATION - THAT CAN BE MOVED TO ANY DESIRED LOCATION. UPPER PORTION MAY BE MADE OF GLASS, FASTENED INTO GROOVES OR STRIPS OF MOULDING.

You'll find many other interesting and helpful suggestions like these in the booklet "Around the Home" published by Molson Breweries Limited, 2-10 Bond Street, Toronto. Write to BREWERIES LIMITED, P.O. Box 490, Postal Station "O", Toronto, Ont., for your copy.

Former British Heavyweight Champ Has Hopes of Making Ring Comeback

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 12. (CP)—Bruce Woodcock, former British, Empire and European heavyweight champion, although temporarily rebuffed by the British Boxing Board of Control, still has hopes of getting a crack at the world heavyweight title.

Said resting on the sidelines for less than 18 months ago by the Cockney ex-guardsman Jack Gardner, the Doncaster battler announced his irrevocable retirement from the ring. But time changed all that and he plunged back into serious training with new-found zest.

At 33, a comparative youngster by the current crop of medicore, aging heavies, Woodcock applied to the Control Board for reinstatement, but the boxing fathers, necessary requirement before he can enter the ring, said "nay."

Boasting he was in the best condition of his career, Bruce said he was ready to take on any foe, preferably Gardner, who won his title when Woodcock was before Gardner himself was dethroned, shortly in March, by the rugged Welsh gamecock, Jack Williams.

Big Wigs No See

The big wigs of British boxing however, couldn't see it that way. They refused to give him back his licence and Bruce best a sullen retreat to his farm to ponder the next move.

Meanwhile, his friends, including the sporting writers and sports writers, pleaded with him to stick to farming.

With almost unanimous voice they reminded him of the mauling he took from Joe Baksi more than three years ago, which he himself acknowledged was the direct cause of the disability that led to his retirement.

Decision Hurt

In his book of ring reminiscences, "Two Fists and a Fortune", Woodcock wrote:

"I quit because I had to, because the eye—the eye that Baksi split—wasn't as sound as it might have been . . . the fact was that the farm Baksi did me out of was repairable. The vision of that eye is permanently affected. Ever since Baksi night I have known I must admit it now—a one-eyed fighter. And when Gardner managed to close my good eye I knew I was beaten . . .

"That's why I tell you now that there is no possibility of my trying to make a comeback, whatever the temptation. I'm out and I'm stopping out for the sake of my health."

But Woodcock argues that all happened long ago. Medical specialists, he says, have expressed complete satisfaction with his recovery from the eye injury and his physical condition generally.

"There's no danger of me going into the ring like a bull at a gate," he told his critics. "I have weighed everything and intend to work up gradually to my best form, taking no chances or accidents as I go."

His wife, Nora, never enthusiastic about the fight game, however, hopes the edict of the control authorities will stick. If so, she may Bruce may open a pub near his Doncaster farm and in his spare time concentrate on the managerial end of the game.

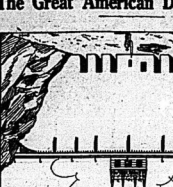
Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)



The Ontario Amateur Softball Association meeting at London yesterday ruled that all players will be allowed to wear gloves. Previously only catchers and first basemen wore them. An unlimited size cleat on softball shoes also was agreed on—the maximum previously being 3-8 of an inch.

Minor teams—bantam and peewee—will be able to use a smaller ball, not less than 10 7-8 inches or more than 11 1-4 inches in circumference. Approval was given to introduction of two new series to aid softball in small communities. They are intermediate 'D' and junior 'D' for centres of under 500 population.

Doug Smith of Toronto was re-elected president and Frank Feaver, Hamilton, secretary. Among those elected to the executive were J. G. Brady, Oshawa and F. F. Stewart, Grimsby Beach.

Canadian troops in the Far East are going to be brought up to date on the Canadian sport. Four sports commentators will leave Vancouver by air April 25 on a two-week tour of Japan and Korea to give illustrated talks to the troops on major events of the last year. They are Douglas Smith of Montreal, Henry Viney of Calgary, William God of Vancouver and Tom Foley of Ottawa.

The Great American Dam Builders

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

The American public has been noted for its tolerance. It stands for abuses with a patience bordering that of Job.' It does not, I think, primarily because this is a great nation. People have confidence in the United States and they refuse to worry about matters which do not immediately and directly concern them.

Periodically the public elects its representatives who go to the national capital as congressmen and senators. The public votes for these men because it believes in them. Then, when it is convinced that they are not doing the job for which they were elected, new representatives are chosen. And so it goes.

The trouble with this rather lax system is that a great deal of damage can be and usually is done before the public rises in its wrath to put a stop to the procedure. Moreover, before changes are made, the public must be informed of what goes on. This takes time.

One of the long-suffering groups of this great nation, of ours is composed of the hunters and fishermen — the outdoorsmen, sportsmen, call them what you will. This group is legion. One of every three persons you pass on the street belongs to that group.

Its members come from every walk of life. They are of both sexes and of all ages. Unfortunately, they are not banded together in a solid unit. Such a unit could indeed swing a powerful political fist, but there is, at present, no such unification.

The result is that relatively small but wealthy and well-organized minority groups are pulling across some pretty highhanded stuff these days. They are hooked in rather closely with the government and they maintain powerful lobbies in Washington. Being well organized, they get things done.

Clever Propaganda

Moreover, they are clever in their propaganda. They dish out this pap in such palapable form that the public is lulled into false security. Not until they see the actual results of this under-cover activity do the sportsmen of the nation realize that another fast one has been put across.

An excellent case in point is the systematic construction of dams in the stream beds of our country. The outstanding builders are, of course, the army engineers and the bureau of reclamation. They already have done much damage and they will do much more unless we, the sportsmen of the nation, curtail their activities.

The dam builders are smart. They label their activities with two magic words - - - "irrigation" and "flood-control." In the right places these two labels will sell an astonishing bill of goods.

To run down, first-hand, the ramifications of the dam builders would be a full-time job for not one but a group of a dozen or more men under central direction. Thus, for this department to comment on dam building, we must be content to do so purely in the capacity of a reporter, taking our information from the findings of others.

Collecting File

For the past year or so, we have been collecting a file of news stories and articles dealing with dam building. Here are some of the highlights, as we have read them. It would be well to give them some thought.

Some months ago, an 80-man committee of the engineers joint council, representing the country's five major engineering societies, prepared a report on our present wasteful national water policy. The authors of this report is unimpeachable.

This report makes several surprising specific charges. For instance, it comes right out and states that "a number of inland waterways projects in existence today are completely void of any justification."

The billion-dollar Missouri basin development "was authorized by congress in haste and without appropriate public hearing. From an engineering standpoint the planning and execution is almost entirely backward."

This, mind you, from an able group of trained men who know whereof they speak.

An excellent example of the inefficiency of our present system of water planning is the recent Kansas flood. General Pick, who heads up the army engineers, made a speech to the residents of that stricken area, blaming congress for the disaster because that body had not appropriated funds to enable the engineers to complete their flood-control plans.

Subsequently, some of the boys who know about rainfall and run-off put their heads together and found that the excessive rains fell in such areas that the plans of the U.S. army engineers stops for that. Again, if completed, would have had little or no control of the flood waters.

Many Instances

There is all too little space allowed to a news story of this sort to enumerate many specific instances. However, news of dam projects is constantly being published in the newspapers and magazines of the country. Take a close look at them and study one of them and see how closely most of them are tied in with the hydro-electric power interests.

Meanwhile, the sportsmen of the nation are taking a monumental beating. Good hunting lands are being flooded, sometimes to little or no effect. Rivers and streams are being dammed, thereby blocking annual fish migrations.

There has yet to be an effective method developed whereby migrating fish can be helped to pass these dams. Fish ladders, elevators, sluiceways, and so on and so forth do not do the job. Thus the fish are "kept from their spawning grounds and fishing, as a sport, suffers in consequence.

This is to no sense a political column. Primarily we are interested only in the outdoors and the outdoor sports. However, when we see these sports threatened and suffering all too often from projects that are the product of minority-group effort and, all too often, for private gain, then we feel that we should bring these things to your attention.

Derby Hopefuls Go to Post In Experimental

New York, April 12—(CP)—This is the day they begin sorting the little ones from the big ones as 30 Hackney Derby hopefuls test their chances in tune-up races that will have considerable bearing on their chances of being the starter at Churchill Downs May 3.

Four of the top favorites — Tom Fool, Primate, Counts and Armageddon—will all things cut for a week until next Saturday's $50,000 Wood Memorial, but quite a few likely nominees will try their luck in the experimental free handicap No. 2 at Jamaica and the Chesapeake Stakes at Laurel, Md.

Among the fancied runners slated to go the 1 1-16 miles in the $25,000 experimental are the White Oak Stable's Blue Man, Bayard Sharp's Untitled, the Brookmeade Stable's Sky Sir, Mrs. Mary Stable's Master Fiddle, Montpelier Stable's Prepared and the King Ranch's High Soul.

LOOK FELLAS . . .

We've often kidded around about used cars in our advertisements so that we might give you a laugh. But here's a time to be serious. The people of Belleville have always been considered good sportsmen and lovers of fair play. This is proven by your grand support of all sporting events which take place in this city. You've always taken the part of the underdog and cheered the loser.

Unfortunately at this time of year, we seem to lose this sense of fair play when the pickerel come up the Moira River to spawn. Every year there occurs on the banks of our fair river a veritable slaughter wherein pickerel, which hope to find a retreat there and come up for the one purpose, creating more pickerel, are mercilessly speared by certain unthinking individuals who imagine they're getting something for nothing.

Well, fellas, you're not fair to the fish and you're not fair to yourselves. If you saw a mother dog, which had just given birth to a litter of puppies, jabbed with a spear, you would probably thrash the offender within an inch of his life. It is even worse to spear pickerel because they will each lay about 80,000 eggs and even under favorable conditions only about 12 or so turn out to be mature fish, and so you are also unfair to yourselves as you are depriving yourself of good future fishing.

Some foolish people will agree that the price of food is high and a free meal is a free meal. If this is your reason for spearing pickerel, please feel free to come up to our office and we will gladly pay you for the price of a good fish dinner with all the trimmings.

Half a million pilgrims and Romans are expected to throng the huge colonnade space before the Basilica of St. Peters Sunday when the Pope addresses the world by radio and gives his solemn blessing "Urbi Et Orbi" — "to the city (of Rome) and the world."

Vienna, Austria, April 12 AP— The Romanian Press Service said today Romanian national elections have been postponed for six months. The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

"But why?" Neale's eyes were puzzled and troubled. "I don't get it. Why would Ames suddenly turn into a crook?"

Cravath shrugged. "Why does anybody steal? Ames needed money, I suppose. Must have got himself into some sort of private jam that we don't know about. Never will know now, I guess."

"But that's the queer part of it. Ames didn't need money. Had 50 thousand, but 12 or 15 hours later he gets killed or—or kills himself! It doesn't make sense."

"Just a minute," I said. "How did Warburton think Mr. Neale, when you let him out of the vault? What did he do?"

Neale put a hand over his eyes. He seemed to make a creditable effort to recollect. "I see what you mean. Ames wasn't nervous or agitated. Seemed composed. Guess he came back pretty clearly now. I finished putting the letters away and when I turned around he was waiting. I asked him if he'd gotten what he wanted. He said yes, perfectly normally, and we stepped out of the vault and I closed the door. Then he asked me what time it was and I told him. And he said he'd have to get tracking because he had a lot of things to do before he flew back to Windover. That's the last I saw of him."

I nodded, not feeling much wiser. I am not, I'm afraid, a very bright detective. It didn't register—then.

We broke up shortly afterwards. Neale had had dinner while waiting for us to get to the city, so he left for home. Cravath and I caught two drinks and a steak apiece in a place on Nassau Street. Then we headed back to the Island.

Marcey Cravath gave attention to his driving. I sat back; tried to relax. Tried also to clear my mind, let it go blank. I was striving, I guess, for the clear white mental page. The condition where you wash out everything that's gone before in the thinking line and start all'over again.

I knew there was a discrepancy somewhere. Something had happened, been said or alluded to—something that, in the kind of loosening, didn't square. But it wouldn't come to me then, with Cravath quite behind the wheel and making the car step, and the singing shadows racing by the windows.

It came at Port Liston, suddenly, satisfyingly. We'd turned off the highway and were purring through the silent, nearly-deserted town, in the direction of Windover. And nothing more startling than the sight of a clock, wrenched in white neon out of a jeweler's shop, sparked its coming.

But...clocks, watches, time! The red thought-needle seemed to change abruptly, broaden into an illuminating white beam. And my mind had the thing it had been groping for, and pounced.

"My word!" I said. "Warburton, who owned a watch to put the Grand Central Station clock out of business. Neale asked Bill Neale for the time?

A small question in itself, apparently, and one capable of several answers right off the bat. For example—Ames hadn't worn his watch that day—he'd left it in his desk when he went to the vault; he'd been just too lazy to pull the thing out of his pocket, easier to ask Neale.

That kind of speciousness leapt into my mind at once.

He had worn the watch, because he'd lost it somewhere around Windover. He wouldn't have left it in or on his desk. He valued the thing and he was a careful fellow.

"Nearly there," Cravath said unexpectedly. "And I don't like what I've got to do. I've got be decent about this, of course. But she shouldn't be." Bitterness tinged in his voice.

Unwittingly but definitely, he interrupted my thought-train, which had shown signs of getting under way. Unwittingly but didn't break it up...entirely, managed to bring, bulldog-style, to the only inkling, sketchy and badly-formulated as it was, that I'd had, since coming out to the job.

I said slowly. "After you've seen Mrs. Wheelar, I'd like to have a talk with Warburton."

His head half-turned. "More talk? What's the matter now?"

"I don't know that anything's" I said, "Only I want to do something, or have it done. And I can't, unless I have your permission."

"Come out with it, Orth!" he exclaimed. "Haven't we enough mysteries, without making more?"

I might have told him then, but it was clear his mind was on his session with Eve Wheeler.

"Later," I said, finding it best to settle for that.

It was close on midnight when we got home. But that hadn't stopped Sally. She nailed us the instant we got in the door and there was fire in her eyes.

"You two are in enough in here, she said, planting herself before Cravath. "I want an accounting and I want it from you."

What she wanted and what she got were two different things. Cravath gave a kind of aggravated snort, then he picked her up as if she were five pounds of potatoes, and deposited her in one of those huge overstuffed and unstitable-in living room chairs which Cravath's infest impressive hallways. Then he went upstairs, without so much as a backward glance.

"Your uncle's upset," I said mildly.

She came out of the indignity sputtering.

"Well!" Every lovely line in her body was quivering. "Well! I'll tell that guy some day, and I don't. And as for you...where have you been? What have you been doing?"

I stared at her. "You don't know?"

"Certainly I don't! How should I? Uncle Jack knows. A child could have seen that he did But he put me off with some nonsense about Neale and spent the whole evening with Dolly. And Eve Wheeler! And you're a couple of blanks, like one. So now you give, Jim Orth. Or I'll tear your hair out."

Well, I gave—the whole smear. I saw no reason not to.

"And that's why," I finished, "I didn't badger your uncle about the police tonight. Oh, I admit I had all day to do it and I was working myself up. But then we got this little package, and I decided it, He's jittery enough as it is."

She'd calmed down a bit during my recital. But there were still traces of the turkey cock.

"At night's work and said. "Somebody—Ames, if you insist—lifted fifty thousand. Well, where do we go from there?"

"We square it. At least, your uncle does. He's probably doing it—" I hit now."

"Oh, sure." Hpr...face was a kind of lovely study in thought. It Keep it dark, quiet. The Cravath's can't risk anything. But they can risk murder, any day in the week."

"Listen," I said soothingly, "tomorrow's another day."

"Yes." She bit her lip grudgingly. "I suppose so. But for my money, I won't be any more help tomorrow than you are today."

Felt Weak, Dizzy, Easily Exhausted, Couldn't Sleep

Back Ached, Appetite Poor, Food Upset Stomach, "But Feel Like a New Person Since Taking Syntona," Says Mrs. Spicer

When flu was prevalent throughout the country Mr. Orvil Graham, Hyde Park, Ontario, was one of those who got it. He has never since then he has been in a weak, run-down condition. After taking several things without getting any better he says he was advised to try Syntona and now tells how this medicine helped him to overcome the trouble.

"I felt weak and tired that I would become exhausted with the least exertion," he says, "when I went to bed at night, I couldn't get my proper sleep. My appetite was poor and what I did eat upset my stomach. I was also troubled with dizziness, feeling sick spells and headaches. I would often get these feelings, my back was lame and sore, and it seemed I was dragging myself around and just had to force myself to get through.

"Reading one day about Syntona I was taken with the statement that it acted on the liver, kidneys and bowels. I decided to try Syntona. I soon found out that this medicine was more than I needed, that anything I ever used before. Almost from the first dose I noticed I was getting stronger and more active and I was able to get more sound, restful sleep. Now I am free of dizzy spells and headaches and I am able to do my work without becoming tired as I used to before."

Syntona is a Pure Herbal Medicine. It contains no soda, iron or other minerals. It is pleasant to take and results are quickly felt.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you too.

WEST HUNTINGDON

Bride-To-Be Feted By Girl Friends

West Huntingdon.—On Saturday evening, Mrs. Bill Donnan entertained some 25 girl friends of Miss Margaret Haggerty, a bride-elect, to a linen shower.

The early part of the evening was spent in writing a recipe book. Mrs. Donnan then presided over a short program, consisting of a sing-song; a reading, "Husbands", by Mrs. Russell Sills; a solo by Mrs. Arthur Hassall; a reading "How to Bake a Cake", by Mrs. Barton Haggerty.

Mrs. M. Shaw and Mrs. M. Stevenson gave a musical number with their dancing dolls, after which the bride was seated in a decorated chair and Mrs. Harold Thompson read an appropriate address. Miss Joan McCurdy presented the bride-elect with a huge corsage of balloons with evergreen and gay ribbons. A verse was then balloon telling where the gifts were hidden. Much merriment followed as the gifts were found.

Miss Haggerty graciously thanked all for their gifts in a suitable verse of lovely and useful gifts.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. H. Thompson and Miss Joan McCurdy.

Bolivians Bury 300 Dead, Rebels Solidify Control

Long-Exiled Leader Due To Return on Wednesday

La Paz, Bolivia, April 14 (AP) —Revolt-bloodied Bolivia, burying more than 300 dead and tending some 1,500 wounded, appeared today under firm control of a new revolutionary government and awaited Victor Paz Estenssoro, long-exiled leader who is slated to return from Argentina Wednesday to head the new regime.

After installing a 13-man cabinet of the National Revolutionary party, the victorious rebels last night sent a delegation by plane to Buenos Aires to invite Paz Estenssoro, the party's chief, to return.

Paz Estenssoro won the greatest number of votes—almost one-half—in presidential elections 11 months ago but failed to win an over-all majority. Before the inauguration could choose among three leading candidates, a military junta headed by Gen. Hugo Ballivian moved in by force.

It was this clique which Paz Estenssoro's supporters swept aside during a three-day battle starting last Wednesday.

Flied Country in 1946

The party leader fled the country in 1946 when pro-Nazi government and Communist party government and hanged President Gualberto Villarroel from a lamp-post.

General Ballivian was believed to have taken asylum in a foreign embassy, reported to be Venezuela's. There was no immediate information on the whereabouts of Gen. Humberto Torres Ortiz, his army chief of staff who led the government forces and who signed the formal surrender to the rebels Friday.

The army, many of which have opposed the rebels, was practically inoperative today following a series of purges because of many of its leaders. Many are suspected of having sought asylum in foreign embassies along with other leaders of the ousted regime.

Telephone connections still were battle shattered in countries, due to power shortages caused by the destruction of generating equipment.

The new Bolivian regime held its first council yesterday. Plans they had worked out still envisage further 'big-the powerful and Nationalistic trend of the president's brother, Augusto. It has wide support from workers in the tin mines, the country's mainstay industry.

TO HOLD CONVENTION

New York, April 14 (AP)—The Progressive party will hold its 1952 convention in Chicago on Labor Day July 4 weekend. Former Congressman Vito Marcantonio national campaign manager-chairman, announced the scheduling of the convention today. The party already has ratified as candidates Vincent Hallinan, California attorney, for president, and Mrs. Charlotta Bass, New York Negro for vice-president.

Husband Wins Sweepstakes, Then Leaves Wife

Washington, April 14. (AP)— A Honolulu housewife says her husband ran away with another woman after winning $130,285 in the Irish Sweepstakes. And so, she says, the government is trying to take away the relative pittance he left her.

Mrs. Dorothy Marie Soyack told of her plight in a brief filed in the United States tax court here. Her accounts differ.

Her husband pilfered some money from her household funds, she said, bought a ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes and won $130,285.

Two days later (last May 20) he boarded a liner for the U.S. with another woman.

After six days at sea, the errant husband sent her $16,000 and this note—"After 1 pay my taxes at the end of the year I will send you the rest—and I hope you can get over me."

Then, her brief continues, the tax collector came around to call on Soyack in New York City with a bill for $64,698.08 back taxes. Soyack said he was broke and couldn't pay it.

So now the government has slapped a claim against Mrs. Soyack, demanding that she turn over the entire $16,000 the husband gave her—to help her pay his tax bill.

Kills Her Father, Strangles Self

Auburn, Calif., April 14. (AP) — A spinster strangled her father yesterday with a stocking, three days after she had killed her father and burned their ranch home because the government had condemned it for a flood-control project.

The body of Etta Mae Dickinson, 52, was found at Death State hospital, where she had been taken for observation.

She was found last Thursday, distraught and wild-eyed, watching the spreading flames in the 328-acre cattle ranch. She was charged with murdering her father, Frank Dickinson, 78. Authorities said she related she killed her father with a hammer then fired the house with kerosene.

The government had condemned and bought their ranch for $25,000. Foleom Dam is being built on the American river a few miles away, with many their ranch under many feet of water.

Special Easter For Doomed Boy

Galt, April 14. (CP)—It was a special Easter for Gary Neely, 8, suffering from a blood ailment which doctors say will probably end his life in a few weeks, he and many gift-bearing visitors to his home yesterday. A Salvation Army Band played Easter music outside his window.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 14 (CP)— Synopsis: Cloudy skies held minimum temperatures near the 40 mark in southern Ontario and near the freezing point in central areas. In the far north, Moosonee, which reported a high of 47 degrees had a low of 32.

Fog covered much of southern Ontario last night, disrupting the travelling schedule of many refreshing holidayers.

Sudbury had the doubtful honor of having the most wintry weather on Easter Sunday. Wet snow piled up to a depth of seven inches in the area while southern sections were receiving nearly as much of rain.

Skies are clearing gradually from the northwest, and Tuesday will find the whole of the province sunny, with the southern parties receiving lesser amounts of sunshine.

MISSOURI THROWS RECORD-BREAKING FLOOD AT CITIES

Town After Town Either Prostrate or Abandoned

Omaha, Neb., April 14 (AP)— The Missouri River today threw its record-breaking flood crest at the Sioux City, Ia., area, intensifying the fight being waged in the downstream Omaha-Council Bluffs area of Iowa.

For Sioux City, with 84,000 persons, and neighboring South Sioux City, Neb., with 5,500, the crest's arrival was only insult atop injury. Scientists say it was another cruel and inundation had been a creeping, progressive thing.

Downstream, four after town was either prostrate or abandoned.

But Omaha and Council Bluffs, whose combined metropolitan area has taken its 366,000 persons, were fighting it out.

About two - thirds of Council Bluffs' 45,000 persons had fled or were pulling out of their homes. Across the river in Omaha, Nebr., 25,000 persons, Ia., areas, homes of perhaps 3,000 more were deserted. These were being patrolled only by soldiers, police and civil guards.

Extended relief workers called the exodus one of the biggest disaster movements in history.

The river, meanwhile, was at record flood stage, 30.2 feet, after climbing toward the 30-foot crest expected Wednesday. The old high mark, 29.7, established in 1881, was passed yesterday.

25.6 Feet Above Normal

Sioux City's river reading was 25.4, compared with flood stage of 19 feet.

At 25.6, the river will be at the level which levees and flood walls along the two cities were designed to handle. Today's battle was an effort to add two feet to the levee height, while additions to the sandbolls which top the tremendous pressure were creating.

The levee task force on the Iowa side numbered 3,000 men. Almost as many worked across the river.

The flood-ravaged Missouri River area extended all the way from lower South Dakota, along the Iowa-Nebraska border and into Kansas and Missouri. But other states, and other rivers, were affected in a grim midwest flood picture.

The Mississippi was a record high and climbing at St. Paul, Minn., and Dubuque, Ia., where 2,000 St. Paul stockyards were embargoed, thousands of evacuees moved out. Paul municipal airport was under water, and Minneapolis, St. Paul rail traffic continued to rise menacingly in Minnesota.

In North Dakota and Western Minnesota, the Red River flirted with record heights, but was not or menaced towns included Moorehead, Wahpeton and Grand Forks.

In Montana, the Milk River moved on the critical flood situation passed, but water still covered the Fort Peck, Kinsella, Malta, Dodson and Wagner.

The Big Cyprus lay also established that 74,000 persons were either displaced or about to be displaced by floods.

Churches Full, Fair Weather In Most Areas As Canadians Celebrate Easter

(By The Canadian Press)

Most parts of Canada had fine weather for Easter parades and special church services.

Spring finery in Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec was hidden under raincoats because of cloudy skies, but most of the Easter church services were well attended.

Nova Scotia reported the warmest day of the year Easter Sunday —52 degrees. Many attended in their overcoats and strolled about in their new finery after church ... the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection received European visitor for a special service with Hungarian, Polish, Czech and Estonian worshipers.

Sixty-degree weather in Winnipeg tempted some early golfers onto the courses. They found the course muddy and only a few clubs open.

Golfers, church-goers, Easter parades and Sunday drivers were all out in force in Edmonton where the temperature reached 65 degrees. Light breezes and a cloudless sky rounded off perfect the spring picture.

Thousands of Montrealers took a chance on the threatening crowded skies to attend special church services. Several Protestant denominations got together for a sunrise service atop Mount Royal. The clouds did not open but the expected rain until late in the evening.

Toronto's Easter parade was washed out. Snow-in some northern Ontario points and in most other parts of the province kept would-be fashion plates from the streets. However, several planned sunrise services were held in spite of the threat of drizzling rain. Toronto's rain-swept boardwalk was almost deserted. Montreal was blessed with fine weather for Easter Sunday and large numbers of automobiles and strollers were out in most centres.

Nearly every province reported thousands of persons taking advantage of the weekend to travel by highway, rail and air. Transportation depots were

Malan Resumes As Anniversary Celebration Ends In Troubled South Africa

Capetown, South Africa, April 14 (Reuters)—The political truce called during South Africa's 300th anniversary celebrations ends with the reassembling of parliament Tuesday, when Nationalist Premier Daniel Malan will return to his attack on the supremacy of the courts.

Malan's cabinet has drafted a bill to make the parliament the final authority on constitutional disputes.

It is expected that the new bill will meet a rough reception from the opposition, already up in arms against the government. If passed the bill will probably be tested by the supreme court, continuing the cycle until a general election gives the voters a chance to decide — either unseating Malan's party or giving him with a large majority to enforce his program more effectively than he can with his present narrow margin.

The current constitutional crisis broke when the South African supreme court threw out a government bill to remove coloreds against non-white voters, clashing with a main pillar of Malan's white supremacy policy.

The opposition United Party whipped up the issue, calling on Malan's government to resign.

The heated debate in parliament echoed through the country, with torchlight parades and mass meetings calling on Malan to resign, but the fighting was suspended during the country's tercentenary celebrations which began Mar. 28.

The controversy will start again with the reconvening of parliament although it is not known exactly when Malan will introduce his new bill.

Long Debate Scheduled

Parliament will has a long debate scheduled on the budget, but even if the anti-court legislation is not brought before the house opposition members will be able to attack it in principle.

Opposition United leader Jacobus Stuttaford will be first speaker Tuesday and will undoubtedly launch attack on the government.

Political observers expect the new bill will define the supremacy of parliament, making the law of parliament, like the Dec. 11, 1931, Statute of Westminster which made South Africa an independent dominion within the British commonwealth.

Government-supporting newspapers say the bill will also lay down that laws which parliament should a bill again be challenged in the courts. It will provide that the decision of parliament that procedure will be subject to review by parliament, with whom the final decision will rest.

The opposition will launch a series of public meetings this week, supported by the torch-bearing members of ex-servicemen, pledged to oppose the Malan government.

Week-Long Strike Of Bell Workers Has Been Ended

Cleveland, April 14 (AP) — A week-long strike of 12,000 Ohio Bell employees ended today, but picket lines in a dozen Electric dispute were expected to still keep some of the workers away from their jobs.

The Western Electric strike is part of a nation-wide dispute involving employees in 43 states. There are between 500 and 1,000 Western Electric workers in Ohio. Bell said "we expect they will picket many of our exchanges."

Western Electric is a Bell subsidiary and the men on strike are regularly employed by Bell employees.

The W.E. men work in Ohio Bell exchanges.

A pay boost ranging from 84 to 87—some of the highest in the industry—is the Michigan strike last week —ended the Ohio Bell walkout. The union had asked for $4.50 a day and the company has been offering a boost of $3 to $4.

Western Electric, which makes telephones for the Bell system, is entangled in a strike in New York City. There, too, negotiators were optimistic but no settlement is considered at a hand.

For the first time since last Friday, full scale sessions were scheduled for today by several mediators. Cyrus S. Ching, federal director of the C.W.A.'s installation division, said the conference's meeting the conferees were "not as far apart."

The Western Union Telegraph Co. strike, now in its 12th day, was at a standstill.

Weaver said the 10,000 installation workers and 6,000 distribution and warehouse men striking against Western Electric want a 25-cent-an-hour wage increase. These wages average $1.67 to $2.30 an hour. The Ohio Bell boost, he said, has offered 11 to 16 cents.

An Ohio Bell settlement could close down the country covering some 16,000 workers. Some of these would not return to work because of picket lines set up by W. E. strikers.

Dairymen Refuse Price Offered

Chesterville, Ont., April 14 (CP) — A 450 member Dairy Men's Association Saturday night instructed its officers to refuse the price offer of the Milk Control Board.

The Concentrated Milk Producers Association made the decision because the offer of the Canadian Milk Products Limited was lower than that proposed by the Ontario Milk Control Board.

The company now buys raw milk for domestic use at $3.20 a hundred pounds. The board suggested a price of $3.50 effective Wednesday.

The company recently sent farmers a letter asking them to agree to the present price. More than 300 members of the association voted unanimously to reject the offer.

U.S. Railroads Get Permission To Hoist Rates

Washington, April 14 (AP)—The Inter-State Commerce Commission today gave the railroads a further freight rate increase, authorizing hike charges by about $678,000,000 a year. The increase is effective in the south and west and six percent in the east.

The order boosts rates 15 percent above what they were at this time last year.

The railroads applied last year for a 15 percent increase, but the ICC decided to hold that instead of a straight 15 percent raise, the charges should be raised 15 percent in the east and six percent in the south and west.

Today's order, issued after reconsideration, allows the full 15 percent increase in the east.

This means the rates now will be about nine percent in the south and west and six percent in the east.

Government Lifts Long Freeze On New TV Stations

Washington, April 14 (AP)— Television in every United States community was a long step nearer today when the government lifted its 3½-year-long freeze on new stations.

Additionally 2,000 stations may be built throughout the United States and its possessions. Only 108 operate now, mainly in big cities.

The federal communications and Federal Communications commission's "unfreeze" order ends the 3½-year freeze which do not have it now, a wider range of programs is already covered, and a gold rush for the multi-million-dollar industry.

Only about one-half the U.S. population has TV service now, shows. The F. C. C., in announcing it will grant permits for new stations, opened the door to 2,053 stations in 1,291 communities.

To handle this many stations, the F.C.C. has had increase the number of channels from the present 12 to 82. This was done by adding a new, ultra-high frequencies, now only for experimental stations.

The F.C.C. said it intends to give first attention to grants to communities that have had any TV service, and to communities which will pioneer on the U.H.F. channels the F.C.C. is anxious to get into operation.

Another 78 days will elapse before any grants are made. During that period, F.C.C. announced it will receive new applications for stations, and will also require re-submission of all of the 521 applications now pending.

Truman Wants Way Cleared for Canada

Washington, April 14 (AP) — B. Pearson Canada's External Affairs Minister, said President Truman agreed today that the way should be cleared for Canada to go ahead with power aspects of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Pearson announced after a White House conference that Truman said he will join with the Canadian government in asking the international joint commission for approval of Canada's plans.

The commission is a Canadian-U.S. body which, by treaty arrangement, deals with a variety of questions concerning the two countries.

Pearson said commission approval is needed for Canada to go ahead with the power aspects that would affect both countries.

Titanic Sinking of 40 Years Ago Recalled by Former Wireless Operator

Montreal, April 14—(CP)— Vivid memories of this date 40 years ago were recalled by Jack Phillips, veteran wireless operator, in memories of one of the greatest passenger-ship disasters of all time.

On April 14, 1912, Gray was officer-in-charge of the Marconi wireless station when the distress signal came from the ground liner Titanic, which struck an iceberg on her maiden voyage, and sank with a loss of 1,500 lives.

Gray worked four days without rest at the station on Newfoundland's southeast coast and assisted in directing rescue ships and telling the world about what had happened.

Today Gray took up the life of a wireless operator at the turn of the century. He was then no more than 20 wireless operators in the world. And in 1904 he proved the value of wireless. His ship, headed for Montreal, struck a reef, and while afloat, became trapped in a bay. Dead reckoning couldn't establish the ship's location. Through the strength of the wireless station's signals, Gray figured out the location and got his ship back on course.

Forty years ago today Gray chatted, via wireless, with chief radio Phillips aboard the Titanic. Phillips told him about the big party aboard and the happy time all were having. Then Gray closed down for the night.

Before going to bed Gray decided to check the Titanic's position. He was doing this his assistant came running to tell his the Titanic was sending out a distress call.

Gray calls dthe Titanic. Phillips answered: "We are sinking by the head. Putting women and children in the boats. Keep cool, clear and calm."

Gray remained good for more than two hours. There was one, last, weak distress signal.

Meanwhile, Gray was sending out calls for ships he knew were closest to the stricken steamer. The Carpathia reached the scene first, rescuing survivors from the sea.

From the Carpathia Gray got the names and addresses of survivors and flashed these out to the United States where tens of thousands waited anxiously.

Gray was able to take off his earphones and go to bed.

Today Gray lives in retirement at suburban Lakeside. His last official duty before retiring from the Canadian Marconi Co. after 40 years was to represent Canada, in 1927, at London, at a radio commission meeting safety of life at sea.

Father Kills Four Children and Self With Gas Fumes

Russian Family Arrived In Toronto Two Months Ago

Toronto, April 14 (CP) — Four children and their father were killed early today in what police termed a murder-suicide in a gas-filled room in an east-central rooming house.

The five were found by Mrs. Nina Aksiuk, the mother, when she returned home from work. She pushed open the door and found her husband and four children in a semi-critical condition on the floor, overcome by cooking gas.

The family were recent arrivals to Canada. Russians, whose family fled the Soviet revolution in 1918, they had been in Yugoslavia almost ever since until they arrived in Canada two months ago.

The victims are Sergei Aksiuk, 37, the father; Wladimir, 15, Valentino, 13, Boris, 8, and Natasha 6.

Police said the tragedy was apparently brought on by the father's depression over continued unemployment, and unhappy family relations.

While rescue squads were attempting to revive her family, police said Mrs. Aksiuk snatched a belt and twisted it around her throat. When she escaped, she ran to the window and attempted to leap out.

Police said Aksiuk attached a rubber hose from a washtub over a gas meter in the basement, and led it to a pipe which ran up to the second floor bedroom. He then uncapped the gas jet—long unused. Police found the meter had been tampered with after they investigated.

The windows, the door and the keyhole in the room were carefully sealed.

Shot in Back

Chatham, April 14 — (CP)— A young Windsor man was severely wounded at the wheel of his car near here early yesterday when shot in the back by an assailant he said was a hitch-hiker.

William Copeman, who managed, to bring the car to a safe stop, told police the gunman was one of three men whom he and his friend, Gilles Bondy, also of Windsor, had picked up. Motive for the shooting was not known.

Bondy, however, told police there was only one hitch-hiker.

Surgeons at first found a slug embedded between his second and third ribs. It was later removed. His condition was described as "fair".

Murder Charge Laid Against Toronto Man

Toronto, April 14. (CP) — A 28-year-old machinist yesterday was charged with the strangulation murder of a 35-year-old brunette, found scantily clad in the bed of his west-end room.

Hugh Gillis walked into a police station shortly after noon and told police: "You had better come and see my room."

When police arrived at the rooming house in the Parkdale section they found a woman, identified as Mrs. Violet Smith, no known address clad only in a black, lace-trimmed dress lying on the pink bedspread of his bed.

On a bureau nearby stood a part glass of wine which, a gingerale bottle and a Bible. On the floor were 12 empty beer bottles.

Police said Mrs. Smith—her maiden name was Violet Jansen—was picked up by Gillis in a Queen street beverage room Saturday afternoon. Between then time and Gillis' appearance at the police station at 1:15 p.m. they had no details to divulge, other than the fact of death.

Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson said a tie had been found in the room and her throat had a dark groove which seemed to point to the tie as the murder weapon.

Rites at Bertie Mad Se Be

Police said the time of death was early Sunday morning as the rigor mortis had set in and the body was examined yesterday afternoon.

The owner of the rooming house, Stanley Dvorak, said he knew little about Gillis. The accused was usually quiet except when he had been drinking. Dvorak said about 10 days to leave once but did not insist when Gillis promised to remain.

Dvorak first learned of the murder after he returned from his duties as caretaker with his family. An inspector led a squad of detectives to the murder room on the second floor of the three-storey house. It was then Dvorak learned the body lying on Gillis' bed.

Gillis, who is not married, is believed to have arrived in Toronto two years ago from Nova Scotia. He has been employed as a machinist in a large west-end factory and lived in Dvorak's rooming house only six weeks.

Easter Egg Hunt For Children Enjoyable Affair

One of the most enjoyable children's parties held over the Easter weekend took place at the Bridge Street Armouries on Sunday afternoon when Lieut.-Col. G. C. McGregor, M.C., and his officers of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment were hosts to their wives and families at the second annual "Easter Egg Hunt".

The party was held in the officers' mess, and the children explored the "mount" for colored eggs from their many hiding places. Wives of the officers also staged a "hunt" for the colored goodies.

The program proper was under the supervision of Captain Roy Dulmage assisted by Captain Harold Vaughan, Lieut. Mac Bain and Captain Bob Liddle and Lieut Gordon Bain.

Entertainment ranged from television to a full-length motion picture "Hunt" in the "Land of Soldiers", a comedy featuring the different types of wives. Lieut.-Col. comics. The film was interspersed with demonstrations of model aircraft and the latest types under the direction of Lieut. Base.

One of the chores was the arrests of a pet monkey provided by Lieut. Smith. The little animal had the children, and incidentally too, in fits of merriment with its mischievous antics.

Refreshments, provided by the officers' wives, were served at the conclusion of yet another enjoyable kiddies' party.

Guy Lombardo To Give Concert At Kingston

The musical treat of the year will be on Monday night when Queen Community Memorial Centre tomorrow night when Guy Lombardo and his famous Royal Canadians play a concert starting at 8.30 o'clock. Famed for their "sweetest music this side of heaven", this musical aggregation that got its start in Canada, Ontario, has long been the favorite band of thousands of Canadians on the screen, over the radio and now on television.

Along with the band will be the other noted Lombardo brothers, Carmen, Victor and Lebert, just as much of the organization as their more noted brother, Guy. It will be one show that is a concert and not to be mistaken for a dance and will include such famous groups as the Lombardo trio, a noted singing threesome, that has long been a favorite with Lombardo fans—the twin pianos, a grand piano duo—soloist Kenny Gardner plus two other sensational outside acts—the Gandini Brothers and Jeanette along with Gene Sheldon, the "prime minister of pantomime".

The added acts in the show are just about tops in their respective fields. Gene Sheldon is ranked with Harpo Marx as a mimic and comedian, with the difference being that Sheldon uses a banjo rather than Harpo's harp for his musical routine. The Gandini Brothers and Juanita are the greatest adagio quartet in the world and the breath taking manner in which the boys throw their feminine partner around is one of the show's standout performances.

Damper Put on Easter Parade By Heavy Rains During Day

Inclement Easter weather, which spoiled any effort on the part of milady to display her new Easter finery, kept the city's worshippers from turning out in near-record numbers to mark the religious observance of the most joyous day on the Christian calendar.

Large crowds braved sullen rainy weather to attend services at all city churches and other places of worship from early morning until evening.

The melodic thunder of the organ blended its triumphant music with the voices of augmented choirs and individual artists as the city paid Easter tribute to the resurrection of Our Savior.

Youthful Belleville too observed the religious celebrations with crowded Sunday schools bearing the ever-old, ever-new story of Christ's death and resurrection.

Last week Mrs. L. G. Robillard of Victoria, B. C., came to the Belleville police station stating that she had mislaid a fur neckpiece apparently while stopping in at a grocery store on the way. If any word was received of it would the police notify her. They would and did.

Later in the day the operator of a motel west of the city stated, noting his little girl had found a fur neckpiece. It was picked up by police and turned over to the happy owner.

Following a recent auction sale of household furnishings, a woman reported police that a chest of drawers which she had purchased had disappeared before she could pick it up.

Police investigation determined the various persons who had purchased articles at the sale and the chest of drawers was found at the home of another purchaser. It was all just a mistake and following efforts of police the property was restored to the rightful owner.

Y's Men's Club Hears Address On Advertising

"Advertising and its Place in Our Economy" was the subject of a talk given to the Y's Men's Club meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. by W. H. Stovin, manager of radio station CHUC. In his interesting remarks Mr. Stovin gave as explanation of the methods by means of which radio letters for radio stations are determined. International agreement has fixed the first letter, he stated, while the last letters identify the station. For this reason private stations in Canada are represented by four letters the first of which is "C" and the last two are peculiar to the station ownership. The Canadian Broadcasting Commission stations are denoted by three call letters in most instances, the first two letters identifying the commission and the last the location.

American stations take more liberties, using three and four call letters but these commence with "K" or "W". The speaker identified some amusing combinations which have resulted from letter selections which have been made.

Continuing his address the speaker referred to the regulations for advertising and before it could be approved. For foods and drugs all copy must be submitted to the Canadian Broadcasting Commission for acceptance.

Mr. Stovin Reminded

Mr. Stovin reminded his audience of occasional criticism which is directed at exaggerated advertising but added that while this might be true on occasion, it was more frequently true that it was advertising and selling that made the country run. He amused his listeners by reference to many peculiar errors which have occurred in broadcasting.

Referring to the history of radio and its development through the years, Mr. Stovin explained the contributions of Maxwell, the Scottish mathematician, the Germans Hertz and Marconi, all of whom had made fundamental discoveries before or about the turn of the century.

In his concluding remarks the speaker expressed the belief in freedom of mass communication through publishing which included the oral and visual as well as the printed. In this regard he felt that the position of independent stations as represented by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters was essential when they claimed that the Canadian Broadcasting Commission had too much control over radio in Canada. It was the claim of C.A.B. that a commission independent of the CBC should supervise all broadcasting in Canada.

Will Preside Schedulably

The speaker was introduced by Bud Trill and thanked by Rudy Scherer. Jack Wilson chaired the meeting. It was decided to make a scholarship available to the secondary school students making the best standing in history and English.

Details given regarding the Father and Son banquet being sponsored by the Y's Men and their fathers April 25 by the Y's Men indicated that an outstanding program of entertainment has been arranged. A top-ranking sports celebrity from Montreal who has been occupied with the Canadians in their pursuit of the Stanley Cup will speak of these experiences. Out-of-town entertainment has also been secured and fathers and boys will participate in an evening of games and swimming. Trophies donated by the Y's Men's Club for the Easter week tournaments will also be presented.

Toronto Lawyer To Press Charges?

Ottawa, April 14 — (CP) — A defence department spokesman said today that J. W. Pickup, Toronto lawyer, has been appointed to press charges against a group of army men and civilians involved in alleged thefts of supplies from the Petawawa military camp.

The spokesman said Mr. Pickup is reviewing the evidence obtained during an investigation. The camp is about 120 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The defence department declined to give information on the investigation. It did not say how many men were involved.

Last week, a defence department said hundreds of tons of supplies might be involved in the thefts. Soldiers by the R. C. M. P. were reported to include army blankets, clothing and boots.

Millions Throughout World Prayed for Peace on Easter

(By The Associated Press)

Easter Sunday, with its prayers for peace and its spring parades for war, came yesterday for Christians in a modern world of continuing wars and changing values.

There were religious services to hail the resurrection of Christ. And millions paraded in their new spring finery along the world's avenues.

But there was no peace in many places, and some of the tradition was gone from the annual fashion promenades.

Millions throughout the free world prayed for peace this Easter Sunday. They massed in Rome to receive blessings from the Pope at St. Peter's Basilica. Allied soldiers in Korea knelt in prayer on the battlefield. Americans went to mountains, parks and churches for the outdoor sunrise worship. Pilgrims thronged to Jerusalem.

The Pope was cheered by 300,000 in St. Peter's Square as he called for "great phalanxes of apostles" to arise in a new Christian crusade "to save the world from barbarism."

A message from President Truman for the opening of Sunday School week, starting today, urged that "a revival of the spirit of old-fashioned religion" is needed for the United States. The President's message was sent to New York to the Laymen's National committee sponsoring the week.

Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.S. Eighth Army commander in war-torn Korea, asked his troops to remember that God is with them in their "righteous mission against the communist evil."

Air Is Tense

A bloody revolt left Bolivia calm over the holiday, but the air was tense as the victorious revolutionaries waited for the return of their exiled leader, Victor Paz Estenssoro.

Nor was peace the mood of the day in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, where 300 armed boy and girl students paraded through the streets in a demonstration against Italian claims to Trieste.

Western Europe had warm temperatures to make the holiday a fine time to show off new clothes and bright hats. But in the eastern United States, umbrellas and rain hid the fashions.

New York City's Fifth Avenue was clogged by 500,000 paraders, but the big town's spring show had little of the traditional fashion and less of society.

It was a reflection of 1952 commercialism with professional models dressed to promote such things as hats for men, and assorted paraphernalia.

Behind the lion curtain, millions of faithful sought to carry on the Christian tradition without their communal rites are trying to wipe out. They crowded churches and sported their best clothes.

News of Trenton 61½-Mill Tax Rate Feared; School Board Absents Self From Thursday Council Meet

Trenton (Special) — Trenton's mill rate for 1952 almost certain to be 61½ mills, although Mayor Ken J. Couch maintains that he will try to keep it below 60.

The board of education did not show up at a council-board discussion in the town hall on Thursday night. However representation of ratepayers gave Mayor Couch and his councillors assurance there would be no objection if the mill rate was struck at 61½ mills or even better. One citizen called for council to impose an even heavier levy to take care of needed sewage disposal facilities and other local improvements. Finance chairman Charles Allore remarked that the suggestion was a good one.

The board of education apologized for its absence in a letter to clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry, which was read. The meeting had been slated for Wednesday but other commitments for the mayor and council made a one-day postponement necessary.

The purpose of the meeting was to acquaint the ratepayers with the marked rise in the 1952 budget through an open meeting with the board responsible for extra spending this year amounting to $92,000 or 11 1/3 mills in budget increases. The board explained in the letter that it would be available to talk with council any date subsequent to Easter 60 mills.

Loss of $12,000 Caused When Fire Damages Merchandise and Building

Fire loss amounting to approximately $12,000 resulted early this morning at 117 Main Street West, when flames gutted the Grier and Batt manufacturers' agency premises.

Loss was principally to stock which filled the large double garage, but the building was also badly damaged with the flames reported to have been rolling out through the roof when the alarm was turned in.

The blaze was discovered shortly after four o'clock by Rev. S. E. Larman, minister of Holloway St. United Church, who immediately turned in the alarm. The burned garage was immediately to the rear of the Larman home.

"I heard a thud and thought someone was trying to get into my garage," said Mr. Larman. "Then I saw a flicker of light through the blind and looking out saw the whole building ablaze."

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said the flames were rolling out through the roof of the garage as the fire engines rolled up the street. The Westover house was only a few feet from the burning building but firemen brought three trucks into play and saved the residence.

$12,370 Tractor Be Purchased By Works Dept.

Purchase of a Bucyrus dozer-shovel tractor at a cost of $12,370 to be used in connection with the sanitary fill method of garbage disposal, was recommended at the public works committee meeting held on Wednesday.

Members of the public works committee, together with officials of the city engineering department several weeks ago visited centres where the sanitary fill method of garbage disposal was used and recommended purchase of the equipment. The purchase of the tractor would be made subject to the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board as to financing.

Tenders for the purchase of three heavy duty trucks were considered referred to the city engineering department for report.

The property committee will be asked to immediately call for tenders for alterations to the city engineering office.

Will Hire Student

The committee recommended that a student engineer be hired for the summer months.

At the end of the fire committee held Tuesday the city plumbing and fire chief were authorized to purchase uniforms for members of the department as well as certain auxiliary equipment for fire fighters. Ten lampshades were also authorized purchased.

The publicity committee authorized printing of tenders for the painting of signs at the city's entrances.

The property committee authorized A. C. Campbell to make the necessary repairs at renovations to the war memorial on Graham Park. The property committee and traffic committee will meet next week to discuss purchase of property for downtown parking.

Welfare Officer G. A. Whitman was authorized by the Welfare committee to attend the welfare officers' association convention to be held at Brantford May 19, 20, 21.

School Children Enjoy Theatre Guild Plays

Five hundred children, Grades VII and VIII from the public schools formed an enthusiastic audience recently at Queen Victoria Public as the Theatre Guild repeated two or the one-act plays they presented earlier. For many of the children it was their first experience of real live theatre, but to judge by their reactions, most of them would make certain that it was not the last. The first of the plays, a rollicking comedy called "The Flattering Word" kept the children in roars of laughter throughout, particularly the financious antics or Mrs. Zooker and her daughter Lena, played by Helen Sulman and Dorothy Strudwick. The second play, "The Valiant", was of a much more serious and dramatic nature, but was equally appreciated. The young auditors who remained tense and spell-bound right up to the final curtain. All in all, it was a most stimulating afternoon, and it is hoped that there will be opportunities in the future for repeating the experiment.

It is interesting to note that during the past week, the Theatre Guild has staged a total of four public service shows. In addition to the one reported above, groups have performed special discussion-provoking plays for the Home and School Associations of the Collegiate, Prince of Wales and Prince Charles Schools.

Chief Probert Urges Motorists To be Careful

"Watch out for the kiddies, they are to be seen not hurt," was the appeal made today by Police Chief Walter Probert as he urged motorists to be especially careful during the Easter holiday period.

"School children will be out of school for the next week and they will be seen oftener and in greater number on city streets," the chief pointed. "I urge that all motorists use good precaution during the Easter holidays."

At the same time the police chief warned children to keep off the streets while playing. Quite often children are hurt when they dart suddenly out in front of a car while chasing a ball.

On Friday there were complaints from a West Hill district resident of boys playing ball on the streets. The boys were given a stern warning by officers and told to use city playgrounds while playing ball.

Inspection Team Visits Batteries

An RCEME inspection team visited the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment, RCA this week on an official tour of the tanks, and vehicles of the 32nd and 34th Batteries.

The team reported the maintenance of the batteries' vehicles was rated at 91 per cent an all-time high mark for the units.

The high mark is evidence of the excellent training being given battery personnel by the M. T. officer Lieut. A. Phillips and Sergeant J. M. Harper.

The team consisted of Staff Sergeant J. Yorke, Sergeant W. Wilson and Sergeant H. Samis, all of area headquarters, Kingston.

MORE BANDITRY COMING?

It looks as if we are in for another outbreak of bank robberies. In any event, the bandits have equipped themselves with Browning automatic pistols. They got their Browning automatic pistols from the Canadian army's establishment at Barrisfield. They also tried to set fire to the building, in the hope, perhaps, that the disappearance of the pistols might go undetected.

The pistols vanished early last Wednesday. The burglary was followed by the announcement that "military provost officers, the R.C.M.P. and Ontario provincial police have combined in an investigation." Similar announcements are made when one of those mysterious fires occurs at an army or air force establishment.

These Browning automatic pistols, according to our information, are not ordinary automatic pistols. They can shoot faster than the ordinary automatic pistol. Bank robbers are said to favor them because they give the robber superior fire power when he wants to kill a policeman, a bank guard, or one of those traditional "innocent bystanders."

In this same connection, it will be recalled that Thompson gun machine guns stolen from Camp Borden were part of equipment used by Edwin Alonzo Boyd and his gang. At least, several such guns which were found in Boyd's lair when he was arrested were identified as having been stolen from Camp Borden.

Possession of a machine gun gives a robber considerable advantage in shooting it out with anyone who is armed only with an ordinary handgun. But on the other hand, anyone with a sub machine gun, being larger, is not so easy to conceal and hence is liable to arouse the curiosity of any policeman who happen along while the robbers are on their way to work.

It is possible that these Browning automatic pistols are smaller and easier to hide that the robbers have decided to use them. After all, four or five determined men with rapid-fire automatic pistols can do a lot of shooting in a short time if anyone tries to get tough and cross them up.

It seems to us that the military authorities ought to keep a closer watch on their firearms and ammunition. It is likely that people employed by banks, trust companies and other such institutions entertain somewhat similar views.

OUR GUESTS ARE DEPARTING

From Buffalo, N.Y., comes word that Arthur K. Karnuth, district director of immigration, has announced "an all-out drive against the smuggling of aliens across the Niagara river from Canada."

Said Mr. Karnuth: "We have found significant signs of a revival of alien smuggling in Ontario. Our people have picked up information about developments of an organized effort to smuggle into the United States some of the 200,000 immigrants who poured into Canada last year."

What Mr. Karnuth did not say, probably because he was not concerned about it, was that the Canadian government had paid the transportation from Europe to Canada of at least a large proportion of these immigrants who "poured" into this country last year.

In this same connection, it will be recalled that Major General G. R. Pearkes, V.C., C.B., D.S.O., M.C., one of Canada's distinguished soldiers, has not long ago strongly critical of the Canadian government's policy of sending troops to Europe. General Pearkes stated that Canada had, or was said to have, a shortage of manpower, while every country in western Europe had a surplus of manpower.

It is possible that Canada is doing the right thing in importing hundreds of thousands of immigrants from Europe at this time, when it is known that many of these people plan to use Canada merely as a jumping-off place from which to enter the United States, but somehow or other, it doesn't seem right. Since the Americans are well provided with spending money, would it not be better to allow them to import as many immigrants as they want into the United States directly, and thus save Canada all the expense and trouble connected with bringing them here, providing for them until they become acclimatized, and teaching them the English language?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

April 14th., 1932

The Titanic disaster. The greatest maritime disaster of history occurred twenty years ago today when the Titanic struck ice and sank with 1,513 passengers and crew. The survivors numbered only 711. The Titanic was the largest ship afloat — 60,000 tons displacement. It was built at Belfast for the White Star Line and launched May 31st., 1911. On its maiden voyage which was its last, Titanic started for New York with 2,224 passengers and crew. At about 11.15 p. m. on Sunday, April 14th., 1912, a lookout rang a bell thrice sharply, a signal to the bridge than an object had been sighted dead ahead. The order was given "wheel hard to starboard". The engines were reversed, but it was too late. The submerged portion of a huge iceberg slid along the bottom of the ship like a huge can opener, slitting the hull open and wide. There was a belief that the great Titanic was unsinkable, and even when the order came for the passengers to put on life belts and come on the decks there was no panic. Women and children were loaded first into lifeboats, then men into available places. Some women refused to leave their husbands; they were drowned.

30 YEARS AGO

April 14th., 1922

Violet Tag Day, the proceeds being for the Girls' Hospital, will be held this week.

A good crowd was present to see the exhibition game of football between the G. T. R. team and the G. T. R. Juniors, the former team won, the score being 2 to 1. The following composed the teams: G. T. R.— — Gorman, Griffin, Johnson, Summers, Taylor, Grant, Binney, Robinson, Lancaster, Hicken and Gazely; G. T. R. Juniors — Goodwin, Carter, Cross, Barry, Gill, Maker, Jones, Page, Fuller and Jenkinson. Referee Thompson gave entire satisfaction, and the linemen were Gill and Sankow.

April 14th., 1912

The Rev. Canon D. F. Bogart has resigned the Rectorship of St. John's Church, corner of Isabel and West Bridge Street, and will retire after many years of faithful labor in the service of the church. Bishop Mills of the Diocese of Ontario has authorized the closing of the church and consequently a new Rector will not be appointed. The parish was organized in the year 1878 and the Rev. R. S. Forneri, now Rector of St. Luke's Church at Kingston, was the first Rector. The church building was first located at the corner of West Bridge and Wellington Streets. Canon Bogart succeeded the Rev. R. S. Forneri as Rector over twenty years ago and the church building was removed to its present site. The first service in the church was delivered by Mr. Forneri and he was the preacher at the last service on Sunday evening when the closing of the church was announced.

Note: April 12th., 1952. The church building was eventually moved to Point Anne and is now the Anglican church there.

50 YEARS AGO

April 14th., 1902

The Rev. Canon J. W. Burke, M. A., has resigned the Rectorship of St. Thomas' Church to take effect July 1st. The curate, the Rev. J. W. Holah, has also resigned to take effect on the same date. Canon Burke has been Rector for many years and his retirement is owing to his advanced age. He will make his home in Carleton Place where his daughter is the wife of the Rev. A. E. Elliott, Rector of the parish.

The steam barge Iona and the schooner Collier are in the harbor discharging cargoes of coal.

Dr. Walker will leave shortly for California.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Campion have returned to the city after an absence of several months.

Letter to the Editor

Fewer Farms Being Worked

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Your editorial "Canada's Changing Economy" supplies the following revealing picture of the Canadian scene: "During the last year the number of persons engaged in agricultural pursuits has declined from 37 per cent to 20 per cent of the labor force. During the same period, the percentage of the working force in manufacturing has increased from 20 per cent to 30 per cent. The percentage engaged in commercial pursuits has increased from 17 per cent to 20 per cent. Increased mechanization and the employment of the latest and most scientific methods have made the Canadian farmer one of the world's most efficient, in terms of production per man-hour."

I found the above most enlightening and also encouraging. It certainly fits nicely into a subsequent statement, credited to one of our farm authorities, dealing with the national productivity of Canadian agriculture. The per production record in agriculture has been far better than is generally realized. Total volume of agricultural production increased 35 per cent or more since 1939. During the same period the number of farm workers dropped by 18 per cent. On this basis, the average agricultural worker produces more than he did 13 years ago. This increase per worker and, of course per farm, has been accomplished by hard work, by the use of new machines, better farm practices, more skilled workmanship, and a new enthusiasm and captivenness on the part of the farmer for the advantages of science and research. (H. H. Hannam, president, CFA).

Now, sir, while there are obvious elements of achievement in the above record, let us thought forward in your news column last week, indicated that "according to the Bureau of Statistics (Ottawa) it is estimated that there are 58,000 fewer farms in 1951 than there were in 1941", doesn't sound so good—even if it were also pointed out that the total area under cultivation has not decreased. In these days, when important leaders in the nation's economic financial and political circles are looking for Canada's population to reach anywhere from 20 to 25 million in the second half of the 20th century, the above trends make a man wonder just where the food is to come from for an extra 16-35 million Canadians.

Curious.

CONSIDER NEW PLAN .

Toronto, April 14 — (CP). The correct method of measuring a fish is from the tip of the nose to the fork in the tail.

That method seems to confuse some fishermen so officials of the department of lands and forests are considering a new plan which would require that fish be measured from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail with the tail lobes held together.

This means no change for trout which have no fork in their tails. But the legal limit on bass and other game fish with notched tails would be increased from one to two inches.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

PHONY PRICE

My economics aren't so good, but they're good enough for me to be grateful to the man who sell refrigerators, washing machines, oil ranges and other home appliances.

It's my glum suspicion that these gentlemen have pulled little Jack, among others, for a first class Grade "A" sucker.

It is over a year ago now that I bought a certain brand of refrigerator. I had it on the box before that. When I jokingly suggested that the man take it as a trade-in he laughed and laughed. I sold the ice box to a neighbor for $5.50.

Well, you know what's happening now.

Most every retailer is offering "fabulous, unprecedented" deals. Look at any advertisement. Here's one offering $50 trade-in on a new General Electric, worth for your old washboard. Here's an outfit offering $50 for a top and saucer on an automatic electric water heater and $150 for a cup and saucer on a nationally known's makes of refrigerators. Another offers $100 for a toothbrush, another $150 for a toothpick, another $200 "just anything."

All right, let's consider that $150. I'll tell you, fellows, I've got that much stuck away in a hat that hundred and fifty bucks. Anything else for the $150 of J. Scott, boy sucker?

Clearly these shops aren't bestilly pretty shoddy merchandising to have such a generous offer as this farce of a "trade-in."

I trust the boys are doing well with it, but I ought to warn them: Here is one small purchaser who is not only $150 richer, but $150 less laughter about their ethics.

Phony Goods

Apart from this dark suspicion of mine, I feel that all is not well merchandising. I've got some misgivings about the quality of almost everything these days from whisky (watered) to the pair of $7.95 shoes only good many times weeks ago and which are now disintegrating.

Like those restaurants that carefully lay the white meat over the dark, nearly everything these days is cunningly disguised. We're in the age of the packager, and often the label is better or edible than what's in the can.

This is a self-service market and I suppose the manufacturers think they can get away with cutting down on quality and full weight. Myself, I'm convinced it's a short-sighted view and I want to tell you about a certain tin of strawberries.

This 15c of strawberries, with a label "full of giddy promise, cost my wife 23 cents. When she opened it she gave a loud cry of pain and disgust. She counted the strawberries and, as God is my judge, there were 18 strawberries in the tin. The rest was juice.

Now I want to tell that canning company this: The joke was on us, sure enough. You sold us by clever merchandising and by abusing our confidence and I reckon your profit must have run as high as 100 per cent or 500 per cents. You're smarty, all right.

But that isn't the name of smarty, Mac, is being carefully remembered in our little nest. I will never again be caught with a plugged nickel in these precincts.

Phony Theory

While I'm in this rather nasty mood I now want to get off my chest the small matter of the price of coffee.

We're continually told, especially in the stream of "free entertainer" speeches to Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, that eating brings us goods at a rock-bottom price. You've heard that theory.

Well, now, a newspaper friend of mine has been offered a radio-tube combination radio-phonograph of the finest, which would cost more from $350 to $400 in the stores today. He had a beautiful offer to sell me $100 or $150 and all the rest is for the gravy train.

And trade Minister Howe says that the unions will threaten the "victory over inflation" by excessive rises of more dough. Heigh ho.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

People who move every two or three years—and many do—know enough not to let their furniture and household goods run away with them. But with May first only a couple of weeks off a good many Canadians, and who are moving for the first time in two years, we are finding out what pack rats they are. Until they have to move, they have no idea how much useless junk they've piled up.

We bury ourselves under our possessions. The process is so gradual, so imperceptible, that we are not aware of being smother-ed until the day comes when we have to move. Then we suddenly realize that we are junk dealers. Down in the cellar, we find things hidden away in dark corners and up on shelves, the existence of which we had forgotten. In cupboards, in spare rooms, up in the attic, we find boxes and boxes staring us in the face in rooms we have been familiar with daily for years, the product of our years of acquisition face us reproachfully.

Every bureau, every desk, every dresser has been a catch-all for years for gadgets, trinkets, and trifles which could at any time have been chucked out. But they weren't. Drawers and shelves are crammed with trash that now, in the cold light of cartage company charges, is seen to be trash indeed.

Personal Health Talks

WELL, FELLOWS, HERE WE GO AGAIN

"We do realize," writes a dentist, "that pyorrhea is descriptive of only that phase of the many stages of Periodontoclasia in which there is a flow of pus from the alveolus. We also realize that the causes of Periodontoclasia are complex and may be either local or systematic.... You surprise me that you write such a scathing article as that of Monday, Feb. 4, titled 'The Prorrhea Obsession:'"

In the Feb. 4 outburst I said it is high time for patients, dentists and physicians to acquire a little common sense instead of the pseudo-scientific buncombe that has long obscured the subject of "pyorrhea" and that it is my opinion that dentists could learn more about the nature, cause, prevention and treatment of the condition if they would simply call "pyorrhea" and physicians know even less.

With due appreciation for the professional courtesy of the dentist who chides me for such comments I now ask: Considering my modify or amend the comment to read: "... the condition they call Periodontoclasia with a capital P."

Probably my reaction to the good dentist's expostulation will obliterate the last thread of dignity or respect he must have had for me as a health teacher when he bothered to write me such a courteous, kindly letter. And in a way I feel I've a good right to use the dentist's letter in this column, even though I never can learn the dentist's identity unless the dentist himself or herself wishes to reveal it.

The dentist begins his or her letter with a statement which at nearly implies approval as any I have ever received from a dentist: "Your daily columns on health have been followed by me with interest and I have appreciated many of the viewpoints you express in regard to dental health." I read that over for three times, hoping to get a wee drop of gratification out of it, but had to give up. It doesn't matter what I say in this column or elsewhere about dentists and dentistry, the dentists do not like me very well for they know I'm a menace to the eighth-cylinder word, for- it one without knowledge of pathology might get the impression that he or she knows something about the nature, cause, prevention and treatment of the condition variously called pyorrhea or alveolaris, Rigg's disease, shrinkbag gums, loosening of teeth, interstitial gingivitis, suppurative inflammation of periodontal membrane of jaw bone and lining of tooth sockets, atrophy of gums.

Webster says periodontoclasia means degeneration of tissues around the teeth. Degeneration means deterioration of tissue or organ—well, your copy of Webster is identical with mine, or if your dumb doesn't rate a copy of the unabridged you can get a good general idea of it and how to retard its progress by sending 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for the little lesson Save Your Teeth.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Snoring

I sent for the pamphlet on Tinnitus and Deafness, particularly the exercises "Make a Face and Relieve Tinnitus" and many readers reported had stopped their tinnitus. But I never received it. I am trying once more, to see my husband... (Mrs. M. A. C.)?

Answer—Be patient. You for your patience. There are, after all, many people who may not reach me or my reply may not reach the correspondent. It is not always a matter of a postage stamp or the money. The pamphlet Tinnitus and Deafness is on the way. Tinnitus means head noises. The exercises described in the pamphlet have proved the hearing in many instances and some readers discovered that systematic performance of the exercises corrected snoring too. Tinnitus is the noise of high I Q to follow the exercises and be good enough. Knucklehead dismiss the idea as too silly.

Babies Are People

Please tell me exactly how much milk my baby three months old should have with his cereal twice a day and of course exactly should be added, now that I have the milk formula to can milk. (Mrs. H. R.)

Answer—If you mean you feed the baby cereal twice a day milk, that's regrettable. If you are not already doing so, begin today to at least give him the next best thing—pure fresh milk. Certified when it is available. Grade A. Raw from tuberculin tested herd and second choice. Grade A pasteurized milk as third choice, or any fresh milk available—it will be all right to brought to a boil for one minute. Send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for Brady Baby Book.

RULES TO LIVE BY

Dr. Arthur H. Merritt, one of America's most distinguished dentists, has handed me a little intellect upon which he had written his rules for living. "Live by the Golden Rule," He told me these rules were what had largely contributed to his successful and happy life. I'll give them to you, in his own words, though abbreviated:

"HAVE A GOAL: He is fortunate who knows early in life what he wants to do and has his life course to that end. Have an objective. Don't drift.

"WORK: Nothing takes the place of work. Therefore work, but don't make work your whole life. Do your work in the spirit of service. Ask not don't forget to play.

"EDUCATION: Be a lifelong student no matter in what your occupation. Be familiar with the old English poet, 'My mind to me a Kingdom is; such perfect joy therein I find, as far exceeds all other bliss.'

"BOOKS: Make books your life-long companions. Use them to help to build a library. Read widely. Become familiar with the literature of great authors.

"BE KIND: Kindness is the key that unlocks the door to all in universal language. It heals the broken heart. Gives courage to the hopeless. Turns defeat into victory.

"LIFE: Life is a school room—not a playground. Don't waste it. Be wants to do it time. Be hopeful, generous and law abiding. Take the anxious thought for the morrow.

"LIVE BY THE SPIRIT: 'Is not but don't make spirit—Make it the body -than raiment?' Attend the church. And don't forget to pray.

"EDUCATION: Be a lifelong student no matter in what your occupation. Be familiar with the old English poet, 'My mind to me a Kingdom is; such perfect joy therein I find, as far exceeds all

PEACE AMID TURBULENCE

Two artists once painted pictures depicting peace and rest. The first chose a sunny landscape wherein everything conveyed the impression of serenity. But the other artist painted a raging waterfall, with swirling rapids below, and hanging over the falls a branch of a tree upon which the mother robin sat on her nest. The latter picture was not merely a picture of stagnation; the second was tranquility in the midst of turbulence.

Among the best selling religious books are those which tell people how to secure peace of mind. Many of them seem to promise stagnation rather than real inner peace. Jesus had the conception of peace in the midst of turbulence. "In the world," He said, "ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

We do not have to find our peace in the midst of a turbulent life. There are millions of people who have sorrows which can never be forgotten. Many experience trials which they have to confront every day, personal hardships to which they have to accommodate themselves without bitterness. These people are in the midst of circumstances which cannot be changed. They must find their peace in the midst of turbulence.

"Be of good cheer," said Jesus, "I have overcome this world."

Misty the greening meadow,
Shining the silver rain,
Fitful the flash of sunlight
Parting the clouds again,
Whirring wings in the tree-tops
Where the bright wind goes through,
And hauling the cry of the killdeer
That tells that the earth is new.

Food for Thought

How Much Do You Know About Basic Nutrition?

A little nursing job needed doing in our neighborhood and I was the one to do it and I've come back home from my little labor of love feeling depressed and shocked.

The shock came from my conviction that sickness comes not so much from neglect as ignorance or ignorance of nutrition.

When the three meals per day that most women have to prepare for the rest of their lives are taken into consideration, and multiplied by the number of people in the average woman's family to be fed, the figures are astronomical. Yet in every girl taught and trained and drilled to know what she is going to feed her future family and why?

Would an honor girl student from Grade 13 know why she should buy brown rice instead of polished? or whole wheat bread instead of just "brown" or "cracked wheat" or "fortified"? or cut and mix the salad the last minute before serving? or why milk is the cheapest of all foods from a nutritional standpoint? or why vegetables should be quick-cooked in minimum amount of water? or the harm that white sugar does to human teeth and pancreas? or that clothes dried in the sun impart vitamins to the skin they touch? As you read this do you know why you should eat the skin of an apple or of a baked potato?

I'm asking you because I was asked (by someone, very sick, who can afford salads and fresh fruits, but who is spending all of his money on doctors and hospitals) "How do you make them there salads Mix Moore?"—referring to salads I had sent to their house on a dinner day—because of sickness there.

How do I make salads? I'm sure I do not know the formula. I know this though—that we have fresh vegetable salads every day. Don't you? Because if you don't you had better get cracking or the old body will let you down. And—if you are the cook you are letting your family down badly if you do not provide fresh salads every day.

I would be distressed—distressed heck!—I'd be bopping mad if I thought anyone read this column and had not had that fundamental of nutrition repeated to them often enough that they were not practising it. Fresh vegetable salads every day see?

Buy the salad things with the groceries, then be sure you serve them. Buy hard head of lettuce, dark green hard cabbage, green celery, fresh tomatoes, carrots and parsley. If you can afford green peppers, cucumbers, cress, avocados, endive, etc., all the better—get them too.

Remember, chums, if you don't spend your dough on nourishing food you'll be doling it out to the doctors. That's why they are all overworked.

I am so hot and bothered about this ignorance that I am sure in general, that I'm going to give you one salad combination, that can be varied endlessly, and repeat the inseparable French Dressing that I gave you recently. That may lure you into giving tossed green salads a fling.

TOSSED GREEN SALAD

One-half head iceberg lettuce cut or torn into bite-sized pieces, 1 or 2 cups extremely finely shredded cabbage, wafer thin slices of cucumber, celery and tomato—1-2 to 1 cup, 1-2 cup finely chopped parsley. Rub your wooden bowl with cut side of garlic clove. Add about 1-4 or 1-3 cup French Dressing to vegetables and lightly toss them to coat them. Put in seasoned bowl and serve at once.

FRENCH DRESSING

(Does not separate)

Into a cold bowl put 1-3 cup cold vinegar, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1 1-2 teaspoon salt, shake of red pepper, 1 small cut clove garlic, 1-4 cup or 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 cold egg. Mix very well with rotary or electric beater—about 3 or 4 minutes. Have ready measured 1 cup cold salad oil. Now while beating add this drop by drop at first—this slow dropping is to start the emulsification between the egg and the oil. As it begins to thicken increase your drop to a very fine stream. It must be beaten constantly.

As it thickens more, increase size of stream to about one-eighth inch width at top and continue until all oil is added. Keep in covered bottle or jar in refrigerator. If this is patiently mixed it will not separate and does not need to be shaken every time it is used.

Do I make myself clear about this daily salad habit? I could say it in deaf and dumb language too.

SHORT CUT

Harry's Harbor, Nfld. — (CP)— Ice floes driven in by easterly winds and frozen into a solid mass in Green Bay provided a convenient bridge for men coming home from their winter's work at Baie Verte. Roadways were made across the ice by teams taking the short way home.

YOUTHFUL GUN-TOTER

Timmins, Ont. — (CP) — Police at Ansonville warned that several action will be taken against youths caught carrying fire-arms. The warning came after a 16-year old boy was found with an unloaded revolver. The boy told police he was "just carrying it for fun."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

An ill-advised Marriage Creates a Family Problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This problem is about my brother. He got married while he was away from home without anyone knowing, then wrote and asked my mother if he could bring his wife home. My mother said yes, so they came, but after about six months my brother's wife left him. He went after her and they had a furnished room for awhile, then my brother asked my mother if they could come back as his wife was going to have a baby. So back they came, and when the baby was three weeks old, my brother's wife went away again, leaving the baby behind. Her excuse was that she wanted her own home. Well they got their own home, and she never cared either for the house or the baby properly and has left the baby twice since then. She now says she doesn't want the baby and my mother should keep her, so the baby is now with my mother while my brother and his wife live in furnished rooms, my brother having sold all their furniture when his wife left him the last time.

Don't you think they should have the baby with them, as my mother is not too young and the baby is a great care for her?—J. A. B.

Dear J.A.B.:

This is surely a very difficult problem that your family has on its hands. I certainly do think the baby belongs with its parents. At the same time, I can understand that if its mother did not take proper care of it, your own mother would feel happier to have it with her.

Since the girl your brother married is obviously irresponsible, selfish, and scatterbrain, she is not a fit person to have the care of a baby. If you feel, however, that your mother is really not able to have the responsibility of the baby, then perhaps you could arrange either one of the following plans. One might be to board the baby with a private family for awhile, until your brother manages to straighten out his affairs somehow and assume his proper responsibilities toward his child. If you will go to an organization called the Family Society in your city, you will be told how to go about the necessary formalities for boarding the baby. If you are not able to pay for the baby's board, the matter can probably be adjusted with this organization.

If you do have the means to pay for help, then you might consider hiring someone on either a part time or full time basis to help care for the baby in your one or other of these suggestions will help you solve your problem. mother's home. I hope that either

Be Honest and Frank in Relationships with Others

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was married at 16, but my wife was impossible to live with, so after three years we separated.

Now I have met a very nice girl whom I love and who I know loves me, too. I would like to ask this girl to marry me after I get a divorce, but she doesn't know I was ever married before and I don't know if she would change her feeling about me if she found out. I would like to tell her, but I don't know how because I don't want to hurt her.—B. M.

Dear B. M.:

It is always wisest to be honest and frank in your relationships with others. If you leave people in ignorance about things they should know, you start a chain of endless complications in which you become more and more enmeshed.

I think you should take your chance and tell the girl that you have been married; why you and your wife found it necessary to separate; and what plans you have about getting a divorce. If the girl cares for you, and is an understanding person, she will make allowances for a mistake you made when you were very young. On the other hand, if the circumstances do make a difference to her, it is not only fair to her, but best for yourself, that she should know about them before you both become more involved.

Who owns the Nickel Company?

"It's this way, son. Suppose you want a bobsled but haven't enough money to buy one. But you and Jack and Tom among you can raise the necessary cash. So you buy the sled, and all go coasting together.

"Well, no one person owns the Nickel Company. It's owned by a great many people. Each owns a certain share."

"Have you a share in it, Dad?"

"No, son—but yet, in a way I have a share, too. I own life insurance to protect Mother and you. The money I pay to the insurance company each year is invested in many things, including shares in the Nickel Company. So actually, Inco is owned by most everybody."

"Do you have to be rich to get a share?"

"No, the Company is owned by many people like Doctor Smith and Mrs. Munroe, and the grocer and the street car conductor. No one owns more than a very small part."

PRESERVE THE PICKEREL

Spawn-laden pickerel will shortly be finding their way to ice-free rivers and streams of the district. Each fish will deposit 80,000 eggs in its "nest". Left to themselves, female pickerel and her mate will reproduce and bring to maturity between 200 and 300 fish and over a period of four years will produce 1,000 to 1,200 active fish, the first 300 of which will reproduce others. The result: well-stocked streams and plenty of fish for everybody.

But looming behind this attractive picatorial picture is the menace of the annual spring slaughter. Synonymous with the approach of the pickerel is spawning grounds, spears are being sharpened in darkened garages, kitchens and other tion can be reduced perhaps, but something can and will be done regarding the wanton slaughter of these producing fish by those who apparently derive enjoyment from nocturnal spearing and other illegal fishing activities.

During the past few years, hundreds of spawning pickerel have been caught, a great number tossed aside to rot on river or stream bank because of the killer lust of some of these attending "sportsmen." This is specially true of the stretch extending between Trenton and Shannonville, with emphasis on the Salmon River near the latter place. Game overseers and police have done a fine job in curbing the practice, but they cannot be in a dozen places at the same time.

True a great number of those taking pickerel illegally do not do so merely for the fun of fishing. Some do it for financial gain, selling their catches to friends and neighbors; others merely take sufficient for their own needs. In any event the temptation is strong, but that does not relieve any of the responsibility of breaking the law. All are guilty.

Let's put it this way. A farmer would not kill a cow about to freshen, nor a sow carrying a litter of pigs. He would not decapitate a setting hen with eggs ready to hatch. Or in a broader sense, the farmer wishing to replace his herd with new stock would not kill the entire herd before it had freshened.

A government official has stated that if the taking of female fish at spawning time continues there is a possibility of a complete loss of reproduction for at least three seasons. This will lead to one thing, the posting of all streams and inland lakes in this district with fishing strictly prohibited until the fish population is back to normal.

Three very important points should be considered by those who purchase pickerel out of season. First if the vendor is without a license he would be in illegal possession, and which state is immediately yours when the purchase is completed. Second, if the fish were taken in the Moira River or other water it is illegal by reason of a closed season. And third, and this is very important, the flesh of any fish just before or after the period of production is not properly edible, and worst of all, if it is a female fish and taken before the spawn is deposited, you are in possession of 500 fish, for even under unfavorable circumstances the hatch would yield that much.

So when you buy a pickerel or any other game fish taken during closed season, it is not only illegal, but if you enjoy angling or if you cater to the tourist business, you are helping to cat the proverbial cake and speeding the approaching catastrophe.

It has been announced that the law governing the taking of fish illegally will be rigidly enforced. Game overseers and conservation staffs will be augmented. No matter if you are the local equivalent of the Aga Khan or Mickey from across the tracks, the Colonel's aide or Judy O'Grady, if found fishing illegally, or in illegal possession you will feel the full force of the law.

The present picture as far as game fish is concerned, is alarming but not discouraging providing every local citizen gives his co-operation. The Game and Fish Associations of Belleville and Napanee in co-operation with the Department of Lands and Forests, are exerting every effort to conserve the game fish of the district. They believe that with proper protection and treatment the fish will in their own way provide this area with fine angling and fishing for all concerned as well as making it attractive to tourists who intend spending vacations in this part of Ontario.

Looks Like All-Time Record For Surging Detroit Squad; Gordie Howe Returns to Form

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Detroit, April 14—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings, who won the National Hockey League title in a cake-walk, are having things their own way in this post-season Stanley Cup playoff series.

The Wings showed 14,018 yelling fans at Olympia Stadium last night just why they are prohibitive favorites to add the cup to their league championship this year. They defeated Montreal Canadiens 3-0, following up 3-1 and 2-1 victories at Montreal last Thursday and Saturday, and they way they are clicking they should wrap up the best-of-seven final series tomorrow night.

Eight in Row?

More than that, a Tuesday night win for the Tommy Ivan-coached team would make them the first team in the 35-year history of Detroit hockey to win eight consecutive playoff victories. Detroit whipped Toronto Maple Leafs four straight in the semi-finals and a clean-sweep over Canadiens would make them the only club to take the cup in the minimum number of games since the best-of-seven system was inaugurated 13 years ago.

The big stumbling note for Red Wings fans is the return to form of Gordie Howe, the N. H. L.'s leading goal-scorer who almost single-handedly broke Canadiens' hearts last night as he pumped two goals past Montreal goalkeeper Gerry McNeil. They were the first in seven games for Howe and both were masterpieces.

The big right-winger from Floral, Sask., opened and closed the scoring for the Wings, the second Detroit goal coming off the stick of line-mate Ted Lindsay, a 65-foot looper that took a crazy hop in front of the Montreal goalkeeper and bounced past him high up in the nets.

Saturday night Lindsay and Howe made a goal by Lindsay stand up for 39 minutes and 17 seconds to give them two straight games on Montreal ice.

Tight Defence

Steady, relentless checking and a tight-knit defence plus Sawchuk's fine work halted the Montrealers.

Both teams scored late in the opening period, Detroit cashing in when Barry Pavelich saw Tony Leswick fetch the puck in a Montreal corner and spirited for the goal crease to grab Leswick's passout and drove the puck into the net. Two minutes later Elmer Lach tipped in a shot by Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion to tie the score.

Harvey was sitting out a Montreal penalty when Lindsay scored unassisted from a scramble in front of McNeil. Lindsay's shot rebounded off McNeil's pads. In the milling about, the puck struck defenseman Butch Bouchard's chest as Bouchard was falling and he and the puck both fell into the net.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

The great Babe Ruth for the first time in his years in baseball attended the major league opening at New York 16 years ago today as a spectator. The king of swat received a great ovation from the Polo Grounds fans. After a long run with New York Yankees, he had played his last season with Boston Braves in 1935. He died in 1948 after an illness of two years.

Lift Suspension On 6 Kingston Hockey Players

(By The Canadian Press)

Suspension of six members of the Kingston Nylon hockey club has been backdated four months to allow participation in summer sports, the Ontario Hockey Association executive ruled Saturday. The change is also available to other suspended members of the club.

The suspensions were imposed Oct. 10, 1951, when the OHA decided that the Nylons had "thrown" a series to enter the senior B playoffs in preference to Allan Cup competition. One-year suspension imposed on Douglas Patterson, Walt Greene, Glen Udell and Jack Stone will end May 1. Two year suspensions of R. Aiken and E. Plum will end May 1, 1953. The players requested the change.

The Ontario Hockey Federation had upheld the OHA suspensions, thus prohibiting those involved from going into other organized sports.

Managers Lead With Ace Hurlers In Major-League Openers Tuesday

New York, April 14 (AP)—Major league ball clubs will lead with their pitching aces tomorrow when the 1952 baseball season gets underway but the lineups otherwise will be dotted with new faces.

In New York, Sal Maglie (25-6), Giants' ace, will oppose Robin Roberts (21-13), Philadelphia's best. The Giants, however, will present a complete set of new faces as second baseman Davey Williams and left fielder Bob Elliott, Williams succeeds the scrappy Eddie Stanky, Elliott was obtained from the Braves as an 215-hour fill in for the injured Monte Irvin.

The Phillies' newcomers will be Connie Ryan, acquired during the winter to plug the second base gap, and catcher Smoky Burgess, who came along in the same deal.

Rookie Bob Miller is a flock of newcomers in the lineup when the Braves face the Brooklyn Dodgers' Preacher Roe (19-8). Second baseman Red Schoendienst and Johnny Quiclk afid third baseman Bill Mathews will appear in starting roles.

Then there is Sheldon Jones, the right-hander obtained from the Giants. The latter was used in relief should starter Warren Spahn (22-16) need help.

"Bums" the Same

The Dodgers will field the same team that lost the pennant in the playoff with the Giants last year.

St. Louis Cardinals are using rookie Steve Bilko at first against Pittsburgh when Gerry Staley (18-13) takes the mound against the Pirates' Murray Dickson (20-16). The Bucs will counter with veteran Cookie Rojas at second in infielders Dick Hall and Jim Mirson and outfielder Bobby Del Greco.

Veteran righthanders Bob Rush (21-12) of the Cubs and Ewell Blackwell (7-10) of the Reds will be the opposing pitchers when the Chicago-Cincinnati game which may feature the debut of outfielder Wally Post of the Reds and catcher Toby Atwell of the Cubs.

Jim Pridley, hard-hitting young outfielder, may be in the Cleveland lineup when the Indians face Washington Wynn (20-13) on the mound, tackle the Chicago White Sox. Left-by Billy Pierce (18-14) will start for the Sox, who will show their hometown fans the faces in third baseman Hoe Rodrigues and catcher Sherman Lollar.

Leo Durocher, confronted with the loss of Ted Williams, is grooming a couple of young hard-hitting outfielders and may start newcomers, Faye Throneberry and Gene Stephens when Boston faces the Senators in Washington. Mel Parnell (18-11) will hurl against the Nats' Bob Porterfield (9-8). Washington will field a veteran lineup.

The Browns will top them all when it comes to presenting new profiles. Manager Rogers Hornsby back at the managerial helm, will feature a new team except for pitcher Ned Garver (20-13) who threw a no-hit game Dizzy Trout (9-14) and the Tigers in Detroit.

Catcher Clint Courtney, outfielders Jim Rivera, Bob Bieman and George Schmees and infielders Marty Marion, Leo Thomas and Gordon Goldsberry are just some of the newcomers. The Tigers figure to play outfielders Cliff Mapes (obtained from the Browns. Jack Jensen) will be in centerfield for the Yankees in Philadelphia when Vic Raschi (21-10) tries to continue his jinx over the Athletics. He has beaten them 20 times in 22 decisions.

Jimmy Dykes will start southpaw Alex Kellner (11-14) backed by a veteran team. But he has some new faces in outfielder Kite Thomas; infielders Skeets Kell, Scotty Hamilton and Johnny Lipon and pitchers Ed Lopat and Harry Byrd. Third baseman Andy Carey and pitchers Bill Miller and Harry Scheffer are the best of a host of Yankee newcomers.

DOUBLE DOSE

Charlottetown — (CP)—Double the usual amount of snow was dumped in Prince Edward Island during the winter. Official figures show the total here to the end of March was 130.5 inches, compared with 58 inches in the same period a year ago.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Catharines won the Ontario Midget Hockey Association championship Saturday by defeating Toronto Marlboros 6-3 in the second game of a two-game total-goals series. The victory, coming after an initial 5-4 win, gave them the round 14-7. Pete Saliken and Chester Lukasik each counted twice for the victors.

Eight Kentucky derby hopefuls were left behind Saturday by G. S. Smith's Handsome Teddy, which won the Chesapeake Stakes at the Laurel, Md., track. Immediately behind were three candidates for the May 3 classic which will run at Churchill Downs. Friedman's Oro and J. J. Amiss' Count Flame. Handsome Teddy now will be entered in the May 17 Preakness at Pimlico.

Windsor A.K.O.'s took a one-game lead in the Canadian Junior Men's Basketball Finals at Winnipeg Saturday night by edging Winnipeg Light Infantry 63-60. Windsor leads the best-of-three series 2-1 and the fourth game scheduled tonight.

Edmonton Pats downed Fort Frances Canadians 4-2 at Calgary Saturday night to even at one game each the best-of-seven Allan Cup series. The series is now one game 8-5 and another was tied.

E. G. Jenness, owner of Jencraft, North America's only racing shell builders, said Saturday he hopes to make the May 15 deadline granted by the Canadian Olympic Committee following a fire which swept his plant at Kelowna, B.C., Tuesday with unrated damage. Eight shells being built for the committee were badly damaged. The company has orders for five eights from Eastern Canada rowing clubs.

The favored Blue Man came from far behind Saturday to catch the leaders in the stretch and win the $26,000 Experimental Handicap No. 2 at Jamaica race track before a chilled crowd of 44,910. Second was Master Fields and third Sky Ship.

Earle (Skeier) Reynolds, 84, world speed-skating match champion 50 years ago, Saturday put on his skates for the first time in 27 years and did an ice dance at Indianapolis with Chicago's Barbara Ann Scott. The occasion was his visit to his granddaughter, a member of Miss Scott's Hollywood Ice Revue.

Biltmores Whip Canadiens 7-2 For Third Win

Toronto, April 14 (CP) —Guelph Biltmores stand only one victory away from sweeping the east in the Memorial Cup final.

They'll go after that win tomorrow night in Montreal when they'll try to take the eastern Canada junior hockey championship in five games from Montreal Canadiens.

The Biltmores took a 3-1 lead in games in the best-of-seven series when they whipped the Canadiens 7-2 yesterday at Maple Leaf Gardens. A crowd of 13,684—the largest for any of the games so far —watched as the Bilts came up with their effort of the series.

The victory was the most decisive of the series, which the Biltmores now are overwhelming favorites to take for the right to meet either Regina Pats or Fort William Hurricanes in the Memorial Cup final to be played in the east this year.

Jack Smith, who won the first game 4-3 and the third 7-6 after going under 7-6 in the second engagement, left nothing to chance yesterday.

The Quebec champions got the count up to 4-2 with a goal at 8:46 of the third period but the Bilts refused to be shaken. Less than five minutes later they scored twice within eight seconds to make it 6-2 and, for good, measure Ron Stewart counted his 20th goal, tally with goalie Charlie Hodge out of the Canadiens' net for an extra forward with less than a minute to play.

Cougars Edge Saskatoon 4-3 In Opener

Victoria, B.C., April 14 (CP)— Victoria Cougars drilled home two goals late in the third period Saturday night to edge the favored Saskatoon Quakers 4-3 in the opening game of the Pacific Coast Hockey League best-of-seven final. The second game will be played here Monday night.

The free-scoring hockey with the Cougars taking a 1-0 lead in the first period, the Quakers coming with a rush in the second to move ahead 3-1, only to lose out to the inspired Victoria team which last year won the league and playoff championships.

Coach Roger Leger, who rallied his team when defeat seemed inevitable, scored the winning goal. It came only 26 seconds after Bob Fitzpatrick had tied the score and was hotly disputed by the Quakers. Ed Kilbert and Walt Atanas got the other Victoria goals. Murray Parker, Alex Kaleta and Neil Eraiin scored for Saskatoon.

Stratford Looks For Third Win

Stratford, Ont., April 14 (CP)— Allan Cup-happy Stratford fans had cheering reason today in the word that Mickey Roth's injured shoulder has improved.

The shifty forward is expected to give Stratford Indians' No. 1 line added punch when the Indians take on Pembroke Lumber Kings tonight in the third game of the best-of-seven series for the Eastern Canada honors.

Stratford leads the series 2-0.

Pembroke boasts a giant ice squad, one of the largest individually ever to lace on skates, veteran sports observers here say. The Kings are liberally sprinkled with ex-pros like the Glesebrecht brothers, Roy, Bruce and Fred, and the Simons, Cully and Thain.

One thing Indians have shown in the first two games is that they have the better skating legs, which offsets the greater experience of the Pembroke crew.

With Roth able to operate better now that his shoulder is on the mend, playing coach Pat Fillion looks for more sing from the Roth-Billy Dick-Flanagan line.

Twice within reach is a complete sellout and another is anticipated for the fourth game here Wednesday night.

Sugar Ray Ruled Solid 3-1 Favorite Over Rocky Graziano In Wed. Battle

Chicago, April 14 (AP)—Champion Ray Robinson and Rocky Graziano each boasting he'll win by a knockout, have ended heavy drills for their middleweight title brawl in Chicago Stadium Wednesday.

Chicago fans are more steamed up for this scrap than at any time since 1947 when Graziano belted out Tony Zale in the sixth round to win the 160-pound crown. That Chicago Stadium fight drew a gate of $422,000, an all time high for indoor boxing. The figure cannot be matched Wednesday night for the house is scaled at $260,835 for a complete sell out of 19,740.

The crowd may well be more than 17,000.

Graziano's shot at Robinson is the climax of his comeback and their first meeting. Most ring critics believe Rocky has looked sharper and has been more serious in his training than at any time since his battle with Zale.

Rocky has never gone 15 rounds and there is little reason to believe Wednesday's affair will go the distance. Robinson, who has lost only two out of 139 fights, has never been counted out.

Sugar Ray rules a solid 3-to-1 favorite. It will be his second middleweight title defence since regaining the crown from Randy Turpin in New York last September.

The scheduled 15 rounder will be televised and broadcast nationally starting at 10 p.m. EST, with Chicago blacked out on TV. Robinson will get 30 percent of the net gate and the same bite from an $80,000 TV-radio melon. Graziano's cut in both is 25 percent.

Frankford Sport

Frankford — The Frankford Bowling League wound up the first round of their playoffs this week, with all four teams of the first division emerging victorious. Gene Gardner Pinpoppers knocked off Ed. Tomecek's Rockets, in five games, taking the series four to one. The Rockets just couldn't seem to get clicking, although their captain was in form.

Ron Huffman's Crackpots went the full six games to take Harry Hearn's Hotshots, on total pins. After taking three straight games from Ray Scott's Skeeters last week, Karl Austin's Bobsmob had all they could handle to take out the Skeeters four games to two.

The hottest series of the lot saw the Fireballs, led by Jack Farley, down the Hotshots, under Russ Hogg on total pins. Every game was right down to the wire, and it was never over until the last ball was rolled. It is fortunate that the series didn't have to go another week, for one more night is noisy as that would have probably brought out the fire department and police force.

Next week will see the Crackpots and Pinpoppers tangle, while the Fireballs and Bobsmob meet in the other series.

First Round Final

Team	W	L	P
Pinpoppers	4	1	9
Bobsmob	4	2	9
Crackpots	3	3	7
Fireballs	3	3	6
Hotshots	3	3	6
Inkspots	3	3	6
Skeeters	2	4	4
Rockets	1	4	2

Fort William Edges Regina In Bonspiel Game

Fort William, April 14—(CP)—Regina Pats were given Fort William Hurricanes on Regina ice tomorrow night, trying to wipe out a one-game deficit in their best-of-seven series in the Western Canada Memorial Cup hockey finals.

Remaining games shifted from the Lakehead after Hurricanes' temper-tossed 2-1 victory Saturday night in the third encounter.

The win, coming from two goals in less than two minutes in the third period, gave Fort William a 2-1 lead in the series.

Regina was leading 1-0 near the end of the third period and had Hurricanes bottled up in their own end. Then Eddie Kachuk broke through to slam in a backhand shot at 18:50 to tie the score.

Norm Berglund slipped in the winning goal at 13.33 on a pass from Junior Wilson.

Trouble started in the first period after Gordon Cowan scored Regina's lone marker at 7:31 assisted by Eddie Litzenberger.

Referee Bernie Ost of Winnipeg had to signal the score when the red light failed to flash. Apparently the goal judge missed the shot.

Tempers mounted and erupted into a fight near the end of the period between Schneider of Pats and Cowan after a Regina goal was disallowed. Both offenders drew majors.

BIG INLET

Largest of the indentations on the Labrador coast, Hamilton Inlet is slightly over 150 miles long.

Windsor Trims Winnipeg 63-30 In Cage Series

Winnipeg, April 14 —(CP) — A fourth-quarter drive netting 17 points Saturday night gave Windsor AKO a 63-60 victory over Winnipeg Light Infantry and a 2-1 lead in games in their best-of-five series for the Canadian junior basketball championship.

The fourth game will be played here tonight.

The game winning drive, sparked by Bob Uhrin, Joe Sabocan and Don Long, wiped out what appeared to be an easy victory for Winnipeg.

Infantry led 14-11 at the end of the third quarter, 32-25 at the half and 50-42 at three-quarter time.

Windsor started to roll midway through the third quarter when Uhrin potted a basket and a free throw. He scored 26 points in the contest, 20 of them in the last half.

Sabocan, Windsor's best ball-handler, scored 16. Fred Ingaldson led Winnipeg scorers with 22 points.

Winnipeg was leading 45-31 in the third quarter when Windsor took over. They tied the count 56-56 with four minutes remaining in the final quarter.

Ingaldson and Hutton each tossed for two points to give the lead to Winnipeg but Uhrin tied the score again. AKO went ahead when Sabocan scored after snaring a stray Winnipeg pass and Don Stone added an extra point with a free throw.

Providence Reds Trim Hornets 5-1; Lead Series 2-1

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds got a new lease on life in the American Hockey League playoffs from a 5-1 decision Sunday night over Pittsburgh Hornets.

The victory was Providence's first in the best-of-seven Calder Cup playoff. Pittsburgh leads 2-1 in the series which resumes at Providence tomorrow night.

Three first-period goals did the trick.

Twelve penalties, including three majors were called during the first two periods. Andy Barbe of the Hornets suffered a broken nose when hit by defenceman Pat Egan during the rough second period.

Paul Gladu and Ray Laplante scored the first two Providence goals while the Hornets were short-handed. Barry Sullivan made it 3-0 on a pass from Ray Powell.

Bob Solinger blasted home a 40-foot shot for Pittsburgh's goal at 6:24 in the second period. This one was matched by Joe Lund, who scored for the Reds on a pass from Art Michalik at 17:03.

Jean Paul Denis netted a 20-footer for the only third-period goal.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A double in bridge is a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Times are when you meet it as a kindly request to bid. At other times it is a horrible means that says it expects to beat you.

In some spots a double asks partner to bid. Then is when it is a takeout double. In some spots a double says it expects to defeat the opponents. Last bid. Then is when it is a penalty double.

If partner has already bid, any double is for penalty. If a bid has not yet been made by partner, a double is for takeout if the bid is less than four in a suit or less than two in no-trump.

Take the deal you see here:

	NORTH
	♠A Q 10 8 5
	♦K 10 9 4
WEST		EAST
♠K J 9 6 4		♠None
♥5 3		♥Q 4 2
♦8		♦7 6 5 3 2
♣A K Q 5 3		♣J 9 8 2
	SOUTH
	♠7 3 2
	♥A K J 9 8 6
	♦A J

Suppose south starts with an opening bid of one heart. If west doubles it is for takeout. Partner (east) has not yet bid. The bid is not more than three in a suit; it is less than four in a suit.

When south opened with a heart and west doubled, suppose north bid one spade. If east passes and south bids two hearts, suppose west doubles again. It is still for takeout; for the same reasons.

Suppose south started with an incorrect opening bid of three hearts. If west doubles it is for takeout. Partner has not yet bid. The bid is less than four in a suit.

Suppose south started with an incorrect opening bid of four hearts. If west doubles it is for penalty. True, partner has not yet bid, but the bid is not less than four in a suit.

When south opened with a heart, suppose west bid one spade and north doubled. It is for penalty. His partner (south) has already bid. So, this double is for penalty.

Thus, whether a double is for takeout or penalty depends on the size of the bid and whether or not partner has already bid.

Not knowing doubles will add to your troubles.

36 Persons Killed During Long Easter Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Thirty-six persons were killed in Canada during the long Easter weekend, including a father and four children in a murder-suicide gassing.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed 13 persons killed in traffic accidents, five drowned and five killed at work. Besides the murder-suicide, three other persons were asphyxiated by cooking gas.

A woman was strangled, two children died in a fire, a child was accidentally shot and one man was burned to death in his automobile.

Eight persons were killed in British Columbia, one in Saskatchewan, one in Manitoba and 21 in Ontario. Two persons died in Quebec, two in New Brunswick and one in Nova Scotia.

Thomas Hugh Gillis, 28, led police to his west-end rooming house where they found the strangled body of Mrs. Violet Smith, 35, Gillis, a machinist from Nova Scotia, has been charged with murder.

In Toronto, Serge Aksiuk, 38, and his four children, were killed by gas fumes in what police said was a murder-suicide. Police said Aksiuk led gas from the kitchen stove into rooms on the second-floor bedroom.

In Vancouver, Arthur Clinton, 61 turned on the gas jets in his room and was killed. The fumes seeped into two other rooms and killed Nick Barbanuk, 65, and Tony Pavicic, 61.

Alex Perio, a guide in the Caribou district of British Columbia, died in a fire burning automobile near Ashcroft.

Crushed by Tractor

A sewer excavation that collapsed killed David Smart in Woodstock, Ont. At Moose Jaw, Sask., William Byron Holland, 20, a recent immigrant from England, was crushed to death by a tractor that he turned over on him.

Edward Proudfoot, 52, of Vancouver, was doing repairs on a family cabin on Lake of the Woods near Hope, B. C., when his boat capsized and he was drowned. The body of a man with the name C.R. Smith pinned on the collar of his air-force-blue shirt was found in the Thames River at London, Ont.

At St. Jean, Que., Adrien Girard, 40, was killed in an automobile accident. Another man, Gisele Charbonneau, 11, died of injuries suffered in a similar collision at Hull, near Ottawa.

Pedestrians struck and killed by automobiles were Howard J. Wendborn, 30, at Vancouver, Lawrence Hall, 70, at Ottawa and Clarence V. Hughes, 72, at Toronto.

The 36 deaths occurred between Thursday night and early Monday morning.

Caved-in Sewer Causes Death Of One Man

Woodstock, April 14 (CP)— One man died Saturday in a caved in sewer excavation and seven others were rescued after hours of digging.

David Smart 42 was found dead under tons of wet clay after a rescue by him and a steel-cribbing in the 17 foot trench in which he had been working.

Rescuers had uncovered him to the hips when a second cave-in buried both him and the men who were trying to free him.

Ben McDonald was pulled out and Ed Hamilton pulled himself out with his arms after being under the workers at the surface.

Carl Springstead and Wallace Meadows were pulled under the falling earth, as was Ken Likens, a Woodstock sewer of Smart. Other men were organized to dig in relays while a bulldozer moved the heavy overburden with its shovels.

Ben Likens said fear drove him "almost crazy" as he dug with his hands to free himself and the others.

"We were trapped like rats and my boy Ken was in the hole three hours he spent in the trench were the first to reach him. I knew his furious digging was all that saved Springstead's life as he dug at the earth and stones to keep them away from the other men's nose and throat.

Speaking of the dead man, Likens said: "We almost had David out when he was buried. I remember telling him to take it easy because we almost had him free. Then the cave-in occurred. The last words I heard from him were: 'Hurry up, hurry up.'"

Jolliffe Again Elected to Lead C.C.F. Party

Toronto, April 14 (CP)—Edward Bigelow Jolliffe, 43-year-old Toronto lawyer, was elected Saturday for his 11th term as Ontario leader of the C.C.F. party.

At a convention when William Temple, a last-minute candidate, withdrew.

Ted Isley, Waterloo farmer and leader of the group defeated in last year's election, was unsuccessful in a bid for the party presidency. He was, however, elected vice-president with C. James of Kirkland Lake, Leo Lalonde of Timmins, True Davidson of Sudbury and Reeve Thomas of Oshawa.

Phyllis Moore, delegate from York East and spokesman for a group supporting Mr. Temple, got the backing for a proposal that no provincial leader be elected this year.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Half an hour later Marney Cravath came to my room. "Thought you'd like to know that Eve took it as I expected she would. Like a sport. Even told me to forget about it. Naturally I won't do that."

Well, it must be great to be in a position to laugh off 50 G's. And Eve Wheeler undoubtedly was.

"Good." I said. "At least you won't lose a customer." And now that he had Eve off his mind, I asked him to give me a few minutes.

He grunted that it was very late but came on in to the study. I went straight to the point.

"I want a check up on Ames Warburton's movements." I told him. "From the time he left the office till he got down here that day."

That was the way I put it. As a matter of fact, I envisioned a check-up that would go a lot further.

"Sure." Cravath said "go on up to New York and do what you like. You don't have to batty-at with me day and night. I'm beginning to think that's all foolishness, anyhow."

"I don't."

He shot me a hard direct look. "You think we're not finished with this thing?"

"I'm taking no chances. Besides, there's a fellow in New York named Harrison who can do the checking-up better than I could. Investigating is his business. He does nothing else."

"Get him started then." Cravath's arose, yawning.

I sat on in the study for a while. I leaned back in my chair, lit a cigaret and stared at the cups, photographs, et al, which told the saga of Cravath's athletic ability.

It was one of the best things I've ever done.

Cravath had swished on but one light. That threw a subdued radiance, glinting softly off the silver and bronze of cups, plaques and medals, highlighting the glossy prints of the photographs. But, because of the peculiar way in which its beam slanted, one item in particular was outlined in bold relief.

The thing was literally screaming at me—and for once Orth, the dumb dick, got the cotton out of his ears.

If I was right, I'd put together a chance remark and a lucky idea and made them spell murder. But I was still a million miles from a proof.

I went to bed that night morally sure that I knew the killer of Annie Warburton. But just as morally sure that I couldn't do anything about that clever and able operator.

This fellow Dick Harrison is a colorless little man upon whom the average individual wouldn't waste a second look. Maybe his inconspicuousness accounts for his success as an investigator.

In the detective trade, he is known as the Ferret—the idea being that, if it's diggable, Harrison will dig it out.

The Ferret was prompt to the rendezvous at the Madison House. He oozed into the bar without attracting any visible attention.

I bought him a beer. That, he stated, was his plebian preference. Then, coming out flatfooted with names, I outlined what I wanted him to do.

I ordered refills. After that he remarked: "This will involve considerable time and legwork."

Which, I knew, was his delicate way of pointing out that it would cost considerable cash. I reassured him on this point.

"I thought you always took tax-in' I said. "But, skipping, that, money may be your object. It isn't my clients. The big thing here is to keep this as private as possible. If I'm barking up the wrong tree and any of these people get advance publicity without a good reason, there will be a bigger and better murder. Cravath will build it around me."

"Well, how do I send in my stuff?"

"You bring it to me here. And you don't call me at Windover. I call you in New York, see how you're doing, and make a date if you think you've got anything important. Now how long will it be before I give you a ring?"

He squinted. "Three days, say. Looks like I'm going to have to run all over New York."

"All right." I said. "Catch the next train back and start running."

He left me without another word. To illustrate how unobtrusively he got out of there —our solicitous waiter noting empty glasses, came over presently. With one eye on the door of the men's room and the other on the impotent containers, he asked if we'd have two more of the same. I said no, just one, my friend had gone.

The waiter went away, looking puzzled.

I drove home slowly. It was becoming clearer to me every minute that I'd thrown a circumstantial web around a particular person. But the ends of the web were not meeting. There was one vital assumption in my mind which needed verification, or they never would meet. That verification seemed utterly impossible to get under the circumstances prevailing. Unless I came out flatfooted with the one party best equipped to answer the question: Could my hair-do have about being a private detective, not a young society hound idler; and threw myself on the mercy of that particular party.

As I parked my car on the grass just off the driveway at Windover I met a character with whom I'd had very few dealings since coming to this place. It was that little animated wiener Fritzie, the dachshund.

I'd seen him all over the house and grounds of course, but he did not give the gentry too much of his time. He hung out in the vicinity of the kitchen where, from his viewpoint, life was more salubrious and satisfying.

Now he wagged his tail complacently, as if he'd just settled the affairs of nations. I looked at him closely to see why he was so enamored of himself. He advanced cautiously, leered at me, then dropped a golf ball out of his mouth. He followed that triumphant gesture by lowering his whole underslung self to the ground, but kept the ball between extended forepaws His attitude suggested that I might look at the loot and marvel. But let me make one move to possess it, and Fritzie, plus loot, would be in the nearby county.

"Gimme that," I said, but with out eagerness.

Fritzie must have interpreted the remark as an invitation to gamble Snatching up the ball again, he bounced to feet and frisked gleefully around my ankles.

That dog had evidently been poaching from the putting green which was situated at some little distance from the courts. Now he started for it, still carrying his ball. I followed him.

Dave Sladen was fooling around on the putting green. "Hi," he called, as we came up. "What goes?"

"Not a thing," I said. "Just strolling."

Fritzie, no mean exhibitionist appropriated the limelight. Swaggering importantly, he walked close to Dave and squatted down as he ball before me, displaying the ball again.

"Why," Dave exclaimed, "that's mine."

He made a pass at the ball, but the walking sausage was too quick. Grabbing it in his teeth, he ran.

Dave laughed. "He must have taken it a while ago when I had my back turned. I've been practising a little."

I could see that he had. The green was strewn with golf balls. Dave began gathering them up and stowing them in a canvas bag. "Like a game of this?" he inquired presently.

Now I've never played golf, bona fide golf. Not even once. But years ago when mimicle golf courses were the rage, I was hot stuff at steering balls through lead pipes, midget bridges, waterfalls and other fiendish obstacles. This, just beautifully clipped grass and plainly visible holes, looked like a cinch compared to that.

I felt I had to give Dave a yes answer. Having been written up as a playboy, the sportsman type no doubt, I'd be supposed to know something about golf. And Dave Sladen's eyes were on me just then with, I thought, some penetration. I wondered again whether he believed that I actually was what I purported to be and, further, whether he was putting me to a little impromptu test of his own.

"Sure," I said, with a confidence I didn't feel. "What'll I use for a club?"

"Oh, we'll trade off with mine. Unless you want to run up to the house and get another putter."

"Nope. Yours will do."

He gave me that challenging faintly-hostile look of his. "How about a little something up? Just to make it interesting."

"Anything you like," I said carelessly. A play laddie called up in Bermuda ought not haggle.

"Dollar a hole?" Dave suggested blandly.

Pretty high stakes for just a secretary. Either he's good or he's backing an opinion that I'm not.

"Okay." I said, and debated the legitimacy of putting this on my expense account in the event of loss.

He handed me his putter. "Well, your honor. You're by way of being the visiting fireman."

He won first two holes handily. Then began to look not so good.

"Peculiar stance you've got," Dave remarked, his eyes a little amused.

"Maybe" I said, controlling myself. "But I've always used it. Sometimes it works, too."

Mere braggadocio that. But Kismet made it stick. Going for the third, Dave laid his first shot a foot from the little flag. He tendered me the putter as if there were no real need for me to take my licks.

I don't mind losing but it suddenly occurred to me that I didn't like losing to Sladen.

I took the club and called on the gods, who, once, had served me well down at Coney Island and on a certain memorable occasion when I'd really gone to town at miniature golf in Asbury Park. The gods responded.

They permitted me to stroke the ball truly, and with authority. It rolled across the grass, caught the rim of the cup, ran around it once . . . and then dropped.

"Like now." I couldn't help saying, over Sladen's surprised gasp. "I'm just getting the feel of this course."

I did get it too. Not that I beat him. Far from that he took me for plenty, as it turned out. But I didn't disgrace myself.

DANGER LURKS

That cluttered-up medicine cabinet of yours can really be a source of danger—not only from the long unused medicines that gain in strength but also the ones that lose their potency over a period of time. Why don't you have a "house-cleaning" right now and avoid any dangers from unlabelled bottles, uncapped tubes —and prescriptions that were right for you a year ago but may not apply now. See your druggist —he'll gladly help you make out a list of your basic requirements.

ONTARIO RETAIL DRUGGISTS ASSOCIATION and he's the one who said—

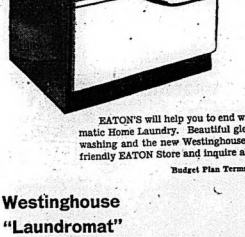
THESE "WONDER" DRUGS COST TOO MUCH!

You hear talk, these days, about the high cost of some new "wonder" drugs. Little is said about the high cost of sickness. Yet, the cost of the most expensive prescription is but a fraction of the cost of weeks in a hospital.

Recently, in Cosmopolitan magazine, Ernest Lehman wrote: "A few years ago the average case of pneumonia was at best a long drawn out affair involving weeks in the hospital, weeks of convalescence, hundreds of dollars in hospital and doctor bills, and time lost on the job."

Today, remedies are available which increase the rate of recovery and reduce the period of sickness. Many other illnesses are minor matters today due solely to the new and potent weapons at your doctor's command.

Remember when you think about the cost of a prescription, years of research were required to develop the components involved—and that this research is continually going on. The cost of long-term illness into short-term treatment.



Remember too, that your druggist is continually studying these modern miracles for your own and your family's welfare.

Asian-African Nations Request Emergency Meet

United Nations, N.Y., April 15—(AP)—Asian-African leaders today called for an emergency session of the United Nations General Assembly in the wake of western refusal to let the security council take up the case of Egypt's complaint against France's treatment of Tunisia.

The council's western majority refused last night to admit for discussion the 11-nation charge that France is oppressing the North African protectorate, in which more than 10 persons have been killed in a revolt sparked by nationalist demands for more self-rule.

It was one of the rare occasions in which the council had turned down a member's request to discuss a complaint.

Asia-African authors of the charges against France, anticipating the defeat, already had cabled their governments to ask if they wanted a special assembly. Representative replies are expected and there were strong indications the group could rally the 14 votes necessary to call the session.

The move to put Tunisian complaint on the council agenda mustered only five affirmative votes.

The motions needed seven votes for adoption. The yes came from Pakistan, China, Russia, Brazil and Chile. France and Britain cast the negative votes and the United States, Greece, Turkey and The Netherlands abstained.

U.S. delegate said previously they thought council discussion of the complaint might disturb negotiations which France says she will hold with the Tunisians.

Signers of a resolution against France were Afghanistan, Burma, Egypt, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Pakistan, the Philippines, Saudi Arabia and Yemen. Syria and Lebanon also are taking them.

Pakistan's delegate Ahmed S. Bokhari, now a security council president this month, said last night a special assembly must be now appeared the only avenue open to the complainants.

They were assured the backing of the five Soviet bloc members, and the votes yesterday of Chile and Brazil hinted that a majority of the Latin-American countries would join them.

A Pakistan spokesman said, however, that reaching the assembly demand and lining up supporters would take time and he did not foresee a meeting before next month or perhaps early June.

London, April 15 — (CP) Russell Daly of Stratford was elected president of the Western Ontario Liberal Association here yesterday. Retiring president, Dr. Ross, was re-elected secretary, while William Rees, Strathroy, was re-elected treasurer.

A resolution adopted voiced the Association's continued confidence in the leadership of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and his government.

Ben Sanscher, Brantford, and Wilfred P. Gregory, Stratford, were elected to represent the Western Ontario Association on the Ontario Liberal Association as vice-presidents.

Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of health and welfare, discussed the policies of the federal government in the realms of national defence and citizen welfare.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 15 (CP) —Synopsis: Spring is coming our way. Skies are clear over northern and central Ontario and southern sections will become sunny this afternoon. High temperatures Wednesday will crowd the 60 mark in most of the province, about 10 degrees higher than on Monday or Tuesday.

Southern Ontario is glad to see the last of the rain area which is pushing eastward to give us some of the opening days baseball games in the eastern United States.

Washington, April 15 (AP) —President Truman signed the Japanese peace treaty today and the state department announced that peace with Japan will be made effective April 28.

The department said it announced the planned effective date of the treaty—which will end the Second World War in the Pacific—"in order to permit an orderly completion of the transition of Japan from the present occupation status to that of full sovereignty."

In a White House ceremony, Truman also wrote his name to three related Pacific security pacts. One with Japan gives the U.S. the right to keep military forces in and around Japan.

The others are mutual-defence agreements with the Philippines and with Australia and New Zealand.

Semi-Final Step

Truman's signature to the ratification resolution, adopted by the Senate last month, is the next-to-last step in the long process of peace treaty with Japan comes into full force and formally ends the state of war in the Pacific theatre of enemy.

The final step is depositing the instrument of ratification with the state department.

Truman did not say when this step will be taken but officials expect it by the end of this month.

One reason for delay is to afford the Japanese people and government another advance notice of the time when their technical enemy status will end and their new period of independence will begin. Moves Being Security

In a statement, Truman said:

"The signing of these documents marks another step in the series of steps being taken by free nations to bring peace and security to the Pacific.

"In signing these documents, I know that I express the essential unity and will of the American people for the earliest possible achievement of lasting peace and freedom with security."

Falls into Lake

Kingsville, Ont., April 15 —(CP)— An elderly woman died late Monday after falling or jumping off the dock here into Lake Erie.

Mrs. Irma Sweron, 82, was found floating near the pier about half an hour after a local man tried to talk her into leaving the vicinity of the dock.

He left her when she refused. She said she wanted to stay on the pier and "just watch the lake."

Mrs. Sweron was known to suffer strokes and was large enough at about 80 pounds—that a gust of wind might have blown her into the lake.

Stefansson, Arctic Explorer, Regrets Failure to Hold Wrangell Island

Ottawa — (CP) — The story of how Canada lost claim to Wrangell Island, in the Arctic Ocean north of Siberia, was related here by Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, arctic explorer.

The white-haired veteran who has lived more than 10 years in the Arctic, told a Canadian Club luncheon Canada nearly had the island — at longitude 180 degrees north of the top of the Arctic Circle — which would have been invaluable as an airbase in the event of trouble with the Soviet bloc.

Following a 5½-year expedition north of Alaska and Canada which he led for the Canadian government from 1913 to 1918, he interested Sir Robert Borden in the importance of discovering and colonizing all the islands in the Arctic north of Canada.

One island in which he was particularly interested was Wrangell Island.

Wrangell had been discovered, he said, by a British captain named Kellett, thus giving the Empire a prior claim. Later it had been visited and mapped by two United States ships, and the captain of the latter called it Wrangell — the name of a Russian explorer he knew to have been in the area sometime but never claimed it.

It was first occupied, however, by a crew of Canadians who were shipwrecked there, giving Canada a primary claim to the title.

After his return from his expedition in 1918, he persuaded Sir Robert Borden to let him head an expedition of discovery and to claim the island, then he could find in the name of the Empire and Canada. He then went to London to obtain final permission.

While there, he had made the "mistake," of confiding his secret plan to Winston Churchill, then preparing to head an expedition to the Dardanelles. Churchill was seeking to make the Arctic trip in place of Stefansson.

A long political argument followed over who would head the expedition. It ended in a cabinet deadlock, and finally, 'somebody suggested that since nobody could decide who should head the expedition, nobody should go at all.

At this point several United States citizens interested in the project made their own expedition to Wrangell, headed by a Canadian chosen by the University of Toronto.

However, a short time later, Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government replaced the Baldwin government in England, and in an effort to make friends with Russia gave (the) new Soviet republic (the British) didn't want."

Thus all the concessions was Wrangell Island.

STRIKE-TANGLED COMMUNICATIONS ARE UNRAVELLING

Settlement N.J. Dispute Makes 3 Walkouts Ended

New York, April 15 (AP)—Strike tangled telecommunications were unravelling today with the settlement of a New Jersey telephone dispute bringing to three the number of walkouts ended.

But three other wire strikes still were unsettled, and one of them—against the Western Electric Co. —could nullify the effects of the three settlements by keeping factory workers from their jobs.

A contract agreement providing a 54 a week pay increase and fringe benefits was reached early today in Newark, N.J., between the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, and 10,000 striking employees, members of the Communications Workers of America (CIO).

Ohio Bell telephone workers ended their strike yesterday after obtaining pay boosts of $4-$7 a week, similar to increases granted Michigan telephone workers last week.

Federal mediators are working to end the strike of a similar group of 16,000 CWA members against Western Electric, the Bell System's manufacturing subsidiary.

The Western Electric strikers have threatened to picket lines threatened to keep phone service disrupted in New Jersey, New York and 40 other states.

No Settlement in Sight

"In the other deadlocked communications dispute, the Federal Conciliation Service of the Commercial Telegraphers Union (AFL) are asking wage increases from the Western Union Company. This dispute went into its 13th day today with no settlement in sight.

Plans for extensive picketing by the Western Electric strikers were the objects of twin legal attacks by two Bell subsidiaries yesterday. The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. in West Virginia asked the union of violating the Taft-Hartley Law and asked the National Labor Relations Board in Pittsburgh to investigate.

In Topeka, Kansas Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. got a temporary injunction barring Western Electric pickets from interfering with phone service in Kansas.

The picketing of Bell people have affected long distance service, and not local dial service. C. T. and C. says there have been some delays but that service has been maintained at almost normal. Supervisory personnel has been used in some places.

120 SAFELY EVACUATED

San Francisco, April 15—(AP) —A four alarm fire early today destroyed the Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged early today and 120 elderly residents were safely evacuated. Fire Chief Edward Cahill said the 4-alarm fire started in a first floor wash room and burned between walls into the attic. The home's fire estimated damage at $50,000.

Ontario Teachers Told its Time To Re-examine Basic Concepts Of Education by Minn. Teacher

Toronto, April 15. (CP)—Norman J. DeWitt of the University of Minnesota, said last night it is time to re-examine the basic ideas behind modern systems of education.

He was one of several speakers who examined education at various meetings in connection with the 52nd annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

He told the Headmasters' Association that science has discovered that knowledge cannot be reduced to an intelligible system—all the pieces of knowledge man now has do not make an intellectual pie.

Knowledge now is contained in an "open system" in which "we can't find any intelligible sum of things." Learning is getting less and less organized.

Mr. DeWitt suggested that education should "consult the judgment of the past." Academic freedom means a freedom to retreat from reality and choose the problems that will be studied. "As a academic or scientific approach to the problems of education leads away from life."

Education should turn to the past for advice "at least equal judgment for ourselves."

Laurentine Collins, director of the School of Community Relations, Detroit, told the headmasters that the community should be used as a laboratory for education.

Basic needs for love, a sense of achievement, and belonging and relative freedom from fear, must be met or all efforts to equip young people for life will be futile.

Speaking to the Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, J. R. H. Morgan, superintendent of Toronto Secondary schools, defended the progress made by schools.

No Evidence

There was no evidence that the Grade 8's were not being adequately taught today. Attacks on schools have come largely because of the "disintegration of the middle class home" and the "bankruptcy" of the churches in caring for children.

Dr. C. E. Hendry, director of the University of Toronto School of Social Work outlined some basic principles underlying case work.

He told the Ontario School Inspectors' Association that students felt the emphasis was too much on "academic evaluation" and not on education for living. The lecture and examination system failed to test basic knowledge.

The most disturbing criticism was that some teachers lacked emotional maturity and moral adequacy.

R. S. Devereux of the London, Ont., Normal School told the inspectors: "Teachers are not crazier than other types of persons," as a group they had above-average mental health standards.

John Douglas of Toronto's Lawrence Park Collegiate won the dramatic division of the O.S.A.'s annual verse-speaking competition and Christine Gajewski of Toronto Parkdale Collegiate won the lyric division.

Three Toronto Men Charged In Robbery Case

Toronto, April 15—(CP)—Three Toronto men were charged today in connection with $66,317 robbery of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch on Dufferin Street in northwest Toronto Jan. 3.

They are Robert Woods, alias Robert Martin, 23; Henry Alex, also 23; and William Self, 24.

Woods and Alex were charged with armed robbery. Police said Self was charged as a material witness "for the moment."

Police said none of the stolen money was recovered.

A young Whitby township farmer and a nosey fox were credited by police in helping bring the trio to justice. The fox was spotted by Roy Larsen digging in a pile of sawdust. The farmer dug in the same spot and found a cache of arms which he turned over to police.

One of the weapons was a .30-calibre Winchester rifle which had been converted to fire a stream of slugs through a clip. Its sight was set back, barrel shortened and a butt grip added.

Police said bank employees identified the gun as the one used in the holdup, while two men waited for the bank staff to arrive.

300-Foot Section Of Paved Road Slides into Lake

Toronto, April 15 — (CP) — Mayor Allan Lamport asked the federal government yesterday to do something about pulling the cork out of the bottle called Lake Ontario.

His request — which would remove Gut dam in the St. Lawrence River below Ogdensburg, N. Y. — found immediate support in many quarters.

The level of Lake Ontario rose to 249 feet, 1½ inches short of the 1947 record high, a 300-foot section of paved highway slid into the water at suburban Long Branch. With it went the water main for the area and 40 homes were left with empty taps.

In calling for the removal of the small dam which diverts water to the Welland Canal canals system running from Cardinal, Ont., to Montreal, Mayor Lamport quoted graphed Transport Minister Chevrier.

"I know this sounds drastic, but drastic action is needed if we are to meet the situation along the waterfront in the next 30 days."

U. S. army engineers have estimated removal of the dam—built in 1903—would drop the level of Lake Ontario by six to eight inches.

SEAWAY PROJECT A STEP CLOSER TO REALIZATION

Canadian Mission Spends Hour With President

Washington, April 15 — (CP)— The controversial St. Lawrence seaway project was a step closer to realization today.

At a White House conference yesterday, President Truman agreed that Canada and the United States should join in asking the international joint commission for approval of St. Lawrence River power development plans.

Truman's promise was a measure of progress in clearing the way for Canada to go ahead with the $818,000,000 project which includes a large hydro-electric plant on the St. Lawrence and a canal to deepen the Great Lakes.

The seaway plan has been under consideration off and on for more than 30 years but despite the support of Canada and most U.S. presidents in that time, Congress has consistently refused to approve it.

President Agrees

Pearson proposed that Canada and the U.S. jointly ask the international joint commission to approve the seaway power plans. The President agreed.

This agreement was a follow-up to a meeting between the President and Prime Minister St. Laurent last September at which Truman said he would support Canadian action on the seaway if "joint development does not prove possible." Since then Congress has taken no action although legislation now is before it.

The International Joint Commission is made up of six members, with Canadian and U.S. members, to handle problems of international boundary waters. Commission approval is the first step to get the way for Canada to undertake the construction of the seaway.

Pearson said some parts of the project such as opening the great lakes to ocean traffic, could be built without commission approval because they are on the Canadian side of the waters.

But the power part of the scheme is a joint project and commission approval is needed.

If the International Commission approves the power project, Canada will be free to begin forming co-operation of the U. S. government. But lacking this, it cannot enter into agreement with the state of New York, with federal approval.

Truman has told Congress Canada is prepared to go ahead with the seaway "on an appropriate agency in the United States" if a suitable agency cannot be found to co-operate. New York long has sought to be "appropriate agency."

If the U.S. joins in the project the share of the estimated cost would be about $225,000,000 for power development.

The Foreign Relations Committee of the U.S. Senate has promised to vote April 22, on legislation to authorize the United States to participate in the project.

Moscow Quotes Endicott as Saying UN Waging Bacteriological Warfare

London, April 15 (CP) —Moscow radio today quoted Dr. James Endicott, chairman of the leftist Canadian Peace Congress, as saying "conflicting" that United Nations forces are waging bacteriological warfare on communist lines.

The broadcast, monitored here, said Endicott also speculated on the possibility that some of the "infected insects" alleged dropped northeast China were bred in Canada.

The Moscow radio said Endicott spoke to a press conference at Toronto and quoted him as saying Canada has organizations producing bacteriological weapons for the U.S., including a "huge plant" in Alberta.

Endicott accused a Canadian official named "Soland" of saying in a newspaper article that the process for mass deaths were "extremely heartening," the radio broadcast said, and mentioned a reference to Dr. O. M. Solandt, head of Canada's defence research board.

Communist charges of bacteriological warfare have been denied by United Nations command.

One Allied theory is the charges are part of communist propaganda in a red China striving to close the gap between the claims and actions of the peoples' health and what is really happening in a land often swept by epidemics.

(China is one of the most backward countries in applying modern medicine and hygiene.)

Another theory is that Soviet control here quoted Maurice Miller, described as a Canadian chemical engineer, as saying in a recent trade conference in Moscow, as charging that the Canadian government cancelled orders from Russia for several million dollars worth of electrical equipment.

"In any case," Miller was quoted as saying "the company that undertook the contract and, I understand, had gone ahead with its initial stages, either broke off negotiations or didn't provide deliv-

76,000 Homeless As Rivers Spread Sea of Misery

Missouri, Mississippi Devastate Eight States

Omaha, Neb., April 15—(CP)— More than 76,000 persons were homeless today as the surrounding Missouri and Mississippi rivers continued to spread their sea of misery through eight states.

The Red Cross estimated that 18,939 families have fled their homes in the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Kansas and Missouri.

What the chief or army engineers described as the "greatest flood the white man has ever seen in the Missouri river" was responsible for most of the flight of the homeless.

The Red Cross said 17,809 families are already homeless in the Missouri River valley. And when theriver rolls through Omaha and Council Bluffs this figure will rise to 20,000 making the Missouri flood one of the 10 greatest in 71 years of Red Cross relief operations in the United States.

There was no let from the weather. Showers were forecast for eastern Nebraska and Iowa tonight and tomorrow morning.

U.S. army engineers estimate that 1,250,000 acres of land are under water as the Missouri and its tributaries.

While millions of tons of rich topsoil washed down river, men and machines at the twin cities of Omaha and Council Bluffs completed population 268,000 toiled to build up the flood walls and dikes. Build Dykes Higher

The flood wall, when originally built, was 26.8 feet high and considered able to meet any challenge from the Missouri. Now it is being built up in hopes of fighting off a predicted crest of 31.5 feet. Yesterday the crest would be 12½ feet over flood stage and seven feet below the previous record high of 24.6 in 1881.

The river stood at 26.7 feet here early today. But there was still hope. Maj.-Gen. Lewis Pick, chief of army engineers, said the weekend there was a chance of winning.

Pick said 1,000 men—2,000 people — two thirds of the population— have left the low areas of Omaha's two north and western areas. Across the river in Omaha another 2,000 have been moved from the lowland north and east sections.

The Missouri's relentless approach has made temporary ghost communities of towns after town. Sioux City, Ia., with 84,035 people, is the biggest community threatened by the muddy waters.

The Mississippi matched the Missouri in reaching record depths. At St. Paul, the Mississippi is a fast-rising, slow-crying areas, affecting 5,000 people and poising fear at two millions of dollars worth of waterfront industries.

Downriver, Winona, Minn., with a population of 25,000, will be one-third under water if a dike breaks.

Gov. Orville Anderson asked President Truman to declare Minnesota a disaster area.

Wisconsin, too felt the thrust of the Mississippi with its dikes at Prairie du Chien threatened as the river drew up a spearhead to break at Lima and Illinois downstream points.

Division Will Remain in Korea After Armistice

Somewhere in Korea, April 15 — (Reuters) — The Commonwealth Division will remain in Korea after an armistice is signed, its commander Maj.-Gen. A. J. H. Cassels, said at divisional headquarters today.

"After a truce," he said, "we will fall back from the demarcation line between the communist and United Nations armies, dig new defence positions and maintain active training."

Cassels also said he believes future communist offensives will have strong air support.

"The enemy has plenty of air power he did not have before and I am certain he will use it if he can," he added.

The general also remarked on the increased strength of communist units opposing the division lately.

When asked about reported complaints about food supplies for the Commonwealth troops, he said: "there have been no complaints—this army is the best rationed ever."

Alexander Pays Flying Visit To Paris

London, April 15 — (CP) Field Marshal Alexander's flying visit to Paris today was described by defence ministry spokesman here as just "a routine trip by a new man on the job."

But the spokesman said it would not be surprising if Britain's newly-appointed defence minister took the opportunity in the course of his meetings with Dwight D. Eisenhower, to present his country's views on the general's successor.

The Daily Express said in a front-page dispatch today that Lord Alexander will "press the claims of Viscount Montgomery" to replace Gen. Eisenhower when the latter leaves his post as Atlantic Pact commander to enter the United States presidential race.

It has been generally taken for granted here that an American will succeed Gen. Eisenhower, with his deputy Gen. Gruenther regarded as perhaps the most likely appointment. Prime Minister Winston Churchill said in a big defence debate yesterday that if the United States wanted the post for an American general Britain would agree.

PACKAGED TOBACCO NOT AFFECTED

Montreal, April 15—(CP)— A spokesman for the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada Limited said today "no price change is contemplated as a result of the cost of packaged tobacco."

He said packaged tobacco was not affected by tax changes in the budget last week.

The cost for a package of 20 cigarets was cut by three cents in cost of a package in Quebec now is 43 cents.

Trenton Paper Millworker Wins Checker Tourney

Charles Floud, Trenton paper mill worker, won the Eastern Ontario checker championship and the B. C. Collver trophy here Easter Monday when he bested a field of nine opponents in the annual checker tourney.

Floud placed second in the round-robin series and then went on to defeat Jack Traves of Kingston in the finals. Last year's winner, P. J. Stringer of Bancroft, failed to get into the finals.

The Collver cup winner was not the only Trenton player who took honors at the tournament. L. L. LaFlay, playing in the "B" class, also won out, by both active cups will stay in Trenton for the next year.

The tourney held at the Hotel Quinte attracted more entrants this year than, for some time with nine players entering the "A" class with four in "B" class. Play commenced at 9 a.m. in the morning and the finals were not completed until nearly one o'clock this morning.

Players entering the tourney and points made during the round robin series were as follows: Jack Traves, Kingston, 22; Charles Floud, Trenton, 21; J. R. Stringer, Bancroft, 20; McKinley Wilson, Tweed, 19, H. Doyle, Ottawa, 17; W. Davy, Bancroft, 13; P. T. Sidney, Ottawa, 12; Donald McCarthy, Kingston, 12, and M. Haynes, Napanee, 12.

Players in "B" class were L. L. LaFlay, Trenton, 14; O. V. Hannan, Kingston, 13; A. Large, Kingston, 13, and J. Edmundson, Kingston, 6.

The first two men in each class played off for the championship.

CANNOT TICKET COUNTERFEITS

Albany, N.Y., April 15—(AP)—Beginning July 1, it will be illegal in New York State to picket a courthouse. Governor Thomas Dewey, yesterday signed a measure that stemmed from red demonstrations outside New York City's Foley Square courthouse two years ago during the marathon, Communist conspiracy trial before U.S. Judge Harold Medina.

Thirteen Vehicles Damaged In Two Accidents Outside R.C.A.F. Station Near Trenton

Thirteen vehicles were damaged in two-chain-reaction accidents outside the Trenton RCAF station last night, both tie-ups occurring within minutes and only a few rods apart.

Property damage to all cars involved totalled about $3,000 but only one person, Miss Joan Sweet, 20, of 30 Charles Street, north, Trenton, was the only one who suffered more than a shaking up. She lost several teeth as her face crashed against the instrument panel of the car in which she was riding.

The first accident occurred just at the RCAF gates when Cpl. Gordon Mellor of No. 6 RD, driving a small rented car, was said to swerve to the wrong highway lane and collided with another car driven by Walter Everett, Port Credit, proceeding in the opposite direction.

Bumped in Line of Traffic

This was the mishap that started the chain reaction, police said. Drivers of autos stopped in the line of traffic and in turn was bumped by Donald Anderson of Point Anne. Then Earl R. Kitchen, Picton Street, Belleville, crashed into the rear of the Anderson car and in turn into the rear of the car driven by Kenney, Sidney Street, Trenton.

Miss Sweet was a passenger in the Kenny car and was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital for treatment. Kenny suffered bruises to his face and eye.

A few minutes later the accident involving seven cars took place a few rods east of the airforce gates. Ted Caldwell of Batawa turned out to pass another car, and there was a collision with another vehicle bound in the opposite direction and driven by Roland Parkinson of Toronto.

T. R. LaJoie of Windsor stopped his car short of the scene only to have J. J. Tache of Trenton and L. G. Renaud of Hamilton plow into him. Then a truck and two other cars telescoped into the Tache and Renaud pile-up. All vehicles involved were damaged ranging from $100 to $200 each.

Slight Drizzle

A slight drizzle was falling at the time of the accidents making the highway slippery.

Police said that only for the fact the accidents occurred in a 30-mile zone section, scores of persons would have been seriously injured.

Provincial police almost ran out of traffic officers to investigate the crashes. Seven officers took down details while other officers were called in to direct traffic around the smashed cars. It was over an hour before the highway was cleared. Officers investigating the accidents were Constables Harry Barker, Al McLeod and Gerald McNutt.

Given Freedom Of City Then Gets Parking Ticket

London, April 15 (CP) —Freedom of the city didn't mean much to Guy Lombardo this morning—he got a parking ticket on his car.

"He didn't look one bit happy about it either," commented Ted Harding, doorman at Hotel London.

"The major gave me the freedom of London, I guess I'm not in with the police," Guy told the doorman.

Hugh T. Smith, secretary manager, London Chamber of Commerce, said the incident merely points up the need for action in extending courtesy to American visitors."

Give Pigeons Hot-Foot

Philadelphia, April 15. (CP)— The city of Philadelphia is going to give its city hall pigeons an electrical "hot foot".

The city fathers announced yesterday that workmen had begun installing an experimental electrical grill around the gray stone building—long plagued by the birds and their natural habits.

The idea of the grill is that any pigeons attempting to roost on it will get a shock—strong enough to scare them winging elsewhere in a hurry.

Three Children Killed in Blast From Gas Lamp

Rimouski, Que., April 15 (CP)—Three children were killed at the village of St. Thomas De Spokane, Wash. April 15—(AP)—A B-36 bomber crashed on take-off from Fairchild Air Force Base early today, killing 15 of the 17 aboard.

The two other crew members suffered serious burns.

The giant, 10-engined bomber crashed in a farmer's field a half-mile northwest of the base, and burst into flames.

The plane fell on the farm of Ernest Air who told a reporter:

"We were awakened by this awful crash and as we got out of bed all we could see was a big fire. It made an awful explosion. It looked like it was only a block away from the house but it was a half mile.

The plane normally carries a crew of 15 but had two extra men on board this morning. The flight was described as a routine training mission.

This was the second $3,500,000 B-36 destroyed at Fairchild. One crashed and burned while landing at the base, eight miles west of Spokane, last winter. The crew escaped before it caught fire.

Cherbourg when a gas lamp exploded and set fire to their home. It was learned today.

The accident, which occurred last Thursday, killed Pauline, 7, Jacqueline, 6, and Jacques, 2, children of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Letourneau. Three other children and the mother escaped.

The father was at church at the time.

St. Thomas De Cherbourg is a small settlement about 75 miles east of Rimouski on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Steel Seizure Will be Aired Before Committee

Washington, April 15 — (AP)— President Truman's seizure of the strike-threatened steel industry comes up for its first airing before a Senate committee today.

Technically, the Senate Labor committee is starting public hearings on a bill covering the president's emergency seizure power in labor disputes, but Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) told a reporter his committee colleagues are certain "to wander into all controversies about the steel industry seizure."

"I don't see how you can keep that out," Humphrey said, "even though we are not the supreme court but just a committee of Congress."

John R. Steelman, presidential assistant who temporarily is running the defence mobilization program, failed to report any progress after his efforts yesterday to get the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.) and the industry to agree on a new wage contract. He said, however, that both sides seemed more interested than before in talking over the deadlocked situation.

Industrial and business leaders from all over the United States were called into a closed meeting here today to review the situation. The meeting of 170 businessmen was sponsored by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers.

Pending before the Senate Committee is a bill by Senator Wayne Morse (Rep, Ore.), who has defended President Truman's seizure of the steel industry last Tuesday to avert a strike.

Morse's bill would amend the Taft Hartley Act to provide a definite pattern for such emergency actions.

Morse said Truman did the only thing he could do to keep the defence program rolling. He contended Congress long ago should have passed legislation covering such emergencies.

Initial witness before the Labor committee today will be Nathan P. Feinsinger, chairman of the wage stabilization board which recommended a 17½-cent, three-installment wage boost — plus 8½ cents in fringe benefits — as the basis for a new contract. The industry contends it can't possibly pay that much without a price increase far beyond the $3 a ton the government says it can allow.

Egyptian Mission Not Yet Ready To Visit Britain

Cairo, April 15. (CP)—The Egyptian ambassador's mission to London was held up again today and observers were puzzled by the continuing delay and secrecy surrounding his departure.

Ambassador Abdel Amr is believed to be taking a proposal to the British Foreign Office which may break the Anglo-Egyptian diplomatic deadlock over the Suez and the Sudan.

On each of the last four days the ambassador has been reported ready to leave Sudan at the last minute but his flight has been called off. A special government plane has been standing ready at the airport all the time.

Amr said this morning he expects to take off "some time today," but did not know the exact time.

During the delay exploratory talks between British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson and the Egyptian government have continued, apart from those at the conferences, including one last Sunday when Stevenson handed over a message from Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Meanwhile, the Egyptian government was reported today to be considering settlement of claims by stores, theatres and other business firms for the damage caused in the Jan. 26 "Black Saturday" fires and riots.

Premier Hilaly was said to be preparing to put at least 5,000,000 Egyptian pounds ($23,000,000) as "full settlement."

The government had earlier earmarked 5,000,000 Egyptian pounds ($14,350,000) as loans to damaged places of business.

The government announced today that the curfew imposed in Cairo after the January fire riots would be lifted for Ramadan, the Moslem holy month starting June fifth.

Interior Minister Ahmed Mortada El Maraghi said the curfew was being raised at the "express wish" of King Farouk. It now is in effect from midnight until 5 a.m.

During Ramada n the Moslem religion requires fasting from dawn to sunset, but permits eating during the night hours.

SIX EXCURSIONISTS KILLED

Kingston, Jamaica, April 15 (AP) — Six holiday excursionists was being raised at the "express wish" of King Farouk. It now is in effect from midnight until 5 a.m.

Diversification . . .

Carrying all the eggs in one basket entails a risk which few conservative people are willing to take : : : no matter how strong the basket may appear. It is well to remember that "SOMETHING can happen to ANYTHING." Diversification spreads the risk and is recognized as one of the first principles of sound investment.

Diversification in investment may take many forms : : : diversification as to type of security : : : as to industry : : : as to individual companies within an industry. Diversification between bonds and stocks provides stability on one hand and growth opportunities on the other. Diversification as to industry distributes the risk and the opportunity. Diversification as to individual companies within an industry is made with a similar end in view.

Diversification is carried out within the framework of a program to meet the personal investment requirements of the individual. This, of course, means personal service : : : the type of service which is available to our clients : : : available to you. You will be welcomed in any of our offices, or, if more convenient to you, we shall be happy to discuss your personal investment program by mail.

FAR STRANGER THAN FICTION

Several times in recent weeks, this newspaper has, in a mild way, criticized the Department of National Defence for its seeming carelessness in guarding buildings and materials for which the Canadian taxpayer has paid hundreds of millions of dollars.

There have been many highly destructive fires at the camps maintained by the army and air force, and perhaps, for anything we know, at the similar establishment operated by the navy. No one ever seems to find out the cause of any of the fires, although all sorts of theories have been advanced.

Then there were those bombs or grenades, described by the military authorities themselves as "extremely dangerous," which were found by some children at play.

More recently, some captured bank robbers were discovered to have hid in "defence" construction machine guns identified as having been stolen from Camp Borden. Still more recently, an unstated number of rapid-fire automatic pistols vanished from Barriefield. As no civilian has a legitimate use for such weapons, it was assumed that these pistols were taken by prospective bank robbers, or by people who intended selling them to such robbers.

The latest of this series of thefts has been at Petawawa, and has been going on, according to the newspapers, for about two years. At Petawawa, it seems, fantastic quantities of supplies and equipment have disappeared, although some of it has since been traced and recovered.

According to one estimate, one particular haul of loot taken from Petawawa was sufficient to load twenty box cars. Metal weighing "several hundreds of tons," and sold as scrap, had been going on, according to the newspapers, for about two years. At Petawawa, it seems, fantastic quantities of supplies and equipment have disappeared, although some of it has since been traced and recovered.

According to one estimate, one particular haul of loot taken from Petawawa was sufficient to load twenty box cars. Metal weighing "several hundreds of tons," and sold as scrap, had been going on, according to the newspapers, for about two years. Another phase of the investigation under way includes the disappearance of "large quantities of clothing, bedding, shoes and other military equipment."

Stoves, heaters, stoves and electric refrigerators valued at "hundreds of thousands of dollars" are missing. Much of this material, despite its high price, was sold as scrap metal and some of it was used as such in Toronto and Hamilton. Some of it was of the items which the police are trying to trace is 2,000 stoves.

As everyone familiar with foundries knows, old stoves are always in demand as scrap iron for making steel. Any new stoves, purchased now or elsewhere, would serve just as well, although the average foundry would not, in ordinary circumstances, be very likely to use new stoves for scrap, because of their price.

What did those soldiers in Toronto and Hamilton think when they and their laborers were given new stoves to feed their furnaces? Most of the welders we have seen have been mechanics temperament as they are powerful in physique, but even so they must have raised their eyebrows just a trifle and done a little thinking.

The taxpayers of Canada were not the only victims of these Petawawa thieves. Stacks of steel plate owned by the C.P.R. and stored along a spur which the C.P.R. was building into Petawawa, were also carried away. But these steel rails, it seems, did not reach the foundries, to be cut up by electrically-operated shears and turned over to the melters to feed the furnaces. They were traced by the C.P.R.'s own police force before they had travelled that far, and returned. None of the several newspaper articles from which we are drawing our information has told us, but it is more than likely that it was the C.P.R. police which started the investigation into this whole affair.

No man can pick up and carry away a stack of steel rails. But a truck, even a truck not very powerful as Louis Cyr, the strongest man of modern times, walk off toting a freight car filled with stoves. Even if there were such individuals drifting about and performing such feats, their activities would, to put it mildly, attract an unusual volume of attention.

No, the moving of steel rails, stoves and so on requires powerful cranes and heavy-duty trucks and gangs of strong-arm men. Who supplied the powerful cranes and heavy-duty trucks and the gangs of strong-arm men, which were all necessary for the successful achievement of what is likely to go down in history under the name of Operation Petawawa? Where were all the soldiers stationed at Petawawa and their officers while these strong-arm men were conducting Operation Petawawa?

All of which suggests that there is a desire to visit Petawawa and see what kind of place the Canadian army is running there. Judging by what we have read about it in half a dozen newspapers, it must be an extraordinary place, and well worth a visit. For example, it would be interesting to find out who provides the traffic policemen. Such policemen must be kept busy seeing that the drivers of the big trucks or other heavy vehicles which the thieves must use in taking away their loot observe speed limits, rules against overloading and other such regulations.

THE OPENING GAME

Gone are the wooden fences and the wild cat stands of old,
Where each for a dime or nickel to the neighborhood showed.
Gone are the favorite knot-holes the small boys used to claim,
And gone are the aunt and uncle who died for the opening game.

Gone are the floral horseshoe, and the mayor, and the brass band,
Each year to the home team and fame and gone is the street parade.

Gone is the old-time umpire who called out the pitcher's name
With a bow to the grandstand people at the start of the opening game.

Once more is the season starting, but baseball has changed somehow.
The old out curve is a slider, and the drop is a knuckler now.
The bunt is a lost discarded, for the ball isn't quite the same.
Time has changed me more than a little, but I'll be at the opening game.

BETTER STOP AND THINK

What do you suppose would happen if any of the original apostles were to return and behold Belleville on any modern church?

Remember that these were unlettered men. They were the commonest of the common people. Some of them smelled of their fishing boats, and all of them lived in an age when modern standards of personal cleanliness were unknown. In all probability there would go up a terrific gale from the well-heeled fashionable churches if Peter, Andrew, James, John or any of the rest were to put in their appearance at a Sunday morning service.

This simplicity and lack of education on the part of these original apostles constitute a profound comment on many of our modern standards. We have almost come to the place where we worship education. Nevertheless, the founding of the Christian Church — and most momentous enterprise in human history—was divinely implemented through men who had no education whatsoever. Furthermore, occurrences which have changed the tide of history occurred in a simple society, thoroughly unlike the society in which we live today.

Is our scientific knowledge really getting us anywhere? Will any leader living today influence history as did the twelve simple men who consorted with Jesus?

would not give so much space to their reporting. Skill and brains count in all sports.

Take regular vacations. Never think that you can't be spared. You will return to your occupation renewed in mind and spirit. Be the guest of Nature at all out the mysteries and wonders of the great out-of-doors. Roam the fields and forests. Study the animals and birds. Breath the fresh air. Look upon the endless examples of God's creation. Never cease to wonder! Change is medicine.

Get away from yourself. Be one with people — all people. There is a story in every life. In others we discover much of ourselves. No matter how long any of us live, there are interesting bits of knowledge that we can never learn. But take time out to discover things that you might not know except by discovery.

Take time out to meditate and to pray. Prayer sweeps out the mind and heart and leaves both clean. And there is relaxation and peace to prayer. We are God's guest when we pray.

OUR TOWN

MORE AGONY

Another matrimonial problem that has come to our notice about is having a wife who not only reads the "Personal" ads in the classified section, but takes them seriously as a means of finding her on a dark night.

Hardly a day goes by that my sentimental chatelaine does not voice aloud her concern for one or more of the wistful company who people the agony column.

Only last night she lifted her head from the newspaper, sighed and said, "Christian gentleman, aged 50, non-smoker, non-drinker ian't having much luck in his search, does he? This is the fifth time his ad has been in. Poor man."

"Fm", I said. "I've got troubles of my own without worrying about those of single bachelors."

Last week alone my wife was worried about (a) Widow with two small children, small income, seeks companionship of man under 50, (b) Gentleman, aged 50, handicapped but independent, object matrimony, (c) The case of a gent named Bob Jenkins who was telling someone named Mary that if "Win" wanted for long time will come true."

Only thing my wife said on reading aloud this latter message.

"If you say so", I said.

It isn't that I'm a cold-blooded man, but I've learned not to get too involved in my wife's pet maladies.

Some two years ago my wife began brooding about the personal ads of a man called Bert Cavalier, then living somewhere land is looking for a girl named Kay, forever arranging assignations with devrours with her under the Birks clock, and seemed to be involved in a long, tragic love affair of endurable case of unrequited love.

Nevertheless, my sympathies began brooding about this poor girl, Kay, whom I had never met, and found that he'd been advertising for years, spending large sums of money to find her in the way messages of famour cast out upon society. . . and, indeed, as he still is.

I wrote a column about this at the time and the response was incredible. To this day, though I am the do not know Kay, nor ten thousand windmills, I am known either as the man who once went to a nudist camp or as the man who wrote about Bert Cavalier.

All of this is to explain why I sat down the other night and penned a letter to a man in Sydney, Australia. I do not know this man. He do not know Kay, nor ten thousand windmills, I am known either as the man who once went to a nudist camp or as the man who wrote about Bert Cavalier.

It began one night when my wife said, half to herself, "I'd give ten dollars to know what happened in that shooting gallery."

"Yes", I said, "I'd like to see it in my book. But the words kept caroming off the cushions of my cranial cavity.

"What shooting gallery?" I finally asked.

My wife handed me the "Personal" column of the classified section and there was this ad:

"Would lady who befriended writer 1917 (she worked in shooting gallery, East Hastings Street, living in hotel nearby), please write Joseph Yeates, 15 Bradley's Head Road, Mosman, Sydney, Australia."

"It's my hunch that Joseph is another Bert Cavalier," my wife said, obviously having given this considerable thought. "I'll bet he's been pining away for 35 long years out there with only his shooting gallery for company."

I made some remark about how I wished she'd take up tatting or some other hobby and went back to my book.

Well, it began to work on me. My wife's words kept ringing in my ears, but my mind was busily occupied with the limitless possibilities behind these six cryptic lines of type.

Joseph Yeates must have been an adult in 1917 when he entered the shooting gallery. I reasoned, and so now he'd be 60 or over. Had he been cherishing the memory of Kay all of those years? Was his object mat, or had he married and raised a family of rabbits and was working now to reward Kay for her love?

And what did "befriended" mean? An ugly leer came upon my face and I began licking my lips. Who knows? Maybe the lady was a prostitute, one of the frequently finds in shooting galleries. Perhaps she'd given him a handful of fly darts and he'd graduated into a shooting gallery for a handful of fly darts and he'd graduated clay pipes at four shots for a quarter.

About an hour later I looked up from my book and said, "It must have been a hotel."

"That's my guess," my wife said without looking up. "I mean, it's the business, but that there's a married lady, a barmaid, perhaps, who is losing sleep at nights wondering what's become of him."

And, if Joe has found his girl, I'd kind of like to pass the news along to Bert Cavalier in the interests of morale.

Bolivia's New Govt. Promises To Help Enemies

La Paz, Bolivia, April 15.—(AP) —Bolivia's new government promised today to forgive the enemies it beat in a bloody revolt that violently wrecked the old regime's agents out of top government offices.

The National Revolutionary Party (M.N.R.), which won the revolt prepared welcoming demonstrations for its leader, Victor Paz Estenssoro, who returned after years' exile in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

A Bolivian military plane was scheduled to bring him here in mid-afternoon.

Paz Estenssoro was expected to be proclaimed president. He nearly won the office last May, when no candidate got a majority of six candidates but failed to win a majority. Before Congress could choose among the leaders, there was a military junta headed by Gen. Hugo Ballivian and the election went, voided the voting and abolished the legislature.

The policies of the new government still were not clear. The M.N.R. has traditionally nationalistic with overtones of socialism. Its official leaders have demanded state ownership of the rich tin mines. Since Friday they have kept silent on the details of the proposal.

But the young intellectuals who lead the party have given expression to widespread discontent among poverty-ridden country and have won a big following among the Indians and mestizos—the bulk of the population—who live on substandard diets.

The revolution began at dawn last Wednesday when the rebels proclaimed success Friday.

Some government officials estimated the dead—still uncounted —might range up to 3,000. Others estimated the 1,000 killed and more than 1,500 wounded.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TAKE TIME OUT

Too many useful persons have died too young. They felt they had to keep working, with no time out in which to think, relax and play. Life ought to be happily balanced, just like our diet, so that the highest efficiency may result.

People who take time out for the enjoyment of some interesting hobby live longest. A new set of interests are created and the mind gets a play time. Take time out to read good books — books that have stood the test of the ages. There is no habit that gives such high returns as that for the love of books. You associate with the greatest minds of the world when you read carefully selected books.

Take time out for the enjoyment of some sport, or many sports. Enter into them if you can, but take an interest in them anyway. Contests are always inspiring and stimulating to the mind. If they were not our newspapers

HOW'S YOUR RESILIENCE, OLD TIMER?

A liar who says he is 74 years old—no offence intended if he catches this outburst — bends, touching his toes without bending his knees, 50 times a day. He asks whether this is beneficial in any way. He is retired from active work.

The stunt sounded formidable, b8 on trying it I find it is hardly worth mentioning, in connection with v-i-t-e.

What is vite? The word isn't recognized by Webster, except the French musical term vite (pronounced veet, meaning live or quickly), but it is clearly defined on p. 7 of the booklet The Seven Keys to Vile (pronounced as it is spelled). For the booklet send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A half dozen movements from the Last Brady Symphony are described and illustrated in the booklet. I recommend, in all our good friend the liar, together with half a dozen somersaults to get rid of your fat — a regular morning routine.

I call the man a liar because I don't believe a person past 65 (in his arteries and other tissues, that is) can do with ease the daily exercise as he describes. Most individuals are tense, stiff and brittle in body and mind to carry on any such activity after 65.

Resilience. Elasticity. Spring. Bounce. Pep. These characteristics and not chronology, determine one's age.

The term pep has been so much misused by vendors of nostrums, and hoax that I hate to use it at all in a talk about health. One should disassociate it altogether from the bottles and the fake screen and television. It is the natural ardour of the healthy young animal or the primitive savage who makes love about it.

Whenever I harangue readers upon this subject I am inhibited by the feeling that they will get an impression of Prof. Muscle-Bound, teaching in his leopard skin costume and telling prospective customers how puny he was a few years ago. . . no matter how frequently and how emphatically I tell 'on that statistics refute the notion that extraordinary muscular development and—or chest expansion favor better health and longer life.

How about doing half a dozen rolls first thing every morning, most old geezers past forty or fifty do—no offence intended if it catches this outburst — bends, touching his toes without bending his knees, 50 times a day. He asks whether this is beneficial in any way. He is retired from active work.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Not Medicinal Iodine

When I ask for iodine the druggist inquires whether for internal or external use, and my information is the kind for internal use. . . Why? (Mrs. D.)

Answer—That's medicine and good practice. I do not recommend iodine as medicine. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet The Iodine Ration.

Don't Tell Me

Three weeks ago I sent for a pamphlet, inclosed stamped, addressed envelope, and no shipping. Never received it. Why? (Mrs. W. J.)

Answer—Maybe your letter was not clear. Maybe it got lost or broken down into some crack or crevice where it will be found next October and forwarded to you by me. Don't mention the name of the pamphlet you want. Maybe you are annoyed with me. Just keep me wondering and worrying about it.

Such Gullible Friends

We moved into a house where former occupants had tuberculosis. Our friends told us to wander through the house with strong disinfectant. . . (Mrs. B. T.)

Answer — Ordinary soap and water cleaning and papering or painting takes care of such places will make the house as safe as a house can be. Your friends are too gullible.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There were 450 people at a Conservationist's banquet in the town of Simcoe, Ontario, last week. And at everyone's place at the table was a small Scotch pine tree, its roots packed in one of those cardboard containers you get bulk ice cream in.

During the dinner, the chairman told the assembly's attention to the trees.

"You are to take these trees with you," he said. "And when you get home, must plant yours in your garden or in some vacant lot or roadside that you are thinking of, right now. There is always a place for a tree that can live."

Simcoe is in Norfolk County, one of the first experimental districts per Canada, into which the pioneers who came into Canada via Niagara Falls first spread westward from that gateway. It is a beautiful county, but in recent years it has begun to show the signs of man's long and perhaps careless cultivation. Located in the county is one of the province's oldest forestry experimental stations, out from which has spread a new and lovely mantle of reforestation, some of it by planned government action, but much of it by the work of individual farmers. And in recent years, an enthusiastic junior conservation organization has taken 'up the cause, planting hundreds of thousands of trees on wasted land. You can get the assembly's attention to the trees.

In Norfolk County than in many of the northern so-called tourist areas of Canada, deer, hares, grouse and other small game are multiplying because of the watchful eyes of a lond-conscious county community.

At the end the banquet was over, I stood outside the hall and watched the cars and people coming out, each carrying his tiny tree. It was a curiously moving spectacle, in the soft spring night.

The committeemen told me they never miss a chance to speak trees on the public. The great-grandchildren are getting back what their ancestors so urgently removed. And a whole countryside is being made to bloom green and kindly again.

Rowley, pastor of the church, when Gwendolyn Florence Galpin, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Galpin, became the bride of Allen George La Rocque, of Belleville, R.R. 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. La Rocque.

The bride was attractively attired in a powder-blue suit with navy accessories and corsage of red roses. She was attended by Miss Joan Webb, of Belleville, who was gowned in a cinnamon brown suit with pink accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in a black suit with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Later, the young couple left for Niagara Falls, the bride wearing a navy blue suit with powder blue and navy accessories, and corsage of red roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. La Rocque will reside in Belleville.

TAYLOR—LEONARD

Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, decorated with Easter lilies and pink snapdragons, formed a lovely setting for the wedding Saturday afternoon of Eleanor Mae Leonard, daughter of Mrs. Delbert Fleming, of Stirling, and the late Horace Leonard, to Mr. Vaughn Aubrey Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Taylor, Stockton, N.B. The marriage was solemnized by the Reverend Ivan C. Morgan.

Wedding music was played by Mr. Stanley Northrop and Mrs. Russell Long sang "In The Garden of Your Heart", before the ceremony and "The Lord is My Shepherd" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Jack Jones of Marmora, the bride wore a gown of white slipper satin, it was styled with sweetheart neckline and shoulder tucks tapering into the fitted bodice, where the skirt was caught at the sides with roses of the material and rhinestones and fell from side gathers into a circular train. The sleeves came to points over the hands. The full length bridal veil was hand embroidered net illusion. It was held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms. The bride wore a single strand pearl necklace, a gift of her grandmother, and carried a cascade of Easter lilies.

Miss Nellie Fleming, of Stirling, attended, wearing pink brocaded nylon taffeta gown with three-tier nylon net overskirt and matching brocaded bolero. Her shoulder-length veil was caught with pink rosebuds and she wore gloves of pink nylon net and carried a basket of spring flowers.

The flower girl was Miss Mary Moore, of Peterborough, who wore powder blue taffeta with eyelet insets, and carried a basket of spring flowers.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Clarence Taylor of Bathurst, N.B., and the ushers were Mr. John Incales and Joe Shaughnessy, both of Peterborough.

The reception was held in the church parlor, where the bride's mother received wearing a dress of navy crepe with yoke of shadow lace. She wore navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother also received, wearing a dress of navy crepe, with matching bolero and grey accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations.

For their motor trip to points east, the bride wore a dress of powder blue crepe and matching full length coat of bellmac hair. She wore sterling silver pins and earrings, a gift of the groom. Her accessories were navy and she wore a corsage of pink camelias.

The couple will live at 238 Barnardo Avenue, Peterborough.

SUTHERLAND—GRAHAM

A pretty double-ring wedding ceremony was solemnized on Saturday, April 12th, at 8:30 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Graham, 32 Cedar Street, Trenton, when their youngest daughter, Mary Jane, became the bride of Donald Arthur Sutherland, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sutherland, of Howick, Quebec. The Reverend G. A. Pultenham, of Grace United Church, Trenton, officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becoming attired in a street-length dress of navy blue crepe with white accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. James Morgan, of Marmora, attended the bride, wearing grey sharkskin with navy blue accessories and corsage of red roses.

Mr. James Morgan attended the bridegroom.

Following the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, gowned in navy crepe with corsage of yellow roses received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who also wore navy crepe and yellow rose corsage, the young couple left on a brief honeymoon. Alliance Tabernacle Donates $4,090.25 for Foreign Missions

Easter lilies, ferns and standards of white and pink snapdragons, daffodils, narcissi and rose-tinted tulips banked the altar of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle on Sunday for the Easter service, which was ushered in by a sunrise meeting, and for the closing day of the annual missionary convention.

For eight days fine congregations have enjoyed the colored slides and the helpful, spiritual talks of the workers in the regions beyond as told by the missionaries, Miss Margaret Jaffray, from Indonesia; the Reverend Paul Bartel, of China, and the Reverend Marion C. Allen, of Burma, who spoke with appealing vividness of the great need in those far-off lands for the gospel of the risen Jesus Christ; of the heart hunger of the multitudes for Christ and satisfy without; of tribes of men, unknown before, that call upon help of God; of China, accessible by plane only and of the setting up of a hospital for homeless hordes fleeing from communist armies.

Homeless Refugees

Here, in a no-man's-land of mountainous terrain, across the Junk Bay, opposite Hong Kong on the mainland, a ferry-bus and train terminals, a refuge of little huts was built, and a school for the children among these refugees, that they might be housed and taught the good news that Jesus died to save from sin, and that He rose to sanctify them.

As always the last meeting of the convention is the highlight of the week, since it marks the end of the missionary pledge for the year. At this time, the monies donated during the past twelve months, are announced by the pastor and a new pledge for the ensuing year received.

The pledge for the year 1951 was over paid by $580.25 bringing the total giving to $4,090.25 all of which is used in obedience to the great commission: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, and, lo, I am with you even unto the end of the age."

Missionary Problems

In the closing message, the Reverend Paul Bartel, spoke of the many problems confronting missionary life, including the separation from one's immediate family, and loved ones. He gave also a picture, dealing with both the spiritual and physical conditions in the world today. "Many" he said, "are in the throes of starvation; material goods have been sent from the United States nor Canada; both countries have fallen farther away from God." Man's one soul is vastly more important than the body, and as Christians, we should be concerned about the great spiritual starvation that is found about us on every side. The means of spreading the gospel today are through the printed page; by newspapers, and by books. But, by far, the greatest is the living of the Christ life in our daily walk, both at home and in the heart of whatever place God may see Jesus in us."

Living the Life

As an example he told of a Chinese making the statement that he had already seen the Lord Jesus, and of showing where He lived. He, whom he meant, was a living example of the Christ life, a man well advanced in years, whose life had been one of sweetness and goodness to those about Him.

Special music "He is Risen" was rendered by the choir, under the direction of the soloist, Mrs. Ambrose Kirkpatrick, and by Mr. Jim McKay, of Rednersville, who sang, "Calvary."

Cannifton Circuit Holds Easter Services

Easter Sunday was appropriately observed at each appointment on Cannifton United Church circuit. Services began with "Easter Sunrise Service" at Cannifton, under the auspices of the C.G.I.T. group, ably conducted by Mrs. McLeod, leader. Mrs. Boyd presided at the organ for the C.G.I.T. girls' choir. Rev. W. R. Merrick, pastor, closed this interesting and well-attended services with the benediction.

Bethany church, at the morning service, was filled with reverent worshippers in keeping with the Spirit of Easter and splendid Easter music was rendered by the choir with Mrs. C. Eggleton presiding at the piano. Beautiful Easter lilies from Bermuda, adorned the altar.

In the afternoon, the Easter service was held at Carmel Church with an unusually large congregation present. A full choir under the direction of the pianist, Mrs. Blake Pitman, sang two beautiful Easter numbers. Easter lillies and cut flowers at the altar gave a real touch of the gladness and Spirit of Easter.

The evening service at Cannifton was attended by a good congregation, which on entering the church was welcomed by a large array of beautiful Easter lillies, cut flowers and potted plants, centred by a large white cross, attractively arranged, at the altar.

The service was greatly enriched by the three beautiful anthems rendered by a full choir and were much appreciated. Mrs. H. Farnham presided at the organ. During the offertory Mr. Manly Mitchell played "The Old Rugged Cross", as a cornet solo, which was very effective.

Memorium Flowers

An Easter lily placed on the altar in memory of the late Raymond Holgate, by his grandmother, Mrs. Windsor of Haliburton, and cut flowers by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Holgate. Easter lily by Mrs. Fox, of Corbyville, in memory of her father, Mr. Wilson, and two large baskets of beautiful assorted flowers, in memory of the late Mrs. Tice, by her son and his wife Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tice.

Daffodils which adorned the windows, were placed by the C.G.I.T. girls.

The pastor, Rev. W. R. Merrick's theme for the above services was "The Living Lord".

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A sentimental introduction might help here

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 years old, and there is a fellow in my neighborhood I am crazy about, although we never have actually met.

I go out of my way to try and see him every day, and I try to go to the movies the same night he goes, but my shyness is a handicap. Before I got so much in love with him, I flirted with him a little, and sometimes he would do the same, but now, after half killing myself to pass the corner the same time he does, I feel so shy I don't even look at him.

All I ask is for you to tell me how to go about meeting him without making a fool of myself. Can you do this?—J. B.

Dear J.B.:

If it's a conventional introduction to this chap that you want then the only thing to do is to find some mutual friend who can arrange this. Since this girl lives in your neighborhood, I should think, if you look around a little among your friends, you should be able to turn up someone who can introduce you.

Of course girls and boys do often manage to get acquainted when they are in the habit of passing each other frequently on neighborhood streets. It's only natural, under such circumstances, for people to smile or exchange a casual greeting when they happen to meet, but if a young man seems willing to let this go far enough, a girl can't very well appear too eager to develop the acquaintance.

You say you have already flirted with this boy on various occasions and that you have made a point of trying to be where he is often as possible. Perhaps you've made your desire to know him too obvious. Most nice boys don't care to have girls throw themselves at them, you know.

It seems to me your best chance for a try at interesting this boy is what I mentioned first, and that is to get a real introduction from someone who knows you both. After that, you'd be on your own.

She looked for affection, found treachery

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I went out twice with a married man of 30, who has four children. I am 15. He told me he loved me, and I fell for him very hard. He had an affair and now I am pregnant.

The reason I am writing to you for help is because my mother is dead and my father is very mean. Ever since I was four, I have lived with my grandmother.—B.

Dear B.:

I am sorry you are in such trouble. I am sure it only happened because you were lonely, and in need of affection from someone. But I hope you will remember from now on that you can find friends who will be fond of you and help you overcome your loneliness so that you will run no more danger of being misled by the wrong people.

What you should do now is to go to your clergyman and ask which of the welfare services in your city would be the proper one to help you. There are a number of good agencies in your town, any one of which would be able to advise you.

If you prefer, you could ask at your local YWCA for this information.

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Broiling-Defined and Described

The following letter is typical of many I receive from people who have acquired new stoves with broiling racks and do not know how to use them or who have broilers but do not use them because they were never taught.

"Dear Mary Moore: Would you please be so kind as to describe how a person broils meat in electric oven. My husband is not allowed anything that is fried and the doctor says "cook it in the broiler". Can liver be just as tasty cooked in this fashion?—Mrs. Wm. K."

Broiling is a quick method of cooking any tender meats that can be fried. The only difference is that no fat need be used—usually is not. The secret (or other food) is usually placed on a rack on a broiler pan and placed about 1 or 2 inches from the top of oven which should be very hot. The meat is cooked until tinged with brown, and turned over and cooked on the other side to your satisfaction. It is more palatable and digestible than fried foods, and ideal for steaks and chops.

TO BROIL STEAK

Porterhouse, T-bone, Sirloin and Wing are all broilable—the latter two should be from red-brand well-hung beef or they may not be as tender as the first two.

Wipe steaks with damp cloth. Place—on rack on broiling pan. Place under very hot broiler at 2 to 2 inch distance. For a 1-inch sirloin steak allow 10 to 12 minutes for "rare" or 14-16 minutes for medium done". For 1 1-2-inch sirloin allow 15 or 16 minutes for "rare" or 18 to 20 minutes for "medium done". For 1-inch Porterhouse allow 12-14 minutes for "rare"; 16-18 minutes for "medium done"; for 2 1-2-inch porterhouse allow 18-20 minutes for "rare"; 22-25 minutes for "medium done". Steaks are cooked quite a few more minutes—but you can test them by slitting the meat at the bone with a sharp-pointed knife to see if it is done to your taste. Steak continues to cook after it is removed from broiler—so if you like it done rare watch it closely and remove a half minute ahead of time. Turn meat once at half time. It may be salted and peppered and buttered then.

BROILED LIVER

Calves', lamb and chicken livers are ideal for this. Wipe with damp cloth, slice 1-2-inch thick, sprinkle with salt and pepper, brush with melted butter. If it always "medium done" never "rare". It requires about 5 minutes to broil to a side.

(Comment to Mrs. Wm. K.—If your husband is not allowed butter broil the liver without it. Maybe he would like a little onion salt, or Worcestershire sauce or lemon juice on it.)

BROILED MUSHROOMS

Wash mushrooms by scrubbing them and cutting off slice from bottom of stem. Stems may be broiled or saved for soups or creaming. Place caps rounded side down on broiler pan on baking dish or broiler pan. In the upturned cavity place 1-2 teaspoon butter. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, lemon juice. Broil 5 to 8 minutes or bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 12 minutes.

To Miss Chance Of Presentation To Queen

London. (CP) — Diplomat's daughter Diana Wilgress will miss a chance to be presented to the Queen because her father has been recalled to Canada.

Ordinarily 17-year-old Diana would have made her curtsy as one of the royal presentation parties in June.

Now her father, L. Dana Wilgress, is returning from his High Commissioner's post here to become under-secretary for External Affairs in Ottawa.

"Perhaps Diana will be able to come over to be presented next year," said Mrs. Wilgress, Diana's Russian-born mother.

Miss Wilgress, a fashion-conscious teen-ager, hopes to become a professional model in Canada. First, she will complete her schooling at Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., and take a domestic science course.

She made her modelling debut at an expert showing in Eastbourne, Sussex in March, 1951, and later appeared as a professional exhibit at the Festival of Britain

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Springtime . . . Flashing-time . . . a Wonderful Time to Plant . . . Good Manners!

Yes, an inspiring time to plant the seeds of a fine new crop of good manners, then happily watch the Manners-Garden grow.

"very wise" post, John Drinkwater, expresses this spirit of adding to the world whatever grace and graciousness we can in this bright-bright-new season:

"The Spring's behavior here is spent
To make the world magnificent!"

Grandmother is Right. . .It's a "Curiosity of Etiquette!"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My granddaughter says I'm "terribly old-fashioned" because I told her today that I think it is in the worst possible taste for a girl who is merely "going steady" with a boy to allow him to give her a hope chest. This curiosity-of-etiquette has happened with several of her friends lately, girls 17 or 18 years old. What about this giving of a hope chest, Mrs. Beeckman?—W. R.

There are three proper ways for a girl to "acquire" a hope chest. (1) She may buy it herself. . . and very often she does, and very sensibly, too, for she buys it when she wants it, and buys the type and size she wants. (2) Her parents may give it to her as a gift, often when she is a very young girl—sometimes they give it to her as an engagement present, (3) Her fiance may give it to her. But, no matter what your granddaughter defiantly says, no girl with a grain of good taste and self-respect, would accept this significant present from a man to whom she is not engaged.

Again the Necessity of the Blank Date-line on Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance is in the service, and the time of his arrival for our wedding next month is uncertain. Is it proper to have the invitations engraved without the date, writing in later the day and date in ink? And, if necessary, would it be all right to send them a week before the wedding?—Bride-to-be.

Yes, today. . .again. . .this is the procedure most often be used, and circumstances make it correct. Order the invitations to leave the date line blank, and when you know the date, fill in, in ink, the day and date. Then ask to have the envelopes delivered to you at once, and have these all addressed, stamped.) Mail the invitations as soon as possible, a week before the wedding date if that short-notice is necessary. You may be able to name a tentative date, or even the week in which the wedding may take place . . . then alert relatives and friends to try to hold that time for your wedding.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Looks Depend on Little Things.

What about the contents of your purse?

Plain Jane—perfectly groomed, becomingly dressed, and carrying herself with splendor—has it all over the pretty dolly whose attire is sketchy, whose hair is scrambled, and whose body is slouched. A clever woman, with dress sense and a highly developed sense of order, can make the observer overlook the fact that nature has been stingy with beauty gifts.

We ask the members of this beauty class to take inventory of grooming. Let them ask themselves a few questions. Do they have a weekly or fortnightly shampoo with a becoming wave set, or do they let the strands become rough, with rag-tags and bobtails along the napeline?

Are they fastidious to the nth degree in the matter of applying make-up, or do they practice the dibs-and-dabs method of putting on powder, rouge and lipstick? Do they remove old make-up before laying on the fresh cosmetic glow? If they do not, then they are not justified when they complain that their complexion goes dingy and blackheads form. How about the powder puff? Does it look suspiciously dusty? Why grind dust into a dainty skin anyway? It does not make sense.

Do our candidates for lovelisness and style give fastidious care to the items of their wardrobes? Dresses should be brushed when you take them off, and should be hung immediately be put on hangers. To be hung on a chair will crease them, because they may still be warm after being worn. Skirts should be carefully folded and placed on hangers. It is particularly necessary to brush coat collars and hats. Hats are usually overlooked.

If white gloves are not washed frequently they will soon look grey. Veils, when crumpled, should be ironed. If you are lucky enough to have jewelled rings, wash them frequently, as dust underneath the gems will dim the sparkle.

Leather purses pick up spots of dust and must have care if they are to wear well. Incidentally, what does the contents of your purse? Are they one glorious mess and mixture of old ticket stubs, letters and samples of cloth, besides the linens that are entitled to be there—the wallet and change purse, mirror, lipstick, rouge and powder compact? Do you ever display a soiled handkerchief? That, my friends, is indeed a grooming lapse.

Peeling, cracked or tarnished nail polish are more the beauty of the lovelisst hands. Unless you are willing to remove the old veneer and apply the new frequently, better let your nails remain as nature designed them.

KILLED FOR IVORY

Up to the late 19th century, more than 50,000 African elephants were annually slaughtered for their ivory.

Miss Shirley Scott Gives Travelogue

Carmel Comrades Club held its regular meeting at the church on Friday evening with an excellent attendance.

The meeting was in charge of Merle and Monna Robinson, group leaders, and opened with a beautiful Easter worship service with the theme "He is Risen".

Those taking part were: Monna Robinson, Carl and Olive Thompson. Appropriate Easter solos were rendered by Doris Lawrence and Carmen Dafoe with Iva Horton at the piano. Prayer by Rev. W. R. Mezick concluded the devotional part of the evening.

Guest Speaker

The club was indeed privileged, and delighted,to have as guest speaker, Miss Shirley Scott, of Trenton, who had formerly been a resident of Carmel and to most of those present was no stranger.

Shirley had been chosen last summer, along with 49 other girls from all parts of Canada, by a committee at the Department of Education, to enjoy a trip to England and Scotland, sponsored and financed by the Industrialist, Garfield Weston, of the Weston Biscuit Company.

This is an annual event open to all students of Grades 11 and 12 in the Dominion of Canada, but to achieve this honor, the student must have proved himself or herself to be the rare combination of perfect pupil and perfect personality, and be an upright and worthwhile citizen in all respects and thus be able to get the most out of the trip.

Shirley gave a glowing account of her tour which included the trip across on the "Empress of France", being presented to the Queen and a garden party at Buckingham Palace, attending the theatre and opened with a beautiful Easter worship service with the theme "He is Risen".

YOU HAVE your special interest or ambition—something that means a lot to you. Today, more than ever, the trick is to plan your saving—and your spending—so that you move steadily toward your goal. Here are two suggestions:

First, decide what you want most, how much it will cost, and open a special savings account at The Royal Bank of Canada for that one particular purpose. Then save for it.

Second, use the Royal Bank Budget Book to keep yourself on your course, and to avoid careless spending. The budget book does not suggest how you spend your money. It does provide you with a simple pattern to help you PLAN YOUR BUDGET TO SUIT YOURSELF. You can get a copy at any branch. Ask for one.

Siamese Girl Studying Bank of Canada

Ottawa. (CP)—A young Siamese woman is setting a precedent at the staid Bank of Canada.

Foreign visitors frequently come to the bank; but Miss Kreangkrai Chutima is the first woman ever to attempt to take the bank apart to see how it works.

Miss Chutima, 24-year-old chief of the international section of the research division of the Bank of Thailand, is here under sponsorship of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development better known as the World Bank.

She is learning something of the policies and practices of Canada's Central bank. After a six-week term here, she will return to Washington where she has been doing similar work at the United States Treasury department. Later she will return to Bangkok where her knowledge may be put to use by the Bank of Thailand.

Daughter of a banker, Miss Chutima decided early on a business career. She is one of a family of 12 boys and two girls.

In 1938, Miss Chutima went to England where she took a Bachelor of Commerce degree at the University of Bristol.

During the war she was studying for her doctorate in Commerce in the United States when she joined the office of War Information as a language technician. She made regular broadcasts for the O.W.I. to her homeland.

After a course at the University of Pennsylvania on International Finance, Miss Chutima returned home in 1947 and joined the Bank of Thailand a 10-year-old institution patterned on the Bank of England.

Thailand is facing two Allied problems, inflation and how to mobilize personal savings for use in development work.

Miss Chutima says careers for women are no novelty in her country. Women have been elected to the House of Representatives and they have been active in business for many years.

Besides what she learns of high finance, Miss Chutima will take back to her country a love of music of the west. She didn't like it at first but once her ear became accustomed to our scale, her enjoyment grew.

"I like Haydn and Mozart best. They are not too emotional. Liking Beethoven and Brahms just followed naturally."

JOHNSTOWN MISSION BAND

The Mission Band of Johnstown held their meeting on Sunday night at the church with a full house. The mothers, dads, and friends were present and glad they went.

Mrs. Clayton Curtis is honorary president. Wanda Mallory, president, and Thelma Stickle is secretary-treasurer.

Miss Mallory opened the meeting. The Scripture, Luke: 22:4-31, was read by Eddie Meyers. The roll call found many children present. Gail Tolmie gave a reading "The Resurrection". The young men of the church sang "The Old Rugged Cross", and Freddie St. Hilaire gave a reading "Sing a Song of Sixpence". The four older girls sang "Crown Him". A reading by Mrs. Ernest Bush, "Something More Than Gold", ostensibly for the children, concerned a little boy who became fond of money. He hoarded every cent that he got and at last counted his money out of his Dad's pocketbook. He thought that if he took only one of each kind of silver, his Dad would not notice and he would get rich more quickly. One day he became ashamed; he couldn't eat. Finally, he confessed to his Dad what he had done and he had been. His father forgave him and so he was happy once more.

A missionary skit was given, which had been given previously at the Grace Church W.M.S. convention in Trenton, and which had caused so much favorable comment. The singing of the children was excellent.

A girl playing the part of a blind Chinese girl (Wanda Mallory) came on the stage. She told a man called Jesus and wondered if he could help her and asked for someone to take her to Him. A Canadian girl came up and said "I will go with you." The blind girl was brought to Jesus and made to see.

Then a lame Indian boy, (Wayne Brooks), came by and asked for this man (Jesus) where He might be found). A Canadian boy came by saying, "I will go with you." He found Jesus and was made to walk again without crutches.

An African girl (Eleanor Clapp) was lost and she asked for someone to help her find Jesus. A Canadian girl said, "I will go with you." This girl found Jesus and then the Chinese girl, the lame boy and the lost African girl all said that they were going back to their own lands and tell the people of Jesus and asked that help be sent them by prayers, missionaries, and money for there are many in their lands who are blind, and lame and lost. Who will offer to help? Many of the children offered themselves to go to teach these people. It would be hard to see this and not believe in missions.

The cast certainly deserved a great deal of credit, also the pianist, for she had much playing to do. They all acted as if they loved doing it. This skit has done much good to everyone who has seen it.

The Johnstown teacher, Miss Cunningham, and all those who helped are to be commended for their work.

CHRIST CHURCH CONTACT CLUB

The Contact Club of Christ Church held its regular meeting in the parish hall, last evening, with Lois Beaby presiding.

Canon J. B. Creegan paid the club a visit and asked if the girls would consider convening a nursery for the benefit of those with children under three years, who wished to attend morning service.

The coming variety night program was further discussed and various costumes planned for addition to the all-male fashion show.

Members were also reminded to bring in their mystery parcels and white elephant articles for the "Blossom Tea".

A bowling party, always a popular event, was planned for May with refreshments to be served in the parish hall.

Pocket novels and magazines on sale under the convenership of Mary Fletcher, brought in a total of $2.35.

"Are you an active member the kind that would be missed?
Or are you just contented that your name is on the list.
Do you attend the meetings and mingle with the flock?
Or do you stay at home and criticize the way it's run?
Do you take an active part to help the work along?
Or are you satisfied to only just belong.
Do you ever go to visit a member who is sick,
Or leave the work to just a few, and talk about the clique.
Think it over member you know right from wrong.
Are you an active member or do you just belong?"

THIS COULD BE IT!

The Weston Dukes, running for their fourth straight victory will be the guests of the Hawks here tonight in a battle that could wind up the junior "B" semi-finals. The Hawks definitely were outlucked in the third game in Weston last Friday night, what with Don Barclay being injured when the kids were enjoying a 3-1 lead and definitely outplaying the starry "Little Leafs".

While the Dukes had an edge on the Hawks in finish and more polished play around the nets, they did not outmatch the Belleville youngsters in spirit and drive. The Hawks were worth the margin they were enjoying when bad luck smote them, and with any kind of a "break" would have copped the nod.

They feel tonight is their night to howl and it would not surprise this department to see them force the series to the fifth game, which, if it does become a reality will be played in Weston on Friday night.

It was surprising to note the number of Weston fans, or at least those at last Friday night's game who do not come from these parts, who were rooting for the Hawks. The attendance up there has not been what it might and Wes Bodrington, who services the public address system from the press box told us it needed a Dukes defeat to bring out their supporters emnasse. A lot of the Dukes fans were teen-agers, both sexes, from Riverside Collegiate where most of the Dukes are students.

Meanwhile in the other semi-finals bracket, the Hamilton Aerovox Juniors, rated as one of the best teams to come out of the Amhitious City since it won the title four or five years ago, are battling with the Waterloo team and at the moment enjoy a 2-0 games lead in their four-of-seven series, with one game being tied. Weston officials have scouted the Hamilton squad, and when asked how they thought they would stack up against the Dukes said merely "It should be a rough, tough series."

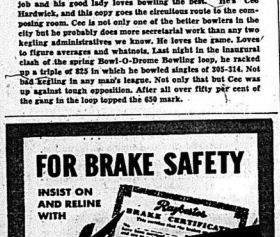
HABS ON SPOT!



Only one game stands between the Detroit Red Wings and another National Hockey League record. If they dunk the Montreal Canadiens tonight, which they should, according to past performances they will take their Stanley Cup playoff series in eight straight games, not a mean feat by any stretch of the imagination.

The Wings, one of the most powerful squads, if not the best, to represent the Motor City, have come up with consistent performances throughout the series. There were some who thought the high-flying Habitants would check the Wings' headlong flight to the Stanley pewterware but the boys from north of the Detroit River have proven they are of tough championship calibre. They should take the series in four straight, but there's many a slip twixt the cup . . . and anything can happen. It was not so long ago that the Wings boasted a three-straight lead over the Toronto Maple Leafs and look what happened. The Leafs roared into high gear and by the time the stunned Wing fans had recovered from the surprise the Maple-ites had won four in a row to grab the cup. It could happen again, but there isn't much money around on it.

HE LOVES IT

There's a cigar-smoking bloke on the payroll of this newspaper who, next to his breakfast of eggs and bacon, his job and his good lady loves bewiling the best. He's Cec Hardwick, and this copy goes the circuitous route to the composing room. Cec is not only one of the better bowlers in the city but he probably does more secretarial work than any two kegling administratives we know. He loves the game. Loves/ to figure averages and whatnots. Last night in the inaugural clash of the spring Bowl-O-Drome bowling loop, he racked up a total of 825 in which he bowled singles of 305-314. Not bad bowling in any man's league. Not only that but Cec was up against tough opposition. After all over fifty per cent of the gang in the loop topped the 650 mark.

Red Wings Can Make History With Win Over Habs Tonight; Sawchuk Shoots for Record

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Detroit, April 15 (CP)—This is the night Detroit Red Wings can reach their greatest heights since the club joined the National Hockey League 26 years ago. It also can be a black-bordered chapter in the big league life of Montreal Canadiens.

That's the situation as the two clubs get set for the fourth game in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final at Olympia Stadium before an expected sellout house of more than 14,000 fans. Statistically, the figure filberts are having a big time this series.

They have everything taped in event the Red Shirts complete the cycle and record victory No. 4 over the Flying Frenchmen in the trophy chase. Following up their four straight dumpling of Toronto Maple Leafs in the preliminary round, this would give the Detroit outfit unblemished playoff record for one season, something never accomplished since the best-of-seven series started in 1939, and the odds are all with the Red Wings. The Canadiens due to an assortment of injuries, simply aren't flying. Added to the Bleu Bonnet trouble through seven hard semi-final games before getting by Boston Bruins while the Wings rubbed out the Leafs in the minimum number and marked time until Montreal was ready.

Injuries Hurt Habs

The injuries hit Canadiens where it hurts most—on the middle—depriving them of the necessary depth to bolt the forward and well-conditioned league champions.

Canadiens first lost long John McCormack, their sweep-checking defensive center, at the tail-end of the season. Centre Ken Mosdell joined McCormack in the sick bay when the Boston round ball Bullet Reay moved to the sidelines in last Saturday night's game at Montreal which Detroit took 2-1. That left veteran Elmer Lach as the only regular pivot man. If Reay, out with an injured foot, isn't ready for tonight's game coach Dick Irvin will use Gerry Edmundson up this season from Kitchener Greenshirts of the OHA who has played one league and one playoff game with the Montrealers.

"We won't know about Reay until tonight," Irvin said. "He will try out the foot shortly before the game and if it is no go we'll use Edmundson."

Goalkeeper Terry Sawchuck has at least a chance of tying the playoff record of four held jointly by Frank McCool, formerly of the Leafs who turned the trick in the 1945 series against Canadiens and Wings and Dave Kerr in the 1937 playoffs with New York Rangers against the old Montreal Maroons and Wings. Terry now has three. The statisticians also point out that if the Wings win the trophy it will be the fifth time they have taken both the league title and Stanley Cup, more than any other club in the history of the NHL. Wings have won both in 1936, 1937, 1943 and 1950.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

A brutal, block-busting brawl looms in tomorrow night's middleweight title bout in Chicago between champion Sugar Ray Robinson and challenger Rocky Graziano. But neither fighter is expected to be hurt financially.

Interest is so intense that a sellout crowd of 19,000 is expected at Chicago Stadium. Revenue for gate, television and radio of about $340,000 would mean $86,000 for the champion and $70,000 for Rocky.

Slugger Graziano goes into the fight a 3-1 underdog to Robinson who will be 32 next month. Rocky is 29.

They say in boxing circles, however, that a slugger fades more slowly than a boxer and, like, the champion is.

Graziano is trying to recapture the 160 pound crown he held four years ago. His relentless, sledge-hammer blows have flattened 52 foes since he turned pro in 1942. He has won 67 while losing eight fights.

Robinson, the dapper, dancing executioner of boxing, has scored 85 knockouts in his 130 wins and two defeats since he made his debut in 1940.

Philadelphia Athletics announced yesterday the optioning on 24-hour recall of Jim Hegan, catcher since strong rightbhander, to Ottawa of the International League. Glenn Liebhardt once hurled for Toronto in the same league. He has been troubled with a sore arm.

Boxing boss Bob Christenberry was given iron-fisted controls yesterday over the fight game in New York State under the terms of a bill approved at Albany by Governor Thomas Dewey. The measure gives the chairman of the State Athletic Commission power to purge "criminal scum" from boxing, to adopt and enforce new safety regulations to reduce ring fatalities and injuries, and to give boxing fans better breaks.

Curt Simmons, southpaw pitcher, who rejoined Philadelphia Phillies last week after a season in the armed services, got a raise in his 1952 contract for a job well done two years ago. He won 17 games in 1950, helping the Phillies to a pennant. "It will take a few weeks before I get back into the groove in relief," Simmons said of his possible return to form. -

The greatest harness racing season in the history of eastern United States is expected this year. The season gets underway under the lights tonight at Yonkers, N.Y., before an expected crowd of 25,000. Seventeen crack pacers are named for the race so it will be split into two sections.

Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Baseball League will hold their annual Canadian tryout camp this year at Brantford, April 26-27. Bill Harris, the club's Canadian scout, said at Toronto yesterday the Dodgers will send coaches for the sessions.

Pitcher Billy Pierce of Chicago White Sox was turned down for medical reasons yesterday at Detroit when he reported for induction into the U.S. Army. He returned to Chicago where he is slated to hurl the first opener against Cleveland Indians. He won 15 games last year.

Campbellford Wins Juvenile Hockey Title

Campbellford's Ontario Minor Hockey Association's midget champions added another title to their collective belts in Memorial Arena last night when they defeated the plucky Motor mount 11-7 to win the Belleville Hockey Association's first annual juvenile tournament.

The starry kids from Northumberland county swept through the series undefeated as did Madoc, and gave full evidence of why they wear the OMHA titular crests.

They racked up a 6-0 lead in the first period, added two in the second and topped off a scintillating performance with a trio in the third. Madoc first home a pair in the first, were held scoreless in the second but outshot the winners in the third heat with five goals.

Campbellford also won the J. N. Yanover Trophy emblematic of district juvenile hockey supremacy. Ivan Ellis, BHA president was out of the city last night and presentation ceremonies were held over to a future date.

Dooher, Wilson, Garvey and Laing looked the best for the winners. Dooher scored three goals with Wilson getting a pair and an assist. Scott also scored twice with Garvey, White, Laing and Newman getting the others.

Parsnluk was the star of the Madoc squad, his third period 3-goal effort being outstanding. He also drew an assist. Nickel also scored a trio for the mid-county village crew with Carswell getting his cold counter. Mantle stood out, being credited with assists on two of Parsnluk's goals.

The game was fast and cleanly played with Referees Tommy Schreider and Tee Hurst handing out four penalties, three of them to the Madoc crew. Schreider and Hurst did excellent work during the series handling all the games.

The teams:

Campbellford: goal, Z. West; defence, Newman, White; centre, Garvey; wings, Wilson, Dooher; subs. Girard, Gibson, Lee, Laing, Button, Pollock, Scott, Peterkin.

Madoc: goal, Knott; defence, Chadbolt, Drummond; centre, Parsnings, Nickel, Hickey; subs, Carswell, Mantle, Last, Smith, Casslio, Reid, Belanger, Gosbel.

New York, April 15 (AP)—In the Lambs Club at the far end of the bar there is a large, round table, and over one of the chairs there is a lifelike portrait of the late John J. McGraw, for by many to have been the greatest baseball manager of them all.

This was where the little Napoleon held almost nightly court when his Giants were in town. The old-timers around the Lambs Club like to recall that if there was to be a bit of trouble on a given night, starting with loud words and winding up with a swinging of fists, this was a likely place for it. John, they say, was ever ready, especially if some tenderfoot could be conned into addressing him as "Mugsy", a nickname he disliked.

Over the end of the bar there also is a detailed likeness of the late John Barrymore, who was an actor member of clubs. That, they tell you, is where John always stood! The room is steeped in sentiment, and it seemed a fine place t latest word on little league all, for keep at it, Mr. W. H. (Cappy) Wells, who is a director of public relations.

Cappy, himself, is more or less overwhelmed by the little league. "Last time I counted," he said, "we had 776 leagues and 2,333 teams in 38 states and a lot of foreign countries. No telling how many there are at this moment. They keep coming at us."

The little league originated only 13 years ago this coming April 21 at Williamsport, Pa., when a public spirited citizen named Carl Stotz decided kids up to 13 should be given a chance to play organized baseball, complete with uniforms. Stotz, who still is commissioner of the league, must feel like a man who started raising rabbits in his living room.

"You wouldn't think there were so many kids in the world," Wells said. "What we've got now is farms clubs. They decide to organize a little league in a town, say six teams. Know how many kids turn out—400, that's how many.

"So the managers hold tryouts and pick their clubs, and all the others go into the farm system. All they get are caps and shoes. They have a regular league of their own, a sort of minor little league, and they play a schedule, too. The managers in the main

Quarter of a Million Fans Will See Baseball Openers

A turnout of 250,000 fans was expected to baseball parks in eight cities today to listen to the cry of "play ball" as the 1952 major league season officially opened.

Despite the loss and impending loss of many topnotch performers of Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Bobby Doerr, Gerry Coleman, Mickey Mantle, Willie Mays and others, the new season gave promise of more thrills and excitement to match those of previous campaigns. Nearly all clubs were dotted with new faces and many of them appeared in the line-up today.

A majority of the experts and the 656 backers installed Cleveland Indians 8-to-5 favorites to win the American League pennant, with the Yankees second choices at 2 to 1. In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers were also 2-to-1 favorites and New York Giants 3-to-1.

President Starts It

President Harry S. Truman, the only native baseball fan since William Howard Taft started the presidential pitching custom in 1910, was to throw out the first ball in Washington where the Senators opened at Detroit. The usual crowd of 32,000 expected to see a pitching duel between southpaw Mel Parnell (18-11) and right-hander Bob Porterfield (9-8) of the Senators.

The day's largest crowd of some 35,000 watching Queen Juliana of The Netherlands was expected to attend the Tigers-Browns opener in Detroit. The veteran Dizzy Trout (9-14) was the Detroit pitching nominee. He was to be opposed by Ned Garver (20-12). Four rookies—outfielders Jim Busby and Gordy Schmees, infielder Le Thomas and catcher Clint Courtney—were to start for the Browns.

St. Louis Cardinals were to raise the curtain with a night game in St. Louis before 30,000. Murry Dickson (20-13) was named to take the hill for the visiting Pittsburgh Pirates against Gerry Staley (10-13) and Cliff Chambers (14-12).

The Giants expected 35,000 for their home opener with Philadelphia Phils. Sal Maglie (22-8) was set to start for the defending National League champions against Robin Roberts (21-15).

Davey Williams was to be at second base for the Giants. Bob Elliott, obtained from the Braves only last week, was to replace the injured Ervin and bat in the clean-up spot.

Pitchers Star

Cold weather was expected to hold the crowd down to 10,000 at Boston. The Dodgers were idle as of the Braves. The Braves were to feature a rookie-studded line-up behind ace southpaw Warren Spahn (23-15). The Dodgers relied on their veteran array including Lefty Preacher Roe (22-3).

Philadelphia expected 25,000 to watch the A's battle tangle with the world champion Yankees and try to end righthander Vic Raschi's domination of A's. Raschi (21-10) holds a 20-2 lifetime mark against Philadelphia. The A's nominated Alex Kellner (11-14).

Chicago White Sox were hopeful of exceeding their record 1925 opening day crowd of 23,000 in their encounter with the Indians. Billy Pierce (15-14) was Chicago's pitching choice to oppose Cleveland's Early Wynn (20-13).

Cincinnati was counting on a 30,000 sellout in its opener against the Cubs. Herm Wehmeier (7-10) was the Reds' pitching selection against southpaw Paul Minner (6-17).

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

New York Rangers, with Frank Boucher scoring both goals, defeated Montreal Maroons 2-1 at Montreal 26 years ago tonight to win the Stanley Cup. The bitterly fought game in which 5 penalties were awarded returned the cup to the United States for the first time since Seattle won it in 1917.

Nums Sponsor Boxing Show

Vancouver, April 15 (CP) —The Sisters of the Child Jesus, an order of nuns in suburban North Vancouver have turned their hand to something new. They're sponsoring an amateur boxing show this week-end.

The event is the two-day Intidan boxing championships of Pacific northwest—better known as the Buckain Gloves—Friday and Saturday.

Alex Strain, coach of St. Paul's Athletic Club, and Andy Paull, president of the North American Indian Brotherhood, had difficulty raising $30 for a deposit on the auditorium where the fights will be held.

"The sisters went into a huddle and came up with the required cash deposit," Strain said yesterday. "It is provided the most extraordinary kick-off for a boxing show in history. But it illustrates the spirit behind the promotion of this effort of ours."

The guest of honor will be Jim Thorpe of Memphis, Tenn., the great all-round Indian athlete.

St. Paul's gym is the athletic centre for the Squamish Indian village in North Vancouver. Strain got $1,000 from the village council, and, using it and an amazing talent for scrounging, started building.

An example of Strain's scrounging: He needed hand bandages for his fighters in the Intidan Gloves. At St. Paul's Church in the Indian village he found strips used to lower coffins into graves.

"They're perfect for bandages," he said. "We'll knock 'em dead."

A's Sign Hurler

Philadelphia, April 15 (AP) — Pitcher Ed Wright, former Boston Brave and Toronto Maple Leaf righthander, will be signed to a Philadelphia Athletics contract today, general manager Arthur H. Ehlers has announced.

Wright, 31, was obtained by the A's during the winter when the Philadelphia club bought five players from the New York Giants after taking over the Ottawa International League franchise. He had been on the Braves roster.

Manager Jimmy Dykes said he was impressed by Wright's control and side-arm sinkers.

Bilts, Montreal Square Away For Big Game

Montreal, April 15 — (CP) — Guelph Biltmores and Montreal Canadiens were both confident today that they would win the decisive fifth game of the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals at the Montreal Forum tonight.

A win for Guelph would earn them the right to enter the Memorial Cup finals against the Regina Pats or the Fort William Hurricanes. Guelph now leads the series 3-1.

Coach Sam Pollock of Canadiens is confident that if his charges take tonight's game "we could easily win the series. This pressure will be on the Biltmores if we return to Toronto on Friday, if he goes seven games we have the deciding game at home," he said.

Allin Pike, coach of the Guelph team, says he is far from satisfied with the Biltmores' play. "We won two of the games by single goals. I still haven't recovered from Bobby Haggert's goal in Game 2 when we almost kicked away a 5-0 lead and just managed to eke out that 7-6 win," said Pike.

Pike said he will string along with the regular line-up — one which so far has proved to be quite effective against the Montrealers. The Habs' mentor is figuring on two goalies. Ken Naylor will replace Scotty Bowman at left wing on the forward line with Herb English and Sandy Morrison, while Pete Laroque will return to his regular defence post replacing Rosa Murray.

Waterloo Blues Beat St. John In Cage Battle

Kitchener, April 15 — (CP)— Led by Jerry Jim Harris and guard Norm Hett, Kitchener-Waterloo YM.C.C.A. Blues last night defeated Saint John N.B. Atlantics 58-38 in the opening game of the best-of-three series for the Canadian intermediate basketball title.

Atlantics fell off the pace in the second half after holding the hard-shooting Blues to a 26-22 margin in the first two quarters.

Blues forged into an early 8-1 lead but the Atlantics, using a methodical passing attack, were only behind 19-15 at the quarter. The clubs battled on even terms in the second quarter and the first half ended with 28 fouls called, 15 against the Blues.

The winners put on a third-quarter spurt to take a 16-point lead.

The final quarter was slower and the Atlantics fell off badly at both ends.

The second game will be played here tonight and the third, if necessary, tomorrow.

Forts, Edmonton Clash Tonight

Fort Frances, Ont., April 15 (CP) —Fourth game in the Western Canada Allan Cup final shifts tonight to Fort Frances, a northwestern Ontario town famous for its paper mills and its hockey enthusiasm.

Last year Canadians got as far as the Canadian final in the Allan Cup search before bowing out to Owen Sound Mercurys.

Tonight they meet Edmonton Pats who defeated them 4-3 at Edmonton Saturday night to tie the best-of-seven series 2-2. One game was tied.

Tonight's line-up will see Canadians' deadly trio in action: Frank Eisenoph, Ric Ricard and Vern O'Donnell.

Edmonton line-ups have not been announced. Both teams were scheduled to arrive from Edmonton by train early today.

Gil Turner Beats Varona For 31st Win

Philadelphia, April 15 (AP) — Gil Turner and Kid Gavilan are all but signed for a welter-weight championship bout in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium this summer—unless the Philadelphia's fiasco with Chico Varona last night upsets the apple cart.

Turner, unbeaten 21-year-old Negro belter at 145 1-2, won his 31st straight victory and 25th by knockout when Varona from Havana, Cuba, weighing 142 1-2, refused to answer the bell for the seventh of last night's scheduled 10-rounder. The Cuban and his manager, Alile Zack bitterly protested that Turner threw "if low blows."

Varona told referee Zack Clayton he was "sick in the stomach" and refused to leave his corner.

"The referee refused to warn Turner and wouldn't take away the rounds for low punching," Zack said. "My boy wasn't getting a fair break. His spirit was broken."

After being informed by two commission physicians that there was no physical reason to accept Varona's body of low punching, John Dargus, Pennsylvania State Athletic Commissioner, held up the Cuban's purse and set a hearing for today.

Winnipeg Trims Windsor 52-46 In 4th Game

Winnipeg, April 15 — (CP) — Winnipeg Blue and Winnipeg Light Infantry meet tonight in the final game of their best-of-five series for Canada's 1952 junior basketball championships.

Winnipeg defeated the eastern team last night 52-46 to deadlock the series 2-2 and force the fifth game. Light Infantry led all the way but were hard pressed in the third quarter when Windsor narrowed the point-spread to 44-42.

Both teams appeared nervous in the final quarter and shooting was ragged.

The turning-point in the game came in the final minutes when Bill Hutton, Winnipeg's six-foot, five-inch centre, sank his only two points of the game to give his team a four-point lead.

The Winnipeg squad gained a 23-19 lead by the end of the second quarter on fine shooting by Bob Ketchen, Ron White, Sam Dolbun and Fred Ingaldson.

Found Range

Windsor began to find the range in the second quarter with Joe Soccia, Tom Mallinx and Uhrin sparkling a drive which netted a 26-23 count. Don Long, who shared Windsor scoring honors with Mallinux at nine points each, took over A.N.C. offensive in the third quarter with three long set-shots.

The Long-Mallinux combination moved Windsor to within one point of Winnipeg before Dolbun scored on a fine throw to leave the soldiers in front 44-42.

Neither club could score a point for nearly four minutes in the 4th quarter. Then Ingaldson dropped a foul shot and Dolbun, Winnipeg's higher scorer with 15 points, added a basket. Windsor countered with points by Sobocan and Mallinux.

Hutton's lone basket was the big break in the game. He fought off a Windsor checker with one hand and dropped the ball through with the other.

Light Infantry stalled the ball in the final moments and sank two foul shots. Two granted Windsor were missed.

Spring Bowling League Opens With High Scores

High scores featured the inaugural game of the Ontario Provincial Spring Bowling League last night with Fitzgerald's Commissioners racking up a 1,417 win over Bakelite. The Combines totalled 1,384 against the plastic crew's 3436.

In the other games Cutler Snigden turned back Jim Sparz Plugs 5-2 with Canada Cement doing the same to Frontiers. Scores here were 3456 and 3368. Rangers won over Kirkwood's Stogies 4-3 with Joe's gang rolling a 3515 as against the winners' 3462.

The rise of bowling was evidenced in the fact that over 50 per cent of the players rolled totals over 650.

Cec Hardwick turned in high triple of 823 (305-313), while Jim Cories rolled high single of 331.

Other scores: Fitzgerald: P. Lott 808 (323); C. Bell 772, G. Bellis 754, Ken Mallott 713, A. Lewis 706, R. Vandervoort 705, J. Legault 705, V. Segarty 705, J. Bennett 704, J. Valchar 694, B. Papke 693, J. Kirkwood 686, R. Baggault 676, V. Segarty 674, J. Saylor 673, J. Fitzgerald 676, E. Hopkins 653.

McFater, Jones Fight Tonight

Toronto, April 15 — (CP)—Allan McFater meets the third southpaw of his short fistic career tonight.

The pride of Toronto's ring wars goes against Detroit-bred Harold (Baby-face) Jones, in the 10-round main bout of a five-fight Maple Leaf Gardens professional card.

Although the 31-year-old McFater has been successful in all three of his appearances against left-handed sluggers, Jones is rated as a rough and tough slugger. However, the Mimico native is still rated favorite.

Tonight's bout has an extra special prize for McFater should he win it. A victory would likely move him against Lil Arthur King, the former British Empire lightweight champion.

The semi-final, a middleweight bout, sends Brantford's Gordon Wallace against Ted Bussey of Detroit. The bout is scheduled for 8 rounds.

Soo Juveniles Win

Sault Ste. Marie, April 15 — (CP)— Sault Ste. Marie Rapids edged St. Catharines Blacns 5-4 here last night in the opening game of their All-Ontario Juvenile A hockey finals. The second clash is scheduled for tonight.

Blacns took an early lead but stumbled in the middle session and fell behind the northerners. The final period was scoreless.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN
by Elmer Ferguson

Sporting gestures, in which this column is primarily interested, dot the sports scene. That's the reason why it will be many of them this year, as in every other year. Amateur and professional sport will both contribute their quota.

But at year-end, we doubt if you'll find one to excel in its spontaneous spirit, that developed in Montreal, before a fanatical hockey crowd, one night last January.

You'll require a bit of background, perhaps, to more fully appreciate this. Maurice (The Rocket) Richard is the idol of Montreal sportdom. What Babe Ruth and Christy Mathieson were to baseball, what Lionel Conacher, Red Grange and Jim Thorpe were to football, the Rocket is to Montreal's vast hockey public, plus.

That January night, Canadiens were playing one of their bitterest rivals, the powerful Detroit Red Wings, and as an additional attraction, if one was needed, Richard the Rocket was to receive the award, in recognition of being the Hockey Player of 1951, so selected by and for an American magazine devoted to sports.

So it was, in reality, a Richard night, a Richard crowd, come to pay homage to an idol. But, unbelievably, because of one spontaneous sporting gesture, the whole show was stolen by Richard's arch-enemy of the National League right-wing ice lanes, quiet, hard-shooting young Gordie Howe of the Wings, who just then was battling Richard tooth and nail for the N.H.L. scoring lead.

"It wasn't that Richard, unable to play because of injury, and clad in civvies, didn't get a great ovation when he stepped out on the rubber runway, while players of Red Wings and Canadiens stretched in a line across the ice pounded on the ice with their sticks in token of appreciation of the occasion. It wasn't that Mayor Houde, a master-craftsman of words in such events didn't speak with eloquence. All that went smoothly as per routine schedule.

When the presentation was finished, and Richard had marched back to the promenade and was just about to disappear into the crowd, Howe suddenly skated away from his position, wheeled over, and called out "Hey, Rocket!" When Richard turned, Howe doffed his glove, extended his hand, and the two rivals for top goal-getting honors in the National Hockey League shook hands warmly.

It was a sort of genuinely unrehearsed spontaneous gesture that caught the big crowd completely by surprise. Montreal crowds are appreciative of dramatic moments and color in sport, and they felt, rightly, that here was one of them. For a few seconds there was stunned silence. Then this crowd who had come to cheer the Rocket blasted out a thunderous roar that even exceeded the warmth with which Richard had been received, because this cheer was for an event unexpected. It was a cheer unrehearsed, and thoroughly, warmly genuine.

Before young Howe skated quietly back to his right wing position, a great photographer asked him to shake hands again with Richard, but Howe, no actor, had already contributed a sincere gesture, and was in no mood to add any studied theatrical touch and shook his head emphatically.

And after that, he went on to score the goal that put him even with the ailing Richard. And the pro-Canadien crowd cheered him again, even for that.

Girls Invent New Strike Weapon

The familiar picket line of strikers took a new twist in front of the Western Electric Company's offices in Philadelphia when non-striking office workers attempted to enter the building. The pickets all girls, formed a ring-around-the-rosy chain and "captured" a few luckless strike-breaking men in the centre. The non-strikers conceded the battle. — Central Press Canadian.

Court Rules Clubs Not Forced To Broadcast

Chicago, April 15—(AP)—The United States Federal Court has ruled that Major League baseball clubs cannot be forced to make games available to the Liberty Broadcasting Company of Dallas, Texas, for its "Game-of-the-Day" broadcast.

Judge John P. Barnes yesterday denied a request by Liberty's lawyer for a temporary injunction directing 13 of the big league clubs and the Western Union Telegraph Company to make the games available to the Liberty Broadcasting Company of Dallas, Texas, for its "Game-of-the-Day" broadcast.

The decision was apart from the network's suit for $12,000,000 damages from the 16 clubs, presidents of the American and National leagues and baseball's commissioner.

A hearing date has not been set on this suit which names all major league teams except Cincinnati, Brooklyn and the Chicago White Sox.

TIME OUT

Rocky Mountain House, Alta. — (CP) — Logging firms hauled more than 1,500,000 feet of lumber into town during the winter, but an equal amount had to be left in the bush until after the spring break-up.

Dave Douglas Golf Winner

Greensboro, N. C., April 15 — (AP) — Dave Douglas won the $10,000 Greensboro Open golf tournament by a stroke yesterday with an assist from the rule book.

Douglas finished with 69 for 277, a stroke ahead of Bobby Locke of South Africa. Sam Snead lost a chance to tie for first place when assessed a two-stroke penalty for a rules violation. He dropped to a third-place tie at 279 with Ed Oliver and Jim Ferrier, Canadian Open champion.

Snead was charged with two strokes for dropping his ball closer to the hole out of a lateral water hazard on the short 17th. Snead actually played the hole 'in five strokes, including one for dropping the ball, but the added penalty gave him a seven and cost him his chance to win the tournament a fifth time.

AT THE CAPITOL — A dramatic scene from the Technicolor fantasy, "Tales of Hoffman," which starts the Curtain at 8.30 Spring Series at the Capitol on Wednesday and Thursday, April 23-24. Moira Shearer co-stars with Leonide Massine. All seats are reserved and are now available at the box office.

AT THE BELLE — Belleville's favorite comedienne, June Allyson, returns to the screen for her first role since the birth of her son, Richard Keith Powell in "Too Young to Kiss," MGM's happiest romantic hit, starring Van Johnson and Gig Young. A funny MGM Color Cartoon and Sports Special are added attractions.

AT THE McCARTHY — "Ma" and "Pa" Kettle, as brought to the screen by Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride, discover romance in the "Tunnel of Love" in this hilarious scene from Universal-International's "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair." The new comedy is the fourth in the popular Kettle series and is now at the Odeon Mc-Carthy Theatre. .

Rookie Starts At Third For Pittsburgh

St. Louis, April 15—(AP) — Dick Hall packed his duds for college but instead wound up in a Major League uniform.

And tonight the 19-year-old native of Towson, Md., will not only be seeing his first big-league baseball game but playing it as well.

Dick was all ready to go back to Swarthmore College this spring and get a degree in economics. But Pittsburgh Pirates took a shine to the youngster at their rookie camp and persuaded him to stay over.

And so a guy who never has played a professional game will be at third base for the Pirates in the season opener against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hall started out the spring exhibition grind at first base. In the last few games he's been at the hot corner.

How does he feel playing his first professional game in a Major League uniform? A little nervous.

"Third base? I haven't played there very much but I'll certainly give it the best I can. I hope I make it either there or at first base. I didn't expect to be up here playing in the opening game, though."

Lumber Kings Score First Over Stratford

Stratford, Ont., April 15—(CP) —Cully Simon's Pembroke Lumber Kings put their much-publicized size and experience to good use here last night and walked off with a convincing 7-4 victory over the smaller but speedier Stratford Indians.

The Pembroke's first of the best-of-seven series—set them back in the Eastern Canada Allan Cup finals and cut Stratford's lead in the playoffs to one game. The Indians took the first two 5-3 and 3-0.

Fourth clash of the semi-finals is scheduled here tomorrow night with the series survivors moving west to take on either Edmonton Pats or Fort Frances Canadians for the senior Dominion title.

The clubs were deadlocked 1-1 at the end of the first period, but Pembroke broke loose in the second and led 4-2 by the finish of the stanza. Outscoring Stratford 3-1 in the final session they clinched the issue.

Outshooting the Indians 41-35, Pembroke had an edge over almost all of the game. The Eastern Canadian Hockey League champions checked their smaller opponents at every turn.

Dinny Flanagan led the Stratford goal-getters with three while Billy Fickl added the other. Roy Giesebrecht notched a trio for the winners while Hub Anslow collected a pair and Jack Carthy and Stan Maxwell came through with singletons.

Carthy — along with playing-coach Cully Simon and his brother Thain—was outstanding along the Lumber King blue line while Fred Murphy starred in the Pembroke team's nets.

BIG BIRDS

Scientifically-fed male turkeys may weight as much as 30 pounds before they are a year old.

BY SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The imp in my ego maintains how easy this game would be if experts would check their brains and choose to agree with me. And then a much clearer elf will whisper to me: "Ahem. If you had some sense yourself, you'd try to agree with them."

A student double asks partner to bid something if no bid of an opponent intervenes. But suppose the intervening opponent steps in with a redouble? Is partner of doubler asked to bid?

There are two schools of thought about this. Or maybe I should say there are two thoughts that should be schooled. One says partner of doubler should bid anyway; the other says he needn't.

Take a case where south opens with a heart and west doubles for takeout. If the bid intervenes, east must bid. And the weaker his hand the more important it is for east to show his best suit.

Why? His doubler has a hand that he could have bid. All he is doing is finding out partner's best suit for the sake of safety. It may be very important for him to know it fast.

But when west doubles, suppose north redoubles when east has the hand shown here:

♠Q 7 5 3
♦9 2 4
♣6 4 3 2

Some of the experts have said that east should pass in this spot. Because, they reason, west has another chance to bid. But Horse Sense rules insist that east should bid as if north had passed.

So far as west is concerned, the need for knowing east's best suit is still present. The fact that north redoubled makes it even more important for west to get this information fast.

Their pair cannot afford to let the redouble stand. West is in a box and must know his safest out. If east shows his best suit, it will not hurt and may help. West will then have a choice.

The safest courses reduce your losses.

Movie Column

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 15 (AP)—Sometimes there is more interest in the lesser players on a movie set than in the stars.

For instance, the set of "The Plymouth Adventure," sports such well-known personalities as Spencer Tracy, Gene Tierney, Van Johnson and Leo Genn. But chatting amiably in a corner was Owen McGivenev, last of the quick-change artists.

"I am the last," McGivenev said sadly. "When vaudeville was at its peak, there were as many as 20 quick change acts. But when vaudeville died, the quick-change act disappeared, except for mine."

In case the youngsters have never seen one, a quick-change act is one in which the actor performs a variety of roles by means of lightning changes of costume and make-up. McGivenev's act was the most famous of its kind.

"I started it back in 1910 in England," he recalled. "I was playing in the legit and we came to a town where a man owned a legit house and a music hall next door to each other. He told me he paid £30 for the entire legit troupe, but next door he paid as much as £100 a single performer. I decided I was in the wrong end of the business."

McGivenev quickly became a headliner, but disappeared from sight after the demise of vaudeville.

After the Second World War, a doctor told him the English climate was bad for his lungs. So McGivenev put in a call for Ken Murray who was enjoying a long run in "Blackouts" in Hollywood.

"I've been looking all over the world for you," said Murray. "I want you to join the show."

"How long is the run?" the quick changer asked.

"Two years," replied Murray. McGivenev came to Hollywood and stayed in the show three years.

At present, he is returning to his first profession and has played a number of character roles in films.

300 Chinese Reds Wounded In Bombardment

Seoul, Korea, April 15—(AP)—A powerful United Nations tank force killed or wounded 300 Chinese reds Monday in a furious bombardment of communist lines on the central Korean front, the U.S. Eight Army announced.

Fifty-four Allied tanks fired for an hour and 45 minutes from positions in front of U.N. lines. It was the biggest tank action in two months.

Eighth Army said the tanks, firing from No-Man's-Land southwest of Kumsong, destroyed or damaged 99 red bunkers, a field gun, 16 buildings, 39 trenches and 16 gun emplacements. The communists fought back with 300 artillery and mortar shells and machine-gun fire.

Allied infantrymen early today retook a hill least of the Pukhan River on the central front two hours after they were pushed off by 400 Chinese Reds.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars:

FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Encouraging day for a truly energetic, mentally ambitious person. Financial interests, honest labor, professions all under fine influences. Over-aggression should not be indulged.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Sound business, religious and political issues lead. Not unfriendly for artistic professions; but trades, laborious work, domestic harmony, urgent matters first in favor.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Not wholly auspicious for creative ideas. A progressive line for familiar work, getting ahead at your particular occupation. Be still useful endeavor. Take care in signing papers!

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer)—Venus and Jupiter now can be helpful to your interests and daily activities. But do avoid emotional upsets, irritability.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo)—Your Sun and other benefic planets now urge you to do more than just keep pace with usual daily returns; step ahead to make new gains, add to previous good records. Compete with the best.

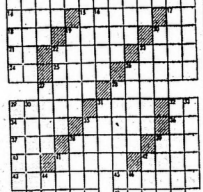
August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Advancement possible in any worth-while undertaking if properly understood and especially if it is pertinent to our armed forces, government needs, family and community welfare.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Same as for Taurus today. It should be a pleasant and gratifying period for all intelligent, progressive matters, work towards greater future security, children's interests.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Perhaps mild now for activities requiring force and aggressive tactics. But almost all endeavor necessary to good living, family needs, etc., are spurred by some generous aspects. Forward.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Grand indications for your affairs and any good cause given proper interest. New business ventures rated high.

December 23 to January 20 (Capricorn)—Equally friendly for those that require mental alertness, finer knowledge of the undertaking. A good day.



January 21 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Your planets promote intelligent methods, clever management with honesty foremost, and gains through your own kindly manner and good work. Sudden changes not advisable.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Although day is beneficent for most business and financial interests and occupational work, there is Neptune aspect that warns to be careful in confidential matters.

YOU BORN TODAY are far-seeing, natural brain-worker, ardent, ambitious. Perhaps a bit domineering, too, generous at times. You are a natural leader; can hold positions of responsibility, authority with ease. Guard against extravagance, though you may be unusually successful making money. And do cultivate patience, shun impetuosity, control restlessness.

Birthdate: Wilbur Wright, airplane co-inventor; Chas. Chaplin, great comedian.

Missouri Floods Force 75,000 to Flee from Homes

Residents of areas near the Missouri river have seen floods before, but never one like present, which has caused 75,000 persons to leave their homes. Whole towns are being abandoned, bridges swept away, telephone and electricity cut off. The crest of the flood is expected to be reached on Thursday when the river may be 30 feet higher than normal. Shown here is the town of Fort Pierre, South Dakota, where 3,700 persons were forced to leave their homes. — Central Press Canadian.

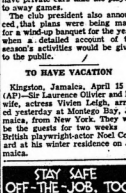
Pontiacs Finish On Right Side Of the Ledger

Bancroft (Special) — Although the Pontiac, Bancroft's entry in the Hastings-Addington Hockey League did not win the league championship or even reach the juicy gates of the final playoffs they ended the season well on the right side of the financial ledger. Starting the year with a balance of about $100, they concluded with close to $400 after everything had been paid.



Milton Brough, perennial club president and this year's purchasing agent, is giving this information to the press, stated that the good news in the matter of finances had resulted mainly from system used by the 1951-52 treasurer, in the chairman, C. H. Bread. In previous years chartered buses were used to transport players and fans but this year Mr. Bread arranged to have private cars take the players to away games.

The club president also announced, that plans were being made for a wind-up banquet for the year, when a detailed account of the season's activities would be given to the public.

Eisenhower Will Be Favorite In N.J. Primary

Newark, N.J., April 15 (CP)— Between 150,000 and 200,000 voters expected to turn out today in New Jersey to choose state delegates to national political conventions and possibly shed some light on the future of presidential aspirants.

The Republican primary was in the spotlight because of a three-way contest among Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Ohio Senator Robert Taft and former Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota.

Eisenhower was established as a favorite, largely because he had the backing of the state Republican machine and Governor Alfred Driscoll.

Taft, who accused Driscoll of double-crossing him by coming out for Eisenhower and who unsuccessfully tried to withdraw from the primary, remained an unknown quantity.

New Jersey is the sixth of 16 states which take delegates in election years to give voters a chance to express preference for the various presidential candidates.

The voting for the presidential aspirants today is purely a popularity contest although it could have some influence on the way candidates to the national nominating convention will vote. The Republicans choose 38 candidates and the Democrats 36.

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee is the only name on the Democratic ballot.

U.S. Soft Coal Producers Sign Industry Pact

Washington, April 15—(AP) — United States soft coal producers, preparing for their expected 1953 wage battle with John L. Lewis, have quietly signed an industry pact which draws management's defence lines tighter, it was learned today.

The Bituminous Coal Operators Association, principal bargaining group for the industry, has signed up most of the Indiana and Illinois soft coal producers. These operators have long held aloof from joining the National bargaining group, choosing to take their own contract chances with the United Mine Workers' boss.

The coal industry believes its new agreement will give it a great deal more resistance to Lewis' traditional divide-and-conquer strategy.

The coal industry contract has run out but Lewis is not expected to make his new demands until the coal dispute is settled. The United Mine Workers already are ahead of the steelworkers in hourly wages. And Lewis' unique welfare and retirement fund is stocked with about $1,000,000 of unspent funds.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

I had taken the previous hole and, therefore, had first shot on the 17th. Playing above fairway, I nearly sank another from the figurative tee. The ball went straight for the cup, got right up to it, then stopped. I don't know why. I looked like a sure thing. But, an inch from the hole maybe, it just gave out like a spent bullet.

Dave Sladen was two up on me at this point.

The lie of my ball had Sladen worried. If his so much as tickled mine, I'd go in for sure. Which would spare this silly little match. But, silly or no, I had a sneaking idea Mr. Sladen didn't want the match squared. I thought he was disappointed, because he hadn't been able to wipe up the course with me.

I waited, very quietly on the seventeenth hole while Sladen figured his shot for all of three minutes. Finally he made it, a nice try too.

His ball stopped six inches behind mine, and dead on the cup. The only trouble was, mine lay directly in between.

I had him beautifully stymied. So then I chocked. "Tsk, tsk," I said.

Dave Sladen's face went brick red and the look in his eyes held —well, hate is too strong. Autagonism, isn't finally.

"Think you've got me, don't you?" It came harshly.

I shrugged. Despite his earlier attitude I'd figured this, essentially, for nothing but a friendly game.

His eyes narrowed. Then, very slowly, he brought forth his wallet. He pulled out $20.

"That says I'll have the hole," he stated flatly.

He seemed to be getting overly excited about nothing much. But his tone was challenging and annoying. I shrugged again. "Okay. Your twenty's covered. Go ahead and shoot!"

He surprised me further by getting down on his knees, but on the other side of the hole from where our balls lay. He studied the situation for quite some time. You'd have thought he was making a survey of some kind.

I fidgeted surreptitiously. I felt like saying, "Azah, take the twenty bucks."

He took them all right. But he took the putter first. Holding it in his left hand so that the club-head was absolutely flat on the grass, he extended it carefully—the way you would if you were trying to pull a chestnut out of the paws of an aware and agile monkey.

At last, with the head of the club directly behind his own ball, he gave a sort little forward jerk on the shaft. His ball, lifted by a touch of steel at its base, hopped nearly over mine . . . and into the cup.

I didn't know if it was a legitimate golfing stroke. But nothing had been said about legitimacy. He'd dropped the ball into the hole, was all, and I'd dropped a double saw-buck.

Very promptly I handed him 22 smackers. "Well, thanks," I said. "Give me a return match sometime."

"Anytime." He seemed fully mollified, almost friendly.

But, for all that, he was a Gambler, willing to double up the stakes and a lot more, when the chips were down. Nevertheless, I thought it might be an indication of the way he might play in bigger games.

And whoever had made two attempts on Marston Cravath, nearly killed Dolly Dumont, and definitely killed Ames Warburton, was a gambler.

Directly after dinner Sally put her arm through mine and led me outside. But it wasn't a direct compassionate gesture.

"How listen," she said, when we'd gotten away from the house. "You may have had a good excuse last night, with all that business at the office. But that's over now. So when are you going to do what you said you would?"

I looked at her speculatively. I did want to allow Harrison a certain amount of time. If I was any where near the truth, that might save a lot of unpleasantness all around.

"Would you give me three more days?" I asked.

She stamped her foot. "Good heavens, Jim! The first time I asked you to help me make Uncle Marney see reason you were full of brave words. You didn't mind. You wanted to. It wouldn't throw your ego out of whack or anything But now you're stalling. I don't like it. And"—she tossed the most loathing head on Long Island—"I'm beginning not to like you."

Well, that I couldn't have. I got my arm loose, put a hand under her chin and tilted it, so that she had to look at me. "What." I said tentatively "would you say to a shock my head. "Not exactly, how Ames Warburton was killed?"

She stalled. "Do you?"

"I think so."

"All right. How?"

"That isn't answering my question."

She waved irritably. "If you're trying to get me sore, Jim, you're succeeding very well. But—oh, I'll play along. You know how, you say. Do you know who?"

I shook my head. "Of course. But I've got a favorite candidate. And if I'm wrong on that particular person, there are others who could have done it. Were physically capable, I mean. It was a physical job, Sally. Almost a long-range one, You could say."

"I'm trying to get a few facts to support a notion, that's all," I told Sally Cravath. "If I'm right, and Ames was murdered the way I think he was, calling in the police now would tear everything apart."

"Because then the murderer could be induced on any pretext to try again in that exact way."

Sally bit her lip. "You're asking a lot, Jim Orth. You want me to go along while you try to prove some idea you're not even sure of. Suppose Uncle Marney or somebody else gets killed?"

"I'm taking all reasonable precautions and so is your uncle."

"That," she said, "would like to see. But what do I do? Twiddle my thumbs? Or maybe you want to get the murdered to make another try?"

I'd seen that one coming and I had a reply. But the best I could think of. "I've got to create an urgency."

"Wonderful! You'll pull one out of your hat!"

I said, a little wearily. "Look Sally. For my dough, you're a girl of better than average intelligence, so you must know I'm fond of you. Mighty fond, as the big strong men in big hats have it. If I knew you were worried and unsure in your mind about something I wouldn't badger you like you're badgering me tonight."

Which, I thought, should have been her cue to go all sweet, feminine, understanding and apologetic She missed her cue.

"That," she said, and the hurrying twilight brought me a suggestion of lovely eyes narrowed, "is as clumsy a way as I've heard of turning an embarrassing conversation. But we'll leave it the way you want it. Mist-er Orth."

"Okay," I said, though I didn't want to go at all. And I added, gratuitously: "And let's hope we get peace and quiet tonight."

We got it. The evening passed normally even perfunctorily. But although I didn't suspect at the time, it was only an hiatus, a kind of "breather." The dead-calm before the hurricane, as it were . . . the uneasy apprehensive stillness that warns the wise to wariness.

When I woke up next morning rain was making a sodden mess of Windover. It came down like steel spikes buried out of a sullen gray sky. The terrific downpour did stop soon. But then a moderated rain took over and that lasted.

When lunch was over Cravath went straight back to the library. This time he took Eve Wheeler and Jack Dumont with him. The subject matter of this proposed conference wasn't hard to guess. But it was a gathering from which I was excluded.

Well, feeling forlorn and unnecessary, I browsed around. Finally I went to the billiardroom.

I'd been there about an hour when I heard a light step and Eve Wheeler wandered in.

"Hi, Orth," she said smiling her sleepy smile. "I heard click-clicks and came to see who was still alive. Nobody else is anywhere else. This place might as well be the morgue."

I nodded. "Worse. But the last time I saw you, you had company, too." I was remembering her going into the library with Cravath and Dumont.

She gave me a queer look. There seemed to be a kind of relief in her glued glow in her dark eyes. "Pretty swell companions they were too, Orth. If you only knew."

"Well, I did know, or thought I did. Wayath and company are impressed by its two senior partners, had just jaggled upon making formal restitution, probably over Eve's profeit.

But I wasn't supposed to know anything. I popped at an easy billiard, missed, and said "Well, what happened to them?"

"Oh, they had things to do. Marney's gone to talk to the gardener and Jack said he was going to take a nap."

I put my cue in the rack. I wanted—in fact, I needed—to talk to Eve Wheeler.

"Liking Windover, Orth?" she asked presently.

"A lot goes on around here."

She turned away from the pitch black eyes, wide open and penetrating now. "That isn't what I meant."

I leaned against the billiard table and tried to make her lead again. "What did you mean?"

"You really want to know?"

"I asked, didn't I?"

She came over to me. She had a peculiar smooth walk, almost a glide.

"Look, Orth" she said, "I'm very fond of the Cravath's. Both of them, Marney and Sally. I've watched you. And you're just another one, I think, another guy and Lally's had hundreds. But you could be a lot better than an over-ambitious pipsqueak and a secretary who's definitely on the make."

I blinked. "I—I don't get you."

She shook my hands. "I'm trying to tell you something for your own good. Ames Warburton is dead, and it's rotten to slander the dead. But I didn't like Ames and I know him well. He was full of schemes ter 1 a. m. The bedroom was occupied by a woman. He flashed a badge and displayed the revolver.

3 Rivers Continue To Spread Damage Across Eight States

President Will Confer With Several Governors

Omaha, Neb., April 16 — (CP) — More than 100,000 persons were homeless today as three ramparts of water continued to spread a wave of destruction across eight states.

President Truman planned to fly over the Missouri basin, said Bluffs area, next target of the flooding Missouri River, and to confer here with the governors of seven of the states hit or threatened by the Missouri, Mississippi and Red River of the North.

While the three rivers continued to wreak their toll of misery, more trouble was feared as the Milk River in Montana was set loose once more by a break in the Frenchman Creek dam.

The estimate of homeless was made by the Red Cross which reported that 26,620 families had been forced to leave their homes, in the paths of relentless rising floods, which now cover more than 3,000 square miles.

Eighty-seven cities, towns and villages in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas have been affected so far, with damage estimated to the waters. Illinois communities in the southern tip of Mississippi flood rolled southward.

The major fight shaping up today was for the twin cities of Omaha and Council Bluffs, on either side of the Missouri, where 14,000 soldiers and civilians worked to build up dikes to meet a crest of 31.5 feet — almost five feet over the record set originally made for.

The muddy Missouri is due to hit the area tomorrow and there was some hope in the words of Lt.-Gen. Lewis Pick, chief of the army engineers, who said there is a good chance the crest will be 30 feet.

Some 34,000 persons have been moved out of section of Council Bluffs (population 45,000) which will be flooded if the Missouri rises five additional feet. Another 5,000 have been evacuated from Omaha homes.

Gen. Pick, who was formerly engineer for the Missouri basin, said he not only thinks the river can be contained in the Omaha-Council Bluffs area, but that it can be prevented from over-running homes farther north in Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas.

The Missouri thus far has affected 35 inland communities. The Mississippi has struck communities in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. St. Paul has been hit by its worst flood in history and the state of Winona, Minn., will be covered with water if the dike can't be held there.

Governor C. Elmer Anderson of Minnesota has called the flood relief rampage a "major disaster."

The Red River in the north has driven 2,500 persons from their homes in the twin cities of Fargo and Moorhead in North Dakota and Minnesota. The fight to save the Fargo Veterans Hospital, housing 200 patients, is continuing against great odds.

Car Theft Ring Believed Broken

Toronto, April 16. (CP)—Police said today they have broken a widespread automobile theft ring that has netted at least a dozen two years and brought $25,000 in profits to its operators.

Two Toronto men, Louis Magglacomo, 24, and Joseph Ferri, 25, have been charged with 12 car thefts and remanded to April 22 on $10,000 bail.

Police said the theft ring was "organized and almost perfect." It took serial numbers and licence plates from wrecked cars and switched them to stolen vehicles. Then it forged documents necessary for legitimate sales of the stolen cars.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 16 (CP)— Synopsis: Skies were clear from the Rockies to the Great Lakes yesterday, and the fine weather extended southward over the eastern United States including the flood stricken areas. The warm air mass in the prairies which gave Winnipeg a high of 71 on Tuesday, has already entered the northwestern sections of the province and will cover all regions by Thursday.

Continued sunny weather is forecast for Thursday, although there will be occasional cloud patches in the north country. It will be warmer in the southern sections of the province and temperatures will hit the mid-sixties.

Canadian Unit Leaves for Home

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, April 16—(CP)—The first unit to leave the Canadian Army in Korea under the spring rotation program departed for home today.

The transport company of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps moved out of its lines less than 24 hours after its replacement unit reached Korea.

No sooner was the land-over completed than Maj. Bob Laughton of Ottawa, commanding officer of the company, ordered his men into their waiting trucks, etc., with own jeep and led them southward, grinning broadly.

The men will spend a few days in Britannia camp in Korea and in Japan for documentation and medical checks before embarking for Canada.

Brig.-Gen. Brig. John M. Rockingham, commanding officer of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, inspected companies of the Royal Canadian Regiment and the 22nd Regiment which reached Britannia camp by train from Pusan, 200 miles southeast of Inchon.

In his welcoming remarks to the newly-arrived troops, he told them the cherry berets they wear as battle headdress are strictly for behind-the-lines wear.

"Keep your berets where you have found it is advisable that you wear a khaki beret at the front," Rockingham said. "It blends better with the countryside."

Children Blamed

Brantford, Apr. 16 (CP)—Children were blamed today for fires which were reported seen in the vicinity of a warehouse yesterday afternoon after a fire had destroyed by fire.

The fire department official said he was convinced that children started the fire that did from $8,000 to $10,000 damage to the Jones Transports warehouse Monday noon.

"It couldn't have started any other way," he said.

In the section of the building where the fire broke out, there was no wiring or heating equipment which might have started the blaze, firemen said.

New Discovery About Polio Will Be Tested on Children in Summer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

New York, April 16 — (AP) — Twenty human volunteers have taken live polio virus and their veins were made immune to it.

The virus had been treated beforehand to make it weak, with little or no risk that it could cause sickness. But the virus still could prompt human bodies to make antibodies which would protect against germs against it.

This experiment is reported in the American Journal of Hygiene by Drs. Hilary Koprowski, George Jervis and Thomas Norton of Lederle Laboratories, Pearl River, N.Y.

It shows that humans can get immunity to polio virus by taking it in food or drink. Whether this method can be made practical and safe for general use generally is still not known, Lederle officials said.

Several types of polio virus are used. The human became immune to the kind that they received, but not to the other types. Several polio virus are known to cause human polio. A practical vaccine probably would have to use weakened viruses of all three types.

The new study came out disclosed on the heels of another vital polio discovery, which will be tested this summer on children in hopes of preventing the disease.

The discovery is that the polio virus apparently gets into the body through the throat. It enters nerves and destroys them. And while the virus still is in the blood, it can be killed by giving antibodies.

This kind of prevention of polio has worked in monkeys and chimpanzees.

Next, children threatened by an epidemic will be given the anti-dote in the hope that it will help or makes them sick. Where or when the tests will come was not disclosed.

The antibodies will come from human blood. Most people have had polio, without ever knowing it, and they make the antibodies to destroy the virus. One hundred pints of blood contain these antibodies.

The new discoveries were reported to the Federation of American Societies for experimental Biology by Dr. John R. Paul of Yale.

Their findings in monkeys may apply equally well to humans.

The monkeys got polio virus in their food—just as humans do. A week or two later, the virus was found in their blood, and it stayed there for a few days.

Later some monkeys got sick and became paralyzed when the virus left the blood and attacked nerves.

All the monkeys produced their own antibodies, but some apparently did not make enough, or did not make them soon enough.

If the monkeys were first given an extra dose of antibodies, they got no harm.

The hope is that such antibody shots would protect many humans who get polio virus. It might be a hard problem to get enough of the antibodies, but it may not be enough.

And there is another encouraging fact—that only a small dose of antibodies does the trick, Dr. Bodian said.

This brightens the hopes for a vaccine. It means the vaccine probably could be a weak one, and still work. The vaccine contain of real polio virus, treated so it can't cause sickness but still will make antibodies. The protection developed this way would last a life-time.

SEAWAY-POWER PROJECT WILL BE STARTED EARLY

Chevrier Praises Help Given by President

Ottawa, April 16 (CP)—Canada is expected to take prompt steps in co-operation with the United States to clear the way for a start on the giant St. Lawrence Seaway-Power project.

Transport Minister Chevrier yesterday said President Truman's decision to join Canada in application for permission to erect joint Canadian-United States power facilities on the river, will strongly stimulate seaway action.

The minister added, however, he did not know what effect it will have on the U.S. Congress. Congress has long blocked action on the seaway project by failing to ratify a 1951 Canada-U.S. treaty on the development.

Mr. Chevrier said Canada's part would be joint application to the international joint commission is "pretty nearly ready." It will go to the commission as soon it has been correlated with the U.S. submission.

The joint submissions will ask the commission to grant the authorization over boundary waters—for authorization for the government of Canada and the U.S. Power to establish a 2,200,000-horsepower hydro-electric power on the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence. The U.S. agency to take part in the development will be named later by the U.S. government.

Quick Action Expected

Just when the submission will reach the commission is not known. But once it does quick action is expected. It is believed here that the commission, which has been reviewing the seaway for years and has up-to-date information, will not delay long for a start on the project.

Canada has already decided to go ahead alone with the navigation works for deep-draught ships as part of the seaway. Parliament has endorsed legislation to set up a St. Lawrence Seaway Authority to construct and administer the system of canals and locks that will bring ships shipping into the Great Lakes, but it leaves the door open for U.S. participation when congressional approval be forthcoming.

The action of President Truman in agreeing to a joint submission followed a White House conference with External Affairs Minister Pearson and Transport Minister Chevrier in Washington Monday.

Ontario Educational Assoc. Told by N.S. Director School Children Need 'More Dictating'

Toronto, April 16—(CP)—W. A. Mackintosh, principal of Queen's University, said last night that the increasing use of audio-visual aids in schools reminds him of the Roman proverb — the object was to keep the crowd quiet.

He told the Ontario Education Association's 82nd annual convention: "These gadgets seem to take their place but there's a tendency to crowd out other activity. They provide state answers before questions answers are difficult."

Much recent criticism of education was due to the fact that Canada was in a period of rapid prosperity and there were opportunities for persons who were illprepared for them, Dr. Mackintosh continued.

In the present system of mass education there was a preoccupation with the average and below-average student, rather than the student—the seed-corn of the country's culture—should not be overlooked by teachers burdened with the others.

He said he hopes the government soon will implement the Massey commission's recommendations on university scholarships, bursaries and fellowships, thereby preventing prevent from attending university because they could not afford it.

More Dictating

Earlier in the day, Hugh Noble, M.A., Inspector of Schools, County of Nova Scotia, said that what school children need is "more dictation" in the 20th century. He was in connection with the convention that the individual child is coddled too much in schools today.

Other speakers at the convention disagreed with him.

Dr. C. Gilbert Wren of the University of Minnesota said school policy planning should come from the people as a whole effort of pupils and faculty.

He said the privileges and economic position of the secondary school department of the O.E.A.: "We should not assume that everything must be settled from the top side down. All matters should be open to discussion."

Dr. Andrew Holt of the University of Tennessee said at the Ontario School Trustees' and Ratepayers' Division: "You can't teach real life unless you have yes-and-no classroom approach."

He advocated the use of discussion to teach democracy and patriotism.

Dr. John Dearness, a 99-year-old educationist from London, Ont., took a middle position. He told a general convention meeting that the benefit of education is in the expansion of human horizons.

"Too many years the idea has been prevalent and has in fact been advanced and stoutly defended in the Ontario Educational Association, that pupils should direct their teachers but the teachers follow the pupils.

Needs Little Prompting

Mr. Sidney Smith, president of University of Toronto, said many parents are ready to accept the challenge responsibilities that can only be fulfilled by the home. The schools can be expected to expect schools, in addition to imparting knowledge and training minds, to discipline the character, direct the enthusiasm, stabilize the emotions and develop the poise of students.

Only Do So Much

Dr. Holt agreed. "The school can do so much. It can't be held responsible for educating children is the job of their parents."

Dr. Wm. Gillett, principal of Windsor's Kennedy Collegiate, praised the three-level system of instruction—public school, senior public school and high school—in the province of Ontario.

He told the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Association that the three-level system allows for more personal contact between teacher and pupils than Ontario's two-class system.

Charles Hulse, Ottawa undertaker and new president of the Ontario Teachers' Federation, said that so-called "blackletting" of school boards by teachers' federations is "embarrassing".

"It lessens the dignity of the profession and it is a very poor example to the children in the schools."

Ontario Education Minister Dunlop said the government is not subsidizing to make education easy. There was value in the three "R's"—reading, art, shop work, physical training and home economics—but "it is a matter of keeping the proper balance."

Windsor Doctor Is Barred From Practice in Ontario

Toronto, April 16 (CP)—The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario today barred Dr. Hetti Kershner, 49, Windsor, from the practice of medicine in Ontario. It was the second time in a year that the college has erased Dr. Hetti's name from the list of registered doctors in the province.

Dr. Fraser Kelly, college registrar, made the announcement in the following statement: "As a result of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario Act, 1951, Dr. Hetti Emil Hett of Windsor, Ont., was found guilty of the commission of disgraceful conduct in a professional sense and his name was ordered struck off the register."

Dr. Hett has for many years professed to have a formula which will cure cancer, arthritis, diabetes and peptic ulcers, but he has refused repeatedly to divulge the formula of his secret remedy to a special commission medical research centre by which the curative value of the drug or preparation could be assessed and thereby would be made available for humanity."

Dr. Hett's name was struck from the roll in April 1937 when he was practising at Kitchener and refused to reveal the nature of the serum. He was reinstated a year later after agreeing to submit his formula before a special commission set up by the province's legislature. The commission found the serum harmless but without "proved value."

It was reported at that time that the basis of Dr. Hett's cure was a theory that cancer is cured by the bacteria erysipelas, and that an antibody could be developed to combat the virus.

Before his name was erased, nine charges against Dr. Hett were considered by the five-man discipline committee appointed from the college's council. The council consists of 10 elected members, one representative from each of the four universities in Ontario, one homeopathic representative and both Ministers of Health.

PEARSON HITS MAKING ADDITIONS TO ORGANIZATIONS

Says Federation Not Feasible at This Time

Princeton, N.J., April 16—(CP) —Canada's External Affairs Minister Pearson believes the West should work to perfect existing international organizations before undertaking any such far-reaching steps as a federation of nations.

In an address at Princton University last night, the minister, who is chairman of the North Atlantic Council, said the safeguarding of democracy may eventually "require some form of federalism on a regional or even a wider basis".

But, meanwhile, the west has to work with the institutions which exist today and attempt to adapt them for the more ready and efficient and acceptable solution of our current problems."

Manufacturers and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

"Mr. Truman's action imposes progress and the courts the necessity of undoing his seizure of the steel mills, a step which places the freedom of every American in jeopardy," the board said in a statement.

Government - sponsored negotiations between the CIO-Steel and United Steelworkers of America (CIO) collapsed last night, with Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer, boss of the steel industry under the government's seizure, the time had come for the government to step in and settle the union.

Will Proceed Promptly

"I shall proceed promptly, but not precipitately to consider the terms and conditions of employment as I was instructed to do," Sawyer said last night.

The question therefore was not whether the government would deal directly with the union, but what the government would grant in the way of pay increases and other benefits. No industry-union deal appeared likely.

A prominent government official, asking that his name not be used, said he had talked to Mr. Truman acting for Truman, would give Murray the substance of the Wage Stabilization Board recommendations:

A 12 1-2 cent hourly pay boost plus other benefits.

Additional pay raises of 2 1-2 cents in July and next January were proposed by the board.

It was not considered likely that the government would give Murray the union security shop arrangement—a clause requiring all steel workers to belong to Murray's union.

FARMER KILLS FAMILY

Tronquay, France, April 16. — (Reuters)—A 70-year-old farmer went berserk yesterday and killed his five grandchildren and his wife after he had hanged himself. The farmer, Leon Gillette, slashed the throats of his five small grandchildren, smashed his wife's skull with a pair of fire-tongs and set his farmhouse afire before hanging his own life. He was to have been evicted.

Govt. Prepares To Give Wage Boost to Workers

Would Go Over the Heads Of Steel Industry Bosses

Washington, April 16 (AP)—The Truman administration today prepared to go over the head of the seized steel industry and give a wage boost to Philip Murray's steelworkers.

Whatever the terms might be, the steel industry was ready to fight back. Its lawyers had papers in their drawer ranking a court order to restrain any payment of increased wages out of industry funds.

More than 100 of the country's leading industrialists stand behind the steel companies in a fight to the finish. They, or their representatives, pledged all-out co-operation at a meeting yesterday, called jointly by the National Association of

Tax Cut Spread Worried Abbott

Ottawa, April 16 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said Tuesday night the "big question" facing him in drafting his recent budget was how to spread a tax cut of about $120,000,000 "among the various groups of taxes and taxpayers."

"We gave this a lot of careful thought, and our final decision was to take about $40,000,000 off the income tax and about $80,000,000 off the taxes of commodities," he said in a speech to a national network in the CBC's series the "Nation's Business."

Missing Pilot Reported Safe

Winnipeg, April 16 — (CP) — A bush pilot overdue two days in the Red Lake area of Lake to Sandy Lake in northwestern Ontario was found last night by an American aircraft.

R.C.A.F. search officials here said the pilot, Fraser Lister, was sighted near his wrecked Cessna plane half-way between the two lakes. He, appeared in good shape.

Lister left Red Lake, 100 miles north of Kenora, Sunday morning in the ski-equipped, single-engine plane. An air search was started on Monday but ed to show up his destination but was called off when he was reported safe.

Stevenson Refuses to Enter Race; Harriman Seen Democrats' Choice

Kefauver, only man on the Democratic ballot in yesterday's New Jersey presidential primary, appeared to have bagged almost 100,000 votes. He far out-distanced a field of write-in ballots.

The Tennessee senator was given virtually no chance against Eisenhower's smashing victory appeared to have convinced some of his backers that he was not going to campaign vigorously for the Republican presidential nomination. New Jersey Republicans gave him a vote margin approximating 100,000 over Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

Newark, N.J., April 16 (AP) — The refusal of Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois to bid for the Democratic presidential nomination apparently assured Sen. Averell Harriman toward a higher spot today in the scramble for the prize Democratic nomination. Harriman's stock rose sharply as the governor, who is governor of New York aimed at making him that state's delegate-at-large to the convention.

Harriman has been represented as one of those urging Governor Stevenson to announce for the so-called "Liberal" wing of the party, which supports President Truman's civil rights program and most of his "fair-deal" proposals.

Stevenson announced Tuesday night to seek nomination but the Illinois governor said at Springfield today that "I could not accept."

This plunged the race, already mixed up by Truman's announcement that he would not run again, into further confusion.

The Stevenson announcement removed for Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee one of the big obstacles in his fight for the nomination at the Chicago convention.

Vote Results Make Ike 'Thoughtful'

Paris, April 16. (AP)—General Eisenhower said he is "very proud" of the result of the New Jersey Republican presidential primary.

Stepping down from his plane on his return from a farewell visit to Brussels, the General was handed a dispatch giving the latest New Jersey tabulations.

After reading it with a broad smile, he said to reporters: "As I told you fellows some time ago, when this primary campaign consider you fitted for that kind of office, you are very proud. It makes you kind of thoughtful."

Special Education For Mentally Retarded Children Under Plan

Toronto, April 16 (CP)—Education Minister Dunlop said today the Ontario government will establish a plan for special education of mentally retarded children.

He said training of mentally retarded children by next September.

"This is one problem we have to solve and solve quickly," he said. "We hope to get something ready next month and put a plan in operation by September."

At present, school boards are prohibited from training children with intelligence ratings of less than 50. Mr. Dunlop said that regulation would be changed.

He said financial assistance would come from the provincial government to assist boards of education.

Alderman Argue Proposes One-Way Traffic on Front, Pinnacle to Relieve Congestion

In a measure aimed at alleviating the extreme traffic congestion in the downtown area of the city, Alderman Argue proposed that council consider introduction of one-way traffic for Front and Pinnacle streets.

The matter was brought up in city council Monday afternoon when Alderman William Argue who declared that traffic on Front Street had progressed "far beyond the safety limit" and that something simply had to be done.

"It is just a case of too many cars going down too small a street," he said.

The alderman said he was speaking with the interests of the pedestrians principally in mind. He said that the congestion at the main intersection had got so bad that pedestrians were afraid to cross the street even with the green light in their favor.

"If they do come with the green light a motorist will whip around the corner with a right turn and they are forced to scatter."

Forced to Jay Walk

The result is, according to Alderman Argue, the pedestrians are forced to "jay walk". If they cross at the four corners they are liable to be back there again shortly while if they cross in the middle of the block they run a hit only from two directions.

And Front Street was made one-way street the pedestrians would have to watch only in one direction.

Mayor A. M. Haig was entirely in accord with the suggestion.

"I am glad Alderman Argue brought this up," he said. "The traffic has now risen to something has to be done to relieve the congestion."

The mayor went on to say that by making Front and Pinnacle streets one-way streets and by instituting angle parking in place of parallel, the parking space could be doubled at very little cost. He suggested the traffic committee get expert advice on the matter.

Alderman Thomas moved for the matter be turned over to the traffic committee and Alderman Ross seconded the motion asking that it be given immediate consideration.

Request of Public Works Committee Is Turned Down On Recorded Vote of Council

A request from the public works committee that the services of a student engineer under the summer months was turned down by city council Monday following a heated discussion on the matter.

Speaking to the recommendation calling for the hiring of a student engineer, Alderman Thomas said the additional man was needed to assist the engineering department on his way to Paris to become Canada's first ambassador to Atlantic Treaty headquarters.

Mr. Reid, deputy undersecretary of the department was born in Campbellford, Ont.

Lost on Recorded Vote

On a recorded vote six councillors approved of the recommendation and six were opposed and the motion was declared lost.

Discussion on the hiring of the student engineer resulted in sidewalk failure being brought up. It was pointed out that certain side-walks built prior to last year by A. Bell and Sons were now not standing up and council was being asked by ratepayers what was going to be done about the matter.

A sidewalk built on Sidney Street, Bridge Street to Bleecker Street and one built on Dufferin Street, Alderman Thomas said that in a letter to council Mr. Defosse had promised to rebuild the walks at a reasonable price. He also would be made by council in the near future, it was stated.

Proposal Tabled

Action regarding proposed alterations to city engineering department offices was tabled for two weeks to ascertain what temporary work could be done pending a report of a special committee on the former county home.

When the recommendations authorizing the alterations to the engineer's office came up, Alderman Countryman asked that it be deferred as there was an outside possibility that all the city hall staff may be moved to the former county home.

He said the possible move of city hall office depended on whether a paving offer for the present city hall property was acceptable. If it was he did not see the wisdom of "pouring money down a drain," in alterations.

Efficiency Sattering Claim

Public works committee members pointed out, however, that even if city hall offices were moved to the former county home property, it would be two years before action was taken. In the meantime the efficiency of the engineering department was suffering owing to lack of privacy for engineers doing intricate figure work. Alderman Thomas said the efficiency of the department was reduced by 30 percent due to lack of privacy.

In a compromise move it was suggested that a minimum of work pending the report of the special committee on the disposition of the present city hall building.

Council approved the tender of Truck and Farm Supply for the purchase of three new trucks for the public works department. The tender accepted was not the lowest received but on considering specifications of the vehicles the committee felt the international trucks would be the best value.

Would Reduce Costs

Provision was made for the future purchase of a moto-patcher for mixing of road patch for repairing streets. The equipment, if purchased, would do away with the labor necessary in patching streets, it was felt. Alderman Thomas said street maintenance costs this year were more than double that of last year. Streets were in a terrible shape following the winter, he declared.

An over-all plan of the city and its immediate suburban area was authorized by council by the Suburban Planning Board and was adopted by council. Alderman Porter in speaking on the matter said that if approved by Sidney and Thurlow and also by the Department of Planning and Development, the plan would be the official one for the area with the result that construction of building on unfeasible sites could be prevented. The plan could be changed at any time.

The plan would provide safeguarding features against something that might not be desirable" noted Alderman Porter.

To Meet Township

The city representative on the suburban planning board will meet with officials of Sidney and Thurlow to take up the matter of water from the townships flooding certain city areas.

Most of this water, it was pointed out, comes from the north and its disposal is costing the city considerable money.

A request from the recreation commission that the use of the old county home land be given over to this organization until it was disposed of was referred to the property committee.

Council concurred in a resolution from St. Catharines asking that the Federal government take action to relieve the municipalities of the cost of relief for employable persons.

Czar in Resolution

Council also concurred in a Chatham resolution calling for the appointment of a federal czar to ways to make it compulsory for all motor vehicles to come to a halt when a school bus stops to allow passengers to alight.

A restricting by-law forbidding the keeping of cattle, goats, mink, swine and foxes within the city, was given its necessary three readings. The by-law came up for passing two weeks ago but it was referred back and amended to allow chickens and pet rabbits to be kept within the corporation.

District Salesmen Not Too Sure About Future of Industry

Despite a set price of 31 cents for cheese, district cheese factory salesmen are not too sure about the future of the industry.

This was indicated Tuesday night at the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Exchange, when 1458 cheese were offered. There were no offers from buyers and if the factories agreeable the cheese will go to the Cheese Producers' Marketing Board at 31 cents.

This, however, would mean but 25 cents for the farmer as the marketing board retain three cents per pound for license fee. These representatives of factories present agreed to sell at this price but the remainder were held pending sale approval by the factories.

There was considerable discussion about the price per pound fat that 28 cent cheese would bring the farmer after manufacturing costs were deducted. One factory representative doubted if it would mean 43 cents per lb. fat.

"That is a pretty poor story for us to go back and tell the farmers," Tom Heath of Wilton factory protested. "Especially when the condensaries are paying 50c to 55c per lb. fat."

George Fralelgh, Napanee, vice president of the exchange, said four milk trucks went past his factory every day and that he could put his milk — on any of them. These trucks represented the fluid milk market, the condensaries, the creamery and the cheese factory.

Another factory said the condensaries were still canvassing for milk in this locality, but doubt was expressed the price would hold if they received unlimited quantities of milk.

The cheese board was adjourned until April 29th, or until further notice.

Evening Shopping Hours Subject Of Discussion

Evening shopping hours were the topic of discussion at a special meeting of the retail merchants' committee of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce held at the city hall yesterday afternoon.

Approximately 35 merchants attended the meeting and discussed pros and cons relative to the present shopping hours from Saturday to Friday evening.

No definite conclusions were arrived at during the meeting but a number of merchants expressed their opinions, several noting they would welcome discontinuing evening shopping hours completely. It was felt that a petition should be presented to all merchants asking whether stores wished to be open at all in the evening.

Still other merchants felt the wishes of the public should not be completely ignored in the matter and that a petition be forwarded to that the electors be asked at the next election whether evening shopping was wanted.

The matter will be further discussed at a meeting attended with efforts to be made in a decision at their next meeting.

Out of Plane, in Again, in Mid-Air

Two of the happiest men in Korea are U.S. air force Captain Fred C. Seals, Jr., of Dallas, Texas, who exhibits his broken leg, and Sergt. Edward E. Duncan, of Miami, Florida, who autographs the cast. Seals, a transport pilot, was working with his plane crew in shoving parachute cargo through the door of a pitching airship high over a Korean mountain top, when the aircraft suddenly hit swirling airpockets and dropped. Suddenly relieved of the pull of gravity, Seals floated out the door of the plane and found himself in midair. During another lunge of the plane, Seals found himself once again inside the plane. On the next pass, he was slammed up against the ceiling of the plane and when he came down a 300-pound cluster of gasoline cans lit on top of his foot, breaking it. Sgt. Duncan, who floated around the inside of the plane during this time, was pinned down by a rubber liferaft weighing 290 pounds, and was uninjured. — Central Press Canadian.

Business Briefs

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

H. Greville Smith, president of Canadian Industries, Ltd., thinks it unwise to draw conclusions from comparisons of business in the first quarter of this year with the same period last year.

Speaking to the company's shareholders recently, he recalled that fears of shortages in early 1951 had caused "an unprecedented demand for the products of industry" which declined later in the year.

He added that while his company's first-quarter sales were slightly lower than last year's first quarter, the second-quarter sales are already beginning to show the seasonal expansion expected.

The current monthly letter of the National City Bank of New York, commenting on conditions in the United States, says retail trade is good but not buoyant; soft spots in textiles and household equipment are still soft; but manufacturers turning out industrial equipment, defence products, and the materials and parts going into them, have huge backlogs of unfilled orders and in many cases are expanding output. The letter adds that business expenditures on plant and equipment are expected to be larger this year than last.

F. A. C. Guepin, in charge of chemical operations throughout the world for the Shell group of companies, and now visiting Canada, says that "well over half the organic chemicals produced in the world today are made from petroleum and natural gas, of which Canada now is an important source."

F. Goodrich Rubber Co. of Canada, Ltd., has introduced the Goodrich "tubeless tire" to the Canadian market with a demonstration in Toronto. The tire has no inner tube and the company states that it "protects against blowouts, punctures and dangerous skids."

Atlas Steels Ltd., of Welland, Ont., gives the following distribution for each of the $31,441,264 it took in last year:

Raw materials: fuel and supplies 42.7 cents; employment costs 29.5; taxes 12.1; wear and exhaustion, 4.7; dividends to owners, 2.7; financing costs for new construction, 3; retained in business 7.4.

Prudential Insurance Company of America says that over a three-month period it tested similar groups of applicants for clerical employment at its Canadian head office in Toronto and the home office in Newark, N.J. The results, for whatever they may mean, gave the edge to Canadians.

The 582 Canadians tested had an average for vocabulary of 29.2 out of a possible 40; while 522 Americans averaged 25. In arithmetic, the Canadians averaged 12.4 out of a possible 20; and the Americans 8.7.

Shelling Out $60,000,000

One of the most popular girls in Canada right now is income tax clerk Marion Hill. But she remains anonymous to most taxpayers along with the hundreds of other employees of the income tax department. Her job is to sort out the income tax forms that demand a rebate — and there is $60,000,000 to be refunded to Canadians who overpaid for 1951. The department gets thousands of telephone calls every day in its various branches by anxious citizens wishing to know when the refund will be made. — Central Press Canadian.

Council Defers Action on Issue For Two Weeks

Council will decide at its next meeting whether to inaugurate the policy of setting the next year's tax rate in October and allowing taxes to be paid in six instalments instead of the present four.

The idea was broached to council several weeks ago by Chairman of Finance Alderman Charles Hyde who noted the policy would save the city interest charges and at the same time make it easier for tax payers to pay their taxes.

Since then Alderman Hyde had approached the public school board and the high school area board asking them to give consideration to setting their budgets by the end of October instead of after the first of the year as at present. He had also asked council committee chairman to give thought to the matter of setting budgets early.

Solicitor Sends Letter

Yesterday at the regular meeting of council a letter from city solicitor R. A. Pringle was read regarding the legal aspects of setting the tax rate early. The solicitor advised that this could be operated but in his opinion he did not think it was feasible. He stated that no Ontario municipality had adopted the system.

Speaking of the matter Alderman Thomas said he did not want to oppose any city progress, but noted that if the tax rate was set in October council committees would still have three months of their previous budget still not spent. "Budgets set so early would be but haphazard, and school boards would be in the same picture," he said.

Alderman Hyde noted that both school boards had promised to cooperate, if the policy was adopted by the city. He asked council to give the matter serious consideration and decide at the next meeting of council if the policy was to be adopted.

Friends Honor Frank Corrigan On Retirement

Mr. Sam Nicolson, spokesman for the group, stated he was sorry to hear that Mr. Corrigan had decided to retire and wished for him and Mrs. Corrigan the best of health and happiness in the years to come. John Waterhouse on behalf of the friends gathered, presented Mr. Corrigan with a silver tea service and tray, while to Mrs. Corrigan was sent a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

IT WILL BE POPULAR

Dr. Lee De Forest, the famed inventor whose three-element radio tube made radio possible and who holds more than three hundred other patents, has indicated that he is working on another invention which, many people will agree, will prove highly popular.

It seems that a dinner was given in New York City a few days ago to honor Dr. De Forest on the forty-fifth anniversary of his invention of the three-element radio tube. Some seven hundred communications specialists attended, many of them world famous.

Herbert Hoover, a former president of the United States, was one of the speakers. Mr. Hoover described Dr. De Forest as "one of the five inventors of the last one hundred and fifty years who had transformed the mysteries of electricity into great inventions that have shaken civilization."

"But he has some grave matters to answer for," Mr. Hoover continued. "He has made it possible to transmit the worst music on earth — and political speeches. Perhaps the worst of his results is the nauseating commercial that plugs in when we try to get the news.

"And then there is the fellow who cannot sponsor a program without periodic interruption of huckster chatter into the middle of the most beautiful presentations or a great song. But Dr. De Forest could redeem himself if he would produce another great invention. That is a push button by which we could transmit our emotions instantly back to the broadcaster."

It was then that Dr. De Forest, according to The New York Times, "indicated that he was considering Mr. Hoover's suggestion."

The New York Times writer makes it plain that Mr. Hoover was speaking facetiously, but does not indicate whether Dr. De Forest was, or was not, serious in saying he was working on some way of enabling radio listeners to communicate immediately with the sponsors of radio programs.

It would be only poetic justice if Dr. De Forest were to come up with some such gadget as that for which Mr. Hoover sees a need.

SALESMANSHIP IS THE ANSWER

W. O. Coon, president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, made an emphatic sendup suggestion at the meeting which the directors of the cheese-making group held here last week.

While the cheese makers were planning what they should do to dispose of their product, in view of the disappearance of their British market and the likelihood of increased production this year, Mr. Coon called upon cheese factories to make greater contributions toward the fund used for advertising cheese and other dairy products.

In a statement from the context of Mr. Coon's remarks, as they were quoted in this newspaper, that he was of the opinion that the cheese industry could expand its domestic market if it would: "This year, more than ever, advertising is needed to increase the domestic consumption of cheese."

Mr. Coon could have said, and perhaps should have said, a great deal more than he did about this aspect of the situation. He might, for example, have mentioned that the per capita consumption of all kinds of cheese for all Canada was only about 4.8 pounds last year. He might have mentioned that scarcely any cheese is served, even in the eating places of Belleville, and that what does appear is for the most part imported cheese served with spaghetti and meat balls, or the processed type of cheese which appears in those wafer-thin restaurant sandwiches. He might have mentioned also that large quantities of foreign cheese are brought into this country.

We have no desire to become involved in arguments with the makers and distributors of cheese, but it seems to us, as an outsider, that there is scarcely another food product on the market of which so little is sold in relation to the potential market. Total consumption of 4.8 pounds per capita per year in a relatively wealthy country with a high standard of living is an infinitesmal amount.

Surely an ambitious and sustained advertising and sales campaign could double or triple this average annual consumption of cheese, or do even better. If the Californiа and Florida producers of citrus fruits can find ways and means to see that their product appears on Canadian dining-room tables, why are the producers of Canadian cheese unable to do the same?

THE "Y"

A century of service for our youth
A century of training in the best,
Or labor dedicated to the truth.
How judge it now by mention or by test?
We casually speak about the "Y",
Twixt here before the oldest of us came;
We walk the streets and calmly pass it by
And take for granted now its every aim.

How many boys have entered through its doors
And left as men to places high to mount,
Strengthened with faith for all that lies before?
The number is too great today to count.

The "Y" has lived and served a hundred years
And still is young of heart and soul and mind.
A century, and no sign of age appears;
No call to retirement; to greed no vision blind!

Add century on century and the "Y"
Will stronger grow with every passing year.
Men leave the world in the moment that they die.
But though they pass the "Y" will still be here.

The Belleville Citadel of the Salvation Army will shortly undergo alterations and repairs which have been much needed for some time.

The Rev. W. L. Wright preached his farewell sermon in St. James' Anglican Church in Tweed on Sunday evening last. A large congregation was in attendance, all denominations united to do honor to Mr. Wright who is leaving to assume the important office of assisting at the Anglican Cathedral in Hamilton. The evening service in the United Church was withdrawn to permit the congregation of that church to attend the farewell service in St. James' Church and the officials of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church expressed in a letter their regret at the departure of Mr. Wright from Tweed.

Dr. Jack Marshall spent the weekend in Guelph.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fenn and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith spent yesterday in Toronto.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE ARE PAYING

A university professor told me recently that he believed college teaching today had reached heights of excellence never before attained. He said also that there is a maturity on the part of students which is truly amazing. As he explained it, the educational process in the educational process today many of the disciplines are being skipped.

For instance, young people who enter college today have to be tested to find out whether or not they can read. There are tens of thousands of young people who cannot intelligently use a dictionary because they do not know the order of the letters. Others in offices cannot file satisfactorily for the same reason. And as for handwriting, it is now often done with the paper held upside down, and frequently with the left hand. Writing in script has largely gone out and printing which resembles the printing of the second grade child has come in to take its place. Spelling is just out the window. College professors discover that many of them are ignorant and nature students cannot correctly spell the simplest words.

There is no reason why we cannot have a decent amount of intellectual disciplines since it is that maturity of thought which the modern educational method seeks to cultivate. We are paying a huge price for our neglect of discipline in education.

OUR TOWN

DAMN THE TORPEDOES

Not long ago I spent a day in Ottawa and drove out to 120 Lansdowne to the Recruiting Office ably supported by Rockcliffe and this has reminded me of the story of Lieut. Pinkley, RCNVR.

Pinkley isn't his real name, but the rest of this unlikely tale is true. Pinkley and I were part of a group of disgruntled servicemen whose peculiar abilities had caused us to be attached to headquarters in the capital.

The town swarmed with airmen who did not fly, sailors who never sailed and soldiers who were fired an angry gun.

The group involved in this story were men of the Navy, Army and Air Force whose heroic job involved writing newspaper and magazine stories or broadcasting and in the Army, recruiting and something known vaguely as "civilian morale."

A dozen or more of us decided to live together, since we were "on subsistence" as the phrase went, and we succeeded in renting a colonial mansion at 120 Lansdowne Road which came to be be designated as Offhand Manor.

Considering that it was at least half of us were of the lowest rank in our respective services, it was an uncommonly luxurious billete.

The most recent tenant of the house had been Princess Juliana of the Netherlands. The place was furnished exactly as she left it. Pinkley and I shared a kind of honeymoon suite. The Princess' youngsters, the Princess Margriet, Irene and Beatrix had put their walls were covered with murals of idyllic Dutch scenes.

The simply.

Curiously enough, none of the Dutch odd things about the place Manor was happy. Each of us had been selected for assignments in services and could not feel that this was much of a contribution to the war effort.

Our work was swathed in red tape and frustration and was regulated by idiots. We yearned to get closer to the fighting. (Some months later I would have given my left arm to be back there in Lansdowne Road but that is another story.)

The most restless of us all was Pinkley. He had had a taste of service aboard a destroyer and a typewriter and microphone seemed a poor substitute. Each week he made his application for sea duty. Each week he was turned down.

This lack of purpose drove us to diversions. One of these was a small rowboat. Offhand Manor was on the shore of a large pond known as Mackay Lake. We chipped in and bought a six-ply dinghy, which was used by all about the pond among the lily pads and from which to fish, unsuccessfully.

There was a great discussion, particularly among the navy personnel, about naming this dinghy. One of the Army forces men said: "Let's call it anything. It is simply a dinghy." So we called it Simply. And we have yet a good laugh.

The hot Ottawa summer of 1942 wore on and Pinkley's unhappiness grew. Some of the members of the household began getting their overseas sailing orders and we would go down to Union Station to see them off. We had long since stopped worrying about civilian morale. We were brooding about our own.

When my own orders for sailing came through, it was too much for Pinkley. "I'm right in the pricesses' nursery he said, "Tomorrow I am going to do something about it."

..Out to Sea

Pinkley came home late that next day. He was quite drunk. He mumbled something to me about seeing the top-ranking navy officer at headquarters and again about pounding fist.

He went into the nursery and stretched out on the bed, sleeping completely in his sea-going gear. From his battered officers' cap to his shoes he looked as though he was every inch the fighting navy officer.

Five or six of us followed him at a respectful distance. What he was about to do was not clear. He emptied two garbage cans. He filled them with water from the lake front and loaded them into Simply. He climbed in himself and began rowing out into the lake. "Full speed ahead," he cried, "and stand by for torpedoes!"

He was in the middle of the pond, rowing like mad, when "Depth charges away!" and saw him fling the garbage cans into the lily pads. He then began rowing furiously, shouting and cursing, and he was rowing in a crazy kind of way it was magnificent.

We were near at hand when he finally collided head-long with a water lily just out into the lake. The dinghy lilted and the water came pouring in.

Pinkley arose to his full height, raised his hand in salute and cried, "I am going down with my brave little ship!"

It was a week later that he got his orders to report to a destroyer. But it was not long after the war that I learned that the top ranking navy officer who had rejected Pinkley's application just happened to live a few doors down on dear old Mackay Lake.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MIND THE SPARK!

Every one of us has our moments of creative inspiration, when something within urges us to some unusual act. It's like a sudden spark that dies out unless it is fed from the latent power that within us. Like an idea which fills us with enthusiasm but which cools unless put to the test.

In Emerson's great essay on "Self Reliance" he says: "A man should learn to detect and watch that gleam of light which flashes across his mind from within, more than the luster of the firmament of bards and sages," and following this statement he says: "In every work of genius we recognize our own rejected thoughts."

How many times, when a new idea has been worked out, you will hear someone say: "Why, I thought of that long ago!" He had the spark but didn't let it strike. Our "rejected thoughts" are scattered everywhere among those live who had the spark, but didn't let it die.

I look upon Benjamin Franklin as one of the most useful citizens America ever had. He was forever having ideas — but he put them to work and so we owe to him the discovery of electricity, our first lightning rod, stoves and all that still bears his name, and many another improvement. Jefferson was of an inventive mind, but he didn't distribute his ideas. Many of them still rest on a seat at his old home at Monticello.

Such mental sparks came to Thomas A. Edison so fast that he could not keep up with the inventions by the score! His one great invention of the electric light has benefited the entire world, and he was the first to realize that "genius is one per cent inspiration and ninety-nine per cent perspiration."

It's the inspired moment — the moment when the spark ignites — that has lifted men and women to fame and fortune, or as benefactors of the human race. Let it die. Make a note of it. Make it live.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On a downtown street yesterday, a woman shopper with a four-year old child leaving one her turned in a rage and gave the child a violent shaking. Both the mother and the child were obviously tired by a day shopping in the crowded stores. But what was most interesting about the incident was the expression of intense dislike with which the mother regarded the object of her displeasure, the infant.

The older man with whom I was walking shoved his hat forward on his head and gave the woman a nasty look.

"I've noticed that very thing," he said as we passed on, "a lot more frequently in the last few years. The attitude of mothers towards small children seems to be deteriorating. Children appear to be moving into the nuisance class."

I suggested that children had been a hindrance in some respects since the dawn of time.

"Sure, but you rarely, if ever," said my elderly friend, "saw that expression of hostility which you detect from time to time on women's faces nowadays."

"Not for me," I asserted.

"No, they still love babies," agreed my friend, "I am thinking of children at the bratty stage. And do you realize that it is only a matter of a few years since the only interest in a woman's life was her home and her children? Within this one short generation, much of the interests that have come into the lives of all women. The motor car, clubs, societies, sports, and jobs. When I was a boy, only poor girls had jobs.

"Today, the poor little kids have to compete with powerfully organized and commercialized interests for their mothers' attention."

As we stood at an intersection, the mother we had seen caught up the child and had the little boy in her arms, a contrite expression on her face, and she gave the elderly friend a cool, serene stare.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed. Etc.

COMMON RESPIRATORY INFECTIONS

A suitable mask, such as the surgeon's, which can be washed and sterilized, or the disposable mask described in the C-R-I booklet (send 25c coin and 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope) should be worn as a legally prescribed part of the working uniform of every individual who renders indoor personal service—dentist, physician, nurse, barber, manicure, hair-dresser, grocery clerk, bank clerk, school teacher, business executive, stenographer, optician, waiter, tailor, tiller, salesperson.

I suppose this suggestion will seem absurd to most readers as long as the health authorities and physicians continue to acquiesmish about the prevention of respiratory infection. What the heck! Aren't you forgetting that three-fourths of the doctors' everyday practice comes from the c-r-i — Common Respiratory Infection?

Not that I expect the unedu-cated public — and the public is uneducated about this — to begin wearing even the inconspicuous mask I recommend—let any great numbers in my time. But I like to believe that every time I harp on the subject like this a few young readers may begin to think about it, young ones, I say—they're my meat — the old ones are incorrigible anyway.

You old fogies, medical or lay, will be pleased with the tenor of the advice offered by the great corporation that makes cheap winter's campaign against pneumonia:

"Dress warmly when going out, especially during cold, damp weather."

Contrast this quaint quibble of the insurance company with the advice of a distinguished British authority on physiology, hygiene, ventillation and kindred subjects, Dr. Leonard Hill:

"It is absurd to put on an overcoat when going out for a walk. Get hot, walk fast and be braced by feeling cold and so be inmelled to take vigorous exercise."

I'm not morbid or obsessed about this wax suggestion, yet it does seem that one may avoid many a mild or severe illness by keeping beyond conversation spray range in circumstances where this is feasible and there is a reasonable doubt as to the nature of the so-called cold.

I may be as nutty as a schoolgirl's sundae, but I do believe this would be a healthier, happier world if all the old fogies and mollycoddles, medical and lay, were as conscious of conversation spray as they are of wet feet, drafts and sudden changes.

Lime in Drinking Water

Can too much lime (calcium in drinking water) cause kidney stones or save any ill effect on the body? (D. O.)

Answer—If the taste of the water is satisfactory it is immaterial how much calcium (lime) it contains. Generally mineral water containing calcium contains less than milk does, glass for glass. Driver Facing Several Charges After Wild Ride

Campbellford — Twenty-two-year old Donald White is charged with failing to report an accident, and other charges against him are pending, following a wild ride during the early hours of Sunday morning in this town.

White was driving at a high rate of speed east on Sebastapol Street and failed to negotiate a curve. His car went up on the sidewalk and struck a light standard, knocking it down and doing considerable damage to the auto. He continued on, making a left turn and driving north on Queen street. He failed a second time to make a curve and this time rolled the car completely over. The auto came to rest back on its wheels, and White, instead, drove it home. The car was badly damaged and gas and oil were streaming from the damaged crank case, gas tank and antifreeze poured from the radiator.

Robert McGregor, a local resident notified Chief Constable George H. Hardy at his home, but failed to notify the night constable, who was patrolling the beat. Chief Hardy immediately notified Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine and the two set out to follow the trail of gas and oil on the roadway. They soon located the garage into which the car had been driven and arrested White at his home.

Damage to the auto is estimated at between $700 and $800 and it is going to cost White another $135 for the light standard.

Convict Gang Defies Keepers In Prison Riot

Trenton, N. J., April 16 (AP)— A handsome but vicious life-term convict and 57 followers continued today to defy their keepers in the third riot inside New Jersey's state prison within the last month.

August Bernard Doak, described by his judge who sentenced him to life imprisonment for kidnapping as a "menace to society," led the revolt which broke out at 10 a.m. yesterday in the prison's print shop.

The 58 convicts barricaded themselves in the shop, holding four prison employees hostages. They had not smashed any of the shops' equipment, a pattern set by some 50 convicts who rioted for 45 hours three weeks ago in a segregation building.

But, like their predecessors, the Doak gang went without food or light through the night while guards manned machine-guns and riot rifles in the yard outside.

The rioters demanded an investigation of the prison by an impartial organization — the same demand made by the previous rioters — and the immediate dismissal of Warden William H. Carty.

WEDDINGS

ERWIN—GEROW

Easter lillies, tulips and daffodils formed a lovely background in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, April 12, at 4:30 p.m. when Marion Margaret Louise Gerow, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gerow, of Belleville, became the bride of George Willis Erwin, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Erwin, of Dundas, Ontario. The Rev. Canon J. B. Creegan officiated.

The wedding music was furnished by the boys' choir of Christ Church, accompanied by Mr. Dana Cooke, church organist. Before the ceremony they sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden", during the ceremony Psalm 67, "God, Be Merciful Unto us and Bless us", and at the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown, of white organdy over taffeta featuring a molded bodice of hand embroidered Swiss eyelet organdy, and full skirt with inserts of the same. A Juliet cap of matching Swiss eyelet held her fingertip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a shower bouquet of white gardenias and hyacinth bells entwined with jade leaves.

Miss Patricia Gerow, of Belleville, and sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Jack Diamond, of Belleville, and Miss Marion Warren, of Brantford, were bridesmaids, wearing similar gowns of rust taffeta and Juliet headdresses of white lilacs and hyacinth bells interspersed with green leaves, and bouquets of white tulips and hyacinth bells and jade leaves.

Mr. Robert Lennie, of Dundas, Ontario, was groomsman; Mr. Jack Diamond, of Belleville, and Mr. Harry Kemp, of New Liskeard, Ontario, were ushers.

The reception was held in Christ Church parish hall, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing navy crepe with pink accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore Laurentian biffe crepe with pink accessories and corsage of Briarcliffe roses.

For the wedding trip to Washington, D.C., the bride chose a gold and brown check suit with matching hat, brown accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. Erwin will upon their return, reside in Toronto.

Guests were present from Dundas, Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston, New Liskeard, Stirling, Campbellford and Simcoe.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was feted at various showers given in her honor by Miss Sylvester, Mrs. Jack Diamond, Miss Noreen Callaghan and Mrs. Douglas Coleman, also by Mrs. Russell Babcock and Mrs. Bert Laughlin.

Four-Tiered Baker Cake Highlight 40th Anniversary

Yesterday the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cook, 6 Strachan Street, was en fete and beautifully decorated for the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary, when many friends from far and near came to congratulate and extend best wishes to a fine couple.

The tea table was appropriately and tastefully arranged with mauve and yellow flowers, and centred by an equisite four-tiered anniversary cake, while mauve and yellow candles in silver holders added a most pleasing complement.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook were the recipients of many lovely gifts, cards and telegrams wishing them much happiness in the years to come.

Many Years as Baker

Mr. Cook came to Canada fifty years ago, and for 14 years of that time was employed at the Ontario Institute for the Deaf as baker, which trade he carried on until lately, four places where he was employed included Toronto, Oshawa, Hamamville, St. Thomas, North Bay, Kingston and Belleville. He also served overseas for three years in World War I.

Mrs. Cook, nee Mabel Lambert, of Gainsay township, north of Bobcaygeon, as well as Mr. Cook, is enjoying good health and life to the full.

Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Giddings, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jarvis, of Toronto; Mrs. Lambert, of Bobcaygeon; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cordeo, of Bowmanville; Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Lambert, Orono and Linda, of Highland Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lambert, Douglas, Patricia, and Linda, of Richmond Hill; Mr. and Mrs. William Shoulder, of Gainsay; Mrs. Carrie Hough and daughter, Janey, of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Les Saunders and son Richard and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cook, and son, Terry, of Belleville.

Following the anniversary dinner, wedding pictures were taken by Mr. Jarvis.

Minerva Chapter, O.E.S. Holds Successful 'Country Store'

Many patrons, friends and guests found their way yesterday afternoon to the "Country Store" sponsored by the Minerva Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, at the Masonic Temple, on Foster Ave.

Receiving at the door was the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Hilda Mae Hervey and Mrs. Grace Knowlton, wife of the Worthy Patron, and just inside were the treasurer, Mrs. J. Ingram and Mrs. A. Silliard.

Here, amid a setting of orchid, mauve, white, blue and yellow, emblematic of the spring, the various tables with their attractive merchandise lined one side of the auditorium and wandered across the other, while in a quadrangle formed by a long line of easy chairs, love-seats and chesterfields, where the weary, when the race became too strenuous, might rest and recuperate, was the lovely tea table surrounded by a bevy of little guest tables seating four, each centred with an ornate plate of sandwiches and cake, which were divided by a servilette wall in green and yellow, topped by a wee yellow chick.

The tea table was charmingly appointed with a lace cloth centred by a crystal bowl of fragrant sweetpeas in shades of mauve and pink, and yellow daffodils interspersed with feathery asparagus fern, while placed diagonally, there the silver candelabra with their flickering tapers in mauve and yellow, and at either end, the silver services. Those who presided included: Mrs. Ina Smith, Worthy Matron of Belleville Chapter 55; and Mrs. William Adams, Mrs. A. Woodworth and Mrs. M. Vanner, Mrs. W. Broad and Mrs. B. Mountain.

Tea Room Hostesses

Those inviting to the tea room were: Mrs. R. Gonsolus and Mrs. J. Marsh; Mrs. W. Cee acted as tea room treasurer, while those who served were, Mesdames: Everson, William, Bleecker, Hunt, Cook, Armstrong, Allie, Thrasher, Kingston, Pettruff, Rowsthien, Houston, Heath, Mott, Beare, Gray, Hyde, Foley, Bushel, Carmichael, Lennox, Jones, Treasurer, and Sills.

Those convening and replenishing in the kitchen were: Mrs. C. Clark; Mrs. Percy Mullins, Mrs. L. Donnelly and Mrs. W. Adams.

Beginning with the apron table, convened by Mrs. C. Reid, assisted by Mrs. K. Wardle, one was delighted with the lovely assortment of aprons. Some were in patchwork design; others in old fashioned prints with purple cheese cloth trembling across it, white ground; blue and white gingham checked gingham in all-over style with three gathered tiers inset at the edge accented by white bias binding dividing the tiers; flared aprons in almost ballerina effect with heart-shaped pockets; a utility apron fashioned of black sateen having a cretonne pocket across the bottom, nice for fancy work, or a glorified clothes pin apron and dainty white organdy tea aprons.

The candy table centred by an Easter bunny and little Pocahontas with its generous fineness of yellow and mauve was replete with orange mauve and pink tulip cups filled with heaping assortment of delicious confections of chocolate creams; divinity fudge, maple creams, and many other varieties. There were also long rows of peppermint discs, kiddie pops and packages of "Sun-maid" raisins; little containers in delicate shades of mauve, and boxes neatly filled with the accented "verities." Convening this was Mrs. E. Dobbs assisted by Mrs. Crozier.

Delicious Cakes

Fuzzy Willows centred the home cooking table, convened by Mrs. M. Smith; Mrs. B. Humphrey; and Mrs. N. McBurney, with their coconveners, Mrs. B. Lewis, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Sargent, Mrs Wooten, Mrs. Gill and Mrs. Simmons, all of whom were kept busy wrapping parcels, and making change, as fast did the delicious date loaves, hermits, taffy tarts, buns, cup-cakes, angel cakes, date and chocolate squares, fruit cakes, gems, lemon squares, honey and Welsh cakes disappear.

The miscellaneous table with its blue and white and pussy willow centre was the "Mecca" for curio seekers. This was convened by Mrs. H. Wilson, Mrs. A. Clare; assisted by Mrs. J. Armstrong, Mrs Andrews and Mrs. LaRue. On display were shell earrings; costume jewellery of necklace and matching earrings; children's pearl and straw hats and jockey caps; colorful garden hats; kitten-faced little cards for notes; a throng of unpainted little figurines; African violets, squirrel ornaments, handkerchiefs with crocheted edges, fancy aprons; baby blue straw shopping bag, hose hanger, a compact, face rock and soap pockets.

Bulbs and Shrubs

Shrubs and bulbs, and various kinds of roots, iris, bleeding hearts, umbellution lily, golden willow, cutange blossoms, Rogosa rose bushes were also drawing considerable attention.

Beside the main tables of merchandise, here and there at strategic intervals, were other small tables, some with pretty cards for the April-ins, birthdays, cards, of sympathy, get-well cards and cards of congratulation. Another, convened by Mrs. D. Reddick had two pretty dolls dressed in pink and green respectively. These would go to the lucky ticket holders; and still another table had a most gorgeous angel cake with mounds of boiled icing sticking out in tiny peaks all over. This, too, would go to the lucky ticket holder, and was convened by Mrs. G. Vallens.

Much credit is due Mrs. J. Little convener of the Country Store; the tea room conveners, Mrs. A. Jordan and Mrs. J. Mash for an exceptionally well-arranged emporium and delightful afternoon tea, and to the many others whose help added so much to the success of the afternoon.

Mrs. Ben Bleecker of Halloway, was the winner of the angel cake, Mrs. A. Cathcart, the doll in pink and Mrs. L. Gray, the doll in green.

Easter Pageant Well Presented

Before a large audience, the Easter pageant "Eyes of Faith", was presented by members of Halloway United Church on Good Friday night.

Written in seven scenes, this deeply moving pageant portrayed events taking place between the time of Jesus' death and His appearance before Mary Magdalene at the garden tomb. The play ends when the blind Roman lady who had come to Jesus in the hope that He might restore her sight, leaves with Mary Magdalene to find the risen Lord, in the sincere belief that through Him she may go through life with "Eyes of Faith".

Although all the players were amateurs all gave a fine portrayal of their respective parts. Many compliments were received on the manner in which the pageant was presented and it is to be repeated at Foxboro next Sunday night. Much of the credit for a successful presentation goes to Mrs. Griffin, who in spite of her busy life, gave of her time to act as director.

Outstanding members of the cast included Mrs. R. Workman, who played the difficult role of Mary Magdalene, Mrs. G. Roth, as the blind Roman lady, and Mrs. E. Snider as Mary of Nazareth. Others with lesser parts were Jean Reid, Ruth McMullen, Lois Mc Mullen, Dorothy Kelly, Nora Mullen, Mrs. E. Emerson, Mrs. C. Townsend, Mrs. K. Denyes, Mrs. L. Wellman, Rev. H. Griffin, Harold Kelly, Ronald Denyes, Eric Emerson.

In charge of stage settings and lighting was Mr. R. Workman, of the Northern Electric, who gave invaluable assistance, the light changes adding much to the effectiveness of the various scenes.

Mrs. Don Rose, played appropriate music between the scenes and her lovely voice was heard to good effect in the solo "Open the Gates of the Temple". Also assisting with the music were Miss Eva Griffin and Miss Pat Griffin.

The pageant carried a real Easter message, one which will be long remembered by those privileged to enjoy it.

Prior to the presentation of "The Eyes of Faith", an interpretation of Easter was given by Juniors. Taking part were Eleanor Huffman, Elaine Tufts, Ann Emerson, Jean McMullen, Francis Rose, Harold Kelly, Nora Wellman, Dorothy Kelly, Douglas Townsend, John Emerson.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A recent letter informs me that it comes from "the loneliest and probably the most discouraged and disillusioned person in the whole world." That makes about the thousandth person who has claimed that title by mail this year.

This one is 35 years old, and for the past five years has had "one disappointing love affair after the other," forever finding herself "left behind because they always marry someone else."

Now, she never has a date, and her only recreation is to go out once or twice a week, generally to the movies, with girl friends, most of whom are considerably younger than herself because those of her own age are married. She is very unhappy at home and also at her job; at home, because she has a nagging brother who is "very hateful and selfish and makes trouble between my girl friends and myself," and at work, because she is "in an office with old maids and widows who are very bitter towards one another, constantly arguing and complaining and causing trouble."

She has thought of leaving her job, but can't bear to do it because she is "in love with a man who works in the office across the hall and the thought of never seeing him again is more than I can bear." The fact that this man seems to be cheerfully unconscious of her interest in him, and that she has never had anything more than a smile and a hello from him makes no difference. She thinks it may just be shyness on his part, rather than lack of interest in her, although she admits she knows he has a girl friend.

She feels herself on the edge of a nervous breakdown because she is always very exhausted and at night can't sleep for thinking about this man. Off and on, she thinks of moving from the suburb where she lives, to the city where she works, but she doesn't like leaving her mother, who is not well and needs help with the housework. Her father and her two brothers would still be at home, however.

One Decisive Move

Quite a lot of trouble, isn't it? Yet one really decisive move, backed up by some real determination, would go far toward her getting her out of it.

Basically, of course, like everybody else, what this young woman is actually seeking is happiness. But she wants to sit where she is, and keep on wallowing in her misery and her daydreams of romance until, by some magic, it comes to her. She doesn't want to make the effort to go after it.

Naturally, her first choice of happiness would be to get married. But plenty of men and women have had to give up their first choice and accept a second, and, in doing so cheerfully and courageously, have frequently been astonished to discover that they found happiness anyhow.

It's an old familiar story, but what most of these people who claim the record for loneliness, discouragement and depression fail to realize is that, if they are to be happy in this world, each has to make himself or herself the sort of individual who automatically attracts happiness. And the way to do that is to find some absorbing interest which turns one into an outgoing instead of an ingrowing person. Over and over again, I have pointed out that every town and city today, whether large or small, is so full of opportunities for friendship, interesting activities and useful service to others that there is no excuse whatever for anyone to sit home night after night with no place to go, no friends to be with, nothing to do.

Sometimes, it is true, it helps shake one out of an old static groove into a new and active one in life if it is possible to change one's environment, and if this particular young woman can arrange to move to the city, it would probably be a very good thing for her. There, if she will, it should be easy for her to investigate all the chances that offer themselves to make new friends and acquire new interests.

Let me repeat still another time: there is not the slightest reason why anyone today should remain "the loneliest, most discouraged and disillusioned person in the whole world" if this young woman has the spunk to put this statement to the test, she can prove it, as thousands of others have done before her.

Food for Thought

Supper Party—Buffet Style—For Twelve

Well, I asked for it as you can 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons plainly see:

"Dear Mary: . . . I am writing to tell you how pleased I am to see your stuff in our home town paper. . . . I am going to take advantage of your offer to answer questions here goes: what about a recipe—one of your own personal favorites—for the "piece de resistance" for supper party for 12 persons. Something that can be served buffet style and eaten with the plate on the knees. Knowing something of your cooking and wanting a change from my own small repertoire I fully anticipate something good.

"Secondly, could you give a good-apple (and tomato base) which will include chopped vegetables (celery, pepper, cucumber, avocado, etc.) sufficient for 12 persons. Good luck.—C. A."

How would you like to serve a real "company" Chicken Curry, C.A.? Here's the menu I propose:

Rori's Chicken Curry
Chutney
Grated Fresh Cocoanut
Sieved Hard-cooked Eggs
Homemade Yeast Buns
Vegetable Aspic Salad
Tomato-Cucumber Mayonnaise
Custard Souffle with Fresh Frozen Raspberries
Coffee

RORI'S CHICKEN CURRY

Boil a fowl large enough to yield 6 cups when cooked and stripped from bones and skin and cut into 1-2 or 3-4 inch cubes. In a large skillet melt 6 tablespoons butter and in it saute 6 medium tart apples, pared, cored and sliced. As you are sauteing the apples add 2 large sliced onions, preferably mild, and 1 finely minced clove of garlic. Saute all of these until golden but not brown. Mix together 3 tablespoons flour and either 2 or 3 tablespoons curry powder and add. Stir in 4 cups chicken stock, until it thickens a bit. Add 1-8 teaspoon cloves, tablespoons lemon juice and 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, about 2 or 3 teaspoons salt, and 1 1-2 cups seedless raisins (optional). Add the 6 cups cut up chicken, cover and simmer 30 minutes. Cook 2 cups long grain rice in 4 1-2 cups boiling water and 1 tablespoon salt, in top of double boiler or over very low burner, tightly covered. Serve rice in a ring, surrounding the curry. Garnish with hot ripe olives, shavings of candied ginger and parsley. Pass snowy white shredded fresh cocoanut, chutney and sieved hard-cooked eggs.

ASPIC

(In which to mold any savory salad.)

Mix together 2-3 cup spirit vinegar, 2 2-3 cups boiling water, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-3 cup sugar, and 2 2-3 tablespoons gelatine in 2-3 cup cold water and juice of 2 large lemons. Boil the first mixture. Stir in the soaked mixture. Strain. Cool before adding vegetables and molding.

CUSTARD SOUFFLE

In top of double boiler cream 4 1-2 tablespoons butter with 1-2 cup flour, and when blended stir in 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons hot whole milk. Cook stirring hard until thick and mixture forms a mass in centre of pan. Remove from heat and add 1 1-2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, and one teaspoon almond extract. Cool and beat in four egg yolks. Fold in four stiffly beaten egg whites carefully. Grease and flour a large ring mold. Stand in pan of hot water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes. Cool a few minutes before loosening with spatula, then turn out on large round platter or chop platter. Chill thoroughly. Fill centre with fresh frozen raspberries thawed—at serving time. This, after the curry, will bolster even your reputation.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Teamwork for mother and daughter.

Some mothers and daughters are like twin sisters. They love and respect each other, have pretty much the same ideas and ideals, and they have fun together. This happy state of affairs can only exist when the mother keeps stepping along with the modern parade. No nasty wisecracks about the younger generation, no critical attitude from Mom. She remembers vividly her young days, knows that youth is impulsive and, with their limited experience, that youth cannot be expected to have the wisdom of the ages. The right kind of mother will be the confidante of her daughter, who will be only too happy to bawl on her shoulder when the best feller doesn't show up for the party or some other small tragedy comes into her life.

The best way to help a young girl to cultivate taste in dress is to be becomingly dressed oneself. A dowdy mother is a handicap to a girl. She wants her daughter to be strictly up-to-date in appearance. She wants her to have a friendly attitude toward her friends, feel easy with them, talk to them as she would to her own friends. No aloofness. And she wants her mother to be gay and jolly. An old grantie-face in the family circle chills the atmosphere, sends young people elsewhere to find more agreeable company.

The woman who says that she lives just for her children, and never thinks about herself or how she looks, is making a mistake. For the sake of the pride children take in a companionable mother, she should do everything possible to keep herself in form. She should endeavor to retain the appearance of youth, as well as youthful spirits. That means she must be a weight-watcher. No matter how fine the complexion remains, excess adipose tissue makes a woman look older. Anyhow, normal weight is better for her health. It is something for which every plumpie should strive.

Daughter is distressed if mama insists upon clinging to an outmoded hairdo. Nothing dates a woman like that. The short cut, with a few wave lines and curled ends, is just as appropriate for her as it is for her angel child.

Drab, uninteresting colors in clothes are a good-looks error. Youth is all for gaiety. Many women wear dresses of cold greys or dingy browns and are bound to put up a drab appearance.

A certain amount of make-up is a beauty must these days. It may seem a bit senseless, but it isn't, really. A bit of coloring on the cheeks imparts freshness, and lip tinting is a help. "What, no lipstick? Where have you lived all these years."

Five Wartime Houses Sold To Tenants

Stirling—A five man delegation from the Wartime Housing Project on the east side of Henry Street waited on council at its regular meeting Monday night asking that a drainage ditch be dug along the east side of the street fronting their properties. Due to the spring breakup some of their driveways are practically impassable for vehicular traffic.

Members of council agreed to provide the ditch if and when Eirath giving a piano solo, while Jerry Cousins, Doug Anderson, George Wodrat and Robert Burley delighted with two saxophone quartet numbers. All were well received by the club and hearty applause given.

Before the program was proceeded with, president Harold Carruthers, had several announcements made, one dealing with the inter-club meeting at the Masonic Temple, which will be sponsored this year by the Sportsmens' Club and at which Kate Aiken of Montreal and Tom Wills will be the speaker; Bill Wills, in charge of the Kiwanis Blood Donor clinic told the meeting that the clinic exceeded its quota, when the first clinic was held but that only 110 had offered blood in the second clinic held last fall; donor meetings in the clinic is being held today at the St. Thomas' Parish Hall.

Key Clubbers Present Program At Kiwanis Club

Reports Progress

Harold Craig reported progress on the Field Day, which will be held at the Country Club on May 24th. Every club in the district will be represented, as members of the local club are proceeding to every club in the district to present a personal invitation to be present.

Miss Shingdell stated that social service was the act of helping a person or group of persons to overcome their difficulties and this week was done in early times by single groups but now agencies have been developed, which requires one to be trained in this work. She stated that a college education was necessary and at the present time the need for social workers far exceeded the supply. She also stated that volunteer work was urgently needed as there was much social work to be done.

Mr. Lorne Moore spoke on soil and its function and told how many of the most important drugs at the present time had been taken from the soil and that the by-products had been scratched in this connection. The speaker said that no one need have fear of bacteria because only one of 30,000 was poisonous. He advised all to study bacteria of the soil more closely because it was a most interesting subject and a revelation as to what the soil contains. The speakers were thanked by Sid Larman.

The attendance prize was donated by Cliff Baragar and won by Gordon Base.

Members of the Key Club under the presidency of Jack Barry, were in charge of the luncheon at the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday. Miss Joan Shingdell and Lorne Moore, who won prizes in oratorical contests recently were the speakers, Miss Shingdell speaking on "Social Service" and Mr. Moore on "Safety."

The program was also provided by Key Clubbers, with Doug McElrath giving a piano solo, while Jerry Cousins, Doug Anderson, George Wodrat and Robert Burley delighted with two saxophone quartet numbers. All were well received by the club and hearty applause given.

Before the program was proceeded with, president Harold Carruthers, had several announcements made, one dealing with the inter-club meeting at the Masonic Temple, which will be sponsored this year by the Sportsmens' Club and at which Kate Aiken of Montreal and Tom Wills will be the speaker; Bill Wills, in charge of the Kiwanis Blood Donor clinic told the meeting that the clinic exceeded its quota, when the first clinic was held but that only 110 had offered blood in the second clinic held last fall; donor meetings in the clinic is being held today at the St. Thomas' Parish Hall.

Reports Progress

Harold Craig reported progress on the Field Day, which will be held at the Country Club on May 24th. Every club in the district will be represented, as members of the local club are proceeding to every club in the district to present a personal invitation to be present.

Miss Shingdell stated that social service was the act of helping a person or group of persons to overcome their difficulties and this week was done in early times by single groups but now agencies have been developed, which requires one to be trained in this work. She stated that a college education was necessary and at the present time the need for social workers far exceeded the supply. She also stated that volunteer work was urgently needed as there was much social work to be done.

Mr. Lorne Moore spoke on soil and its function and told how many of the most important drugs at the present time had been taken from the soil and that the by-products had been scratched in this connection. The speaker said that no one need have fear of bacteria because only one of 30,000 was poisonous. He advised all to study bacteria of the soil more closely because it was a most interesting subject and a revelation as to what the soil contains. The speakers were thanked by Sid Larman.

The attendance prize was donated by Cliff Baragar and won by Gordon Base.

It was decided to widen and enlarge the culvert on Victoria Avenue near the residence of Mrs. A. Ackers. It was pointed out that the present culvert washed out practically every year during the spring flood necessitating considerable expenditure in its repair and that the only solution was to increase the size of the tile. The roadway at the point will be widened when the culvert is being replaced.

Loan Granted

Clerk Mallory also reported that the village had received the sum of $2,119.14 in road grants on the expenditure of 1951.

Several accounts were passed for payment.

At an adjourned meeting of council held on Wednesday night it was decided to open up the lots into industrial and residential areas. The appointment of a planning board was discussed at length and Mr. E. D. Ketcheson was appointed chairman of the three-man board with councillor D. Rodgers representing council and one other member to be appointed. Council also endorsed the expenditure of $200 by this committee.

Dreams of Return to Power In China Buoy Nationalists

(Editor's Note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadian forces in Korea, recently spent a week in Formosa, interviewing Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and other Chinese nationalist leaders. This story, one of a series, tells of nationalist hopes for return to the communist-bossed mainland.)

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Taipei, Formosa, April 16—(CP)—This island off the China coast is buoyed by one hope: "The Chinese nationalist government is going back to the mainland—soon."

If the nationalists long for the day, so do the Formosans. They want to un their own island and shed the burden of supporting single-handed the nationalist army.

There are about 7,000,000 Formosans and about 1,000,000 emigres, including the nationalist forces and the families who came with them when the mainland was evacuated more than two years ago.

The difficulty is that word "soon". The Formosans think of it as meaning "within a year." The nationalist government, although now tending to be more realistic, does nothing to discourage the idea.

But a week of meetings with political, military and economic leaders from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek down convinced me the nationalist government—despite its frequent policy pronouncements—has no such illusions.

The hope remains that the day or return will come. United States army military advisers encourage it. They say without it the island's morale would sag and it would become less valuable as the only strong communist-free military bastion against communism in the east.

Interview With Chiang

"We have always had in view our return to the mainland," Chiang said in an exclusive interview with the Canadian Press.

"Our planning has had in mind the administrative problem. We believe we can efficiently transfer to the mainland, the government you have seen here. We are training a corps of administrators for the task."

He said he believes the mainland can be snatched from the reds within three years after a large-scale invasion movement begins from Formosa.

But it looks as if the nationalist armies will wait a long time for that assignment.

Meanwhile the Chiang administration is training its forces and studying the art of government with all its complications in political and social reform.

Officials here speak openly of "mistakes" the nationalists made while they were on the mainland; talk about Formosa as their "second chance;" affirm determination to govern well.

They seem to have made a good start.

Must Re-establish Cause

The men at the top seem of first class calibre. They say they know they must re-establish their cause in the eyes not only of mainland Chinese but of the west whose faith they largely forfeited.

Provincial affairs are run by the popularly-elected provincial assembly. Seventeen of the 24 members in Governor (provincial premier) K. C. Wu's cabinet are islanders.

Formosa is a police state under martial law, but enforcement is no more annoying to the civilian than it was in Britain during the Second World War.

Communism has been ruthlessly suppressed. Three hundred spies were executed during the last year. Foreign observers say Formosa has fewer communists than any area in Asia.

Liberal opinion feels free to express itself in the 54-seat legislature where most members belong to the Chinese nationalist Kuomintang. However, newspapers exercise little freedom of movement. Most are subsidized by government or party. Editors and publishers are "responsible", if they criticize the government.

Even the most prejudiced observer, after a careful study of the present Chiang regime, must concede that in Formosa it is doing a reasonably good job.

Its leaders say the withdrawal to Taiwan has been a good thing. In two years they have made steps that even with the right intent could have taken another generation on the mainland.

Housewife Hits Jackpot Twice In Soccer Stakes

London, April 16 (CP)—A 50-year-old housewife hit the jackpot, not once but twice in a row, in the Easter weekend soccer sweepstakes and stands to collect the equivalent of at least $400,000 on an investment of 16 cents.

Mrs. Lilian Guest, wife of an engineer in nearby Godalming, won $79,000 Saturday by listing eight soccer games that would end in tie scores. She did the same thing Monday. Each time she wagered six-pence — seven cents.

Gambling circles figured the odds against Mrs. Guest hitting the jackpot twice in a row at 25,000,000,000,000 to 1.

Mrs. Guest was preparing a lunch of "bobbie and squeak"—left-over cabbage and potatoes fried up—as she talked yesterday about her phenomenal luck.

"My horoscope said March, April and May would be good financial months," she said.

"Of course, we shall buy the things we need, a detached house, a car, a good camera for my 17-year-old son, Brian.

"But we don't let the money affect us too much."

"That's right," agreed her husband, Charles. "On Saturday night you will still find me playing darts at the local tavern with my friends and that's how I intended to keep it."

Charles reckons to have a system for the sweepstake. "It's nine-tenths system," he said, "and one-tenth my wife's intuition."

SOO WINS SECOND

Sault Ste. Marie, April 16—(CP)—Sault Ste. Marie Rapids repeated their Monday decision over St. Catharines Bisons here last night and came up with an identical 5-4 victory to take a two-game lead in their best-of-five all-Ontario Juvenile A finals.

Third game of the series is scheduled tonight. A Sault win would give them the championship.

Winnipeg Wins Over Windsor For Cage Title

Winnipeg, April 16 (CP)—Manitoba claimed its third straight Canadian junior basketball crown last night, Winnipeg Light Infantry defeating Windsor A.K.O.'s 56-48 in the final game of their best-of-five series.

The Winnipeg team fought its way into a driving finish, breaking up the game and the series in the last minutes of play.

A big eight points—four each by Bob Neblouch and Fred Ingaldson—snapped a 48-48 tie with three minutes remaining. Winnipeg held a 17-16 lead at the end of the first quarter but were forced to a 28-24 deficit as Windsor came back strongly in the second.

Sharp shooting by Ingaldson, Winnipeg's ace shot-maker with 23 points, Sam Dolbun and Ron White earned the margin for the soldiers in the first quarter. A tight defensive stopped them from getting in close-in shots.

The game developed into a seesaw battle as Don Stone, Windsor high-scorer with 17 points, unleashed a deadly, left-handed set-shot to pace the attack.

Ingaldson and Neblouch, who scored 10 points for Winnipeg, dropped baskets early in the third quarter to tie the count. Teams rapidly exchanged baskets for the next seven minutes before Light Infantry pulled away into a seven-point edge.

Windsor, sparked by Stone, with five points, started a rally in the final frame and were leading 46-45 with seven minutes to go.

Mike Uhrin, a 11-point man for Windsor, tied the count again after a basket by Ingaldson and foul shot by Neblouch sent the Winnipeggers into a 48-46 lead.

Then Neblouch uncorked a neat lamp-shot from the head of the key. The winning points whistled home without touching the rim.

Ingaldson added a basket and two foul shots and Neblouch came through with an extra two points before the whistle blew.

After the game, Light Infantry was presented the Bowering trophy by Bert Jones of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association. For the last two years it was won by Winnipeg Stellay, now in a senior loop.

The only tire that protects you from all three driving hazards... blowouts, punctures and dangerous skids

It's here . . . the revolutionary B. F. Goodrich Tubeless Tire that needs no inner tube. The air-retaining lining is actually a part of the tire itself.

A DREAM COME TRUE

Ever since B. F. Goodrich built tires for the first automobile manufactured on this continent, the dream of tire engineers has been a pneumatic tire that would need no inner tube. During World War II, B. F. Goodrich research made such a tire possible. It was used on combat vehicles under the most difficult driving conditions. Later the Tubeless Tire was perfected for use on automobiles. In 1946 tests were made on police cars and taxi fleets. It was a complete success . . . a dream come true . . . the B. F. Goodrich Tubeless Tire that protects against punctures, blowouts and dangerous skids.

PROVEN ON THE ROAD

The B. F. Goodrich Tubeless Tire has been used for over four years in the U.S.A. by thousands of motorists. Their acceptance and exceptional mileage reports are your guarantee that this is the finest tire you can buy.

B. F. Goodrich Tubeless Tires fit your present rims. No special fittings are needed. The scientifically designed rim-seal ridges form an air-tight pressure lock against the rim. It can't come off . . . doesn't lose air.

See this revolutionary tire now at your neighbourhood B. F. Goodrich dealer.

PROTECTS AGAINST PUNCTURES

A layer of sealant rubber, under the tread, sticks to any puncturing object preventing loss of air. When the object is removed, the puncture seals itself instantly and permanently.

PROTECTS AGAINST BLOWOUTS

Most blowouts start when a tire is bruised. The damaged casing pinches and chafes the inner tube until it blows.

The B.F.G. Tubeless Tire has no inner tube to blow out. Damage to the tire can only cause pinhole leaks that lose air so slowly you have miles in which to make a safe, easy stop.

PROTECTS AGAINST DANGEROUS SKIDS

The Tubeless Tire has an amazing new tread with thousands of flexible rubber "grip-blocks". These tiny blocks grip like a tank-tread, giving greater traction than conventional tires . . . up to 40% more on wet roads . . . up to 100% more on ice. The flexibility of this new tread increases tire mileage 10 to 15%.

Detroit Red Wings Win Stanley Cup With Record-Breaking Performances

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ALL OVER!

That's that. The Belleville Hawks wrote a dramatic if a brawling finish to one of the best junior hockey seasons experienced here in years last night, even if they went down to an 11-1 defeat for their fourth straight loss to the Weston Dukes. They could not have been beaten by a better team. The stars of victory boasted a clever squad. They were well-coached, well trained and knew a lot of the hockey answers. It would not surprise this department at least to see the Dukes take the Ontario Junior "B" title from either Hamilton or Waterloo.

The Hawks, at least, showed they had what it takes and deserve a lot of credit for reaching the semi-finals. They flashed plenty of spirit and backed it up on ice. They did not have the polish and hockey finesse of the Dukes, but after all it took a pretty fair team to win the Junior "B" group of the district and go on to eliminate the strong Barrie team.

And before leaving hockey for the season, it should be noted that Miss Marjorie Ware, 148 Hazelhurst Avenue, Toronto, was the winner of the television set put up by the Belleville Hockey Association.

The eyes of the boxing world will be centred on television screens while those of us not in that moneyed class will glue the ears to radio tonight when Sugar Ray Robinson takes on the rugged Rocky Graziano in a Chicago ring.

To the laymen this should be quite a scrap. But the New York experts don't see it that way. Take Arthur Daley, erudite sports columnist of the New York Times. In an article entitled "Fit to Fight" Daley doesn't think much of the Brooklyn Rock. In a biting sarcastic style, Mr. Daley terms Rocky "last-minute puncher . . . uninhibited roughneck who wore no man's collar but his own."

"Now" goes on Daley, "he wears a tie and jacket. Civilization has ruined him."

Sugar Ray, Daley says, has slipped. He has become slower and his reflexes less responsive. However he slipped from so high a peak that he hasn't descended as yet to the "ordinary limit". He is still in the realm of brilliance of true greatness. But Rocky, the columnist quips, "never did get out of the valley. He's now below sea level."

But let Daley take it from here.

"Take Graziano's bout with Charlie Fusari a few years ago. Fusari was a polished ringman all the way, a master of his craft. Graziano had all the finesse of a Golden Glover, sub-novice division. The Jersey milkman boxed the ears off the Rock until he was less than a minute from winning a unanimous decision. Then the bad Rock End "let him have it."

No gate ever swung wider or wilder than Rocky swinging his right. It swished through the air and hit nothing except air for the longest while. Then Fusari zigged instead of zagged, aided by the fact that Graziano's left hand joined the act. It didn't go in as a jab or a hook. It went in as a clubbing tentacle, as illegal as a $3 bill. Rocky held his foe with one hand and bopped him fith the other. They parted off the canvas and sent him home for repairs. Graziano had achieved another stirring victory.

Even during Rocky's reign as middleweight champion the only improvement he showed was financial. Artistically he stood still, a puncher who was right-hand crazy. Meanwhile, his zest for combat has stooped away and all he has left is his punch.

In marked contrast to the Rock, Sugar Ray has been hailed for a decade as "the best fighter in the business, pound for pound." This, mind you, was said when Joe Louis was in his prime. Sugar Ray was — and still is — a magnificent boxer. He can hit with either hand. On top of all that, he's smart.

About the only way he can lose is for the Rock to tag him with a lucky punch. It isn't likely, but stranged things have happened. A man who can punch is always dangerous.

The Chicago Stadium, site of the fight, is the scene of Rocky's supreme moment in the ring. That was where he dethroned Tony Zale as middleweight champion after a melodramatic Pier Six brawl. He may get the inspiration for another such superhuman effort, although that is to be doubted.

The Dead End Kid has been singularly unimpressive in his more recent bouts, his string of knockout victories to the contrary. His heart no longer is in his work. Once upon a time he was an uninhibited roughneck who wore no man's collar, including his own. Now he wears a tie and jacket, and combs his hair. Civilization has ruined him.

Sugar Ray Robinson, Rocky Graziano Ready for Mauling Battle Tonight

Chicago, April (AP) —More than 19,000 fans, wild-eyed with anticipation of a bloody brawl, will pack Chicago Stadium tonight to watch reckless Rocky Graziano try to blast the middleweight crown off Sugar Ray Robinson.

If there are any late arrivals the scrap may be over before they see it. That also goes for millions of television viewers and radio listeners throughout the country. But both will be wise to tune in on time for this one.

At 10 p.m. (EST) the mauling Graziano, his steaming right cocked for an opening, will start bulling his way in toward Robinson, the masterful stylist with lightning in each fist.

Most observers think the clash won't go more than eight rounds of the scheduled 15. Robinson is a big favorite and odds are even that he will score a knockout inside eight heats.

Robinson wears 11 inches of hemstitching around his eye from gashes opened by Randy Turpin when he lost his middleweight title to the Briton and won it back in a rematch last fall.

Rocky undoubtedly will be smiling at that old wound with the strategy that if he can't beat the champion down for the count he might bloody him up enough to score a technical knockout.

No one knows better than George Gainford, Robinson's manager, the threat that Graziano presents as well as the 29-pound New York mauler's stubborn refusal to stay down once he has been knocked there.

Rocky's ripping rally for a sixth-round TKO over Tony Zale in Chicago Stadium in 1947 after he had been badly battered for five rounds by the man-of-steel has never been forgotten in Chicago.

"I think Ray will win, but it won't be easy," Gainford carefully appraised. "Robinson will have to use caution every minute and not take any chances."

Joe Louis, who watched both fighters train, summed it up:

"Rocky has to get awful lucky to score a knockout—but it could happen."

Blank Montreal Canadiens 3-0 To Sweep Finals 4 Straight; Prystai Hero With Two Goals

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Detroit, April 16. (CP)—Detroit Red Wings, a team that did everything expected of it and teased in a couple of record-breaking licks for good measure, today are the proud possessors of the Stanley Cup, professional hockey's most-sought-after treasure.

The champions belted Montreal Canadiens 3-0 here last night before a standing-room crowd of 14,545 to complete the best-of-seven round-in-four straight. With it, the club termed by Manager Jack Adams as his "most balanced team in 25 years", wrote in a couple of revisions in the National League record books.

Last nights triumph, fashioned on the two-goal performance of Metro Prystai and a single by Glen Skov, gave the Wings their eighth straight victory in the play-offs, a record. And it was the fifth season they have won the double-tie—league and cup—another record.

Four Shut-outs

Personal satisfaction also went to freckle-faced Terry Sawchuk, 23-year-old Winnipeg-born goalkeeper who had four playoff shut-outs, two over Canadiens and a pair against Toronto Maple Leafs as the defending cup champions dropped four straight in the finals.

Sawchuk equalled the mark set by Dave Kerr with New York Rangers in 1940 and repeated by Frank McCool with the Leafs seven years ago.

Canadiens, who finished the league schedule in second place 22 points behind Detroit, were a well-beaten club. They had a revamped line-up due to injuries and were physically worn out after a tough seven-game semi-final set.

But even at full strength and rested, it is doubtful they could have taken this 1952 edition of the Wings who haven't an obvious soft spot from the goal mind to the 16th man on the bench.

They had Detroit's established stars—Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach—as well-shielded throughout the series. Neither got a point. Their kids—Alex Delvecchio, Johnny Wilson and Skov—outshone Canadiens much-talked-about "youth movement". Sawchuk, Vezina trophy winner this season and outstanding rookie in 1951, was spectacular and their defence of Bob Goldham, Ben Woit, Red Kelly, and Leo Reise packed a deadlier punch than Montreal's rearguard.

Had Scoring Punch

They had scoring punch in all three lines and a penalty-killing specialists in Tony Leswick and Kelly.

Richard was almost the goat last night as he sat out a holding penalty when Prystai banged in Delvecchio's pass at 6:50 of the opening period from about 10 feet out. But the Rocket, a great competitor, flashed great form for the remainder of the session and it wasn't his fault Canadiens did not score.

Canadiens played a bashing, hard thumping first period but then the zip left them.

Skov made it 2-0 with 21 seconds remaining of the second period when Montreal's defence weakened and the clincher was supplied by Prystai at 7:25 of the third. Prystai also got an assist on Skov's counter.

Regina Trims Fort William To Tie Series

Regina, April 15—CP—Regina hockey fans today are waiting with relish for tomorrow's fifth game of the best-of-seven Western Canada Memorial Cup hockey final.

They're waiting to see if Pats will manage to get out in front for the first time against their fighting Fort William Hurricanes.

Pats have scored three times in the last, period last night without a reply from the Hurricanes to win a 5-3 victory and knot the series at 2-2.

Pats have tied the series twice, winning the second and fourth games while Hurricanes took the first and third. The first three were played at Fort William, with the remainder scheduled for Regina.

Queen's Plate Value $21,000

Toronto, April 16 (CP) —The Queen's Plate, scheduled for May 24 at Woodbine Park, will be run for an estimated value of $21,000.

The plate running tops the Ontario Jockey Club stakes in horse racing from May 17 to June 2. The Spring season's purse approximately $200,000 in prize money.

Fort Frances Downs Edmonton

Fort Frances, Ont., April 16—(CP) — Fort Frances Canadians hold a one-game lead in their defence of their Western Canada Senior hockey title after defeating Edmonton Pats 7-1 here last night.

Canadians lead the best-of-seven series 2-1 with one game tied. The fifth game will be played here tomorrow.

The victory was easy for the Lakehead senior champions once they got by the first period. Playing on home ice for the first time in the series ,they scored one goal in the first frame two in the second and four without reply in the fourth.

Pitchers Stage Twin No-Hitter

Memphis, Tenn., April 16. (AP) —Two pitchers locked in a real mound duel here Monday, a double no-hitter.

The winner, Andy Sawyer, a lefthander at Humes High, walked two Catholic High batters while striking out nine. His opponent, Pat Ryan, struck out three and walked two.

Humes won 2-0 on Catholic's errors.

Canadian bee-keepers in 1951 produced nearly 41,000,000 pounds of honey, valued at $6,294,000.

Guelph Blanked By Canadians In Fifth Game

Montreal, April 16.—(CP)— The wizardry of goalie Charlie Hodge and a third-period goal by Don Marshall last night gave Montreal's junior Canadiens a new lease on life in their quest for the Memorial Cup.

It was this combination that gave the junior Habs a 1-0 decision over the highly-rated Guelph Biltmores last night and enhanced their chances of victory when the best-of-seven series resumes in Toronto Friday night.

Guelph now leads the eastern Canadian final 3-2.

The puck-wise, heavier Guelph team outshot the Montrealers 'in all three periods, the number of shots buried at Hodge in the second period—16—being almost as many as stopped by goalie Marv Brewer of Guelph in the entire game.

Hodge had a busy night stopping 40 of the shots that came from all angles. Some of his saves bordered on the miraculous.

Some 7,000 fans saw fast, hard-checking hockey that had them on the edge feet for the start of the game. Seven of the 10 penalties came in the first period.

At 4:04 of the last period, defenceman Gerry Patrick carried the puck down and shot directly on the net. The puck bounced off a Guelph player's skate and Marshall was on it like a flash and slapped it past Brewer for what proved to be the deciding tally.

Sports Roundup

(By GAYLE TALBOT)

New York, April 16 (AP)—The Giants were sitting around in the locker room yesterday, all their uniforms after yesterday's opener against the Phils had been called by rain, and manager Leo Durocher was parrying questions from a dozen writers in his office.

The subject principally was Dick Wakefield, signed to a Giants' contract as a pinch-hitter.

Leo, who never does things by halves, had just said he was crazy about Wakefield when somebody asked him what he thought he could do about the Wakefield opposition.

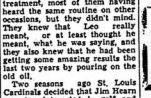
"Pitulations?" yelped. "What in hell do I care about his pitulations so long as he hits that ball for me? All I can tell you is that I'm calm and everybody on this club likes him and he's tickled to death to be with us. That's good enough for me and I'll tell you Dick's going to do all right.

"I never saw him before in my life and I'm not paying any attention to the things they say about him or his liking to play baseball. He says he wants to play baseball now for us and that's all I'm interested in. He'll get a chance from me."

The listeners knew they were being subjected to the Durocher treatment, most of them having heard the same routine on other occasions, but they didn't mind. They knew that Leo really meant, or at least thought he meant, what he was saying, and they also knew that he had been getting some amazing results the last two years by working on the old oil.

Two seasons ago St. Louis Cardinals decided that Jim Hearn was too interested in golf and other pursuits to pitch any longer for them, and they let Leo have him in the waiver price. Leo told Jim that, personally, he thought he probably was the greatest pitcher in the National League, and Jim has come very near proving him correct.

The "new" Durocher devotes a lot of time to soaping up the boys, and they respond to it by putting out a little extra for him. We are convinced that the present generation of players will extend themselves more consistently for a manager of this type than they will for the martinets of the old school.



Waterloo Wins

Waterloo, April 16 (CP)—Waterloo Hurricanes dropped Hamilton Jets 6-2 here last night. Hamilton has a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior B semi-finals.

Weston Dukes Defeat Hawks 11-1 To Sweep Junior B Series Four In Row

Twenty-Eight Penalties Mark Rugged Battle Before 1500; Dukes Had Polish and Finish

Weston Dukes, flashing too much polish and finish brushed aside the Belleville Hawks from further play-off competition here last night winning their fourth straight semi-finals series battle by an 11-1 score. The Dukes meet the winners of the Hamilton-Waterloo series for the provincial title.

It was a wild, brawling battle with 28 penalties, nine of them minors being handed out by referees Maurice Wade, Kennedy, and Jim Crombie. Bowmanville. Sixteen of the sentences went to the Hawks with Jack Wilson and Ted Lord with two majors a misconduct and a game.

Fights broke out at intermittent periods although no actual damage was done. The boys wore gloves at the slightest provocation and at one time a spectator reached over the boards to get in the fray. The officials ended the scrap and had and the offender ejected.

The game was halted twice to permit extra personnel to clear the ice from littered programs. With minutes to go referee Wade announced he would award the game to Weston if the fans persisted in tossing programs on the ice.

Early Goal

A more or less surprise goal scored by the Dukes 51 seconds after play started in the first period seemed to take the sting out of the Hawks. The Dukes added another after eight minutes and counted two goals, one deflected off a Hawk player in the wild second period. Twelve penalties were handed out in the mid-session as tempers flared and gloves and fists flew. There were no Alphonse and Gaston gestures at any time, the players of both teams started swinging with little or no reason.

The Dukes struck their stride in the third period which saw another parade to and from the penalty box The starry "Little Leafs" paced by Bill Harris and McCarthy had home seven goals, with their stick-handling and passing standing out. Billy Strahan finally "broke the Hawks egg" when he raced down ice with Lalande and Jacklin to drive the puck past Albani with five minutes remaining in the game.

In fairness to the Hawks it must be said they did not get any of the "breaks." They deserved at least four goals but the puck swished around goal posts or over the net for "near-misses" or else was tossed aside by Albani in the Dukes net.

Reid Got Four

Don Reid, flashy Weston centre, was one of the standouts for the victorious Dukes, smashing home four goals and assisting McCarthy with two others. The latter also stood out driving home a trio of markers and helping with two others. Elick got a pair and Zalay a 15-year-old midget playing his first game with the Dukes combined with Bill Harris to score another. Harris, one of the smoothest hockey players to show his wares here got one and one. Chapman also played well but spoiled an otherwise good effort with three minors and a major penalty.

Ted DeCray was the "workhorse" of the Hawks. He played an outstanding game all night going both ways and got himself but one penalty, and that a borderline one. Lalande and Mason also turned in good efforts while Bob Wilson bumped everything that came his way not passing up any opportunities for fisticuffing.

A crowd of over--1,500 saw the brawling finale to one of the best junior hockey seasons experienced in Belleville. The Hawks were beaten by a better all-round team and were not by any means disgraced even if they were eliminated in four straight games.

Veterans Steal Show From Rookies As Baseball Season Gets Under Way

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Exactly two dozen rookies, the most in more than 20 years, saw action yesterday as the 1952 baseball season got under way. And while the majority of them did little more than hold their breath and fight off their nervousness, up stepped the grizzled veterans to steal the show.

Here is a blow-by-blow account. Boston—A chilled gathering of 4,694 watched 34-year-old Preacher Roe stifle the Braves' bats with seven hits as Brooklyn edged out a 3-2 victory. Roy Campanella, Brooklyn's 31-year-old catcher rapped out three hits, the last scoring two mates to highlight the Bucs' first run and a single by the much-travelled George Metkovich that scored the other.

Washington—Walt Dropo doubled in two runs and Ted Williams' booming triple accounted for the other as the Boston Red Sox shut out the Senators, 3-0. Mel Parnell, the sterling southpaw, issued only three hits as he whipped the Nats for the 15th straight time.

Cincinnati—Four rookies appeared in the lineups—two each for Chicago and Cincinnati—but it was a third inning grand slam homer by 33-year-old Hank Sauer and a run-scoring pinch single by 31-year-old Gene Hermanski that enabled the Cubs to beat the Reds 6-5, in 10 innings. And who do you think batted in the Reds in the final inning? None other than 42-year-old Dutch Leonard. Chicago's rookie Toby Atwell collected two singles.

Blustery, cold and wet weather ruined the opening day attempts of the New York Giants and Philadelphia Athletics. Weather permitting, the Giants will inaugurate their season tonight against Philadelphia Phillies while the Athletics will stick to daylight with New York Yankees as their opponents.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By The Associated Press

Batting: Sam Jethroe, Boston—Slammed three singles in his first three driving in two runs in the fifth inning to give the Dodgers a 3-2 victory over the Braves.

Pitching: Mel Parnell, Red Sox — Pounded the Senators with three singles in gaining his 15th straight triumph over Washington as the Red Sox shut out the Nats 3-0.

International Baseball League Opens Today

New York, April 16 (AP)—The International baseball league opens its 69th consecutive season today and once again the powerful Montreal Royals loom as favorites to win the pennant.

Approximately 40,000 fans are expected to show up for the four openers which find Montreal at Syracuse, Ottawa at Buffalo, Rochester at Springfield and Toronto at Baltimore.

The Royals, who won the pennant and playoffs last season, are well stocked and require little help from the parent Brooklyn Dodgers.

Montreal is expected to get off to a fast start while the other teams will go along primarily with rookies until May 15 when they expect help from the Majors who have to cut down to 25 men on that date.

Rochester and Buffalo may give the Royals trouble as both are counting on strong help from the St. Louis Cardinals and Detroit Tigers respectively.

Two teams are under new ownership this season and four have new managers.

Philadelphia Athletics have taken over the Ottawa franchise from New York Giants and Detroit has acquired the Buffalo club.

The new pilots are Frank Skaff, Ottawa, Jack Tighe, Buffalo, Don Heffner, Baltimore and Harry Walker, Rochester. Holdover managers are Walt Alston, Montreal, Bill Kelly Springfield, Bruno Betzel, Syracuse, and Joe Becker, Toronto.

The probable opening day pitchers and attendance:

Montreal at Syracuse—Lasorda vs Keegan 10,000.

Ottawa at Buffalo—Hrebczak or Kunz vs Borowy 14,000.

Rochester at Springfield—Deal or Martin vs Padget 7,000.

Toronto at Baltimore—Lombardi vs Greenwood 10,000.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
Bell Syndicate

Ticklish situations in bridge may bob up at any time from any angle. For instance, a partner of a takeout doubler may not take it out. The doubler must know what is meant thereby.

A double for takeout orders partner to bid if the intervening bidder (1) makes no bid, or (2) redoubles. And the weaker a hand he has the more important it is for doubler's partner to take it out.

So, if partner of doubler passes (refuse to take it out), what could be his purpose? Only that he expects to help defeat the bid. In other words, he admits defeating strength of some kind.

Does he say what kind of strength? Most assuredly. The strength it promises are tricks in the opponents' trump suit. The doubler shows outside strength. His passing partner shows opponent trump strength.

South opens with a heart and west doubles for takeout. The north hand redoubles. East is now forced to bid something. It is what west has a right to expect from east. It is what west requested.

But suppose east has a hand like the one shown here:

♥ Q J 9 8 7
♦ A 3 2 10 9
♣ 7 2

The west double promises a hand that is as good as an opening one bid of one; four highs with two sures and stuff. Combined with the east cards, south will have a tough time making one heart.

Under such circumstances, why should east give up a good thing for something doubtful? He passes and tells west that there is more to be made by defeating opponents than by doing anything else.

This pass is known as a penalty pass of a takeout double. It is a pass that turns the takeout double into a penalty double.

Can west misunderstand the meaning of the east pass? Not if he knows his elementals. Because east is forced to bid in that spot if he is weak; or unable to defeat one heart. Every thing in its place.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 16 (AP)—How would you like it if your children said to you "what's for dinner, Mabel?" or "can I go see a movie, Sam?"

Joan Evans, the teen-age film actress, says she sees nothing wrong in calling parents by their first names. In fact, she thinks all parties would get along much better if the traditional "mother" and "dad" were dropped.

This observation arose during a conversation about movies and things over lunch. The 17-year-old starlet kept referring to her parents, Dale and Katherine Eunson, by their first names.

"Oh, I've always called my parents 'Dale' and 'Katherine'," she remarked, "and think that accounts for the wonderful relationship we have with each other. We have fun together, and we can discuss things on an adult level.

Talking Down

"I think the trouble with a lot of parents is that they 'talk down' to their children. They refuse to think of their kids as growing up. Children naturally resent this treated as individuals. I think the use of 'mother' and 'dad' helps to widen the gap.

"My parents always included me in their circle of friends," she said. "I don't mean that I horned-in on thei. conversations; I could listen a large part of the time. But at least I wasn't considered an outsider, as most children are. I got to know my parents' friends and called them by their first names, too."

But didn't she miss something out of childhood?

"Not at all. I played games the same as other kids. Maybe I played a little harder."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Important secret matters, shipping, maritime interests, confidential and secretarial endeavors need careful watching and execution.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—A half-hearted interest will get just that type of return for your efforts. Stars indicate fine possibilities for well run schedule.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Matters that require finesse, artistry, professional interest among many favored. Personal affairs, courtship, marriage rate high.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer)—will pay to keep facilities alert in generous day. Stars promote fine progress in many business, professional and personal undertakings.

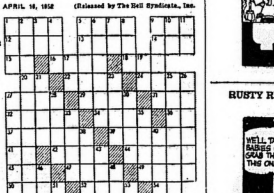
July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Whether your activities are confidential or otherwise they can be gainful with smart honest management. The alert, keen, ready workers and thinkers will gain.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Very friendly vibrations. Exert all your knowledge, tact and business sense and you will achieve much. Heart affairs sponsored if thoughtfully handled.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Don't be misled into doing the unconventional. Go wisely, albeit eagerly, through this fairly well aspected day. Don't depend on luck but on effort.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Eyes open for new and unusual leads from unexpected sources. A keen outlook, good intention and real endeavor can bring top results. Romance sponsored.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—You can do well if you go through honest, ambitious channels. Use your natural gifts, ability; not others' suggestions today. Extra push may be needed.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Retrench, watch assets and liabilities. Be sure and finish matters before starting others. Create good will; adopt constructive pattern.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Be adroit and on the job. Think fast but don't act that way in all matters. Being amenable gets results; may have to forget own desires awhile.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—If you avoid emotionalism and self-pity you can really expect gains and fine co-operation. Abide the Golden Rule; you are sure to be happy.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately ambitious, courageous, inclined to be rash at times. Unusual ability and leadership qualities inherent. Forget impatience to be headstrong, domineering. You have big things to do in this world, so don't hamstring them by indulging in faults that should be corrected. Pray daily for direction. Birthdate: J. Pierpont Morgan, financier; Henry Vaughan, 17th Cent. poet.

Why Use Say--

BY HOOK OR CROOK

This saying, which means to do things by one or another, probably dates back to the days when the poor of the richest land in either Europe or Asia were forced to steal fish and pulled down those above reach with a crook. A hook and crook got the worst of it.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking to school with Lucky Leroy Shooter, and all of a sudden what did I find on the sidewalk but a cent that Lucky Leroy didn't even see, and Lucky lived close and picked it up, saying, Oh boy, I'm lucky at last, I knew my luck would change when my father gave me back my lucky horse shoe.

Meaning of course, a pop having kept it for about a week after it fell off the side over my door and just missed his head but not his shoulder, and Lucky Leroy said, I don't understand why I didn't happen to see it before, I was just looking.

You mean you used to be, but am now, those are the words I used, said Lucky said, Aw, don't worry, I'll find something any time.

Which just then he did, behind Lucky Leroy said, Heck my contentment for Gleemo Shampoo on the cover and half the coupon is torn out of it, and Lucky said, There, what did I tell you? and picked it up and I felt sorry I said. You know darn well you're not allowed to carry matches. I'm the lucky one from now on, you'll see, I said, and Lucky said, Heck my luckiness has stopped, darn it all.

Aw, cheer up, everybody cant be lucky, I said, and Lucky said, I'm disturbed, I'm going to find these darn matches away,

Which he did, finding them out to some man going passed and asking, Here's some matches, mister, and the man quick took them, saying, Well, this is a day for a change, hitching to make a cigarette for half an hour, but I hate to stop anybody to ask for a life. They always think I'm going to buy them for the price of a cup of coffee. Blessings on you, little man, take this, he saying.

Meaning a dime, and we kept on going to school, me saying, Aw, what's the use?

Which what is?

Simulated Bomb Attacks to Test UK Civil Defence

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 16 — (CP) — The test results of months of study and training, Britain's civil defence forces — about 200,000 strong — will launch a series of large-scale exercises this spring under conditions simulating an actual atomic-bomb attack.

Although the government has not abandoned hope that an international agreement may yet be reached to outlaw atomic force as a weapon of destruction, it is taking no chances.

Civil defence units have been operating for some time in every strategic centre through the country. Hundreds of officers and students already have taken special courses at the home office civil defence college at Sunningdale Park and at three other schools in Gloucestershire, Yorkshire and Perthshire.

Graduates of these schools will instruct local volunteers in measures to neutralize some of the effects of scientific warfare should the country become involved in a third world war.

The public relations that visited Japan after the atom bomb attacks on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, estimated that 50,000 persons might lose their lives in a typical British city with a population density of 45 persons to an acre—if caught without warning by a high air burst atomic bomb.

Realistic Touch

The public, however, has been assured that civil defence is far from powerless against atomic attack and that casualties can be greatly reduced by adequate advance preparations, suitable shelters and an efficient defence organization.

The first practical exercises will be devoted to tests of communications at various control centres. The results will then be gradually extended to bring the military, police, fire and hospital services into action to cope with an imaginary atomic attack in a selected area.

To forestall any possibility of public misunderstanding, air-raid sirens and fire alarms will not be sounded during the exercises.

In some centres defence units will carry out their exercises in daylight hours only, where fire and bomb incidents can be staged and life-saving methods practiced.

Kingston Plant Gutted by Fire, Loss $60,000

Kingston, Ont., April 16 (CP) — The Kingston Creamery was gutted by fire early today causing damage estimated at between $40,000 and $60,000. Nine persons in an adjoining building were forced to flee their homes in nightdress.

The owner of the creamery, Douglas McNiven, said the plant was a total loss and the damage estimate might go higher.

The alarm was turned in at 1.50 a.m. by Mrs. Russel Spencer who lives next door to the creamery. It took Kingston's 25 firemen about an hour to get the blaze under control. No one was injured.

Mrs. Spencer said the saw flames shooting out of the three-storey frame structure which is covered with metal sheeting. The creamery plant was in the second floor with the top floors used as a warehouse.

The Spencer home was damaged by smoke and water and the roof slightly by a fire on the shingles.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, their three children ranging in age from five to 11, and several roomers were forced to evacuate the house. The household was awakened by Mrs. Spencer's screams. The children, who were sleeping in the attic, were led out of the smoke-filled house by the roomers. Mr. Spencer was away at the time working in a nearby plant.

In the front part of the gutted building near the waterfront is a foods products firm. Their premises were not burned and employees kept on working during the fire.

WINDSOR DOCTOR

Five charged were proved, three were not proved and on the ninth the committee decided to make no finding.

Used Secret Remedy

The committee found that Dr. Hett, while practising medicine in Windsor, used a "secret remedy" in his treatment of human ailments.

It found that he had consistently refused to disclose to duly-qualified medical practitioners generally the formula of the substance with which he treated patients.

Also proved was a charge that he published and distributed pamphlets and circulars containing "extravagant and unwarranted claims which evidence a desire to attract patients for financial gain" and that the pamphlets contai nedthera PHDLAI HRDL HR tained statements derogatory to the medical profession and calculated to bring scorn and derision upon it.

It also found that pamphlets bearing pictures of a school in which it was alleged a school for doctors was operated, while addressed to the medical profession but distributed to the public, "can only be deemed an effort to mislead the public and perpetrate a fraud upon it."

Not proved were charges that Dr. Hett made promises to cure, that he had incorrectly claimed other doctors endorsed his treatment and that he had made certain statements about the surgeons who operated on the late Edsel Ford and the late Ed Seagram.

The committee made no finding on statements in Dr. Hett's pamphlets concerning the 1938 commission, it had been charged they were misleading.

At the time of the commission investigation, Dr. Hett was operating a clinic in Kitchener, where he began his medical practice in 1891. Several years later, the Hett cancer treatment and research foundation obtained a federal charter and soon afterward Dr. Hett transferred his clinic to Windsor.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Eve Wheeler had her second wind. "I would mean Dave Sladen. Messy little character. Not that I think Sally would have gone for either Dave or Ames Warburton, in the final analysis. She's got too much inborn common sense. But she isn't doing anything about herself: she's turned down goodness knows how many, for one reason or another. Now she's just drifting. And that's bad. But . . ."

"Along came Orth!"

"Yes." Her eyes full on mine, made me think of machine gun fire. "You came along. I don't think you're worth a hoot, but I'm on your side. I only hope you're not playing around. If that's it, Jim Orth, you'd do everybody a big favor just to get out. Sally's too fine, too swell . . ."

She broke it off as if struck by a bullet. Broke it off and stepped back, dropping her head heavily. She took that precaution a little late.

The shocked sibilant gasp from the doorway had been smothered, but imperfectly. The echo of it seemed to rasp, strangely, around the billiard room.

Then there came a swift soft sound, a patter, as of hurrying feet.

I wheeled, ran to the door. The hallway outside was deserted.

The evening began very nicely, deceptively nicely. We had a superlative dinner and then we all sat, high men in, to see who would play bridge. I fished a trey out of the deck. Sally drew a five. That eliminated us, as the others drew higher cards.

Which meant that Eve Wheeler, Dave Sladen, Jack Dumont and Marney Cravath would stay put. So I began trying to figure ways and means of drawing Sally away from this crowd.

I gave up trying to lure Sally out by subtle methods. "Listen," I said into her ear, as the others were getting set for combat, "let's hitbitz for a decent interval. Then —well, I feel like singing in the rain."

"I don't think you can sing a note," Sally whispered back. "But I might listen . . . in the rain."

We hitched for five minutes. After that I caught her eye and we mutually deemed the moment propitious. She got up, gave Cravath a maternal pat on the side of the head.

"Watch it, Uncle Marney," she cautioned.

Suddenly a rough, strident voice came booming down the hallway. "I've got something to say and I'd like to see you or anybody else stop me. . . Take your hands off me, you fool. Okay! You asked for it and you'll get it. Just like that!"

The sound of a smart slap and a shocked little cry mingled with the echo of it. Then footsteps pounded determinedly on the stairs.

For a second our group in the living room seemed caught in a kind of frozen silence. All but one member. Jack Dumont swept back his chair and rocketed to his feet. He was in time to intercept Dolly as she came lurching through the doorway.

"Have you gone completely mad?" he snapped, grabbing her arm.

Dolly Dumont may not have been mad, but she was definitely fried to the eyeballs. She wore a low-cut black sheer, a heavy gold bracelet and matching earrings. She was rouged to the nines, hand heavy probably and eyes uncertain when she'd slapped the stuff on. There was still a bandage around her head, smaller than the one in which she'd been swathed the previous day.

On Dolly's heels, minced Nurse Burroughs, looking frightened and apologetic. One side of her face was a blotchy red.

"I—I couldn't do a thing with her," she began to Dumont. "She simply wouldn't listen."

"Shut up!" Dolly wheeled on the nurse, green eyes blazing. "And get out of here, you pussy-footing, rubber-soled bag." Jack Dumont, take your hands off me too. Or you'll get what she got."

Dumont didn't heed the warning. He slid an arm around her waist, tried to turn her back toward the hallway. "Dolly! You're making a fool of yourself."

She spun like an angry cat in the semi-circle of his arm. A hand flashed up. Vivid nails tore three red gashes in Dumont's cheek. Dumont swore involuntarily and pushed her away. He stepped back, whipping out a handkerchief.

Dolly grasped the edge of the card table with both hands and leaned over it. Her eyes were like green ice. "Think you can stand up and face me, Eve Wheeler?"

Every eye in the room raced to Eve. She sat very still and composed.

"I don't know what you mean, Dolly," she said quietly.

he table shook beneath Dolly's straining excited grip. "Well, I'll tell you. Killing that poor kid was not enough, was it? Not enough to satisfy a spoiled, rich harpy like you. You start in, with the Warburton boy scarcely cold, to work on another kid. I saw you draping yourself all over him in the billiard room. Any man's your meat, young or old."

Eve opened her mouth again, but only a horrified little gasp came from it.

Dolly herself broke that crackling silence. She let loose another torrent, the way a prizefighter does when his opponent is in the ropes and groggy.

"But, of course, it's nothing new to you. This isn't the first time you've killed somebody. You've had experience. You get them crazy about you, lead them on. Sometimes you even marry them. Dumont swore involuntarily and pushed her away. He stepped back, whipping out a handkerchief.

Dolly grasped the edge of the card table sidewise. The next instant he was standing over Dolly, fists clenching at his sides, face practically purple.

"You shut your foul, lying mouth, Dolly," he roared. He shot a sudden apologetic look at Jack Dumont—"I'm sorry, Jack. But I won't stand for this. Even from your wife."

Dumont came out of the shocking trance that had gripped us all. He slipped forward on sure feet. He took both of Dolly's elbows in big hands. "Now," his voice was a high whine, "that's enough. Will you walk out of here or do I carry you out?"

"Just a minute!" Eve's voice rang out, sharp and clear. "She can't go yet. Not what she's said I'm entitled to an explanation."

Eve Wheeler was pretty magnificent at that moment. She put her cards down without any haste, her chin up. As leisurely she got up, walked around a card table still shaking from the jostling Cravath had given it. She faced Dolly Dumont. And in some subtle manner she made Dolly look cheap, silly and melodramatic.

"I'm willing to make allowances Dolly," she said slowly, "for the fact that your not yourself. I'm even willing to forget that you've embarrassed me, as I never hope to be embarrassed again. But I won't let them take you away until you make yourself a little more clear, to me and everybody else. After all"—attractive shoulders lifted—"you've accused me of murder. And not just one murder."

"Eve!" Behind a suddenly and strangely quiet Dolly, Dumont spoke. Dumont's face was red with mortification and trickling red from Dolly's scratches. "Forget it!"

"No, Jack." Eve was very calm. "We don't. So, Dolly what exactly did you mean? You seem to think that I killed Ames Warburton. Just why I'd do that passes my understanding. But you also implied that I was very experienced . . . at killing. Just who else did you have in mind?"

Had Dolly hurled her accusations cold sober, I might have sympathized with her. Eve Wheeler was entirely self-possessed, quite beautiful, and even a little aloof, remote, from us all.

Want Gut Dam Removed

Mayor Allan Lamport of Toronto has asked Transport Minister Chevrier to remove Gut Dam (arrows, middle) in the St. Lawrence River to lower the water level of Lake Ontario. Gut Dam, a small stone weir between two islands in the river near Prescott, Ont., would be removed eventually under plans for construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway. It would be replaced by a larger dam controlling the river and lake level, located further downstream. Its removal would involve consultation with the state of New York since the river's international boundary. School Trustees, Ratepayers Request Federal Grants To Provinces for Education

Toronto, April 17 —(CP) —The will grow up to drive a car, and Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers Associations yesterday asked for federal grants to the provinces for education.

The association, meeting in conjunction with the Ontario Educational Association, said in a resolution the cost of education has become a burden on property owners and the province.

J. J. Thomas of Victoria County said the federal government should assist in the establishment of a curriculum that the whole country.

"We don't want citizens of 10 different provinces, but citizens of Canada," he said.

Mr. Thurston pointed out that federal intervention might mean some federal control.

The trustees and ratepayers will also seek the addition of legislation permitting the establishment of separate schools for Negro children in the province.

Rev. G. H. Thomas of Markham, sponsor of the measure, said the legislation was contrary to Democratic principles. He said any form of discrimination is an offence to morals and harmful to community harmony.

Will Discuss Salaries

The O.E.A. agreed to seek a conference with the Ontario Teachers' Federation, the Ontario Municipal Highway Minister Doucett of Ontario will be asked to sponsor legislation which would compel motorists travelling in either direction to stop when a school bus halts to pick up or discharge passengers.

Courses in automobile driving in high school and university curriculums were favored by traffic inspector Vernon Page of Toronto who addressed the Urban Principals' Association.

He said that one of every two school children in public school

COMMISSIONERS ORDER FREIGHT RATE REDUCTION

Possibility Cuts Will Be Challenged in Courts

Ottawa, April 17 (CP) —Subsidized freight rate reductions for Western Canada have been ordered May 1, but there is some possibility the form of the $7,000,000-a-year cuts will be challenging in the courts.

The controversial reductions have split the western governments into two camps. Informants here said Alberta may go to the Supreme Court of Canada in an attempt to get a bigger slice of decreases announced last night by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The board in ordering the cuts —amounting roughly to five percent on some $150,000,000 a year on traffic moving between eastern and western Canada—worked out a compromise between opposing views of Manitoba on one hand and those of the three far western provinces.

Manitoba had asked that the reductions be applied on a cents-per-pound basis, which would give that province the biggest share in the benefits of the federal subsidy. The three western provinces had asked for percentage decreases, to give proportionately greater shares to provinces further west.

Alberta Would get Less

As worked out by the board, the system would leave Manitoba the objector to the cents-per-pound scheme—getting perhaps about half a year less than it would under the percentage basis.

Spokesmen for both the Alberta government and the city and Chamber of Commerce of Edmonton, it was understood, told the board at closed hearing last month that dividing from the percentage theory likely would be appealed to the Supreme Court as not carrying out the intentions of the 1951 parliamentary statute authorizing the subsidy.

It was their contention that parliament meant there should be relatively greater reductions for those provinces most distant from eastern supply sources. Informants here said that view has not changed. But the board has made known its intention of prescribing a compromise between the conflicting viewpoints.

Partially by Percentage

The board's ultimate plan, in a formula it devised yesterday, was for the reductions to be partly by cents per pound and partly by cents per pound. They are to be on the basis of 2.53 per cent of freight charges for each group of 100 pounds.

The effect of the reductions will be to lower rates on goods flowing from eastern Canada to western consumers over the northern Ontario rail "bridge" between the Lakehead and Winnipeg. Another aim is to help reduce disparities in freight rates in Canada as between east and west, in line with the federal government's rate-equalization policy.

The heavy eastbound movement of wheat, coarse grains and flour are depressed by statute, will not be affected by the reductions. They will the movement of Alberta and eastern British Columbia coal to Ontario, from which area is aided by Federal freight subventions.

Competitive rates—those lowered to meet competition—also will not be touched. These include the "transcontinental" rates between B.C. and the east, though the reductions will include a group of Alberta rates which are held by 1951 statute to a maximum of 1-3 the transcontinental rates.

Flood Waters In Eastend, Sask., Start to Recede

Residents Warned Dam Near Limit of Safe Margin

Eastend, Sask., April 17 (CP) — Flood waters were receding in Eastend today and one official said the 50 persons still in town were preparing to start cleaning up.

But about 25 miles northeast of the town of 800 population, Duncairn dam was under pressure from runoff waters flowing into the reservoir faster than it could be discharged over the spillways.

Hugh Robinson, provincial agriculture representative for the area said the water level in Eastend dropped by about 12 inches during the night and high spots of ground in the town were beginning to show.

But most of the town was still under water. He said he could only guess whether the worst now is over.

The telephone office in Eastend has been flooded and the only communication still operating is a direct line with Shaunavon, about 38 miles east.

850 Evacuated

Fifty persons were evacuated yesterday but about the same number remained. Eastend's resident were taken out.

Welfare Minister J. H. Sturdy said emergency supplies are being shipped to Swift Current for use in the event the Duncairn dam gives out. The dam is 5 miles southwest of Swift Current.

The 5,000-foot-long dam holds 850,000 acre feet of water. Its capacity allows a safety margin rapidly diminishing under the rapid intake.

Radio communications will be set up today between the dam and Swift Current. At least 10 members of the 16th Hussars regiments will go on active duty to man the radio until the emergency is over.

Meanwhile, prairie farm rehabilitation administration engineers warned that a new flood crest may still pass down the Frenchman River and Swift Current Creek because the wind-rush of runoff water from the Cypress Hills begins to diminish in four or five days.

Run-off waters were slowly receding, but it will be some time before the reduced flow reaches Swift Current.

Expects New Flood Crest

Sheriff T. L. Ferguson of Swift Current, in the police radio centre of Eastend flood relief efforts, last night warned of the possibility of a new flood crest.

He said the Cypress Hills were choked with snow, and that if small creeks feeding the Frenchman River thawed rapidly a new flood crest would hit the Eastend-Eastern area.

Late yesterday all but the handful of flood workers were evacuated, making a total of 800 persons removed from the town. Previously 200 had been quietly evacuated. Some 300 are billeted in Shaunavon and the rest in summer farm hotels around Eastend.

The cattle town, in a dustbowl in the "hungry thirties," is cut off from the outside world except by boat.

Sheriff Ferguson said two power boats, rubber boats and other supplies were taken to the area early in the day from Swift Current.

"You have to down the road right up to the water, then transfer to boats," he said.

UNITED FRONT FORMED IN S.A. TO FIGHT MALAN

Curbing of Court Power By Premier Opposed

Capetown, April 16. (CP)—An opposition leader told cheering thousands last night that the South African people will meet force with force if the Nationalist government creates incidents and then tries to stamp them out with autocratic power.

Supporters of three opposition groups formed a united front at a rally in Capetown city hall and called on the government to resign.

Observers said it was the biggest meeting here in 25 years.

The rally was called to oppose Prime Minister Daniel Malan's announced intention of curbing the power of South Africa's highest court, which has ruled out a key law in the government's white racial supremacy program.

Jacob Strauss, leader of the United Party, chief opposition group, read a declaration proclaiming the united front "to fight for the restoration of democratic government in South Africa." The common front move was launched by Strauss, John Cobbett, leader of the Labor party; and Group Capt. A. G. Malan, national president of the Torch Commandos, a group formed with the avowed intent of unseating the Nationalist government.

Strauss implied that Premier Malan's Nationalists following hoped to create incidents that would lead to a crackdown.

The declaration was made as parliament adjourned in the midst of debate over the critical court-curbing bill.

"We declare," the joint statement said, "we will resist any attempted rape of the South Africa Act (passed by the British parliament in 1909 to form the South African Union), no matter how it is disguised.

"We shall see to it that such rights as are extended to the less fortunate shall be defended and that the word of the white man as given by our greatest patriots and statesmen shall be honored."

Earlier, Louis Kane Burman, Torch Commando leader, publicly disclosed in an interview that the opposition was closing ranks in a move to "save the constitution and defend the rule of law."

U.S. Ambassador Woodward Says Americans Will Insist Upon Peace With Security

Windsor, Ont., April 17 — (CP) — United States Ambassador Stanley Woodward said today that peace with security — not a phony peace — is the national policy of his country.

And the aim of the policy is to promote "conditions throughout the world which will make peace possible," to "set up an environment in which peace can flourish."

In a speech to the Windsor Chamber of Commerce, the American ambassador said there are two main threats to peace. One is the unsatisfied needs of men throughout the world. The other is Soviet Russia.

"We must understand that we cannot stand idly by and permit the free nations to go under, one by one, before the force of the Soviets' arms or subversion. We cannot permit ourselves to be lulled into complacency. The communist threat is a direct threat to our way of life."

Mr. Woodward said "We feel that there is a terrible urgency to strengthen our arms so that we have the means to resist any possible aggression.

"Yet, while we rearm, we remain determined not to neglect our well-being or our program of preserving peace through economic aid to others. We know full well that our own security is intimately related to the economic strength of our friends."

R.C.A.F. Having Difficulty Getting Enough Aircrew

Ottawa, April 17—(CP)— The R.C.A.F. is having difficulty recruiting enough aircrew to keep up with its expanding jet fighter squadron program, Air Vice-Marshal Frank Miller, acting chief of the air staff, said today.

"Canadian youths are not going into aircrew like they used to," he said in an interview. "We do not know if it is a reluctance to get into the jet flying field, but the fact remains that there is at the present time great need for aircrew for this expanding air force of ours."

The situation in Canada, he said, corresponded with that outlined by Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg of the United States Air Force, who reported to Congress yesterday that the U.S.A.F. is finding it more and more difficult to persuade young recruits to fly the new types of command aircraft.

Another R.C.A.F. spokesman said the lack of jet pilots has not yet reached the "serious" stage, but a gradual worsening of the situation could conceivably clog the R.C.A.F.'s expansion plans.

Atomic Energy Sponges May Be Used to Mop Up Brain Cancers

By FRANK CAREY
(Associated Press Science Editor)

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 17 (AP)—Science is investigating the possibility of mopping up elusive brain cancers with atomic energy "sponges," two Chicago surgeons reported today.

The doctors said animal experiments suggested the possibility — but special sponges, filled with radioactive materials, and inserted into the human brain, might kill off possible remnants of malignant tissue after all visible cancerous tissue was removed by surgery.

Doctors Loyal Davis and Stanton L. Goldstein said trials in human patients are under way and results will be reported at a future date.

Absorbable sponges made by gelatenous or foggy material sometimes employed for checking hemorrhages — are being used.

The radioactive materials for impregnating the sponges consisted of either gold or phosphorous. Both are three ray-emitting materials are produced by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission at its Oak Ridge, Tenn., plant.

Reporting to a scientific meeting of the American Surgical Association, the surgeons explained which includes top teachers of surgical technique—the scientists gave this outline:

The major difficulty in attacking cancers deep-seated in brain tissue is that when the visible tumor is removed by surgery, microscopic cells remain hidden in the tumor "bed."

X-ray could be used to kill this remaining tissue, but its generally penetrating rays might also destroy normal tissue in the brain.

Tests with cats showed that when sponges impregnated with radio-active gold or phosphorus were inserted in the brain, the tissue-killing power of the rays was limited to a tiny area around the place of insertion.

There was no apparent adverse effect on the central nervous system of the animals.

"It was concluded that this method was worthy and safe for trial in patients."

Mysterious Objects Seen In Skies Over Ontario

Toronto, April 17. (CP) — Strange lights are reported there days in the skies over Ontario.

Forty-five men said they saw what appeared to be an unusual form of blimp hanging motionless above Hamilton and Sir Gordon Cordiner said it hovered just off Lake Ontario for about 15 minutes and then disappeared.

Mrs. Marie Woodland said she was sitting in a restaurant with four other women along Burlington Beach when she saw the thing.

"It had a halo-like fringe of color around it," she said. "But the main body seemed black. It was like something out of this world."

In Haliburton, 65 miles north of Lindsay, Mrs. Wesley Baker and a neighbor, Mrs. Henderson, a "flying teardrop." It circled their homes, travelling swiftly, described a semi-circle and disappeared in two minutes to be followed by another.

Mrs. Baker said: "It was coming from northwest, shaped sort of like a teardrop or a glorified tadpole. It had a long silver tail behind it that might have been smoke."

"Then I saw a second one following the first one. It was shaped exactly the same but seemed almost as though it was being pulled by the first one."

Air force men at North Bay have reported seeing flying saucers and disc.

And at Windsor a mystery about red lights in the sky was cleared up when an airline announced it had lost control of two of the lights on top of its planes.

Fire Hazard Rising in Many Parts of Ontario

Toronto, April 17 (CP) —The forest fire hazard is rising in many parts of Ontario as a result of this week's warm weather, the lands department said today.

Since Tuesday, three fires have been put out in the Kenora district of northwestern Ontario.

One was caused by Indians burning dead grass and shrubbery on a muskrat marsh, another by a RDL a muskrat marsh, one by a man who left his camp-fire burning after he stopped to skin a beaver and the third was started on children playing with matches.

290 TAKEN FROM SAFE

Niagara Falls, April 17 (CP) — About 290 were taken from the safe in Principal A. G. McColl's office in the Niagara Falls Recreation and Vocation Institute last night. The thieves entered through a window in the shop window of the school and used tools from the shop to pry open the safe.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 17 (CP) —Synoptic: Strong southwesterly winds over most of Canada. The westerly flow of warm air which gave temperatures 20 degrees above normal on the prairies yesterday was at which broke the previous record of 65 set in 1938.

The warm summer weather will continue over the entire province today and Friday. There is a good chance that Toronto will record high of 75 for April 18 will be broken on Friday. This record was set in 1913.

51st Reception Guest Throws Party in Dither

New York, April 17—(AP)— The 51st guest at Lawrence Jones' dinner party can put him to quite a dither. She was Jones' undivorced first wife.

The story was revealed in Queens County court yesterday when the assistant district attorney obtained a warrant charging Jones with bigamy.

Mrs. Doris Jones, 29, 1947. They have two children.

Jones, 34, met Mrs. Audrey Hauck, 23. They were married April 5 and the wedding for 50 guests was held at Audrey's home.

The reception was well under way when Doris Jones arrived, Jones insisted her off to a hotel telling her he would straighten everything out. Then she went back to the reception, claimed his bride and took her to a hotel.

The present whereabouts is not known.

DROWNED IN WATER HOLE

Welland, April 17 (CP) — Paul Joseph Perron, 19 months old, was drowned yesterday in a shallow water hole while playing in the yard of his parents' farm home. His mother, who found him floating face down, attempted artificial respiration and then dashed down a car which took the child to hospital where he was pronounced dead.

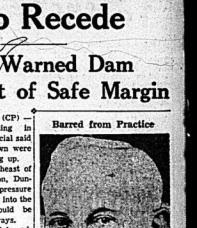
Two New Drugs Reduce High Blood Pressure, Often Keep It Normal

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

New York, April 17 (AP) —Two pills, taken daily, can knock down high blood pressure and often keep it normal.

The two drugs offer a practical method of controlling high blood pressure, but are not a cure. They must be taken every day and used carefully. Their use has to be continued. It's too early yet to tell whether trouble may come from long-time use.

This is the substance of a report prepared by Dr. Henry A. Schroeder of Washington University, St. Louis, for the American Heart Association in Cleveland.



The drugs act on the sympathetic nervous system, the other on the central nervous system. The first is hexamethonium chloride, made by Chilcott Laboratories under the name of Methium. The second is 1-hydrazinophthalazine, made under the name Apresoline by Ciba Pharmaceutical Co.

Dr. Schroeder reports that on 40 patients for from 6 to 16 weeks.

Results are best in high pressure which proceeds slowly. It is much less effective in keeping normal pressure in malignant hypertension, or high pressure which rapidly gets worse. The drugs did not help in severe cases.

Dr. Schroeder said the drugs must be used carefully to bring blood pressure down slowly, to avoid shock or death. The drugs sometimes produce headaches, dizziness or other effects.

Barred from Practice

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario has barred Dr. John Emil Hett, 81, of Windsor, from the practice of medicine in Ontario, for what is described as "infamous and disgraceful conduct in a professional sense." It was the second time in 15 years that the college erased Dr. Hett's name from the list. The announcement of the disbarment said Dr. Hett has refused consistently to divulge the formula of his "secret remedy" for cancer, arthritis, diabetes and peptic ulcers. In Windsor Dr. Hett said he has "no intention of quitting practice." — (CP Photo.)

THREE SMALL FIRES KEEP FIREMEN BUSY

Two grass fires and a chimney blaze occupied the attention of city firemen during the past 24 hours with no damage reported as result of any of the blazes. A grass fire at the "Sandy" Bain rows' property on East Bridge Street brought out firemen this morning.

DOG LICENCE SALE SLOW THUS FAR

Sale of dog licences at the city hall has been slow so far this year, it was reported today by city dog catcher Charles Thorn. He pointed out that licences for such pets are long past due and urged that dog owners attend to getting tags as soon as possible.

UNRESTRAINED DOGS SAID DOING MISCHIEF

The practice of many dog owners to allow their pets out for an unattended romp in the evening is resulting in complaints to police and to the city dog catcher. The dogs are roaming during the day and then are allowed to rove in the evening with result they are getting into fewer beds and other mischief.

Yesterday Betty Ann Dafoe, age two and a half, of 86 Station St, was bitten on the face by a dog and was taken to the hospital to have the gash closed with stitches. The dog will be destroyed.

EASTER PARADE POSTPONEMENT MAY PROVE BOON TO SOME

A few days won't make any difference. In fact the postponement of the Easter parade scheduled for Sunday last may prove a boon to some of the spring-togarry weaprys.

Some of fashion's exponents have, through the delay, been given the opportunity to "strut their stuff" and air their finery during the past couple of weary sunshiny days.

With the weather man giving his blessing, the gala and not a few of the boys should be "on parade" come Sunday.

MILLIONS OF PICKEREL EGGS COLLECTED BY HATCHERY

Forty-million pickerel eggs had been collected up to the end of last week by spawning operatives of the Glenora hatchery. Two and one half million were taken on one day alone.

Manager Arley Bronson believes that the present heavy run will result in a record catch of one hundred million.

U.F. Co-operative Enjoys Banquet At Plainfield

Bob Wallo and Bob Alexander, two of the boyish stars of the Canadian Legion Junior Hockey team which will stage a highly entertaining variety show at the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday, April 25th.

Marking the close of a successful year, members of the Foxboro branch of the United Farmers' Co-operative held their first annual banquet in Plainfield on Thursday night. Approximately 225 enjoyed the dinner provided by the ladies' auxiliary of the Plainfield circuit.

Speaker was Arthur Musgrove, director of the United Co-operatives of Ontario who entertained with a number of amusing anecdotes bringing forcibly home the fact that co-operative was for farmers to use and the greater the use the greater the benefits.

He illustrated his remarks with the three musical terms, discord, unison and harmony, emphasizing that in harmony the true meaning and spirit of co-operatives is exemplified.

Reports Surplus

Mr. Roy Sills, director of the Foxboro branch, presided over the business meeting following the banquet. Reports showed the business was in good financial standing, the year closing with a healthy surplus in spite of heavy turnover. Following six years as director Mr. Sills announced his retirement. He paid tribute to those who had contributed to the success of the branch and extended the resignation of Cecil Ketcheson, secretary-manager during the past year.

Entertainment included harmonica selections by Gordon Ferrel and John Ketcheson and vocal solos by Frank Thompson, Mrs. Gordon Ferrel and Harry Harrison, assisted at the piano by Number of Visitors.

Included among those seated at the head table with Co-op officers and their wives were Mr. and Mrs. Ian Zythoff, Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. and Mrs. Robson, and Mr. and Mrs. Thompson of the Bank of Commerce at Belleville.

Toastmaster was Jack Jones.

All ladies present were named. They are Sherry DeMille, Tyendinaga, three years; Eric Bayers, Thurlow, three years; Douglas Ketcheson, Sidney, two years, and Fred Hesseman, Sidney, three years.

Extra Patrols on All Main Spawning Areas Placed Since Pickerel Run Started

Since the advent of the "pickerel run" a few days ago, conservation officers and part time staff of the D) artment of Lands and Forests have maintained extra patrols on all main spawning areas, a number of persons who failed to heed warnings have been apprehended and lost their fish and equipment as well.

Some illegal operations have reached a large scale. Officers seized 2,000 yards of gill net set by a commercial fisherman on pickerel in the closed waters of Hay Bay. Another seizure was that of 1,000 yards of gill net set by another fisherman in the bay near Point Anne.

Three Corbyville residents and three from Toronto have been named. They are Sherry DeMille, Tyendinaga, three years; Eric Bayers, Thurlow, three years; Douglas Ketcheson, Sidney, two years, and Fred Hesseman, Sidney, three years.

Conservation officers are maintaining a strict patrol of the banks of the Moira River and some nocturnal fishermen will feel the weight of the law.

Some of the stories have a humorous touch.

For instance there's the yarn of the chap, who was nonchalantly carrying a pickerel beneath his coat along Dundas Street. What he didn't know was the fact that the tail of the fish extended beneath the bottom of the coat, and was promptly spotted by a conservation officer. Then ensued a chase, and, the story goes, the "hunted" found the fish away.

Another fisherman had his expensive outfit confiscated when he attempted to make a sale of a juicy pickerel.

Here again, ignorance was expensive. His potential customer was an official in civilian clothes.

Steelworkers Growing Restive Over Pay Scales

Washington , April 17—(AP)— The United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.) were reported growing restive today under pay scales put into effect 17 months ago and the government was believed almost ready to give them an increase.

How much and how soon were questions Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer was not answering. Sawyer, boss of the seized industry, had a tentative date today with Philip Murray, steelworkers' president, and Benjamin Fairless, president of the United States Steel Corporation. Sawyer met separately with the two men yesterday presumably to lay the groundwork for a government-imposed wage boost.

President Truman seized the industry eight days ago when repeated attempts to reach agreement on a new work contract failed. The union's scheduled strike was immediately called off.

The union is demanding a three-instalment 17½-cent-an-hour wage boost, fringe benefits worth about 8½ cents and the union shop, which would require all workers to join the union.

Those are the settlement terms suggested by the wage stabilization board, which studied the dispute for two months.

The industry's highest offer is 12½ cents in wages, five cents in fringes—but no union shop. The industry says it would need a nine boost of $12 a ton—four times the increase the government says it will allow—to offset the union's demands.

Truman was severely criticized yesterday by Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Republican senate leader, for his steel seizure order. Bridges blamed the president for "failing create" the steel deadlock and raising "the gravest constitutional question since the war between the states."

Truman's opponents say he had no authority to seize the industry. The industry has filed half a dozen court suits making the same callin. But the government contends the president had ample seizure powers and that seizure was necessary to protect the country's military position "during this period of national emergency."

Detroit, April 17 (AP) —Another record has been chalked up for Terry Sawchuk, Detroit Red Wings' brilliant goaltender.

The last time Detroit fans saw Terry scored on was at the 2:06 mark of the second period in the regular National Hockey League game with Montreal here March 22. He shut out Toronto and Montreal twice each in the only playoff games here as the Wings swept both series.

Inquiry Opens

Peterborough, April 17 — (CP) — An inquiry opened here today into the death of Fred Brant, 54-year-old vagrant who had part of both feet amputated for frostbite after police left him five miles from town in near-zero weather.

The full-scale inquiry before Judge J. D. MacRae of Whitby was requested by the police and by Mayor Hugh Waddell.

Brant, whose home is in Lindsay, Ont., died on Jan. 14. After serving a 10-day sentence for vagrancy, he was driven five miles out of the city by police and then released.

Five days later he was arrested again in Peterborough for vagrancy, and then was suffering severe frostbite on both feet. After six weeks in hospital, doctors amputated all of his toes and an inch of both feet above the toes.

A. Martin of Peterborough, roadmaster of Belleville-Lindsay division, acted as master of ceremonies and called on Art McConnell of Campbellford, who outlined the years of faithful service given by Mr. Finnegan.

Mr. Fred Kent local section foreman, read an address and made the presentation of a brief case.

Recounts Humorous Incidents

After voicing his sincere appreciation to the donors, Mr. Finnegan recounted many interesting and humorous incidents which occurred during his years of service.

He began his employment with the railway at Coe Hill, Ontario, and in the intervening years had trained 28 operators of whom all but two are still in the service.

Brief addresses were also given by J. Callivan and A Parson of Peterborough, C. E. Beatty, of Belleville, and Bill Cook of Foxboro.

Violin music was provided by Albert Parson and F. Monoghan, while Messrs. J. Finnegan and Everett McCaughen delighted the gathering with step dancing.

Refreshments and a social hour brought a happy evening to a close.

FINE WEATHER ONLY

DO GOVERNMENTS CAUSE INFLATION?

Some time ago, a gentleman named Roger L. Putnam, described as a United States government economic stabilizer (whatever that is), was quoted by the Christian Science Monitor as saying:

"The combating of inflation is a personal assignment for each of us — it's what we do or don't do as individuals that causes inflation."

Although he does not specifically say so, Mr. Putnam's remark certainly implies that a government is in no way responsible for inflation. The people themselves have caused inflation and the people can get busy and cure it — that is what Mr. Putnam thinks, or at least what Mr. Putnam says.

A correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, Anthony Fisher, of Framfield, Sussex, England, takes exception to this nonchalant denial of government responsibility for inflation. In reply to Mr. Putnam, Mr. Fisher says, in part:

"It so happens, however, that inflation is created by the government and not by the people. In its simplest form, inflation comes when governments overspend their income and then create money with which to make the necessary payments. Inflation is also created when a government impairs the national efficiency by imposing restrictions in their control and wasteful forms. Under these circumstances the total national wealth can be reduced, and if the same number of notes remain in existence, the effect will be the same as if more notes had been printed.

"Mr. Putnam suggests that inflationary pressures wreck the nation's defence program, and "the Communists couldn't ask for a better break than that." That I believe to be a true statement but not in the sense in which Mr. Putnam intends it. The Communists revel in inflation because all too often politicians can then be persuaded to "correct" this inflation by centralizing more and more power in the hands of the state. Since that is a Communist objective, they always work to create inflation.

"Incidentally, to believe that controls can correct the inflation is to assume that work creates wealth. Karl Marx wrote three volumes on this subject and failed to see that wealth is created by men, and wealth in particular is created when services meet demands. If this were not so it would only be necessary to direct that this or that work should not be done for a nation to grow rich. But if human activities are to be correctly co-ordinated, this can only be done by means of the price mechanism".

To us, Mr. Fisher's remarks sound like what used to be called common sense but which, because of its increasing uncommonness, might more appropriately be referred to nowadays as uncommon sense. It is at least apparent that Mr. Fisher is an independent thinker, who does not follow all the propaganda that is showered upon people by governmental agencies in this day and age.

GRENADES LYING AROUND

The Quebec provincial police are investigating the death of Louis Bellerose, 16, of Montreal. The youth had been out for a walk in St. Jerome woods, near Montreal, with his brother, Guy, 14. According to Guy, the elder brother found a grenade. The grenade exploded, blinding the finder and blowing off both his hands.

In the same locality, the police later found another grenade, which Guy Bellerose said was similar to the one which had caused his brother's death. The second grenade was identified by army officers as "a No. 69 concussion type grenade."

The army spokesman said it was impossible for a grenade of that particular type to have been left there by soldiers on manoeuvres. That kind of grenade, he said, was never used in military exercises, because it was "lethal." He explained that another kind of grenade, also called a grenade, is a "thunderflash," is used to simulate battle conditions.

According to the Montreal Gazette, the army has told the Quebec provincial police in trying to find out how at least two of these deadly grenades came to be where the Bellerose boy found the one which caused his death.

Everyone, at least everyone who is a parent, will unite in hoping that the army authorities will begin exercising unusual care to prevent these dangerous explosives from being left where they may fall into the hands of children.

SEVEN

Seven candles on a frosted cake
The perfect number, so they say,
And little Jane today will wake
To find that six has flown away.
When you are seven, 'tis very queer
You have a whole year long to wait
Twelve months must come and disappear
Before you change the seven to eight.
When you were seven and in your care
To place the cake before your stool,
There seven candles you did prepare
To light. Seven were surely there.

For little girls when six have gone
Are always glad when seven appear,
And it won't be till later on
When they won't count the added year.
Sing happy birthday, one and all,
And bang the spoon 'gainst glass or plate!
Next year when April showers fall
This day will change the seven to eight.
God grant that she may grow in grace
And join in every birthday take
Until there is no longer space
For all the candles on the cake.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

The Board of Education is considering reducing the salaries of teachers in the local schools, with the exception of those earning $2000, or less. The depression is given as the cause of the contemplated reduction.

At the annual meeting of the Liberal Association of West Hastings which was held at Tren ton Dr. J. Albert Faulkner of the city was chosen as the Liberal candidate to contest the riding in the next Provincial elections. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Charles A. Longwell, Sidney township; Wesley Ketcheson, Frankford.

Miss Polly Caverly of Hyde Park township, is visiting relatives here.

Eggs are selling at 13 cents per dozen and butter at 22 cents to 23 cents per pound.

30 YEARS AGO

April 17th., 1922

Twelve youths ranging in age from fourteen years to eighteen years appeared before the magistrate in police court and were fined $1. each and costs for loitering in doorways and upon street corners on Bridge St. West.

In a bowling match at the Y. M. C. A. the Excelsiors defeated the Knights of Columbus team, the score being 2204 to 2000. Geo. T. Woodley of the Excelsiors rolled a steady game making a total of 563 for the three strings and 211 in the single game. Blute of the Knights of Columbus team was high with a score of 462 for three strings and Barrett had the best single score of 185. The following composed the teams: Excelsiors, R. Woodley, Sinfield, Geo. T. Woodley, Holloway and Yeox; Knights of Columbus, Dr. O'Callaghan, Barrett, Domenico, Blute and Munro.

Mr. Leavitt, owner of Massassaga Park, has engaged Mr. E. R. Bullels of New York City to put on some good attractions at the park this summer. Arrangements are being made for an adequate boat service to and from the park which will open for the season on May 24th.

Mr. P. P. Clarke of St. Ola, Reeve of Limerick, is spending a few days in town.

The Hon. J. P. Wilson of Napanee was in town today.

50 YEARS AGO

April 17th., 1902

There does not appear to be a very bright outlook for sports in this city this summer. The young fellows seem to have no time for lacrosse or baseball. Brace up boys and get in the game.

Dr. S. J. Farrell of Madoc township, who returned home recently after serving in South Africa, will go out again with the fourth contingent. His brother, Dr. A. R. Farrell, will accompany him and both will serve as surgeons.

Mr. William Wade, a former resident of this city, is here on a visit after an absence of 21 years. Mr. Wade is now Division Superintendent on the Big Four Railways and is located in Illinois. Old friends are glad to learn of his success. This is another instance of Belleville boys doing well in foreign lands.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

'ALL BROTHERS'

The former president of a University of British Columbia fraternity which bars students for reasons of color and religion, has asked for the ending of "empty-headed criticisms of such organizations. He is Dennis Sheppard, at present an articling student at law. Here in his defense.

* * *

Your column showed an ill-informed attempt to solve a very great problem.

Such remarks as "fraternities are cesspools of racial discrimination and bigotry" are fallacious and misleading. They are the result of muddled generalizations rather than the clear-headed rationalization of all the facts in order to get a true picture.

I come from the East End of town and had to work my way through six years of university. My own earnings were my only means of financial support.

I am only one fraternity whose ideals and family connections are not tied in with exclusive clubs by many social ties.

Many of us from the East End have some sort of social complex which tells us that we are not wanted in this of that organization, as the case may be. Fraternities and the grapes, we say that we are not belonging to the sour fraternities anyway.

This is a ridiculous point of view. We, the students at UBC are only too glad to admit new members if they are made of "good stuff."

* * *

As for racial discrimination, the Inter-Fraternity Council of Amherst, Mass., has become a real solution that all fraternities seek the earliest possible solution to the problem of racial and other restrictive clauses from their constitutions.

I would like to refresh your mind as to the meaning of fraternalism. It means brotherhood.

In my own fraternity there are many fellows who have gone out of their way to make things easier for me. Others are strongwer than anyone who has not experienced such a thing can imagine.

Our brothers are all over the continent and would be a little welcome in a fraternity house in New Orleans as a brother from Vancouver would be in our house in Vancouver.

Yes, we have southern brothers, and therein lies the largest portion of our problem. The southern brothers are not prejudiced, but allow the Negroes complete equality, despite the protestations of Ku Klux Klan.

American democracy. That is the crux of the situation.

And I might add that no matter how fine a position may seem to us, many of the fellows from the southern states tend to that position with an earnestness which defies charges of hypocrisy.

* * *

You must understand that within the fraternity we are like brothers. We must have one constitution. We value our neighbor's brothers and place the bond of fraternalism as the highest ideal we hold.

But I do not want to leave you with the impression that we are throwing up our hands in despair over the matter as it now stands. Nothing could befurther from the truth.

At every convention the problem is brought up. We are meeting with more success every time we try, and the day when we will have achieved our first victory is not far off. Only one fraternity whose ideals and family connections are not tied in with exclusive clubs by many social ties.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MEDICINAL CHEERFULNESS

A cheerful person is a treasure find. More so than anything material, for the whole physical frame gets a lift from hope and faith. Stevenson once wrote that "a happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note." A happy person is always a cheerful companion.

Meeting a cheerful person on a dreary day is like the sun's coming out. It's like a fire on a cold, hole lights turned on in a room. How many a medicine man has been called in to treat a sick man, lying in his case so medicinally effective that his mere comforter finally dispenses!

There is no tonic so quick in action as cheerfulness. It radiates, stimulates, and soothes. Frank Baron, a beloved actor, once told me that my office was the most cheerful one he had ever entered. I have kept that compliment in mind and tried to keep my place that way. Why should not every office be a cheerful one?

Edwards, an old school-mate of Dr. Samuel Johnson, paid a call on his old friend after a period of fifty years, and this is what he told the great doctor: "You are a philosopher, Dr. Johnson. I have tried too in my time to be a philosopher; but I don't know how cheerfulness was always breaking in."

The cheerful, happy person is always the healthiest. All the world admires and is inspired by the cheerful giver; the cheerful hearer, too, is a joy to behold. Cheerfulness is basic good will. Our cheerful friends are people with whom we run happily, and whose contact we most invite.

Cheerfulness in the hotel crowds out all discordant instances and misunderstandings. It's cheerful news that proves truest waters. It softens defeat and helps us lessen sorrow. It's a spiritual vitamin perfectly blended to give hope, health, and faith to us all.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE DANGER SIGNAL

Public corruption making the headlines today is not a vice unique to-day for the first time in our history. There has been corruption as long as governments have existed. It is true more flagrant when it appears that nothing more completely reveals the essential rottenness of a social order as does the willingness of its citizens to grab and to sell justice for a price.

How disastrous to public life and the welfare of citizens at large has been the presence of public corruption in every age! It take bribes, fell their influence, expose strong cause for a fee; and the result is the rule of the wicked in state and city, the insecurity of life and the corruption of public morals everywhere. Where justice is for sale and bribery is almost as serious a crime as murder. Wherever it is practiced, the stability of government and the welfare of citizens are jeopardized.

Here is an issue which rises above party. One party or the other may be the more given to corruption, but corruption in public office is found almost everywhere and should be dealt with as a national menace rather than a political issue.

The nation which permits such evils to exist will eventually pay a heavy penalty. Corruption in high places is the danger signal of approaching disaster.

Personal Health Talks

CALCIUM AND D FOR PROLONGED, CHRONIC OR

A capsule is a dose or a quantity of medicine or other material enclosed in a shell or soluble or digestible material, usually gelatin, to preserve and protect it against deterioration or to make unpleasant medicine easier to take.

A capsule is virtually one capsule within another. For instance vitamin D is essential for the normal assimilation, utilization and retention of calcium, but if the two are in contact for a considerable time the vitamin D potency deteriorates. So the calcium salts are inclosed in one capsule, and after that has been sealed in a gelatin coat the vitamin D is added as an outer coat and the whole inclosed in a surface coat. Thus the calcium and D come into contact only after the capsule is swallowed.

In the past ten years I have smoked many pipefuls over the question of the antidote (pipe-killer) value of calcium. At first it was purely and simply a pipe dream. I don't remember precisely what started it, but probably it was the frequency of reports from readers who had experienced relief of such ache or pain from calcium—not from a dose or two but from increased daily intake of calcium over a period of weeks or months.

Neuralgia, arthritis, "nervous" headache, periodic sick headache (migraine), rheumatic and other ailments for which people indulge recklessly in dangerous analgesics (pain killers) such as aspirin, acetanilid, phenacetin or various nostrums containing these drugs in disguise, are all good "indications" as doctors say, for calcium and D.

I keep telling you—you children—and you keep asking me foolish questions which show you don't listen—that calcium and D in this form is food, not medicine, and in order to get the analgesic effect you must take it for weeks or months.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

I understand you have a booklet on Barbiturates. I am a constant user of Phenobarbital, Donatal and Benzyl... (K. L. A.)

Answer—Only a chapter on the Barbiturates in the green book Nerves and Nutrition, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wyoming?

If the next world is as grand a place as this one I hope I make it.—And that you will continue your daily talks. I am 82 and would like your pamphlet telling about the vitamin and mineral tablets for "young folks and old folks." (F. H.)

Answer—Your letter bears a Wyoming postmark. Do you live there? Your age reminds me so much that I'm going to break down and send you the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks at my own expense—three cents for postage, ten cents for envelope and the painful task of addressing it. I hope the mineral-vitamin tablets will keep you on your toes for many years — as your toes or mine until she reached 93. Wyoming! I can't get over it. Vilhjalmur Stefanson told me he has experienced temperatures in that part of the country than in the five years he lived in the Arctic.

I wrote you about my dad's varicose ulcer. Mother followed the instructions in your pamphlet faithfully and dad was completely cured in a short time and has never been bothered since... (Mrs. L.)

Answer — Thank you. Any reader who provides a stamped, self-addressed envelope will have the pamphlet Varicose Veins and Varicose Ulcer.

Communist Truce Negotiators Press For New Talks

Munsan, April 17 (AP) —Communist truce negotiators pressed again today for immediate resumption of the off-the-record talks for a Korean peace exchange by Canada and the United States.

The move made a similar suggestion Sunday. The United Nations command has not replied.

The talks were recessed April 4 to permit sides to explore separately possible ways to break the deadlock. The communists want all prisoners returned. The allies insist that no one should be repatriated against his will.

The new proposal to resume private talks came shortly after a 20-minute session of the sub-committee on truce supervision.

No progress was made toward breaking the twin deadlocks over red repatriation of Soviet Russia as a neutral truce inspector and an Allied demand for a ban on airfield construction during an armistice.

Some observers have predicted that the stalemate will continue until an agreement is reached on prisoner exchange.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A prominent Canadian police official has been quoted to the effect that the reason for the considerable increase in motor thefts here in the past year may well be the disturbed state of the world, and not merely of the public mind generally. People cannot drive well when they are unsettled in the world-wide unrest.

If our police become psychologists, we might confidently predict that the motor fatalities for the coming year will be twice the number they were last year. The last people in the world to become psychologists are psychology should be the cops. The function of a policeman is not to try to figure out why a person misbehaves or flouts the law. It is merely to nab those who do.

This psychology racket is an insidious thing. Psychology is just another word for apology. A few years ago, any criminal was a born thrower, evidence and was largely applied to the study of nuts and queers. Now psychology has invaded the entire human scene. It is applied to business and politics. They have psychologists attached to schools. We are all psychologists now within the scope of psychology. Everybody has a psychosis of some kind or other. It is natural us to ourselves and others. It explains the fretted or wayward life. The world apparently is peopled by nuts and queers.

Maybe. But what a fix we will be in if the cops come under the spell of this interesting and popular fad, and all become psychologists. Instead of walking a beat, grabbing a drunk by the scruff of the neck, the policeman will stand back, viewing the disorderly scene and trying to figure out just what psychological factors lie behind the behavior of this poor fellow mortal. When traffic piles up, the enlightened cops will refrain from interference, remembering that the driver's neurosis is merely sharing a world-wide anxiety neurosis.

Policemen and zoo attendants close in on Dick, a 90-pound chimpanzee who escaped from his cage in a Los Angeles zoo and terrorized zoo visitors for three hours until he was caught on a golf course, shown above. The surly simian knocked down three men, dented two cars with his fists and bit a policeman during his brief hours of freedom. Dick finally submitted to being led to his cage after attendants cornered him and calmed him down with a soft drink—spiked with a strong sedative. — Central Press Canadian.

Winnipeg Rejects Province Buying Electric Industry

Winnipeg, April 17 — (CP)—A provincial government proposal to take over Manitoba's hydro-electric industry was rejected by the Winnipeg city council, ending long five years of power negotiations.

Final returns from a special referendum showed 33,402 persons voted "No" and 31,052 in favor, a majority of almost two to one.

Only one-third of the city's 182,691 eligible voters bothered to cast ballots. Suburban residents had no vote.

The ballot asked if electors favored "plan C" of the Hogg report, a scheme formulated four years ago, to prevent a future power shortage.

Under the plan, one of four presented by a royal commission headed by W. H. Hoog, Toronto consultant engineer, the province would purchase the city's distribution system with the municipality's two power-generating utilities.

This would give the government a monopoly on power distribution in Manitoba. The government, after taking over four power plants owned by the city, and Winnipeg Electric, would continue building new power plants, starting with a government dam at Pine Falls.

City Hydro, municipally-owned and Winnipeg Electric, a private company, valued their assets at more than $130,000,000, including Winnipeg Electric's transit system.

Winnipeg appointed auditors estimated Hydro's assets at $90 million at about $80,000,000 but no figure never was reached.

The government proposed to coordinate power from the utilities' Winnipeg River plants with the Pine-Falls plant and promised to build another dam at Slave Falls if the plan was approved.

A municipal commission would have been set up to govern distribution of electricity, gas and the transit system.

Action of the plan were the provincial government and all but one member of Winnipeg city council. Opposing were the city and volunteer committee, a newly-formed body, and Alderman R. Scott.

Winnipeg newspapers split on the issue. The Winnipeg Free Press in opposition.

Out of Bounds

Barrie, April 17 — (CP)— All eating places and beverage rooms here have been placed out of bounds to army personnel, it was learned at a Camp Borden last night. No reason was given.

It is understood that other communities in Simcoe county, including Orillia, Midland and Penetanguishene, are faced with a similar out-of-bounds policy as far as the army is concerned. An official of the RCA reported that current regulations do not as yet affect air force personnel.

Amateur Actor Challenges Three Associates to Duel

Pontiac, Mich., April 17 (AP) — A disgruntled amateur actor was arrested yesterday on a charge of violating an 1816 statute by challenging three of his former associates to a duel.

Carl O'Brien, 22, an unemployed shoe salesman, was released under $10,000 bond for an April 22 hearing.

Police said the specific charge "challenging to fight a duel", had not been invoked in Michigan since the turn of the century. Conviction would carry a maximum penalty of 10 years in jail, a $5,000 fine or both.

Authorities said O'Brien, a former member of the Master Players, an amateur theatrical group, was expelled two months ago for "harming up rehearsals."

O'Brien suggested sabres, knives or pistols as weapons for the duel, but left the choice up to his selected opponents—William Fogle, Harold Hall and Milton Stephenson, all members of the actors' group.

In court yesterday, O'Brien said his challenge was "all a show" and said, "I've been too dramatic."

Members of the staff of the Russian legation in Havana are shown walking across the Rancho Boyeros airport to take a plane from the Cuban capital for Mexico as a result of the breaking off diplomatic relations by the Soviet Union. The break stemmed from the refusal of Cuban authorities to permit two Soviet couriers arriving from Mexico to enter Cuba with luggage unlesd inspected by customs authorities. At left, above L. Ucrez Jenetro of the Cuban army, who is in charge of the airport under the Batista regime. It was by his orders that the Soviet couriers were refused entrance unless they submitted to baggage inspection. — Central Press Canadian.

George Whitman Talks On Defence Preparedness

At the April dinner meeting, the Soroptimist Club of this city, had the privilege of hearing Mrs. George White, national administrator for the city and co-ordinator for Civil Defence, speak on "Preparedness for Defence".

The speaker was introduced by the president, Miss Ella Scott, MacDonald. Mr. Whitman pointed out that in the days of the world situation, the governments both federal and provincial, desired that organization for civil defence be taken up; the cost of which will be borne by the federal government and the administering by the provincial governments.

"The public apathy that spreads over all free peoples today is the greatest danger to democracy," said the speaker, adding "that with too much to enjoy and not enough to think about we lay ourselves into a feeling of false security that can be in a "shooting war" with Russia few of us contemplate, and Russia is but eight flying hours from our country."

"We must face this preparedness in a sane sensible way by reducing the number of casualties.

WEDDINGS

BRONSON—BURLEY

Daffodils, snapdragons and carnations formed the background for a very pretty wedding ceremonied in Tabernacle United Church, Saturday, April 5, at 2:30 p.m., when Barbara Gladys, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Burley, Belleville, became the bride of Harvey E. Bronson, son of Mrs. J. D. Fennock, Belleville, and the late Mr. John Bronson.

Mr. Harold McNish, organist, rendered the wedding music and Mrs. Ethel Lawrenson, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register "Because".

The bride was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her bridal gown of mist white tulle over satin, fashioned with a shirred bodice edged with French lace, and a cutaway bolero featuring brief sleeves also accented with the lace. The full, bouffant skirt was fashioned in panels of lace, and the folds ended in a back sweep. Her finger tip veil of tulle illusion was caught to a satin and tulle headdress. She carried a shower bouquet of pink tarnish roses and white hyacinth bells.

Mrs. Leonard Graham, Belleville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor attended in orchid nylon sheer over taffeta with matching Juliet bonnet and gloves. She carried a bouquet of carnations.

Miss Peggy Graham, Belleville, a close friend of the bride, and Miss Marlene Garratt, Toronto, niece of the bride, were brides maids gowned alike in orchid nylon sheer over taffeta, with matching Juliet bonnets and gloves and each carried a bouquet of daffodils.

The duties of groomsman were performed by Mr. George Cooper, Belleville, Mr. James Bronson, Belleville, brother of the groom and, Mr. Douglas Burley, Belleville, brother of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors, where the many guests were received by the bride's mother who wore a gown of mauve crepe with black accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in grey crepe with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to New York City the bride chose a bedcoming suit of grey suburdine, navy shortie coat with navy and white accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Upon their return the happy couple will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage the bride was feted by two miscellaneous showers; the first on Monday night at the home of Mrs. George Graham, and Miss Peggy Graham, a pantry shower by the girls of Corby's office at the home of Miss Monique Lemieux. The groom was also honored at a shower by Mrs. Douglas Coleman and Miss Norma Callaghan held at the latter's home.

DERRY—PIERSON

Before a background of pink and white carnations, white lilacs and pink and white, a lovely double-ring wedding ceremony was performed on Saturday, April 5, at 2:30 p.m., in Christ Church, Belleville, by the Rev. Canon J. R. Creeggan, rector of the church, when Josephine Isabell Pierson, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pierson, late of Bellevill, became the bride of Ronald Earl Derry, of Eldorado, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Derry.

Mr. Dana Cooke, church organist, provided the wedding music and Miss June Plewis, of Wellington, cousin of the bride, sang during the signing of the register "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charmingly gowned in white slipper satin made on fitted lines with nylon net yoke and lace-trimmed berthe. The gathered skirt, which ended in a chapel train, featured a peplum. Her full-length veil of nylon illusion was held in place by a seed-pearl encrusted tiara. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white hyacinth bells, and wore a three-strand necklace of pearls.

Miss June Ostrom, of Belleville, was maid of honor, wearing a gown of aqua blue nylon net over taffeta.

The bridesmaids, Miss Rose Palmer, of Oshawa, cousin of the bride, wore yellow nylon net over taffeta, and Miss Lois Sticklo, of Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom, were mauve nylon net over taffeta. Both carried bouquets of matching spring flowers and wore matching floral head dresses.

Mr. William Stickle, of Frankford, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsman; Mr. Alex. Pierson, Belleville, brother of the bride, and Carl Boyle, both of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held in Christ Church parish hall, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, attired in navy blue silk crepe with white accessories and corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore black silk crepe with grey accessories and corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Rochester, Stroudsburg, Watsontown, and Pennsylvania, the bride chose a navy blue ensemble with pink and navy accessories, and corsage of red roses.

Miss O. Mary Hill Edits Brisk Reports of Foreign Trade

Ottawa, (CP)—Canada has 91 trade commissioners—all men—stationed around the world, but it's a woman who sorts out and pieces together the mass of information they send back home.

The woman is Miss O. Mary Hill, 41-year-old Ottawa native born journalist and editor of the trade department's weekly magazine, Trade and Commerce. Her assistant is also a woman—Miss Margot Martin of Ottawa.

Editing a magazine is nothing new to Miss Hill, popularly known as "O. Mary" among her friends. She took over the trade magazine last March after 11 years of editing Canadian Business, the monthly publication of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Before that she taught in the English department of McGill University, and also was girls' work secretary of the Presbyterian Church of Canada.

The mass of information on trade conditions around the world flows across Miss Hill's desk in an office in one of Ottawa's government buildings. There the years of training come to good use as she selects what will be used and puts it into magazine shape. The magazine goes out weekly to manufacturers and business houses interested in foreign trade.

Not Too Fussy

As a woman who has found success in higher journalism—her magazine is one of the smartest of all government publications—Miss Hill has a little advice for members of her sex:

It's simply: "Don't be too particular."

She thinks that Canada's women college graduates are too particular. Most of them interested in journalism want to start "at the top".

"They should be willing to start in any position. As long as you're working for a newspaper or magazine, don't worry about the first job. Even begin as a secretary if you must and work your way into the writing side."

That's the word from a woman who knows.

SUED FOR DIVORCE

Los Angeles, April 17 (AP)—Movie actress Celeste Holm was sued for divorce from A. Schuyler Dunning, airline public relations executive. Miss Holm, 33, asked custody to their son, Daniel 5, and a financial settlement from Dunning, 36. The couple was married in New York in 1946 and had a trial separation 10 months ago.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Juvenile Delinquent in the Making

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a situation at home that is intolerable. I am a girl almost 19, and I have a brother ten years old who rules the house.

I can't have dates, because my brother says I have to be home at nine o'clock, and my parents agree with him because they say even my going out till nine upsets him. My brother didn't want me to get a job, because then I would be earning money, so my folks cried in every way to prevent me from getting one. My brother even tells me what time to go to bed, while is nine o'clock or earlier, yet he stays up watching television till midnight. He even tells me what I can eat.

My parents say that my brother can do nothing wrong, and that everything he does is right. If I ask them to correct him, they tell me to shut up. He is always to do anything he wishes. I am so horribly unhappy that I once spoke to a clergyman about the situation, and when he came to our house, my parents told him my brother was a perfect angel. After he left, my father hit me and told me if I ever did such a thing again he would make me so sorry it would be funny.

I am going to leave home and try to be happy on my own, as I am sure I will be, but please answer one question: Don't you think my brother should be corrected now before it is too late?—A. U. R.

Dear A. U. R.:

I hardly see how anyone, except your tragically-deluded parents, could answer this question of yours in any way but to say of course your brother should be corrected. One of these days, I am quite certain, your parents are going to have cause for bitter regret that they did not do so, when this little monster they are raising goes into action against them, as he certainly will do if he is ever opposed. It will be quite surprising if they don't find themselves with a juvenile delinquent on their hands before long. They certainly have one in the making.

In the meantime, I urge you to do exactly as you suggest yourself, and that is to leave home and go out on your own. You are legally of age to do so, and I cannot imagine anyone in the world advising you to remain at home under such fantastic conditions. If you haven't a job now, get one by all means and make yourself completely independent of this unnatural family of yours. You can do nothing for them by staying with them, and you owe it to yourself to get away.

Her Boy Friend Has Grown Moody and Jealous

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The boy I have been going steady with is getting very moody. He used to be full of fun and talk, but lately he has been quiet and talks only when someone talks to him. If I talk to other boys he gets very jealous.

I have asked him if he wants to break up with me, but he said no. My girl friend thinks I should break up with him, as he is hard to get along with, but I do like him and I have refused to go out with other boys on account of going steady with him. —A. T. T.

Dear A.T.T.:

Perhaps your boy friend isn't well, or perhaps he has something on his mind. You don't tell me how old he is or if he is of draft age, he might very well be worrying about having to go away and leave you.

Why don't you let things ride for a little while before making an issue of it all? In the meantime, avoid quarrels with him, and be just as natural and gay yourself as you can. I don't mean you should carry this to the extreme of always giving in to him, especially if he gets jealous just because you happen to have a conversation with some other boys. But when you have to do something that is right for you to do, even though he opposes it, just be pleasantly casual about it and carry through as you think best. If this attitude of yours leads to his breaking up with you, it won't be your fault.

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Brains--"Not the Kind You Need Most"

Some of my thoughts I do keep to myself, but one of them I can express now because of these two letters:

No. 1, "Dear Mrs. Moore: I am a steady reader and never miss your recipes, they are all good, but I never see any recipes on how to prepare calf brains. I fry them in butter with onions, salt and pepper, but I'm sure there is a much more delicious way to cook brains—maybe you could help me.—V. M.

No. 2 "Dear Mary: I've been doing the shopping for our family of five (I happen to be the butcher) and I see brains for sale (not the kind we need most!) in our local shopping centre. If I knew how to cook them I'd buy some and serve them up to the family. Would my wife ever be surprised! Do not get me wrong—I'm doing the shopping to help her—not to watch the shekels—the steak for five of us for Saturday night's butcher cost $2.40.—Bill Bell.

Isn't that terrific? I bet he's a wonderful husband.

The thought I am going to expose is this: I've lamented that the average Canadian is a little leery of these "organ" meats. British-ers are not,—here's my chance to give the low-down on making them into table delicacies.

Brains should always be parboiled in salted water to cover with 1 or 2 tablespoons vinegar added, for 12 to 15 minutes—until they are "firmed." Plunge in cold water to chill quickly.

BREADED BRAINS

Separate the brains into about 1 1-2-inch chunks. Dry them. Dip in fine sifted crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in salted and peppered crumbs.

They may be pan fried in butter until golden, or they may be fried in deep very hot fat until it is golden, tufning once. The latter is better. They are delicious served with tomato sauce.

TOMATO SAUCE

Boil 1 20-oz. can tomatoes with 1 bay leaf, 1 slice onion, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon salt, for ten minutes, then thicken by stirring into it a paste made of 2 1-2 tablespoons flour and 2 1-2 tablespoons cold water. When thick and serving time arrives, strain this into bowl or gravy boat. . . .

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH BRAINS

Cut chilled parboiled brains into 1-2 inch cubes. Brown them in frying pan in 2 tablespoons butter (for 1-2 lb.) but do not burn them. Meanwhile beat five eggs until very frothy, add 2-3 cup milk and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Pour into the hot pan containing the brains and let cook until a layer at bottom of about 1-4 inch sets, then push to sides of pan to allow liquid part of eggs to flow over bottom. Continue "layering" scrambled eggs until they are set. Serve on hot platter on crisp triangles of toast and garnish with parsley. This is a delicious and well-known English breakfast.

BRAIN CASSEROLES OR RAMEQUINS

Clean and parboil brains (see above) and cut into 3-4 or 1-inch cubes—about 1 lb. Melt 3 tablespoons butter, add 4 tablespoons flour, and pour on gradually 1 1-4 cups chicken stock or clear liquid from canned chicken soup. Add 1 Stir until thick. Re heat the brains in this sauce and add 1-3 cup heavy cream and 1 1-2 teaspoon beef extract or a bouillon cube. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Fill small baking dish or individual ramequins, cover with a layer of buttered fine crumbs and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until browned and bubbling. Served with spinach and carrots this is an economical and pretty supper.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A good hint for good table manners.

Bring food up to your mouth . . . don't bring your mouth down to the food.

Not too many attendants for an "average-size" wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In my wedding party I am planning to have: four ushers; a flower girl (to scatter rose-petals as she walks up the aisle); two senior bridesmaids; two junior bridesmaids; and a maid of honor.

1. The order of the procession-al? Recessional?

2. Is the size of this wedding party too large for an "average" wedding?

3. Would a home reception for about 100 guests be in keeping with this wedding plan?—R. J.

1. Processional: First, the four ushers, two by two. The two junior bridesmaids, together. The two senior bridesmaids, together. Maid of honor, alone. Flower girl, alone. Last, bride and her father.

Recessional: First, bride and bridegroom. Next, flower girl, alone. Next, maid of honor, either alone or with best man. Two senior bridesmaids, together; two junior bridesmaids, together. Last, the four ushers, two by two. Or the ushers and bridesmaids may walk together. . . . paired as nearly as possible according to height.

2. No. . . not at all too large.

3. Yes.

Groom's parents' names do not appear at wedding invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Please settle this important question which has come up concerning our wedding invitations. Does the name of the groom's parents appear on the wedding invitations? That is, is the following correct?

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter to

Anna

son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Davis etc.

2. Who pays for the wedding invitations?—A.

1. No. Correctly on wedding invitations the name of the groom's parents are not included. The correct form is:

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter

Anna

on . . . etc.

2. The bride's parents pay for the wedding invitations.

Coloring Aids For Your Hair

Blonde hair that's grown dark can be lightened with a new non-ammonia shampoo that will leave locks soft and lustrous.

By HELEN FOLLETT

COLOR rinses for the hair are rapid like a house afire. What won't the cosmetic chemists think of next! They're always ready to offer a new excitement to their clientele, and that means practically every woman who lives in a civilized land.

It is a strange thing. There are women who accept wrinkles as something given them by the hand of fate and aren't made unhappy by what they call "expression lines." Let gray hairs appear, though, and they get panicky. Now they don't have to go through the expensive experience with the dye pot. They have a shampoo and then a beauty operator gives them a rinse the color of their pristine tresses. Lo! the silver threads disappear. Just like that! If the results make them happy, the rinses continue.

Tarnished Gold

The blond lovely may find that her golden crown has become tarnished. Looks dingy. She has often wondered how she would look as a brunette. Zippo! Is hair an hour, the deed is done. If she decides to go tow-headed again, no more rinsing. It is as easy as that.

The homebody, rushed with domestic duties, no time to loiter at the beauty works, can get a shampoo that contains coloring matter and give herself the treatment. She must be careful to follow the directions. Much excitement in the family circle when Mama appears without a single white hair in her topknot.

Lightening Shampoo

There's also a shampoo on the market that lightens hair. It's just the thing for dirty blond locks that need to be restored to their former bright beauty. It can be used to lighten dark hair, too.

The trouble with the permanent dyeing treatment is that the synthetic color is there to stay, until it grows out. When treatments become an expensive burden, and a woman decides to accept the frosted strands, all she can do is have a short cut and wait until nature grows enough inches so that the dyed ends can be clipped away. In the meantime, she is likely to look somewhat piebald, to put it mildly.

Miss Rourke, Speaks On Work in Japan

Aikens' Easter thank-offering meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Moon with a fine attendance of members and guests of other societies from the Sidney circuit, including Wallbridge, Scott's, the Stone Church, Centenary and Bayside. The president Mrs. Kenneth Jones, presided.

Following the singing of a hymn and a brief address by the president, the meeting was turned over to the women of the Stone Church, who conducted the worship service, under the direction of Mrs. W. C. Neelands.

Mrs. Neelands spoke briefly on the coming Easter and of the new growth leaning forth, advising each and all to attend church. Mrs. Frank Tucker read the Scripture, and Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton favored with an instrumental number, after which Mrs. Kline led in prayer.

The rest of the meeting was taken by the president. The May meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Percy Hamilton with Mrs. W. Jeffrey as convener.

An instrumental number was given at this time by Mrs. Hancock, "Dream of the Flowers".

The guest speaker, Miss Rourke, returned missionary from Japan, was introduced by Mrs. S. W. Spafford, and spoke on her work there as teacher among the Japanese boys and girls.

The president tendered appreciative thanks to Miss Rourke for her splendid address, as did Mrs. E. Hubble.

Mrs. C. Keazy and Mrs. B. Hubble gathered the thank-offering which was later dedicated by Mrs. W. Bush.

Following the close of the meeting, refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

Club Activities

MELODY MAIDS

On Monday, the Phillipston-Zion Melody Maids met at the home of Mrs. Clifford Ray to hold the second meeting of the "Milky Way".

Connie Sills read minutes of the first meeting and each member answered the roll by giving one reason why milk is a good food.

The girls learned at the first meeting that milk is the most nearly perfect food: If milk is to remain that way, it must be taken care of.

Two Types of Dirt

There are two types of dirt in milk: visible dirt, which is unsightly and will taint the milk, and invisible dirt which is known as bacteria. It is possible to prevent the first by having a clean stable, cows, milking utensils and of course the milker himself. The second can be removed by the process of pasteurization.

Three good rules to remember are to keep milk clean, cool and covered.

To get milk in the diet it is not necessary to drink it. Milk can be taken in many forms such as cheese, butter, ice cream, milk drinks, custards and soups.

How to Pasteurize Milk

The leader, Mrs. Percy Ray, gave a demonstration on how to pasteurize milk and also on how to make a milk drink.

The members learned how to make a medium white sauce. They used the white sauce to make an appetizing dish of white sauce with eggs on toast. Of course a few colorful vegetables such as celery, carrots and radishes, were added to give color to the plate.

The meeting ended with this pleasant repast prepared by the girls.

Renew Demands Tass Reporters Be Barred

Washington, April 17—(AP)—A renewed demand that representatives of Tass, the Soviet news agency, be barred from the congressional press galleries was made today at the opening convention session of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Reminding the society that William Oatis, Associated Press correspondent, remains imprisoned in Czechoslovakia, A. S. N. E. president Alexander F. Jones told 300 editors:

"Our state department seems to consider that American citizens can only be protected by paying ransom or invoking economic sanctions.

"I am not proud of our course in allowing our reporters in iron curtain countries to become harassed, frightened, useless representatives of our free press. We are taking it lying down."

With assent of A. S. N. E.'s board of directors, Jones last fall called on the standing committee of correspondents to bar Tass representatives from the congressional press galleries on grounds they were not bona-fide representatives of the press of their country."

The standing committee declined, saying Tass' membership was "consistent with the American concept of a free press."

Jones, who is editor of the Syracuse, N. Y. Herald-Journal, disclosed today that some members of the A. S. N. E. board disagreed with him, but declared.

"As certainly as I stand here, the present intolerable press relations between U. S. and the nations behind the iron curtain cannot long continue—with our reporters in Moscow being held as virtual hostages and subjected to every indignity, William Oatis in prison in Czechoslovakia, and Pavlov, the Soviet delegate at the Paris meeting of U. N. declaring that the next American correspondent arrested will consider Oatis fortunate to be only in jail."

This while Makhail Federov, head of the Tass bureau here, an aeronautical engineer sent from Moscow to head a spy ring, uses a Russian government communications system without censorship.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Dolly stood, a suddenly spent force sagging in her husband's grasp. Hair loosened and slightly awry, cheeks overdone and light, flaccid, she was a pitiful contrast to the cool, dark woman who with no visible effort, had taken the play away from her.

Dolly Dumont ran an uncertain tongue around her lips, licked them and burst out, like a schoolgirl. "Johnny Wyndham, that's who. You killed him too. Eve Wheeler! . . . Oh, get me out of here. I can't take any more."

With an unexpectedness that gave still another shock, tears began streaming down her cheeks.

Dolly's fine punitive rage had simply developed into a ridiculous crying jag.

It must have taken a lot of courage on Jack Dumont's part to come back downstairs at all right. But he appeared, patches covering the scratches Dolly had inflicted, and made a graceful little speech.

"Everybody here," Dumont said briefly "owed an apology—you, in particular Eve. I'll make it now, on behalf of my wife. She isn't"—his brown eyes were bitter—"in any condition to make it herself."

Eve Wheeler's depressing ways came a split second ahead of a similar one by Cravath. "Listen Jack," Eve said "forget it please! I'm going to do just that, and the rest of you should be able to."

He gave her a grateful look and drooped into a chair. She looked suddenly tired, haggard even.

"I'll forget it sooner or later," he said. "But you're entitled to some sort of explanation. And as near as I can make out, here's what happened: Dolly seemed better this afternoon and the nurse left her, to catch up on sleep. But Dolly—well, she got out of bed, put on a dressing gown and slipped down. To raid your sideboard, Marney. After she did that she heard voices in the billiard-room. Yours and Dick's, Eve. She evidently investigated. And got some wholly idea."

Eve Wheeler smiled thinly. "Just for the record, she hasn't got a leg to stand on. But a ton, maybe, I was holding Jim Orth's hands. Why, I can't remember now. But it certainly wasn't what she construed it to be. I'm probably old enough to be Orth's mother."

Well, I'll take my own mother, but, failing her, Eve Wheeler wouldn't have been so bad.

"Eve" said Jack Dumont, "I'm not asking you to explain."

"I know. But since we seem to be at it, in spite of what I said a moment ago, perhaps I should say a few words. I'm going to admit now, very frankly that I saw Ames Warburton in New York occasionally. He called me up once in a while and came to my apartment, the same way that lots of my friends do, young and old. But as for there being anything more than that to it . . . well; I'm not a cradle-snatcher."

Sally Cravath crossed the room quickly. She took one of Eve's hands in her own. "Please don't rag this out. Nobody here is mean enough to think that you killed James Warburton or anybody else."

"I'll finish, Sal, if you don't mind." Eve's voice was low, but determined. "Because Dolly went back to Johnny, Orth and Dave Sladen too, wouldn't know about that." Her gaze fixed me for a second, then revelled in Sladen. "Just to have it all out in the open, Johnny Wyndham was my first husband. He shot himself while we were at a ski-lodge in the Adirondacks. Years ago. I don't know why. I never will know. It was simply a suicide, that's all I know."

So a little more food for thought! Eve Wheeler had seemed straightforward, forthright. And I liked her. But, thinking it over later in my own room, it was clear that she had pulled at least one punch tonight. In the afternoon, she'd volunteered a low opinion of Ames Warburton to me. She hadn't repeated that opinion for the benefit of the multitude, so to speak.

Ames, to hear her tell it in public, was just a guy who from time to time had dropped around to see her—enjoy, no doubt, the lavishness and sumptuousness of her New York apartment. But suppose he had acquired over Mrs. Wheeler some special hold that made life insupportable to her?

The detective profession tended to fashion a reasonably artistic, reasonably personable young man into a species of crabbed cynic, doubtfull of the whole human race.

Cravath knocked on my door then. He might be didn't suggest going into his study.

"Listen, Orth," he said forcefully. "I want you, in particular, to understand that there wasn't a word of truth in that nonsense tonight."

"You mean in the accusations, naturally?" I said.

He ground out the cigaret rather savagely. "Yes, Dolly Dumont was talking through her hat. She didn't even know Johnny Wyndham."

"You did know him?" I asked.

"I did. And he was a bounder and a rotter. Why Eve ever married him, I can't imagine. He was not fit to shine her shoes."

He was obviously in a touchy explosive mood so I had to walk warily. "But it's true that he did shoot himself?"

Cravath made an expansive gesture. "Everything that Eve said tonight is true. Dolly maybe her idea that Johnny Wyndham committed suicide. Personally, I've never believed that. He'd taken a gun along on that skiing trip. It was just the kind of silly thing he would do. I've always believed that he was fooling with the gun and it simply went off."

"Look here," I said, "you won't like this, but I have to be impersonal. Frankly, I want to know whether Eve Wheeler had an alibi in the Wyndham affair?"

He eyed me challengingly "Good heavens Orth, the thing was over with years ago. And Eve was completely exonerated." With that he left me.

Okay! Eve was innocent, he said and for the nonce I bought that.

But we still had a murderer. One far too clever to leave lying around anywhere—and I did mean "anywhere"—on which, if eventually retrieved, might pin murder on him.

And it came to me, in a kind of jolting flash.

From the murderer's angle, it was tailor made. Do a neat, thorough and mystifying job. But, in the agency of destruction were ever recovered, let it point to someone else! Someone possibly even more capable of using that agency, perversely slept, and whom the murderer also wished out of the way.

But, and I kicked myself for not having realized it before, this murderer must have a—an ammunition dump, somewhere.

That I had to find. On my own, eh? But that was just what I was on.

Rain still made a wet gray shambles of Long Island the next day. Despite it, I slipped off after breakfast, went into Port Liston and called The Ferret from the Madison House. But the girl who watched over the cubbyhole office volunteered that he was out. She expected him within the hour. I left the number of the phone I was calling down and hung around.

I had to hang around bored and impatient, for more than an hour. But then the phone within the booth came to life.

"That you, Jim?" The Ferret asked cautiously.

"It is," I said. "You got anything for me, Harrison?"

"The three days you gave me aren't up yet," he said, maddeningly.

"I can't help that," I told him. "I'm being pushed at this end. If you've got anything give!"

A soft, sibilant breath-intake came over the wire. "Say, Jim," inquired Harrison, "you clairvoyant or something?"

I gripped the phone and practically yam—nd. "You—you mean I was right!"

"About 80 percent so far."

At Windover a late-morning bridge game was in progress. Sally and Eve, Cravath and Sladen were the participants. Cravath evidently eschewing work for the time being at least. Dolly Dumont, I supposed, was still upstairs, either raising or hiding in shame. Jack Dumont must have been with her.

Well, banally, no time like the present. And The Ferret's reassurance and promise to meet me tonight had made me doubly anxious to get to work on my latest angle down here.

I tried to decide where to begin my ransacking of Windover.

The attic, of course. Where else does the housekeeper, rich or poor mighty or humble, stow away things which he may or may not use, again?

So, feeling like a thief in broad daylight, I sneaked up to the third floor of the house. I found that the attic was divided, roughly, in two sections.

The first I came to, was apparently devoted to sleeping quarters for servants. Several doors were ajar and well-made beds and tidy rooms testified to the watchfulness of Mrs. Ring. It was clear that the housekeeper oversaw this part of the establishment with the same beady eye that kept the more imposing arrangements below impeccable.

My luck was in that morning. All the help was, presumably, below.

Nonetheless I walked cautiously along the hall until it ended abruptly at a door.

The door wasn't locked. The knob gave beneath my fingers and I stepped into a region which would have delighted a collector, an antiquarian and a junk dealer alike.

Warrior Embrace

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, right, who commanded the Italian troops against the Allies in Northern Italy during the last days of the Mussolini regime, emotionally embraces the brother of General Tito Agosti, commander of the Littorio Division which was the last of Mussolini's army to collapse in the latter part of World War II. General Agosti was killed after being captured by Italian partisans. The emotional scene portrayed above took place at a reunion, headed by Marshal Graziani, of ex-officers of the Littorio Division. The ex-officers discussed measures designed to aid widows of officers killed in the war. — Central Press Canadian.

Omaha, Neb., April 17—(CP)—The twin cities of Omaha and Council Bluffs, with 40,000 persons evacuated from their homes, today waited behind reinforced dikes for the crowning assault of the flooding Missouri River.

The Missouri, which shows its downstream march slightly past midnight, nevertheless was over the 28-foot mark early today, expected to reach a record crest of 31.5 feet tonight.

While the homeless citizens of the two communities waited on high ground, the question was whether the dikes—originally built to hold back a crest of no more than 26.8 feet but raised in a desperation effort in the last few days — could hold back the ravaging flood.

The two cities—on either side of the Missouri—are at the focal point of midwest floods which have made 114,000 persons homeless in eight states. Besides the Missouri, the rivers chiefly responsible for many millions dollars damage were the Mississippi, the Mills River, the Red River of the north and Minnesota River.

At least two persons have died in the floods.

Last night, Mrs. Rosemary Mohr, 28, was being rowed to her home in St. Paul's west side by volunteer ferryman Ed. Thielen when the boat capsized. Her body was recovered later from seven feet of swirling Mississippi flood water.

New Danger Point

.. On the Mississippi the new danger point appeared to be Winona, Minn., where a crest of 14 feet was predicted by Tuesday. At St. Paul leaving 5,000 homeless and damage was expected in the big city. Crews hastened down stream to Winona to hold a dike, which, if breached, will flood a third of the city.

Further downstream, Wisconsin and Iowa points are set for expected record river heights.

The Red River's greatest drive was against the Fargo-Moorhead line in North Dakota and Minnesota. There a hard fight was being waged to save the Fargo Veteran's Hospital, now housing over 200 patients. More than 4,000 persons had either fled from their homes or were living on second floors of threatened dwellings.

Still Over Flood Stage

The Mills River in Montana had caused an estimated $2,941,000 damage, army engineers said and the Minnesota was still over flood stage at Mankoto, Minn., and at Minneapolis where it joins the Mississippi

Omaha, as well as being the immediate flood target, was the site of discussions yesterday by President Truman, senators, congressmen and governors which brought demands for speedy flood control action.

Truman appealed to seven midwest governors to join in a fight for flood control projects he said would strengthen the Republican national "economy bloc" that has wiped out some of its most important features.

OPEN NEW INSTITUTE

Copenhagen, Denmark, April 17 —(AP)— Copenhagen University opened an institute today for research in neurophysiology and the field of isotypes. The Rockefeller foundation contributed $140,000 to aid in the construction of a laboratory building and promised to support the institute with $32,000 for the next five years.

HIT BY BASEBALL BAT

Knoxville, Tenn., April 16 (AP)— Harry Calihan, 16-year-old high school student was killed today when a schoolmate struck him on the head with a baseball bat during an argument. John Dale, 111, 17-year-old Beaumont team manager, admitted striking young Calihan with the bat when Calihan refused to move away from the playing field. Dale was taken to the juvenile home. No charge has yet been placed against him.

Gen. M. Ridgway Recommended To Succeed Ike

San Francisco, April 17 (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme commander of United Nations forces in the far east, has been recommended by the joint chiefs of staff in Washington to succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in Europe, the Chronicle says today in a copyrighted story from its Washington correspondent, Vance Johnson.

Johnson says Ridgway's name had been suggested to the other 13 North Atlantic Treaty countries, and although approval is expected in the near future, the announcement of the selection might be delayed until after General Eisenhower departs in June from his North Atlantic Treaty forces command.

Field Marshal Montgomery, deputy allied supreme commander, will assume the N. A. T. O. command for the interval between Eisenhower's departure and Ridgway's arrival in Europe, the story says.

Present plans of the joint chiefs, Johnson added, call for the appointment of General Mark W. Clark, chief of army field forces at Fort Monroe, Va., as Ridgway's successor in the far east, and for General Alfred M. Gruenther, now chief of staff to Eisenhower in Europe, to replace Clark.. Gruenther was Eisenhower's prime choice for the top N. A. T. O. command.

CIVIC ULTIMATUM

London — (CP) — The Camberwell council refused to help Lewisham council pay costs of repairing a railway bridge leading to a popular shopping centre in Lewisham. The Lewisham council says the bridge mainly serves shoppers from Camberwell and unless the decision is changed it will be torn down.

Brampton Votes 'Wet' for Store And Warehouse

Brampton, April 17—(CP)—Brampton voted "wet" yesterday.

Voters in this county seat of the long-standing "dry" county of Peel authorized the establishment of a liquor retail store by throwing out a local option by-law.

The 60-per-cent majority required on both questions was exceeded by 68 votes on the liquor store and 63 votes on the brewers' retail store.

Establishment of a liquor store received 2,633 votes compared with 1,644 votes against. The vote in favor of the brewers' retail store was 2,623 to 1,644.

A record vote was posted with 74 per cent of the 5,706 eligible voters going to the polls.

The vote revoked the local option by-law which had been voted into effect in 1914 with the Canada Temperance Act. Since the Second World War two votes have been held in the county on the T. C. A. and on the second vote last November it was revoked.

Italian Barber Retains Right To Use Name

New York, April 17—(AP)—United States district court in quite a lather when barber Tom Fucarino named his shop here after the newly organized state.

In 1946, Fucarino registered his shop name with the county clerk. He hung out the sign: United Nations Barber Shops.

A few days later the U. N. assembly adopted a resolution against commercial use of its title.

Last Feb., Fucarino was asked to abandon the name. Until there was a law against it, Fucarino replied, the sign stayed put.

Yesterday, Governor Thomas Dewey signed a legislative bill barring businesses in New York State from using the name or abbreviation of the U. N. for commercial purposes until Secretary-General Trygve Lie gives permission.

But the new law does not affect names now in use.

Fucarino was happy.

Saying he had no ill feeling toward the U. N., the barber added:

"I've always thought about the name and what the U. N. stands for. I liked its principles. I'm glad I'll be able to hold on to the name."

Marine Waging Losing Battle

With the U.S. First Marine Division, Korea, April 17 (AP)—A United States Marine is waging a losing battle to see his mother before she is deported from the United States.

Sgt. Johannes (Dutch) Meulenkamp, a combat rifleman for 10 months in Korea, has begged his sergeant that either the mother not be sent back to Holland immediately or that he be allowed to see her before she goes.

Next month, or in June at the latest, "Dutch" will be rotated back to the States. But his mother, Mrs. Maria Cornelia Louwersheimer, has been ordered by immigration authorities to leave the country by May 1.

She must return to Holland because her visa has expired. She now lives in Mill Valley, Calif.

Meulenkamp went to the U.S. in 1947. A year later, his mother and sister, Delia, sailed for America. But his mother had obtained a divorce in Holland, and there was the juvenile home. No charge has yet been placed against him.

Britain Prepared to Sign Treaty Promising Military Aid To Six Continental Powers

London, April 16. (CP)—Britain is ready to sign a treaty pledging herself to fight immediately and automatically in the event of an attack on any of the six nations of the proposed European army.

And in return, the six continental powers have agreed to go to war to help Britain if she is attacked.

Announcements by the seven governments yesterday disclosed that Britain has moved to extend pledges of military aid formally to West Germany and would strengthen her commitment to fight off any attack on Italy.

The new pacts will take effect when the six countries ratify a treaty establishing the European defence community and its unified army.

More Iron-Clad

Britain already has promised to help defend France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg —other members of the proposed E. D. C.—under the 50-year Atlantic Pact. But Foreign Office officials said the new pledge is more iron-clad.

Five divisions of British occupation troops in Germany also are a practical guarantee of help to the Germans as long as the troops remain. The new pledge, however, will extend through the remaining 17 years of the Atlantic Pact—longer than the troops are likely to stay in Germany.

The six countries who will establish the E.D.C. have been negotiating for months and expect to overcome the last of such stumbling blocks as division of finances and setting up a central authority sometime in May.

The treaty then will be ready for signature, following by the process—perhaps a long and difficult one—of ratification by the six parliaments.

Psychological Boost

One of the chief effects of the British promise is expected to be a psychological boost to doubtful parliaments, making ratification easier.

The main purpose of the E.D.C. treaty is to provide some 400,000 German troops for western defence, without recreating a separate German army, navy and air force which would be feared throughout western Europe, particularly in France.

Britain had stood aloof from requests to join the E.D.C. but had promised to work closely with it. A formal British statement said the new pledge "demonstrates in a conclusive manner" her willingness to support it.

West German officials in Bonn expressed great satisfaction with the agreement, which they called "one of the most important political decision of recent years."

It may ease Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's job of getting German ratification of the European army, which is sharply opposed by the Socialists.

, PLATE IS MISSING

Usk, Wales, April 17 — (Reuters) —Earlier visitors who paid 23 cents to look round one of England's stately homes were all "nice people"—at least they looked that way. Lord Raglan let them in to admire his country estate, Tilla Court near the Welsh border. Lady Raglan showed them round in groups of five. Today the family discovered that a 100-year-old dinner plate bearing the family crest has vanished from the dining table.

Top Economist

A. F. W. Plumptre, external affairs department's top economist, leaves for Paris in July to become the number two man on the permanent Canadian delegation to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The 45-year-old Montreal-born head of the department's economic division will become an associate of Arnold Heeney, deputy minister, who has been appointed chief of the delegation. — (CP from National Film Board.)

Radio Addresses By Evangelist, Bishop Refused

Chicago, April 17 (AP) —A clergyman-editor declared today the Voice of America has refused to transmit radio addresses by Evangelist Billy Graham and Bishop Fulton J. Sheen noted Roman Catholic lecturer and author.

Dr. James Deforest Murch of Cincinnati, editor of "United Evangelical Action" magazine, told the convention of the National Association of Evangelicals that the government-sponsored overseas network has not given a well-rounded picture of American religious life.

Dr. Murch told the convention: "Information reaching me indicates that Evangelist Billy Graham's messages have been ruled out by the program director on the basis that his appeal for conversion to the Christian gospel is too strong."

He said he believed Bishop Sheen's addresses "have been rejected because of their being 'too positive' in Christian philosophy and ethics."

Dr. Murch presented a resolution asking the convention to protest the religious policies of the Voice of America.

Harriman May Be Drafted By Democratic Party

New York, April 17 (AP)—A Democratic dinner tonight honoring W. Averell Harriman may thrust him into the presidential spotlight.

Harriman, director of the mutual security administration, will be guest of honor at the $100-a-plate affair sponsored by the New York State Democratic Committee.

The dinner reflects strong support among the committee's membership to give Harriman the state's 94 votes at the Democratic presidential convention in Chicago.

Tomorrow, the state's 62 Democratic county leaders meet here to discuss "the presidential situation" — full of more party questionmarks since Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois said yesterday he "could not accept the nomination for any other office this summer."

T. Norbert Beaupre Named Assistant Deputy Minister Of All Defence Production

Ottawa, April 17—(CP) — T. Norbert Beaupre, the man who flew round the world as trade adviser to External Affairs Minister Pearson, today was appointed assistant deputy minister of defence production.

The popular young production expert executive, formerly special assistant to the deputy minister, becomes the youngest official to hold such a post.

A 34-year-old wartime army officer from Montreal, he becomes one of the government's top-bracket armament advisers, with special responsibilities in the field of manpower, materials control and production or armament for North Atlantic countries.

Whenever the new deputy minister, Reginald Brophy, is away on trips, he will exercise powers the Minister Howe's right-hand man, directing the intricate Canadian armament machine. It is spread almost across the entire country.

Taking up his jobs is nothing new to the man called "Beaup" by his colleagues. Ever since his return from overseas military service, he's stepped from one to another, each time doing such a smooth and efficient job that he soon earned the respect and admiration of cabinet ministers.

The new assistant deputy minister served with the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps in England, Italy and northwest Europe during the last war.

With his foot still itching to travel, he decided on a trade commissioner's job as a civilian career. He was posted to Washington in 1947, but soon was called home on special duty and in December 1948, was named executive assistant to the deputy minister.

Had His Problems

The trip was an eye-opener to Mr. Beaupre. For he had an opportunity to study at first hand the financial and other problems which were hindering some Canadian exports.

Last fall Production Minister Howe called on him to act as his assistant to the Commonwealth supply ministers' conference.

Crest Not Yet Reached in Worst Flood in U.S. History

South Dakota Farmer Refuses to Leave

Only Way Out of California Junction Was by Boat

Looking for Looters One-third of Sioux City Under Water

With the worst still to come in the U.S. mid-west flood areas of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, Red Cross officials estimate 70,000 persons homeless and 20,000 homes abandoned. Flood waters are affecting eight states, suspending the normal activities of over 1,000,000 persons, and putting 1,250,000 acres of land under water. Throughout the flooded areas little islands of sandbagged homes and villages are visible from the air as farmers and villagers attempt to hold off the water with hastily made dykes. Citizens' committees direct dyke-building, appoint special deputies to police homes by boat to prevent looting, and arrange for evacuation. No count is possible of the thousands of head of cattle lost nor of the millions of dollars lost in the tons of top-soil carried to the sea. The flood crest along the Missouri will be Thursday or Friday when engineers expect the river will be 30 feet above normal. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

He couldn't be happier if he made Heinz Baby Foods himself

Babies don't need to make their own special foods. Neither do mothers. They rely on another chef —the Heinz chef—and with good reason.

The Heinz chef knows that babies are mighty particular eaters. So he does everything he can to meet their shy high standards. The vegetables he chooses—and he chooses everything from tomatoes, celery and peas to squash and yams and kale—are glistening fresh and garden-grown from special seed in rich and fertile soil. The fruits he selects —juicy, sunkissed fruits from many lands—range from ripe prunes and peaches, apples and oranges, to ripe figs, fancy dates and tropic pineapple. Choice dairy produce too, and meat and grains that cannot be surpassed—these are the good, good things that Heinz prepares especially for babies.

Almost any food a doctor may recommend for an infant will be found by mothers among the famous family of Heinz Baby Foods. And all are cooked the way the doctor would desire—so that minerals and vitamins are retained in high degree.

Vancouver Monsters Are Biggest, Ontario's Most Ugly

Caddy, a king-size sea-lion. Lenny, just plain monster.

After years of nursing the legend of a monster inhabiting the waters off Vancouver Island British Columbia residents fear they have caught the goose that laid golden tourist eggs. Hauled ashore at Ucluelet on the west coast of Vancouver Island was a giant elephant seal whose normal appearance is enough to make anyone resolve to stick to solid food and who may be, according to Dr. N. M. Carter, head of the Pacific fisheries station, the "daddy" or "grandmother" of all Vancouver Island monster legend. Not to be outdone, southern Ontario produced a gelatinous monster of its own. There's no name for it yet, but it's 14 inches long, has purple ears, a blue tail, four legs and eight fingers. It was fished out of the Rouge River and named Lenny by fisherman Charles Buxton of Toronto. — Central Press Canadian.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Bob Wilson, home address North Bay, chief eastern scout for the Chicago Black Hawks was perhaps a mite disappointed the other day when the Belleville Hawks failed to register a victory over the starry Weston Dukes.

But overshadowing the disappointment, was a feeling of having achieved, or being in close touch with something for a Belleville junior puckish squad that hasn't occurred for many years.

Marie Robert who tabs his mileage in the thousands during the course of a scouting campaign, covers the eastern part of the country like the dew covers Dixie in his search for hockey ivory. And some of the talent he has discovered wasting its sweetness on the hinterlands air has been of topflight quality.

Bob Wilson

The likeable little man who brought four of his potential Chicago stars to Belleville to perform in the Belleville club this year feels that he might have established a player precedent. Helping the Hawks in the semi-final spot, a place no Belleville team has occupied for years, Robert feels that fandom here will expect even better in the future, and with some of the more optimistic looking for the elusive championship next season.

"That", he smiled, rubbing a wrinkled forehead, "may be a little too tough to handle."

Howsyar, he inferred that next season would see four prospects of the Hawks sent to Belleville who with be just as good as the quartet who helped the Cooklan youngsters to the semifinals this year.

He also intimated that two of the four of this year's imports may be back again next season. While he did not state specifically which two were meant, it is a foregone conclusion that Hector Lalande, the fleet young playmaker will not be back. Nor with Bob Wilson, junior, the hard-thumping defenceman whose style improved rapidly during the second half of the season, but who couldn't keep out of the penalty parade whenever one was available.

"But" promised Marse Robert, using the old drug store bromide, "We'll have something just as good."

And Wilson like the boss-man Bill Tobin of Chicago always means what he says.

Mr. Tobin took a more than passing interest in his new junior "B" hockey club this year. He made two special trips here with the parent Hawks and made no "bones" about how much he liked the Belleville Hockey Association, the fine job it was doing and the capable men who operate it.

The junior Hawks won't lack for suitable help if the Wilsons and the Tobins have anything to do with it.

And speaking of the Hawks there is a decided pat on the collective backs coming to them for a highly successful season despite the fact they were eliminated in the semi-finals by the flashy Dukes of Weston.

Passed by Hec Lalande the North Bay centre "nugget" the youngster piled up an enviable scoring record. Their grouping was one of the toughest in the junior "B" classification but consistently good performances kept them either in first or second place throughout the schedule.

In the group playoffs the kids came through with a pair of more or less sensational third-period comebacks to eke out victories over the suddenly revived Peterborough Trylon Links. Meanwhile the amazing Kingston "Frank" in a chips-down flare of ability eliminated the powerful Lindsay Kinsmen in one of the most startling upsets seen here for years.

The Hawks, however, maintaining the same high calibre of hockey that ousted the Links, eliminated Max Jackson's Limestone City with four straight games. Came the round-robin series with Barrie and Weston with the Hawks ousting the Barrie crew and you know the rest.

The fine type of hockey dished up by this likeable group of puck-chasing youngsters caught the eyes and hearts of the fans. With the Belleville Hawks making a sorry showing in the playoffs with the Senior Hawks making a sorry showing in the playoffs after being injury-riddled for the greater part of the last half of the schedule, the hockey-starved fans rallied to the support of the juniors and the result the youngsters broke attendance records for the circuit. It is estimated they played to 6,500 fans during the Western Dukes series.

The Hawks were a distinct credit to the OHA, the city and the Belleville Hockey Association. They played hockey from start to finish and could match any type served up by the opposition. They backed up from none, and had plenty of the old what-it-takes when the "going" became a little on the rough side.

Lalande and Bob Wilson, of North Bay, George Jacklin of Timmins and Benny Therrien of Chapleau, the four Black Hawk importations were well liked. They were gentlemen off the ice and hard workers when in puck action. They made a lot of friends here.

It would scarcely be fair to mention any of the Hawks without using the name of Don Barclay. Rushed into the goal breach when Bobby Green was seriously injured during a pre-season practice session, Barclay came up with sensational performances that earned for him the regular berth. On more than one occasion he saved the Hawks from defeat with stellar efforts between the pipes. And a great big pat on the back for Ted DeGray former Oshawan who was the "workhorse" of the team and one of its mainstays. The rest of the crew came through with highly creditable performances that marked the season as one of the best Hable performances that marked the season as one of the best liable performances that marked the season as one of the best liable performances that marked the season as one of the best li

PGA Announces Heavy Schedule Worth $413,000

Chicago, April 17 (AP)—Professional golf's biggest spring and summer tournament program, a 21 meet schedule carrying $413,000 in prizes, today was announced by the Professional Golfers' Association.

The schedule, opening with the Pan American Open at Mexico City May 8-11 and closing with the Kansas City Open Sept. 25-28, is topped by George S. May's established world championship and All-American Open worth $100,000.

The Canadian Open championship will be held July 10 to 13 at the St. Charles Country Club in Winnipeg. It's worth $15,000.

The All-American at May's Chicago Tam O'Shanter Course, July 31-Aug. 3, will pay $25,000. It will be followed by the "World" Aug. 7-10, which has a $75,000 purse and a $25,000 first-place payoff.

Second richest summer event is the $40,000 National P.G.A. tourney at Louisville, Ky., June 18-24, followed by the $12,000 Inverness round robin at Toledo, Ohio, June 26-29. The remaining 17 events will be for $15,000 purses.

Golf's top prestige tourney, the National Open, is scheduled at Dallas, Tex., June 12-14.

The P.G.A. estimated that for the first nine months of 1952, including four months of the winter tour, a total of more than $600,000 will have been paid in purses. A prospective fall tour will add another $100,000.

Baseball Moguls Meet Next Week

St. Catharines, April 17 (CP)—The 35th annual Ontario Baseball Association convention will be held here April 25 and 26.

Considerable legislation will face the more than 250 delegates expected to attend. They will represent centres from Windsor to Ottawa.

Twelve amendments to the constitution and seven new resolutions face the meeting. Chief of these are the levy on minor playing certificates, umpires' credentials, new populations areas, election of a secretary-treasurer, one U.S. import and annual conventions to be moved from April back to March.

Secretary Thomas Rowdon of St. Catharines has released the nomination list for the 1952 slate of officers.

Hunter Claims South America Trout Paradise

New York, (AP)—How would you like to catch a 14-pound rainbow trout?

Harold McCracken, noted hunter, fisherman and author, has just returned from South America and says the world's best trout fishing is to be found in the Chilean Lake regions near the Pacific coast.

He says 14-pound rainbows and browns are commonplace, 16-pounders are rare and 20-pounders reported.

The day before McCracken left the east on his return to the United States he and two companions fished from the same rowboat and in less than three hours hooked 17 trout, totalling slightly more than 90 pounds. Six of the beauties weighed more than 10 pounds each.

Extends 400 Miles

McCracken says the lakes originally were stocked in 1905 by fingerlings brought from Germany. Then the area was forgotten. In 1928 a Briton, who planned to build a ranch in the area, restocked some of the lakes with fish from Scotland and New Jersey.

The next winter the Briton died and the area again was more-or-less forgotten, fishwise.

McCracken says the fishing paradise extends for 400 miles through the centre of Chile, paralleling the high Andes.

"The water is cold, mostly crystal clear, and in most of the streams it runs fast with many white water rapids. There probably is no other area on earth which offers such ideal and expansive a habitat for trout," says McCracken who found the lake region on a scouting-picture making tour of South America.

The fish feed on a small fresh-water crab, which is locally called a cancora, and it is this diet which McCracken gives an assist for the development of the fish.

Fort Frances Holds Edge Over Edmonton

Fort Frances, Ont., April 17.—(CP)— Fort Frances Canadians meet Edmonton Pats here tonight in the fifth game of their best-of-seven series in the Western Canada Senior Hockey final. Fort Frances now leads 2-1. One game was tied.

Canadians gained the edge Tuesday in the first game of the series on home ice by crushing Pats 7-2.

If Canadians win the series the first two games of the Canadian final will be played at Fort William.

Tavern Owner Defies Blackout

Chicago, April 17 (CP)—Chicago television fans gave their all last night to get a look at the Robinson-Graziano fight.

Undeterred by the local "blackout," decreed by the International Boxing Club to coax customers away from their sets and into Chicago stadium, they took off in droves for the Illinois-Wisconsin border, where they could catch the telecast on a Milwaukee station.

One Chicago tavern-owner successfully broke the blackout.

He rigged a 45-foot aerial on his chimney and picked up the Milwaukee station for his patrons.

Half-way through the fight, something happened. Flakes of "snow" began to fall, obscuring the screen. Tavern-owner Edward Ziemerly issued rapid instructions.

The customers picked up the set, heaved for the roof and plugged it in, in plenty of time for the third-round knockout.

Soo Juveniles Win Hockey Crown

Sault Ste. Marie, April 17 (CP)— Sault Ste. Marie Rapids last night won the all-Ontario Juvenile A hockey title by defeating St. Catharines Blooms 7-5 in the third game of the best-of-five series.

The Rapids, in gaining the trophy for the first time, made a clean sweep of the series. The first and second games ended in identical 5-4 decisions.

Carmen Scarfone netted three goals for the winners. Ray Sharma, two and Maniacco and Zorzi singletons. Roberts, with two, Hines, Warchol and Nash scored for St. Catharines.

Stanley Cup Champions

Terry Sawchuk, left, starry goal-tender, and captain Sid Abel of the Detroit Red Wings clutch the historic Stanley Cup, emblem of the world's professional hockey championship after the Wings defeated Montreal Canadiens 3-0 in the final game of the best-of-seven series at Detroit. Sawchuk had four shut-outs as Detroit won the championship in a record eight straight games. He blanked Toronto Maple Leafs twice and Montreal Canadiens twice. Abel is on the famed "production line" which also includes Doug Howe and Ted Lindsay. — (CP Photo from A.P.)

Minister Answers Toronto Mayor On Gut Dam

Ottawa, April 17 (CP) —Transport Minister Chevrier said yesterday in a telegram to Mayor Allan Lamport of Toronto that removal of Gut dam on the St. Lawrence River might cause "highly undesirable" conditions on the lower river.

He was replying to a wire from the mayor asking that "all water barriers" on the river be opened to lower the current high water level of Lake Ontario.

The minister said that removal of the dam as quickly as physically possible could not have any appreciable effect on the lake level during the period of high water this year.

Also, he expressed doubt that it could be done without permission of the international joint commission, which controls boundary waters.

6,000 MEMBERS PURGED

Vienna, Austria, April 17—(AP) —Albania's Premier Enver Hoxha has disclosed that almost 6,000 members of the Albanian communist party have been purged recently as unreliable. Hoxha said that those purged "for hostile activity, for concealing their shady pasts, or for shirking party work" amounted to eight per cent of the total party membership.

Fort William; Regina Pats Tee-Off Tonight

Regina, April 17 (CP)—Star right-winger Don (Beaver) Polle will be missing from the Fort William line-up tonight when the Hurricanes tackle Regina Pats in the fifth game of the Western Canada Memorial Cup hockey final.

The best-of-seven series is deadlocked at two games each following Regina's 6-2 win Tuesday.

Polle suffered a concussion when he fell into the boards midway through the first period in Tuesday's game. He remained in hospital yesterday and doctors said it is unlikely to play in Saturday's game.

Coach Louis Passador had more troubles, as wingman Frank Richardson came down with a hip injury and is a doubtful starter. The Forts had a stiff two-hour practice yesterday.

Murray Armstrong sent the Regina team through a light 15-minute skate and all parts were in fairly good condition, Wingers Ted Yarnton and Doug Kellish are nursing slight charley-horses.

Armstrong said Tuesday's win was the big one for the Pats.

"It put us on even footing again. Now it amounts to a best of 3 race series with all the games on our own ice. We should be able to win under those circumstances," said Armstrong.

CYCLONIC WINDS HIT

Dar Es Salaam, Tanganyika, April 17—(AP)—One African was killed by a falling tree and nine Arabs were feared to have drowned in high waves when cyclonic winds hit Lindi on the eastern Tanganyika coast Monday. About 20,000 Africans were left homeless.

BIG GUN FOR YANKS - - By Alan Mayer

Leafs, Royals Open Season With Victories

(By The Associated Press)

Jack Wallesa, who led Springfield Cubs in virtually every batting department last year, may be setting his sights on another chance with Chicago Cubs.

The big outfielder has been up with the parent cubs, but hasn't made the grade, although the Bruins reputedly need a long ball hitter. He crashed 14 home runs last year, and 25 the season before.

Wallesa got into the spirit of things right off yesterday on International League opening day, bashing a bases-loaded round-tripper in addition to a single while his club was pasting Rochester Red Wings 10-1 behind the workmanlike hurling job of Bill Padget.

Go To Wire

Montreal Royals, favored to win the flag, had to go right down to the wire before whipping Syracuse Chiefs 2-1 on a ninth inning home run by Don Hoak. Tom Lasorda permitted the Chiefs only two hits, while Bob Keegan, on the mound for the losers, was tapped for but five safeties.

Toronto Maple Leafs rode to a 10-1 triumph over Baltimore Orioles on the Wings of four home runs—by Ed Stevens, Charlie Grant, Lew Morton and Wilmer Fields. Vic Lombardi was the winning pitcher.

In another one-sided affair, Buffalo Bisons overwhelmed Ottawa Athletics 11-3. Hank Borowy, a veteran of 12 major league seasons, got credit for the victory, although he needed help from Ralph Poole in the eighth.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was taking terns looking at his watch and looking back at his paper while he was eating his breakfist this morning, and ma said, William, now I realize why you seem to get nervous sometimes when I discribe one of my long senseless dreems.

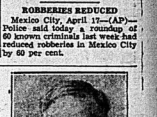
If there's one coming up now, I'm afraid I have to be pushing off, pop said, and ma said, Oh, dont worry, you'll never have to listen again, after what happened to me yesterday. Blanch Hipkis justhed on boring me with the longest and silliest dreem I ever heard. It seems I was chased, by in the dreem, and that was her easy excuse for forcing me to listen to every perspoterous little detail of it, ma said.

I simpathize with you, my dear, pop said, and ma said, I should say so. I guess that's why when she was skating on thin ice with danger siens all over it to keep people off, but she skated on and on, just to prove she didn't believe in siens, and it seems she wasn't wearing orderery ice skates, she was wearing carpenter's saws, just to make the danger doubly clear, however that was enough she fell through into the freezing water, and the next thing she knew she was frozen in the middle of a solid block of ice on the bottom of the lake, and that's where I came in, ma said.

Here's where I go out, pop said, and ma said, It seems she saw me walking past holding a parasol with icicles dangling from it, and just then there was a terrific explosion.

That's me dashing off to work, pop said. If I get time I'll call you up to hear the finish, he said, and ma said, Oh, dont bother, it's not that important.

Okay then, I'll just forget it, pop said.



Which he probably did.

ROBBERIES REDUCED

"Danced For Joy" When Back, Leg Pains Ended

Suffered For Years, Then Got Grand Relief by Using Syntona. Also Helped Stomach, Eased Headaches, Dizzy Spells.

MR. M. A. WALLER

"Having suffered for years from awful backache and rheumatic pains in my legs, I was overjoyed when Syntona helped me so much. Syntona also was helping me," said Mr. M. A. Waller, of Bond Street, Bancroft, Ontario, in a recent report.

"At times the pains used to be so bad I could neither sleep at night, nor get about during the day. I got it at a store and after using it was all I could do to straighten up again. I danced for joy. Headaches and dizzy spells and troubled all the time with me, indigestion and heartburn after my meals.

"Since Syntona I was taking four or five different medicines at a time, but nothing seemed to help me. But it wasn't long after I'd taken Syntona that I noticed relief and it not only cleared up pains in my back, limbs and joints, but helped my stomach, relieved my headaches and my nervous spells. Now I can eat good digests well. I am also free of headaches and dizzy spells and I would advise any one who suffers as I did to start taking Syntona at once."

Why not take the advice of Mr. Waller and try this Pure Herbal medicine yourself? Find out what it can do for you. Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The fact that a bridge player opens the bidding does not always mean that his side is the strongest pair. The majority of power may still be with opponents in their combined holdings.

The first idea of a takeout is to show partner a hand as good as an opening bidder's. Thus, as a foundation for either side, the folks are as good as the people.

After that, the strongest pair will no doubt turn out to be the one whose partner has the best helping hand. Thus, each of the partners must quickly announce their strength or weakness.

When there is an intervening pass or redouble, partner of the doubler is expected to bid. The only exception to this is when the partner of the doubler can help defeat the current bid.

Therefore, when partner of the doubler comes in with a bid it is an indication that he does not have a strong hand. That is, if the bid he makes there is without a jump.

Consequently, some other kind of a response must be used by the doubler's partner to show his strength. What other response? A bid of any kind or a double.

South opens with a club. West doubles for takeout. North bids a heart, if east-west he will show a hand that is not weak. His bid is one spade with the hand shown here:

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 17—(AP) — Another Stanley Kowalski has hit Hollywood. This one is neater than Marlon Brando, but his ideas about the movie town have a similar bite.

The new personality is Bonar Colleano, the American who played opposite Vivien Leigh in the London stage run of "A Streetcar Named Desire." He came here from England to play an American soldier in "The Secret People."

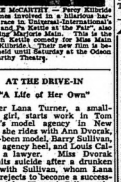
Colleano (pronounced Koleeno) has some of the dynamic qualities of Brando. Asked for his impressions of Hollywood, he said, "I'm not one of those guys who come to Hollywood to knock it. After all, I've only been here six weeks, and it's my first visit.

"But, it seems to me that Hollywood is too insular. The studios expect everyone to conform to their kind of thinking.

"They import some of the greatest talent in the world—but they don't allow that talent to express original ideas. Everybody must fit the pattern of what has gone on before.

"If I could move Hollywood's climate to London, I'd like it fine."

Colleano's own history is unusual. He possesses a dual citizenship—British and U.S. The reason for this is that he was born in New York of Australian parentage.



The Colleano name sounds Italian, and he could pass for it. Actually, he is about as Italian as Barry Fitzgerald. The family's real name is Sullivan, and grandpa Cornelius Sullivan was born in county Cork. A circus uncle was landed in Australia and settled there. He started his own circus down under, taking the Colleano name to make it sound European.

There are performing Colleanos all over the globe. Con Colleano, Bonar's cousin, is the famed tightwire artist, now with Clyde Beatty's circus. Aunt Winifred is a well-known aerialist, and another uncle is currently performing in a act in Las Vegas. Bonar spent most of his childhood touring the U.S. with his parents, who were acrobats.

"I'm the only member of the family who went legit," said Bonar, who is 28. That happened after he went to England, where he has lived since 1936.

During the war, he enlisted in the U.S. air force, taking his training in England. He was invalided out after a minor accident.

"I fell out of a B-29," he reported. "I hate to ruin a good story, but I have to add that the motors weren't turning at the time. The plane was on the ground."

AT THE McCARTHY — Percy Kilbride becomes involved in a hilarious horse race in Universal-International's "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair" at the Starting Marjorie Main. This is the fourth Kettle comedy for Miss Main and Kilbride, and their new film is being held until Saturday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE DRIVE-IN
"A Life of Her Own"

After Lana Turner, a small-town girl, starts work in Tom Ewell's model agency in New York, she rides with Ann Dvorak, a has-been model, Barry Sullivan, an ad agency head, and Louis Calhern, a lawyer. Miss Dvorak commits suicide after a drunken spat with Sullivan, whom Lana later rejects to become a successful model. Through Calhern, she meets and falls in love with Ray Milland, a married Montana cowper magnate. When Milland reluctantly spends his birthday with his crippled wife, Margaret Phillips, who arrives in town for the month, Lana gets drunk at her own party and later visits the wife to solve the dilemma. Lana realizes the wife's utter dependence on Milland and goes her own way.

MELROSE

Melrose — It was with regret news of the passing of Rev. H. P. L. Seymour was received. His interment took place on the 9th of the month in the beautiful old cemetery at Cataraqui. Sympathy is extended to the bereaved wife and family. The late Mr. Seymour was at one time pastor of the Shannonville circuit.

Mrs. J. C. Milligan returned home on Friday after spending several weeks with her son, Lewis, and family, in Cornwall.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLaren and boys spent Easter Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lloyd, Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Embury entertained members of their family from Toronto over the weekend.

Mrs. John English has had as her guest her brother's wife from Scotland, who recently arrived here by plane.

Miss Marion English, Reg. N. Toronto, spent the long weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur English.

The Y.P.U. held a special Easter service in the Melrose United Church on Friday evening. The Shannonville junior choir, with their pianist, Mrs. Harry Sine, provided the special music. Rev. Mr. Spoll gave an address and the president of the Young People, Miss Margaret English, conducted the service.

The young people were later entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bates where a social time, with refreshments, was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant-McLaren, Mrs. Alex McLaren and Malcolm of Toronto, had dinner Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Blatherwick and family, Belleville.

The Sunday morning Easter service was well attended when communion service was also observed. Miss Betty Bates contributed a solo. The Easter lilies and ferns which had adorned the church for the Friday evening service added nicely to the spirit of the season. Rev. Mr. Scott and Mrs. Scott spent the dinner hour at the Reilly home.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 18, 1952.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Sensible warnings to be mindful of what you say, do, and how you do it. Don't argue needlessly; don't override the rights of others.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Some restrictions likely, can be use our good. They give us time to finish tasks, ready our work bench, desk or home for a busy next week.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Friendly Mercury rays from yesterday still linger; but day of whole calls for patience, careful analysis of important issues, close attention to duties.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Your Moon and other planets not all auspicious in aspect, advise extra caution in money transactions, dealing with property, ventures. But don't fret!

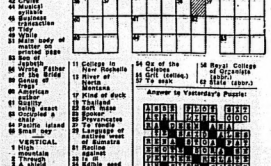
July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Your activities are in the "be careful" category. Stop to think, plan before carrying out new ideas or ventures, but don't sit back and worry.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Much is up to you and how demanding your program is. If not too exacting a day, you should be able to get things done efficiently. Be more careful signing checks, contracts, etc.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—One of those in-between days, neither too auspicious nor yet too hindering in tendency. The quicker you start day's essentials, the easier you will earn relaxation. Keep calm!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Day a challenge to your ingenuity, managerial ability and cheer despite lack of much help. You are usually at best when put to the test.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your Jupiter still in influence, Mars shows some restrictions. Scan carefully your day's musts and treat them conscientiously, and in turn. Other matters will come easier.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Have time for reflection, to check week's doings. Today is prime for finishing all tasks. Don't crowd self with unnecessary activities but do the essentials well.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—All matters may not be wholly as you desire but this is true for many today. Make most of your responsibilities with the talent and capability God gave you.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your Neptune more favorably aspected today. Free advantages for shipping, travel by sea, dealing in beverages, chemicals, oil. Confidential interests sponsored.

YOU BORN TODAY: Are brain workers, can create new methods for advancing the usefulness of items, machinery, tools, etc. Should be fond of music, entertainment; are often humorous, interesting, but seldom like to submit to the directions of others. Ask God's help daily and you can reach the top in profession, trade, whatever calling. Birthdate: Flavius Gratianus, ancient Roman emperor.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong moment. No one is free of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, this alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

BLACKHEADS

Don't squeeze blackheads—dissolve them by applying PEROXIDE POWDER on a wet face cloth. Safe. Simple. Sure. At your druggist. Really wonderful. Price $1.25.

GUNMAN CHARGED AFTER SHOOTING CONSTABLE

Four Civilians, Army Engineer Arrested

Action Follows Investigation Of Petawawa Thefts

Goods Worth $1,000,000 Reported Stolen from Camp

Pembroke, April 18 — (CP) — Four civilians and an army engineer captain were arrested today on charges of conspiracy and theft as a result of investigation into large-scale thefts from the nearby Petawawa military camp.

The R.C.M.P. listed the five as Jack Jacobson, David C. Mawhenney and Amos Durant of Brockville, Ont., Morrie Elsen of Pembroke and Capt. Donald W. Baldock, Royal Canadian Engineers, stationed at Petawawa.

All five are doubly charged under the criminal code with conspiracy and theft. They were arrested today on warrants here, at Petawawa and Brockville.

They are expected to be arraigned here before a justice of the peace who will set a date for preliminary hearings.

University Graduate

Capt. Baldock, 28-year-old native of Brandon, Man., and graduate of University of Manitoba, joined the army in 1944 and was promoted to captain in 1950. He has served at Chilliwack and Vernon, B.C., and on the Alaska highway.

It was indicated that the five arrests do not climax the investigation. More may develop as the probe continues into reports that goods worth $1,000,000 were stolen from the camp, which is located north-west of Ottawa.

Earlier reports indicated that two officers might be arrested today, a major and a captain of the engineers. The four civilians were said to include representatives of a salvage company.

New Stoves, Refrigerators

The thefts are said to have included a large number of new electric stoves and refrigerators to a value of possibly $50,000.

The investigation has been placed in charge of Sgt. H. C. Sandwick of R.C.M.P. headquarters, Ottawa. The Mounties were brought into the case at the request of the army department. The army provost corps is working with them.

The Defence Department announced last week that the investigation started some time ago. However, a spokesman declined to give details other than that army metal was involved in the thefts which might run to hundreds of tons of goods.

Sources here reported a railway official in this city, the Canadian Pacific Railway to the military Camp was being dug up and carried away within the last 12 months.

Also reported stolen were stoves, refrigerators, building material, cement blocks and other construction materials.

The evidence obtained during the investigation by army provost and the R.C.M.P. was presented to J. W. Pickup, Toronto lawyer named as a special Crown prosecutor.

Legal Battle Can be Tried In N.Y. Courts

Albany, N.Y., April 18—(AP)—The court of appeals decided yesterday that a legal battle over ownership of the $40,000,000 farflung Bata Shoe empire could be tried in New York State courts.

Jan A. Bata of Brazil, half-brother of the Czech founder of the shoe firm, Tomas Bata, had contended that New York courts had no jurisdiction in a case brought against him by the founder's widow and son, Mrs. Marie Bata and Thomas J. Bata, both of Batawa, Ont.

Mrs. Bata and her son had asked the state supreme court to require Jan Bata to hold in account for them the huge business interests and deliver the firm's property and proceeds to them.

But Jan Bata refused to answer the complaints on the ground the New York court had no jurisdiction. The state's highest court unanimously rejected that plea today.

Canada Becoming A Country Of City Dwellers

Ottawa, April 18 (CP)—Canada is slowly but steadily becoming a country of city dwellers.

The trend from country to city and town has been going on for 50 years and is still continuing. The bureau of statistics reported yesterday.

The bureau said its 1951 census figures disclose that 61.6 per cent of all Canadians now live in urban localities while 38.4 per cent reside in the country.

A compilation of 1951 figures shows the urban population increased between 1941 and 1951 32.7 per cent from 6,501,328 to 8,628,258 while the rural population rose only 7.5 per cent from 5,003,299 to 5,381,191.

Even in the thinly-populated territories there have been changes. In the 10-year period, the Yukon's rural population decreased from 72.8 to 71.5 per cent and that the Northwest Territories from 88.3 to 83 per cent.

CARET POOLED TELECAST

New York, April 18 — (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System and National Broadcasting Company agreed today to carry a pooled telecast of the atomic blast in Nevada next week.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 18 (CP)— Synopsis: Summer-like weather continues across most of southern Canada. Yesterday the mercury hit 86 in Winnipeg, and this afternoon may see new all-time high temperature records for April 18 in many southern Ontario localities.

On Saturday cooler air will penetrate the James Bay and White River areas but elsewhere the warm weather will continue with maximum temperatures in the low 70s again expected for southwestern Ontario.

TWO NAVY PLANES PLUNGE INTO SEA AFTER COLLISION

Seven Men Missing Off Nova Scotia Coast

Halifax, April 18. (CP)—Planes and ships dodged freakish weather off the Nova Scotia coast today, searching for possible survivors from two navy planes which apparently collided and plunged into the Atlantic ocean Thursday night.

There were no indications that any of the seven men aboard the planes survived. One search vessel reported finding wreckage apparently of two aircraft"—but no sign of life.

Air, sea and naval planes were thrown into the hunt and every available ship was sent to sea.

Were on Exercises

The seven men from the fleet air arm's base at nearby Shearwater were aboard two Avengers, torpedo bombers being used as anti-submarine craft. The accident occurred about 79 miles off Shelburne on Nova Scotia's southwestern coast.

A flight of Avengers was carrying out exercises in the area at the time.

Early plane for an air search were stalled by zero weather but the ceiling lifted a few hours later and the air force said it planned an all-day sweep of the area.

The air force sent two search planes to the area on Friday but they were called back because of bad weather. They took off again when the weather cleared.

Have Plane at Shearwater

Although the Atlantic is a chilly 40 degrees at this time of year, any of the men who managed to clear themselves from the wreckage would have a good chance of survival.

Each carried a life-jacket. A self-inflating dinghy is standard equipment of each parachute harness.

Two Jets Collide

North Luffenham, Rutland, England, April 18—Two Sabre-jet fighter planes from the R.C.A.F.'s No. 441 (Cougar) Squadron collided in mid-air today over the east coast of England. Both pilots are reported missing.

Observers in an R.A.F. Lincoln bomber reported that parachutes were seen after the collision. Other reports said a search was seen wandering in a dinghy.

Aircraft, marine launches and helicopters went to the area today in the Wash, an indentation in the coastline between Lincoln and Norfolk counties.

The collision apparently took place at the end of formation practice for a run over the Wainfleet bombing range.

It was the first serious accident since the R.C.A.F. established a fighter base here last November.

Plane Flying Within Yugoslavia Forced Into Austria at Pistol Point

Graz, Austria, April 18 (CP) — Police said six persons, including two Canadian citizens, all claiming to be anti-Tito, forced a plane flying within Yugoslavia into Austria today and landed at Graz.

The Canadians, said to have been unable to get exit permits to leave Yugoslavia, were identified as Marinko Nikolajev and his brother Johann. Johann, 23, was said to have been born in Alberta.

Police said the pilot was forced at pistol point to fly off his course from Zagreb to Ljubljana.

The six persons were taken into custody by British occupation authorities and the plane continued its flight to Ljubljana.

The Nikolajev Brothers were accompanied by their mother and their sister, Zorka. The mother and sister were said by police to be without Canadian citizenship but were in possession of Canadian immigration papers.

The refugees were aided in their plot to escape by two men identified as Josef Bokic and a lawyer, Mela Mrvoyovic, of Nicic, near Belgrade.

British occupation authorities confirmed that the plane made a forced landing at Graz airport and that the refugees were taken into custody.

The party claimed they were "political refugees," a British spokesman said. "If this is proven true, they will be sent to a displaced-persons camp for processing."

The plane's stewardess refused permission for the baggage of the refugees to be unloaded at the airport after the plane landed.

The refugees told police that they held up the crew of the plane and left the remaining five passengers in the plane with two pistols and a machine knife during almost the entire length of their trip from Zagreb.

232 Prisoners Take Over Wing and Hold Nine Guards Captive After Night of Riots

Rahway, N.J., April 18—(AP)—A rebellion of more than 300 convicts raged at Rahway state prison farm today in sympathy with a four-day mutiny at Trenton state prison 40 miles away.

A band of 233 prisoners grabbed control of a two-story dormitory wing last night and held nine prison guards as hostages. It was the fifth prison outbreak in New Jersey in three weeks.

Guards and state police regained control of the ground floor of the wing this morning by a rush.

The convicts yelled down that one of their number had served his term and was due to be released today. They asked if he would be released if they let him out of the dormitory.

Prison officials told the rioters to send the man down to the first floor and remove part of the barricade they erected to block him out.

When the rebels did this the guards broke through and swarmed into the ground floor. The rioters retreated to the upper floors and the guards said they would not use more barricades.

Prison officials were unwilling to use tear gas to quell the mutiny because of the hostages.

The farm superintendent was asked by newspaper men if the man whose release they want will be released on schedule. The superintendent declined to comment himself, saying "naturally, the prison routine is upset."

The Trenton convicts are demanding the ouster of Warden William P. Carty and an investigation of the prison. They released an ill hostage last night and arranged a rebellion meeting with prison officials for today.

The Rahway rioters made a similar request for a prison probe and ousting of Carty. An outburst of breaking windows, beds and furniture in the dormitory wing.

The rioting started about 8 p.m. last night after an earlier report of "noisy and unruly" activities in the wing during the afternoon. It was the fifth prison disturbance in New Jersey in the last three weeks.

When the outbreak started, guards moved to remove 118 men before the others barricaded the entrances, trapping nine guards on the second floor.

"To the best of my knowledge the guards are not," said deputy state commissioner of institutions and agencies F. Lovell Bixby.

"We have the wing completely surrounded and we'll sit it out as we are doing in Trenton," he added.

Fire Furniture

The rioting prisoners set fire to furniture in the dormitory and attempted to break through the barred windows, but the flames drove toward morning.

The barricaded Trenton inmates last night released one of their four hostages, who had suffered a heart attack. They lowered Orin Robison from a six-foot high window into the arms of waiting guards.

Robison, not in serious condition, had been held for more than 60 hours.

Guards reported last night that a microphone eavesdropping system had been set up through a hole in the print shop and prison officials had been listening in on everything the prisoners said.

They said the convict group is armed with broken blades from a paper-cutting machine.

Ralph Doak, serving a life term for kidnapping, William Dietz Cole, 35-year-old robber, who have been threatened to kill any prisoners who want to give up, the guards added.

The convicts are reported almost out of food and water.

WEALTHY JEWELER PAYS $15,200 FOR SON'S SAFETY

Unknown Face Death Penalty for Kidnapping

Miami, Fla., April 18 — (AP) — A wealthy Miami jeweler paid $15,200 "ransom" for the safety of his six-year-old son in a strange abduction which State-Attorney Richard Kinnard today classified as a kidnapping.

The perpetrators of the plot never placed their hands on the boy, Richard Ritcher, while they held his father, Daniel Richter, into paying $15,000 in jewels and $200 cash. But Kinnard said they face the death penalty for their clever, perfectly-timed deal.

Richter and his wife told the police said Cole opened fire from an automobile on Constable Houlihan and Constable Joseph E. Gratz. The two officers were in a police cruiser and recognized the man at the wheel of the other car.

Gratz forced the car to the curb and as they sporoached, the police said the driver pulled two .45-calibre revolvers from the compartment and opened fire.

The officers returned the fire and the man jumped from the car and escaped on foot.

Cote was arrested five blocks away in a Cannon Street West rooming house. He was captured without a struggle and taken to hospital with wounds in his left thigh and left ankle. His condition is good.

Police who entered the rooming house were led by Acting Chief of Police Leonard Lawrence. The shooting took place on Cannon Street near Bay.

Police said the man's car was loaded with ammunition.

One report said the car was stopped after the two constables noticed it cruising slowly in front of the Lloyd's Glass Company store. A second report said the man was stopped after he went through a red light.

Last Rites Administered

The last rites of the Roman Catholic Church were given to Constable Houlihan in hospital. A short while later, Mrs. Marion, and eight-year-old daughter, Karen, were informed of his plight.

Police said they were questioning Cole, a former paratrooper with the army and air service, in connection with a recent wave of bank holdups.

A senior police officer said he was told the man had been pulled a gun. The officers were following long-standing instructions to shoot anyone with a gun driving after midnight.

Constable Houlihan was walked to the side of Cote's car and noticed him fumbling on the floor. The man came up with a revolver and started firing.

LEVEL NEAR RECORD

Toronto, April 18 — (CP) — Lake Ontario rose another inch today within one-quarter inch of its record level.

The lake has reached 249 feet, 2 3-4 inches, just below the June, 1947 record of 249 feet, three inches. The April average for the last 10 years is 247 feet, three inches.

Critical Hours in Missouri Flood Begin as Water Squeezes Into Narrow Levee Channel

Omaha, Neb., April 18—(AP)—The mad Missouri squeezed its flood-crested waters into the narrow Omaha-Council Bluffs levee channel today and an army of workers battled to keep the level in straight jacket of dikes.

The critical hours began before dawn when the slow-moving flood crest reached the point of seven-mile-long funnel of sodden dikes protecting the lowlands of the area between Lincoln and Council Bluffs, Iowa.

The next few days may determine whether the tremendous water pressures will burst through levees and send the raging flood along this river which has become a menace to thousands.

All night long soldiers and civilian volunteers fought to raise 24,000 of them—rolled under floodlights on the dikes here and on levees downstream where the raised waters are expected to smash through almost every farm dike all the way to Kansas City.

Doctors, lawyers, business executives, students, newspapermen and other volunteers took their turn heaving sandbags on the dikes to strengthen them against the mighty pressure floods this Missouri Valley has ever known.

The river crept to 30.15 feet early today. Flood level is 29 feet and the highest flood ever recorded before was 24.6 feet back in 1881.

The great battle was to get the crest of the flood through the narrow Omaha channel through which the river normally flows at the fantastic rate of 286,000,000,000 gallons a day.

Predicts 32 Feet Wide

North of Omaha, the Missouri sprawls across the farmland for as much as 15 miles.

For 50 miles upstream, the river averages 10 miles in width and 30,000 feet. But in the narrowest part of the Omaha-Council Bluffs channel the funnel is only 1,200 feet wide. And the tide must be passed through this slender

Churchill Has Heavy Chest Cold, Stays in Bed

Westerham, Kent, England, April 18 — (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill, suffering from a heavy chest cold, stayed in bed today for his country home at Chartwell Manor, near here.

His personal physician said "There is no change in his condition."

The first indication that the 77-year-old statesman was ill came yesterday when he cancelled a trip to Kansas City. Thousands of acres of rich farmland, highways, railroads, bridges and homes are inundated in the creeping brown tide.

Across the water-logged midwest, the Red Cross reported today that more than 130,000 persons in 10 states, destroyed at least 200 homes, and another 4,107 homes damaged.

past. The river crest strained against the dikes here with a pressure of more than 1,250 pounds a square foot.

Col. Wm. Lewis A. Pick, chief of the U.S. army engineers, told reporters that the fight for dikes here would hold.

"If we can control the sandboil areas," he said, "we'll win the fight."

"Sandboils" are caused by the river pressure forcing water through sandy strata beneath the dikes. If uncontrolled, these sandboils could develop into tunnels through which the water would pour in a torrent that would collapse the dike.

Hamilton Officer Critically Hurt In Gunfight

Checking on Suspicious Looking Car When Fired On

Hamilton, April 18. (CP)—A charge of attempted murder was laid today against 27-year-old Louis Cote, of Hamilton, arrested as the man who shot two police constable in an early-morning gunfight on a downtown street.

Cote, with two bullet wounds in his leg and ankle, was taken into custody in his rooming house shortly after the shooting.

An emergency operation was performed on Constable Raymond Houlihan, 32, and is reported in critical condition. He was shot in the groin, arm and chest in a gun battle in which more than 40 shots were fired.

Police said Cote opened fire from an automobile on Constable Houlihan and Constable Joseph E. Gratz. The two officers were in a police cruiser and recognized the man at the wheel of the other car.

Gratz forced the car to the curb and as they sporoached, the police said the driver pulled two .45-calibre revolvers from the compartment and opened fire.

Last Rites Administered

The last rites of the Roman Catholic Church were given to Constable Houlihan in hospital. A short while later, Mrs. Marion, and eight-year-old daughter, Karen, were informed of his plight.

Police said they were questioning Cote, a former paratrooper with the army and air service, in connection with a recent wave of bank holdups.

A senior police officer said he was told the man had been pulled a gun. The officers were following long-standing instructions to shoot anyone with a gun driving after midnight.

Constable Houlihan was walked to the side of Cote's car and noticed him fumbling on the floor. The man came up with a revolver and started firing.

Angler Gives Tip to Catch More Fish But it Leaves Stomach Black, Blue

Preston, Ont. — (CP) — William Cribner has a tip for catching more fish but it may leave your stomach black and blue.

Mr. Cribner's secret is to keep the fish pointed at the lure and while reeling in to hold the rod straight back for the body at almost arm's length.

When he feels action on the line he pulls the rod straight back against his stomach.

Mr. Cribner has pulled it into my stomach so hard it actually hurt and my companions have heard me grunt with pain." The white-haired angler explains. "But I usually get my fish."

The retired Hamilton-born glassworker says his method reduces the time lost in lifting the tip of the rod when a fish nibbles.

"As far as I know my method is not practised by anyone outside myself. I picked it up from an Englishman a long time ago."

Mr. Cribner, however, never started at the age of three with his father on Hamilton bay. At that time young William was lashed to the boat to prevent his falling or being dragged into the water by a fish. He bought his first fishing tackle around the age of seven or eleven. It takes half a day to make a spoon from copper, Mr. Cribner says. Some prefer brass, bronze and pure silver.

Mr. Cribner believes he was the first man to introduce casting in Ontario.

"I had travelled around the north country," he says, "and had never seen a man casting before I started."

Today he holds life membership in three fishing clubs.

Queen Juliana To Spend Week Visiting Canada

Ottawa, April 18 —(CP)—Queen Juliana of The Netherlands next week will pay a "sentimental" visit to Canada, a country she considers a second home.

Originality, the Queen, who spent most of the Second World War in Ottawa, was scheduled to make a formal state visit to Canada following a similar visit to the United States. Plans were changed when Canada decreed a period of mourning following the death of King George VI.

The External Affairs Department yesterday issued arrangements for her "unofficial" one week visit. The program sets out details for the first three days, starting Monday. No functions are listed for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

An official said the Queen had expressed a desire to be "done for a few days and to be "just another human being."

During the "free" time she may visit some of the nearby spots with which she became familiar during her wartime stay.

Three Youths Given Probation For One Year

Considerably chastened after spending the past five days in the county jail, two Belleville youths and one from Trenton, were given one year suspended sentence after they pleaded guilty in Magistrate's court to pilfering from milk bottles.

The three youths were picked up Monday morning by city police after a Parkwood Heights resident complained that young boys had been observed taking money from milk bottles. From descriptions given, police picked up the three lads on Bridge Street.

Wills agreed and suspended sentence for one year after ordering the lads to pay court costs of $17 each. They were given one month to pay the money with instructions to get out and earn it themselves.

Curling Season Opens at Arena, Large Turnout

At the Memorial Arena last night curling came back to the city after an absence of nearly seven years, a great deal of spade work by an energetic group of old and prospective curlers, the arena was acquired and five sheets of ice were laid down for the enjoyment of 60 members for the next two weeks.

Although the ice was a little slow, curlers thoroughly enjoyed themselves and during the night they had a large gallery watching and probably from them new curlers will be inclined to join in the fun. Many of the boys out last night had not curled for many years but some showed real form and some excellent games were the result. The newer curlers were distributed throughout the rinks and looked in previous years, while others went about giving instructions to those who had never curled before.

The curling season was made possible when the directors of the the Kingston Curling Club. The equipment used this season were donated by the club without expense, while the brooms and other equipment will be loaned. The members of the club came up on Wednesday night and marked out the five sheets, while the Arena staff gave valuable assistance. Every help has been given by everyone and the club officials fully appreciate the kindness shown.

Mr. W. C. Gault, president of the club, opened the season with a few remarks, hoping that all the members would have a good time in the short season and would cause enough enthusiasm, that a curling rink could be immediately Ever be built in this city. It is the intention of the club to invite some rinks up from Kingston for a friendly game next week and also to hold at least one local bonspiel. Everyone is invited to come down to the rink any night and watch the curlers or if interested to come out and curl. It is a swell sport and one of the foremost pastimes in this province and across Canada.

Pile of Shavings Alongside Mill Catches Fire

A grass fire which backed up unnoticed and caught into a pile of shavings threatened the planing mill of the Airhart Lumber Company on Station St. this morning.

An official of the company alone at the premises happened to "take a look" around the mill when he noticed the pile of shavings outside the mill aflame. He attempted to beat out the flames but was unsuccessful and raced to the office to turn in the alarm.

Firemen arrived at the scene just in time to prevent the flames catching into the planing mill building and then stayed to stamp out the grass fire in nearby fields.

Last evening firemen were called to the city dump and also to a grass fire. This morning they were called to a chimney fire at the British American Oil Company premises on South Front Street.

Federal Grants For Highways Are Suggested

Toronto, April 18 (CP)—Hugh A. Lumsden, retiring president of the Ontario Motor League, today suggested that the federal government be asked to study how greater aid can be given to provincial highway systems.

Addressing the league's annual meeting, he said that, although the Ontario government is spending more on roads than ever before, "it seems to me that our roads are deteriorating more quickly than they can be constructed and maintained."

The work on highways was well managed and directed but tremendous increase in traffic, coupled with a scarcity of cement and steel made it appear that greater aid was required.

"I think the time is overdue when the Dominion government should bear an increasing part of the burden of construction and maintenance," he said.

Mr. Lumsden, who is completing his second year as president of the 45-year-old league, deplored the classifying of automobiles as luxuries for taxation purposes.

First Canadian Army to Honor Its Commander

Toronto, April 18 (CP) —The old army uniforms are coming out of mothballs for the biggest crosscanada khaki reunion since VE-Day seven years ago.

Virtually every unit and formation in the wartime First Canadian Army will be represented at a dinner in Toronto, May 8, to honor Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, its commander.

Seven hundred officers will squeeze into their dress uniforms —if they can—or wear civvies or dinner clothes. Probably 50 will be army nurses.

The dinner where speeches will be few and short, is getting to be a secondary part of the affair. Plans are being made for get-togethers of scattered messes. Tables are being labelled with formation signs, the old "Maple Leaf Up" and "Maple Leaf Down" signs that directed wartime traffic are being resurrected. Officers are being indexed and cross-indexed so they can find each other.

Thirty or more major-generals or better will deck the head-table but the bulk of the activity and attendance will be majors and down. Two side-rooms will house the movies showing off sound films of west front and Italian campaigns and an exhibit of enlarged still-photos of Canadian action.

The Royal York, where the "do" is scheduled, will echo with the screams of bag-pipes from every Ontario Highland Regiment— and of some of the listeners, the boys are saying it will be an affair to remember.

BCI Cagers Lose Albert Wins

Kingston, April 18. (CP)— Belleville and Peterborough were dropped from further "A" competition in the Queen's Basketball tournament today as Sudbury downed Belleville 39-29, and Hamilton Centrals scored a 34-28 win over the Petes after the score was tied at 15-15 after the first half.

Albert College, Belleville, knocked off the favored Port Hope squad 40-28 to enter the consolation finals in "C" section while Brockville did the same trick against Ottawa Nepean in the "B" section consolation semi-finals.

As a result, Athens will play Albert College, Pembroke, Brockville and Hamilton, Sudbury this afternoon for the right to enter the finals against their respective winning bracket opponents— Copper Cliff, Welland and Niagara Falls tonight.

Appear Reconciled

Los Angeles, April 18 — (AP)— Joan Bennett and producer Walter Wanger, estranged since he shot her agent, Jennings Lang last Dec. 18, acted like a loving couple as he kissed her goodbye last night at International airport.

Miss Bennett was off to New York, where she will prepare to tour in a play. Next Tuesday Wanger will learn what if any penalty is to be imposed on him for seriously wounding Lang, whom he accused of breaking up his home.

Wanger parried questions about a possible reconciliation. "There is nothing I can say about this now. Too much is still at stake," he said.

Required to Register

Detroit, April 18. (CP)—Law enforcement officials prepared today for a roundup of Michigan communists using legal weapons provided by a new anti-subversive law.

By what is known as the Trucks Act—it became law yesterday—members of the communist and socialist workers' parties are required to register with state police before next Wednesday.

State police commissioner Donald Leonard said his office has a list of some 500 known communists and any of these who did not register would be arrested.

Both socialist and communist parties have been stricken from the Michigan ballot. The socialist workers' party is said to be a'deviant version of the communist party.
